New York Rangers are showing every sign of their intention of grabbing off the N.H.L. championship. They ploughed into the Detroit Red Wings who were on the crest of a four-game winning streak last night and handed them an artistic 7 to 4 trimming and are now three full games ahead of the second place Maple Leafs, who, however, have two games in hand. The Leafs' problem is to pick up enough games to put them out in front of Rangers. A tie will be of no help because the New Yorkers' goal average would give them first place in the event of the point-average being equal. And to get out in front of the Rangers at this stage with the Blue Shirts well out of their slump and apparently rolling again does not look like an easy job. Their attack was clicking all along the line last night and when they get hot the Patrick men certainly pour in the goals. Incidentally they have not been shut out in 95 straight games.

Those Chicago Black Hawks have the knack of coming up every now and then with a powerful rookie. Not long ago they trotted out Mosienko who attracted attention right off the reel by his scoring ability. For last night's game with Canadiens they dipped into their Kansas City bag again and this time produced as a new forward George Johnston who made himself solid with Chicago fans by popping in two goals in the second period against Montreal Canadiens. Black Hawks won that game 5 to 4 and it was a rather weird battle. The Montrealers desperately battling for a playoff berth, opened out the tussle as if they were well on their way to an upset win. They rattled three goals behind Sam LoPresti in the first twenty minutes and held the Hawks scoreless. Paul Thompson must have said a few pointed things to his hired help in the rest interval for Chicago came back to run in five goals in the second session, three of them within 78 seconds and at the end of the stanza the homesters led 5 to 4. It remained at that for the balance of the game.

Gord Caird Hits 845 Triple To Top Bowlers

Gord Caird's 845 high three with a smashing 350 single enabled Big Five to score a 3-1 victory over Freeman's and supply one of the many upsets that featured the City League 5-pin bowlers at Duffus last night.

Jay's was the only one of the top teams that came through on the winning side, scoring a 4-0 triumph over Chief Gimblett's Old Timers. Quakers smacked Dunn's for a 3-1 loss. The closest battle of the night saw Royal Yorks trounce Jack Wade's Outlaws 3-1. The Outlaws dropped the second game by six pins and the total pinnage by 37, with both teams over the 3400 mark.

Probably the worst performance was turned in by Joe Dean's Capitols, who have been top team the past few weeks, rolling a 2900 effort. They split even with Huffman's.

Two other bowlers passed the 800 mark along with Caird. Fred Martin hit 832 with a 320 single and Vince Anthony turned in 813 with a single of 333.

Canuck Rovers Defeated By Score 4-2

At the Brock Street Arena on Thursday night the Colts won the Midget championship of the Southend Minor Hockey League by defeating the Canuck Rovers by a score of four to two in a sudden-death playoff game. Undefeated in league competition, the Colts proved their superiority again in the playoff, by doubling the score on their closest rivals of the season, the Canucks. Not only are the Colts worthy champions of this season, but observers who have watched them perform game after game are agreed that this year's edition of the Colts is the best team to have won the Midget honors in the past decade.

The game was a battle royal and a thriller from start to finish, with the winners always maintaining an edge, but at no time was the margin so pronounced that you could with any certainty have picked the ultimate winner. The scoring for the winning Colts was evenly divided, Jones, Murphy, Meredith and Dundas each scoring a single marker, while for the losing cause, Levoy in the second and Daly in the final period blasted home the tallies.

Ron Horton, the referee of the evening, by his fine handling of the game, stamped himself as perhaps the finest official that has worked in the league this season.

Colts—Dorsett, Outram, Menzies, Meredith, Hill, Beatty, Jones, Murphy, Edgar, Dundas, Griffin.

Canuck Rovers—Carravaggio, Giardino, Duggan, Carter, LaPlante, Goodman, Levoy, Daly, Monahan.

KINGS ROW

THE GORDON'S ARE STERN

CHAPTER XV

Anna's diagnosis of Parris' state of mind was correct. Her observation was a neat compound of native peasant shrewdness and affectionate intuition. Parris was apprehensive and miserable for precisely the reasons she had named.

Today, for the first time since—since that dreadful day, he walked boldly down through the evergreen groves toward the pond. The branches reached across the space between rows and touched. He pushed them aside and presently came out on the little clearing about the "secret lake."

He turned and went quickly to the apple tree. The young leaves covered the branches. He put his back to the trunk and laid his arms along the two large drooping limbs. He wanted to talk to her. He saw her now, clearly once more.

"Renee, my darling. I love you. I didn't know then how much. I know now."

At the sound of the words which startled him back into the present, all sense of her presence was gone. He glimpsed, for an instant only, the flutter of her blue dress, down the long avenue of spruces.

Time had begun to pass. It wouldn't ever stop now. It would go every day, faster and faster. A stirring, unhappy, frightening thought.

Aberdeen College ended its college year with the usual dull and repetitious ceremonies held during what always seemed the hottest week of the year. Parris avoided most of the events.

A week later Madame von Eln left for St. Louis for hospital observation, and Parris yielded to Drake's insistence on a camping trip. His grandmother returned to Kings Row before him, looking less well than when she left.

He went to Anna. "You've got to tell me! What did the doctors say?"

"Nothing new. I must tell you, Madame is not well. Just go on as if everything were as usual, Parris. Don't let her think you are worried about her."

"You're not telling me everything, Anna."

"Run along now, Parris. I'll tell you if there's any danger."

It was in town that afternoon that Parris learned from Colonel Skeffington of Mrs. Tower's death. "Very strange," the Colonel said. "Nobody knew she was ill at all, not at all. If you notice anything curious over there, son—"

Parris found Dr. Tower reading. He appeared as calm and unperturbed as always. He nodded gravely in response to Parris' rather breathless greeting.

"I just heard a few minutes ago about Mrs. Tower. I'm very sorry."

Dr. Tower looked as if he were not really listening. He inclined his head again.

Parris stammered a little, and continued: "I was away, you know. My grandmother was away, too, in St. Louis, or you would have heard from us."

An awkward silence fell between the two. Parris fumbled with some papers. Dr. Tower continued to look at him, but more absently than before. "Parris, I like your good manners. You are a credit to your grandmother, and I hope you appreciate exactly what she has done for you. You are the only young man I've seen in Kings Row who isn't a bumpkin."

Parris flushed darkly this time. "My grandmother is pretty fine, sir. She certainly is. But—but, really—"

"Madame von Eln came to see me just before she went to St. Louis. She wanted to know if you'd be ready to go to Vienna in September."

Parris' breath went out of him. "Oh." His tone was dreary.

"What's the matter?"

"Well, you see, Dr. Tower. Grandmere treats me as if I were a child. I just—just sort of feel like she ought to have told me."

"You'll have to do some stiff reading."

Parris sighed. "All right. Do you suppose—did she say anything about going with me?"

The doctor stared this time. "No, nothing at all." He spoke almost kindly. "I'm sure that would be rather a severe undertaking for her —at her age.

"She's not so old. But I guess she's pretty sick."

"Parris, I undertook this work with you with decided misgivings. I guess it's fair to you to tell you that it has been a pleasure."

Parris blushed. He was curiously touched, and couldn't think of anything to say.

"Thank you."

"I hope that when you get into your work in Vienna you'll find that—all of this has been a help. Some of it has been inadequate, some of it has been—is in advance of any institutional study you could have gotten anywhere. I think some of it will prove useful. But don't be fooled by Vienna, just because it's Vienna. There are old fogies, and crazy experimenters, too, in that city. It's important that you develop some kind of point of view, a way of judging and estimating things that will help you keep on an even keel."

Parris settled back in his chair. Whenever Dr. Tower started like this he was in for a long, but usually happy, digresion.

This one lasted until late afternoon. Dr. Tower talked of medieval history, of man's mental comfort in the centuries before science turned his thinking along disturbing channels, of man's unhappiness because he really has no home in the universe.

They discussed new attitudes toward hysteria, new concepts of the escape complex and its treatment, the appropriate point of view for a physician working in the world of insanity.

They drank coffee together, Dr. Tower swinging one knee over the arm of his chair—an unprecedented informality.

Parris felt a quick surge of curiosity. He was sure that this man was really able and intelligent—probably a very fine doctor. What was the matter? What landed him here in Kings Row with his sole

RANGERS BOOST LEAGUE, SNIP WINGS' STREAK BY 7 TO 4 VICTORY

Canadiens Flop 5-4 To Hawks After 3-0 Lead

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—(CP).— If Toronto Maple Leafs are feeling right now like some poor unfortunate who has been forced to sit idly by while his sworn enemy makes off with his life's savings, they can hardly be blamed.

The Leafs have been sitting around twiddling their thumbs since last Sunday, when thè dropped a 3-0 décision to Detroit Red Wings and saw New York Rangers go ahead by two points in the National Hockey League championship race with a victory over Chicago.

Since then, the Rangers have played two games, have won them both and now are six full points up on the second-place Leafs with the schedule on its last legs. True enough, the Leafs have three games in hand, but they've heard that old bird in the hand proverb too, which is why they are so disconcerted.

Rangers' latest victim was the Detroit club and its four-game winning streak at New York last night. The Patrickmen showed nothing but disdain for the Red Wings' streak, sneered their way to a 4-2 lead in the first period and won off by themselves, 7-4.

Golden Chance Muffed

Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal's cell-dwelling Canadiens had themselves a real holiday in the other game on the schedule last night, with the Hawks finally ending up on the long end of a 5-4 count in a game that had the fans slightly crazy before it was over.

Canadiens had a chance to bypass the idle Brooklyn Americans and practically set Montreal history for this season by vaulting out of the cellar, and they started off in the right direction by taking a 3-0 lead in the first frame.

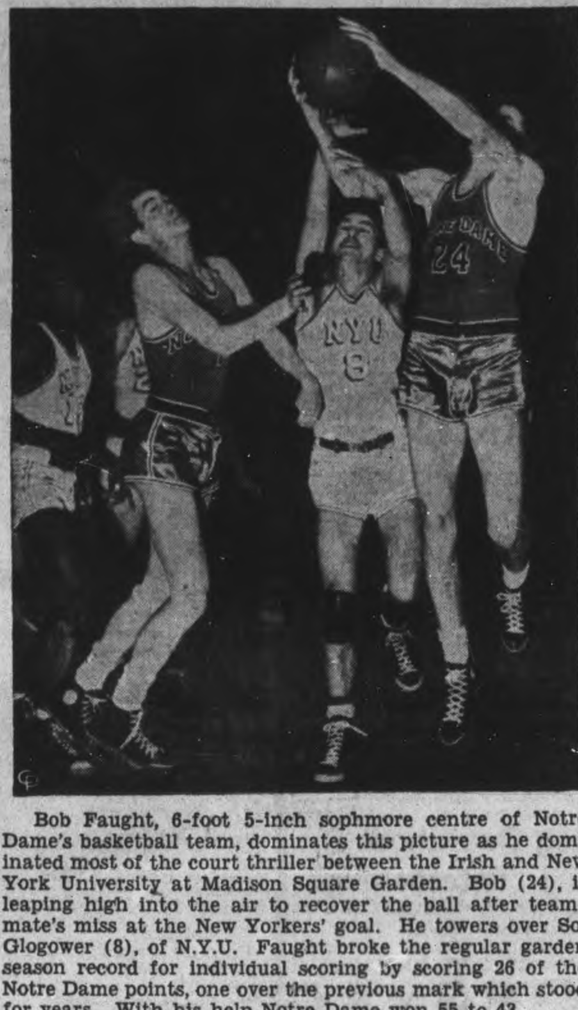
Then their attack stalled, the Hawks got started and before the second period was over the Hawks were ahead, 5-4. That was all the scoring.

The Rangers started fast against the Wings and finished just as fast. Alex Shibicky scored twice and Ott Heller once in the first 10 minutes and Al Kunts added another between two goals by Detroit's Syd Howe.

Lynn Patrick made it 5-2 in the second, then added another to start the third before Sid Abel's penalty soft goal cut it down to 6-3' Grant Warwick scored for Rangers and Don Grosso for Detroit before the game ended.

Max Bentley paced the Hawks with a goal and three assists. Virgil Johnston got two, including the clincher, and the others went to Bill Carse and Art Wiebe. Terry Reardon, Buddy O'Connor, Bunny Dame and Joe Benoit got the Canadien counters.

Star In Action



Bob Faught, 6-foot 5-inch sophmore centre of Notre Dame's basketball team, dominates this picture as he dominated most of the court thriller between the Irish and New York University at Madison Square Garden. Bob (24), is leaping high into the air to recover the ball after teammate's miss at the New Yorkers' goal. He towers over Sol Glogower (8), of N.Y.U. Faught broke the regular garden season record for individual scoring by scoring 26 of the Notre Dame points, one over the previous mark which stood for years. With his help Notre Dame won 55 to 43.

Golf Club Heads Lay Plans Sheep Grazing

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—Grazing of sheep on golf courses and the part it can play in Canada's war effort through increased wool production was thoroughly discussed yesterday at a meeting in the King Edward Hotel at which managers of Toronto district golf clubs and estate owners attended.

It is a step toward what the sponsors hope will lead to thousands of sheep utilizing the many miles of golf fairways across Canada for grazing and materially assisting in greater production of wool. Complete endorsement of the plan was revealed to the meeting in a letter from David C. Dick, wool administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Move Is Endorsed

Mr. Dick's letter read, in part: "May I say that any activity or effort that results in the increase of wool grown in Canada is in my apinion of real value to Canada's war effort. We are, without doubt, going to require every pound of wool that can be produced in Canada and it will be a great pleasure to me as a 'veteran' golf player, as well as administrator, to see thousands of sheep on the golf courses of Canada this year."

The meeting was convened by Stanley Thompson, widely known golf architect, who first visualized the tremendous possibilities of the plan and immediately started executive machinery working to bring it about. W. H. J. Tisdale, assistant manager of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, Ltd., warned the meeting that a serious wool shortage threatens and any contribution which golf courses and estate owners could make would be considered of vital interest to war effort.

L. O'Neill, Livestock Commissioner for Ontario, gave the meeting some practical pointers on the care and maintenance of sheep, and while he said there were some initial obstacles in the path of the plan he believed a scheme could be instituted to make the idea workable.

Sheep Brought Profit

Major A. L. McAllister, manager of the Weston Golf Club, an organization which has maintained a flock of sheep on its course for 11 years, said that after early obstacles, due to inexperience in handling sheep, the flock has shown an average profit of $5 per head plus the value and benefit to the course of the natural fertilizer from the sheep.

E. W. Goulding, manager of St. Andrew's Estates and Golf Club, said that his company had grazed as many as 600 sheep on their properties, but had sold their flocks five years ago owing to the low wool and lamb prices. He said, however, that with existing prices and proper housing facilities a club should maintain sheep at a profit, but stressed that in a national emergency a golf club should not be too much concerned with the profit which it might accumulate.

As a result of the meeting a committee was formed for setting up the required machinery to procure the proper type of breeding sheep for clubs, estates and others wishing to establish flocks and to provide expert advice and assistance in their maintenance.

The following were named: Stanley Thompson; A. Butler, manager, Lambton Golf Club; E. C. Bowyer, manager, Rosedale Golf Club; Major A. L. McAllister, manager, Weston Golf Club; Dr. Joe Sullivan, F. D. Clarke, W. H. J. Tisdale, R. J. Wilson, and J. Ainslie.

Hextall brought his total up to 49 points, 22 goals and 27 assists, while Patrick and Watson held down second place with 46 points apiece.

Detroit's Don Grosso retained his hold on fourth place, three points behind Watson and Patrick, by scoring a goal and assisting in two others to make his total 43 points, 20 goals and 23 assists. Syd Abel, Detroit, is in fifth place, two points behind Howe, while Chicago's Bill Toms is in sixth with 39 points. Toronto's Gordie Drillon is in seventh with 36 points.

One-Eyed Wizard Sea Gulls Sustaining Star

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Thomas William Burlington has only one eye, but he's considered the best player ever discovered in the Eastern United States Amateur Hockey League.

The 21-year-old Canadian, signed with great reluctance by the Atlantic City Sea Gulls last fall, when players became scarce because of the war, now is the team's most prized possession.

He has scored 116 points—goals and assists—in 51 games, a feat nver equalled in professional hockey, and he did it without much inspiration from his team, which had been in the cellar of its league from the start of the season until this week.

What is more, there are nine more scheduled games for him to score in.

Coach Bert Corbeau, the former Canadien and Toronto St. Pats' rugged defenceman, calls young Burlington "a gift from the gods." Burlington was a shipping clerk in Owen Sound, Ont., whn Corbeau picked him up last fall.

Burlington is a big drawing card with the fans hereabouts, and it it wasn't for him the Sea Gulls would have slim gate receipts. The team won only 15 of its first 47 games this season, but "Tommy the Tucker," as fans call Burlington, scored in 44 of those games.

"As Tommy the Tucker goes, so goes the Sea Gulls," is a hackneyed remark in this town. The Sea Gulls failed to score in only three games, and those were the games in which Burlington didn't score.

Tommy was a boy of five when he lost his right eye in an accident. Other hockey plays say that was the best thing that ever happened to him—insofar as it affects his playing—because his opponents can't figure out from watching his eyes which way he is headed with the puck.

Burlington is a good-natured, even-going fellow who rarely talks unless someone else starts the conversation. He isn't as quick tempered as most hockey players, so he has spent only 20 minutes in the penalty box this year. He weighs 145 pounds and is five feet, eight inches tall.

He has promised Cleveland Barons to serve on that American League team "if and when called," but Tommy the Tucker says he doesn't expect to make the pro league.

"The league might take me in a pinch," he said, "but I don't think they really want me on account of my eye. So I'm planning on going back to the furniture factory."

The Sports Round-Up

NEW YORK, Feb. 27 (AP) — Frank Lane, the Cincy Reds' assistant general manager, is convinced that the war hasn't lessened the interest of kids in baseball . . . Lane is setting up 30 tryout camps in various places and reports he gets about as many letters as ever from boys who want a chance to play . . . When Les MacMitchell and Earl Mitchell tangle in the mile at tomorrow's indoor track championship the confusion among listeners may be as bad as in the old Fenske-Venzke days . . . Correction: latest word is that Chicago, not Cleveland, is first in line for next Summer's Louis-Pastor fight.

Jesse Linthicum notes in the Baltimore Sun that the Orioles' vice president is Charley Knapp and the club has a third baseman named Lemon and a pitcher Niller . . . It's a good thing, he says that they lack guys named Bust or Bottom.

Eagles Defeat Lions By 5 to 4

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—(CP).— Washington Lions, trying to cut down the seven-point advantage New Haven Eagles held over them in the American Hockey League standings, have been doing all right for themselves lately, winning six of their nine games and tying another.

Last night, however, the Lions took a 4-1 lead in the first two periods as the teams clashed in Washington, but the Eagle defence was a stone wall during the final frame as the New Haven front line slaughtered the Lion defence and slammed four goals past Bert Gardiner, in the Washington net, to edge out the Lions 5-4.

The victory left the Eagles in second place in the Eastern Division of the league still 11 points behind Springfield Indians and nine points ahead of the third spot Lions. The game was the only one scheduled.

Polly Drouin, Conny Tudin and Frank Mailley gave Lions a 3-0 lead in the opening frame, and Stu Smith made it 4-1 late in the middle session after Joe Shack had counted the first Eagle tally. Norm Tustin scored two goals, one of them the winner, in the third period, with Don Wilson and Mike Dzuira tallying the other New Haven goals.

No Temperament To Upset Ottawa Flyers

OTTAWA, Feb. 27—(CP).—Coach Bill Touhey took pains today to refute any preconceived notions that Royal Canadian Air Force flyers of the Ottawa City Senior League may be handicapped by excess temperament when the Allan Cup race starts in earnest.

"We're more united than ever," he said, replying to a reporter's suggestion that the influx of new players, several of them stars in their own right, might create dissension within the club.

"There just isn't, and there won't be, any temperament on this team," he said.

"The idea of playing for the Air Force is the one thing uppermost in the players' minds, and they're all pulling together.

"I think if they had to, half the boys would give their right eye just to get in the game."

Thus Touhey doesn't anticipate any difficulties in fitting into his lineup such essential parts as Woody Dumart, Bobby Bauer and Milt Schmidt, the famed Kraut Kids from Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League; or such imposing Senior timber as Johnny Acheson, George Snell and Alf Kunkel, all of whom have joined the club within the last few weeks.

Touhey had a special word of praise for Kunkel and Snell, who arrived Wednesday from Brandon, Man., where they starred with the undefeated No. 2 Manning Depot team.

Tentatively, Touhey plans to carry four forward lines in the early stages of the playoffs, benching one unit for any specific game according to expediency.

"Obviously, our big guns will be the Krauts," said the 35-year-old veteran of eight N.H.L. seasons. "We haven't fixed definitely on the other three lines."

H. and S. Club Hears Talks On 'Employer'

PORT HOPE, Feb. 27—(ENS).—The Home and School Club held its monthly meeting on Tuesday night in the hall of the Central School, with a good attendance. It was men's night and the men of the club had charge of the program, a most interesting one. Convener for the evening was W. C. Brown, chairman of the School Board.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. The treasurer's report read by Mr. Austin announced that there were now 47 paid-up members and that there is now $38.66 in the treasury.

The Wednesday afternoon Ladies' Bowling Club donated $7.50 to the Home and School Club within the last month.

Mrs. Wanner, the president, announced that a display of work done by this association would be shown at the next meeting. Literature sent in by Mrs. McLaughlin was then distributed. Mr. Jordon then made an announcement of the coming Cavalcade of Canada which will be presented by the Public Schools on March 4. The number of representatives of the various rooms were then counted and Miss Brownlee's Room had the most pupils' parents present.

Mr. Brown then took the chair and introduced Mr. Briden superintendent of the Nicholson File Co., who spoke on the Employer. The topic for the night was "Job Wanted," and was the thought behind each of the speakers' addresses. Mr. Briden asked each of the members to think of himself as a job wanted, a job needed, and the employer's need for you is the only possible way to secure a job; so therefore we must all be educated and prepared for such jobs. He stressed the point that only those who had prepared and fitted themselves for the job were the ones who could hold a job.

Mr. Briden as the employer, met his subject on the following bases: Material qualification as first consideration, if neat and clean in appearance and habits, honest in little things, healthy, if of a good disposition or quarrelsome how you can work with other people, for after all we do not live unto ourselves alone; there are no one-man jobs; loyalty to the concern of the firm. Mr. Briden stressed the qualifications of character rather than the material qualifications.

Fred Douglas gave his ideas from the employees' point of view, stressing the importance of parents to see that their children are qualified and educated for the aftermath of war. Mr. Douglas pointed out that the competition was sure to be very great, and only the finest type will be needed. Preliminary training in the home is most essential, and those useful in the home can usually be useful wherever placed.

Dr. R. W. Horn, chief chemist at the Eldorado plant, was the next speaker introduced. Dr. Horn's topic was the value of education from the scientific point of view, stressing the value of hobbies and all cultural qualities. He also stressed the necessity of a full High School education and a good basic education.

Mr. Brown then moved a vote of thanks to the speakers, and outlined some of the work which the School Board is trying to do to improve the school and the school grounds.

Mrs. Wanner made a few remarks and after the singing of "God Save the King" the meeting was turned over to Ken Hodgert, who was in charge of the refreshments for the evening.

Call For Campaign

Later, when motion was made by State Secretary McLarty to refer the bill to a special committee Jean Francois Pouliot (Lib., Temiscouata) attempted to debate it but was ruled out of order.

There were appeals from several members, during yesterday's debate, particularly from New Democracy Leader John Blackmore; Karl Homuth (Con., Waterloo South), and Dr. C. J. Venlot (Lib., Gloucester), for a campaign to educate the people to the grave situation which demands that the Government have a free hand to act in emergency.

Mr. Hanson clashed with the Prime Minister when, referring to Mr. King's determination to look upon the pledge against conscription as a "moral obligation" which could not be ignored, he brought up the 12-year-old Beauharnois incident.

He said all would remember when the Beauharnois Corporation was selling securities and amassing the funds of Canadian investors which were "passed along by the promoters to the organizers of the Liberal party."

Mr. King immediately interrupted with an expression of surprise that the Opposition leader would make such a statement.

"Not only was no charge of any kind proved against the Government but the Government's record in the matter was as straight as anything could possibly be," he said.

"My honorable friend had better be careful what he says when he talks about moral obligations," the Prime Minister continued.

"Something can be said from this side of the House if he begins to reflect upon anybody here. I give him fair warning."

Mr. Hanson said he was talking about the party and not the Government.

For Any Plebiscite

The Conservative House Leader protested that the plebiscite bill was so general that it could be invoked for any plebiscite the government might care to hold and that it introduced into the constitution the principle of "government by plebiscite."

Reminded by the government that assurance had already been given that the bill would be used only for the plebiscite on conscription and that it would be amended in committee, Mr. Hanson said he would insist on placing his protest on record.

He asked the prime minister if he would consider the moral obligation against conscription for overseas service as a deterrent to sending men to Seattle or Alaska if the need arose to repel an invasion.

Mr. King interrupted to say that he would answer that question.

"I regard the moral obligation as one not to send men overseas," he said.

"But with respect to any technical limitations, should immediate necessity arise—in the Panhandle, or any place in the vicinity of the coast of Canada — I certainly would use the war measures act to see that men were sent within its immediate operation to protect our shores."

Mr. Hanson observed that this would be illegal "because of the very language the prime minister has put in the mobilization act."

"The reference was always to overseas," Mr. King said. "This is quite a different thing."

Mr. Hanson said it would, nevertheless, be a violation of the pledge given in the mobilization act not to conscript men for service outside Canada or its territorial waters.

"I would get parliament to amend the act," Mr. King replied.

Could Amend This Act

"Yes, he would get parliament to amend it," Mr. Hanson retorted, "and parliament would do right to amend it — and parliament can amend this act without going through the form of a plebiscite."

Mr. Homuth objected to the clauses in the bill which, he said, would create racial discrimination through the limitations on those entitled to vote.

Mr. Homuth said Canada had conscription now. It was "all nonsense" to go on arguing abuot conscription.

The criticism directed by Liberals at the policies of the Conservative party and its record on conscription in 1917 applied equally to Resources Minister Crerar who was a member of the Union Government.

Mr. Homuth quoted extracts from Mr. Crerar's 1917 speeches, defending conscription, Union Government and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen. The plebiscite bill was to be compared to the Wartime Election Act of 1917 at which much criticism was directed.

In every election since 1917 the old Wartime Election Act was used in Waterloo county and other counties where it suited the convenience of speakers. Mr. Homuth said he was strongly against some features of the Wartime Elections Act.

Certain people were excluded from voting in 1917 and certain people were excluded under the plebiscite bill said Mr. Homuth.

If a German warship shelled a town in Prince Edward Island and the Government of the province became alarmed about fifth columnists it might call the Legislature and pass a bill to disfranchise people of German descent.

Even if that happened two days before the plebiscite all persons of German origin would be disfranchised under the plebiscite bill.

Might Bar Residents of 100 Years.

This could happen to people who had been in Canada for 100 years, whose sons had fought and died in all Canada's wars.

Mr. Homuth referred to the clause in the plebiscite bill which prohibits from voting anywhere in Canada people who are barred from voting at a provincial election by the law of any province. He said he understood this provision was due to some aspect of the Japanese situation in British Columbia.

If so parliament should be honest and name the Japanese in the bill instead of inserting a general clause applicable to all people of enemy racial origin.

Mr. Homuth was also critical of the clause which prohibits men who claim postponement of military training as conscientious objectors from voting.

He said it meant nothing because the mothers, fathers, sisters and brothers of these men would vote.

He said there should be a definite statement as to whether Doukhobors, Mennonites and other conscientious objectors could or could not vote.

Sees Defeat in B.C.

Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East) said it was his belief the plebiscite would be defeated in British Columbia and possibly in other provinces unless there was a previous pledge that manpower would not be conscription before industry and finance.

Arthur Roebuck (Lib., Toronto-Trinity) expressed support for the plebiscite as an essential move to free the Governments hands to meet any emergency, although he said the time had not yet come when an immediate decision on conscription was necessary.

Mr. Roebuck said he was not in favor of compulsory service for compulsion's sake. But there were two irreconcilable arguments for and against conscription: There was the argument that voluntary armies were more valuable fighters; but on the other side was the argument that under the voluntary system the brave and patriotic men bear the brunt while "shirkers and loafers" remained comfortably at home, earning good salaries.

He commented on the Committee for Total War, formed recently in Toronto, saying it proved Canadians could get out and organize for a cause. He said he hoped they would do so to make the plebiscite a success; and that their efforts would be more successful than in the recent by-elections.

Joseph Harris (Con., Toronto-Danforth) asked Mr. Roebuck what he meant by that association.

Mr. Roebuck replied that "the junket which gathered in the Royal Hotel played to the limit of their capacity the Conservative hand in the by-election."

He said that although his constituency contained 100,000 people in the heart of Toronto and the committee's full-page advertisements appeared in all Toronto papers urging citizens to write their members, he received less than 100 letters.

Likes Plebiscite Idea

Mr. Blackmore said he could not agree with Conservative House Leader Hanson and others who opposed plebiscites on principle. He said he thought the plebiscite was a useful way of consulting the people in a democracy.

The bill before the House was defective, in that its life was not clearly stated. It was also defective in that it made no provision for educating the people to the meaning of the plebiscite and the consequences of an affirmative and of a negative vote. The meaning of the plebiscite should be clearly stated, so that the Federal Government could not construe the vote as authority to override provincial authority still further under the excuse of war effort.

MUST FILL FORMS COMPLETELY.

Motorists are busy filling out applications for gasoline cards, and in this connection it is pointed out that operators of fleets of commercial vehicles must apply separately for each vehicle. In addition, the application form must be filled completely. A number of applications have already been refused because the actual 1941 mileage and the estimated 1942 mileage were not supplied.

FINISHES COOURSE

Leading Aircraftsman Carl Banks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Banks of this city, wired his mother today that he had just completed successfully his course as a radio technician, and was on 14 days' leave in Scotland. He was employed in the Bank of Commerce at Hamilton when he enlisted but before that worked in the Bank of Commerce here and at Hamilton.

WINS A BOAT

Charlie Banks owned the first motorcycle in Ontario, and in this city he also had one of the first motor cars, if not actually the first. Now he has another form of diversion, and if there is a shortage of gasoline it won't effect him. It seems that Charlie held the winning ticket in a charity draw at the Canadian Bicycle and Sporting Goods dealers' convention at Montreal this week, and now he is the proud owner of a 16-foot outboard motor boat.

Y GROUP WITH TRINITY Y.P.

The Y.M.C.A. Friendly Hour Group has accepted an invitation to join Trinity United Church Your People's group on Sunday evening after church in Reid Street Hall. The regular Sunday night service will not be held this Sunday but will be resumed next Sunday.

Y'S MEN HOLD QUIZ.

The Y's Men's Club meeting last night was featured by a quiz contest with Rolly Krant in the chair. G. H Roper, heading one of the two teams, stayed on the floor longest. The other team was headed by Wally Davidson.

INCLUDES GARBAGE RATE

The decrease of 2.7 mills in the proposed tax rate for this year includes the 7/10 of a mill for garbage collection. This levy was formerly set out separately from the main tax item, but is now included in the rate which is likely to be 30 mills this year.

ICE 22 INCHES THICK.

Workmen engaged in harvesting ice blocks on Lake Chemong report that ice is 22 inches thick, and all fine blue ice from top to gottom. This condition reduces the amount of labor in that the ice houses fill up more rapidly and there should be no shortage next summer.

AT CHICAGO CLINIC

Dr. Ralph C. Honey returned last night from the mid-winter clinic of the Chicago Dental Association. The registered attendance was 10,120 dentists, 1,800 fewer than last year. From a local enterprise the association's clinic has become the largest in the world. Dr. Honey was one of the representatives of the Ontario Dental Association.

TRENT RIVER W.I. HELPS

The Trent River Women's Institute which has on several occasions aided British War Victims' Fund and other organizations which are helping the bombed in Britain has contributed $10 to J. A. MacDonald of the Royal Bank, the treasurer of the Milk for Britain Fund.

A LIGHT DOCKET

There was a light docket at police court this morning. In fact there would not have been any at all if three men had not allowed their thirst to get out of control and as a result had to face charges of drunkenness before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., today. Two of them pleaded guilty and were fined the usual $10 and $2.50 costs; the third managed to secure an adjournment until next week.

LINDSAY POLICE WIN

The Lindsay police and fire brigade hockey team proved too strong for Orillia in the benefit game staged in Lindsay last night with the fund going for patriotic purposes. The final score was 5 to 2 in favor of Lindsay. Constable Reeve scored four goals for the winners and the fifth was registered by Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton. The teams fraternized at a supper at the Big Twenty restaurant after the game.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

An elderly Chinese who operates a laundry in this city, went into the Bank of Montreal this week, and purchased a $100 bond. The old fellow grinned at the clerk as he signed his name and said, "That ought to take care of at least three Japs," then he went on his way satisfied that he as a loyal follower of Chiang had added his nail to the Nippon coffin.

THANKS FOR CIGARETTES.

Letters have been received the last few days from G. J. (Jerry) Dolan, Bruce Latchford, and R. B. (Babe) Mowry, in England with the 32nd L.A.A. Battery, thanking officers and men of the 4th Field Battery here for cigarettes sent to ex-Battery members serving overseas. The three appear to be enjoying the life, and recently saw Lieut. Jack Baird over there. "Canadian cigarettes mean a great deal here," wrote Dolan.

TO ADDRESS CLUB.

Mr. O. W. Brown of the Genelco Company will address the regular meeting of the Friday Night Club this evening at the Y.M.C.A.

TAKES HIS LUNCH.

Joe Bell, one of the canvassers in the Victory Loan, who is working in suburban North Monaghan, goes out in the morning prepared to make a day of it. According to information received at the Victory Loan office, Mr. Bell carries his lunch in his pocket, and as been doing a good job in his own section.

The annual paylist of the 4th Field Battery is being prepared now by 2nd Lt. J. O. Weldon, acting paymaster of the unit. The Reserve Force training year insofar as pay is concerned, ends on March 15, future drills coming in on the 1942-43 year. Special Names Committee Nears Objective

Board of Directors of Nicholls Hospital Trust re-invested $23,000 worth of maturing bonds in the second Victory Loan this week to add another point in the special names percentage bracket, and this particular section of the loan showed a substantial gain with the half a million dollar subscription from the Quaker Oats Company. The special names objective is set at $1,000,000 and already the committee headed by Gordon S. Matthews has obtained $941,000 or 94.1 per cent. of the total required.

Today the cumulative total in the report released by the Victory Loan headquarters reveals that $1,660,200 of the total county objective of $2,750,000 has been subscribed or 60.3 per cent. of the total.

The objective of the City of Peterborough proper set at $1,350,000 has climbed now to $527,500, or only 39 per cent. of the amount wanted. However, by next Tuesday many of the larger industries will have completed returns of the internal canvass and this should result in a more encouraging picture. The one discouraging avenue of purchases is at the banks, where people in the higher income brackets are not purchasing all they can, at least this would appear to be the case as the number of applications are quite a bit below that of last June.

Out in the rural sections, and in the villages, the canvassers are plugging along, working in bad weather and travelling over roads that would test the patience of Job. Many of the townships have failed to reach the half-way mark as yet but canvassers are confident that many people whom they have called on will take the trouble to bring their subscriptions to the canvassers when they are coming in to the villages, thus saving the men and women another trip. To date only $10,950 has been reported from the township of North Monaghan, one of the richest rural sections of the entire county, and the objective is $35,000.

Here is the summary up to Thursday night:

$70 Contributed To War Fund By 'Gun Shots'

In the years to come, the name "Gun Shots" which is the title of the weekly organ of Genelco Lt., a subsidiary of the Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd., of this city, will not only be known for what it had to impart amongst the employees themselves, but in general, it will symbolize a real war effort which did much good over a wide field of endeavor on behalf of those war efforts which functioned to render assistance both to men in the forces, and those civilians who were suffering as a direct result of enemy activity over Britain.

With Arthur Kittson as editor, it is published by and for the people of Genelco Ltd., the price being one cent a copy, and more if you care to give it, the gross receipts of which in rotation are given to six very worthy War Services Fund, and among these, the Peterborough and District War Victims' Fund has its turn.

Starting with gross receipts in the neighborhood of $4, it has progressed by leaps and bounds in typical C.G.E. fashion up to now, when the proceeds of the February 13 issue total $70, which is the amount credited to them in today's report for the fund.

Tablecloth Draw Tuesday.

Next Tuesday will see the culmination of an effort on behalf of the fund sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Club of this city who have been selling tickets at 25c each for a draw on a handmade lace tablecloth, made and donated to the fund by Mrs. J. P. Halcrow of Rutherford Avenue. This is a very beautiful piece of work, which would grace the very finest of household tables, and will constitute a real prize to whoever is fortunate to win it. Tickets may still be procured from any member of the club and the cloth will be found displayed in the R. Fair Ltd. store windows on George street.

The Hebrew congregation of Peterborough is also sponsoring an effort to help the people of Britain through this fund, by selling tickets for a draw on a walking cane having considerable value from its rareness and origin.

Donated by a friend of the fund who can certify as to its authenticity, it was made in Jerusalem, Palestine, from Oak of Bashan from the forests of Lebanon, and has an olive wood head, and was presented to the donor a number of years ago. While it holds much sentimental value for him, the donor feels that the money it may raise for the fund, can do a great deal of good to those suffering from air raids over England. Tickets are ouly the nominal sum of ten cents each, and may be secured from any member of the congregation.

Another Review

LONDON, Feb. 27. — (CP). — The Ministry of Economic Warfare announced through Under-Secretary Dingle Foot Tuesday that the question of United States shipments to French North Africa is "under discussion with the United States Government."

Mr. Foote made announcement in response to Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, who inquired whether the Government thought "at the moment when the French battleship Dunkerque has been moved to Toulon that we should provide facilities for the Vichy Government, and if we are going to interrupt the blockade would it not be better to let the supplies go to starving Greece?"

Air Raid Precautions Basic Course

All wardens and personnel of other services are reminded of the fourth lecture in this course which will be conducted by Dr. D. B. Avison, M.O.H. on "War Gases" and "Personal Protection Against Gas" with lectures and demonstrations by Mr. Edwin Curtin and Assistant Fire Chief George Smith at the Lyceum (opposite City Hall) at 2.15 p.m., Sunday, March 1st.

Men to take training in first aid and as volunteer firemen are urgently needed. For volunteer firemen requirements are between ages of 30-50 and fairly physically fit. Please attend Sunday and fill out application for these services if you are not already connected with another branch

Pull Together Canada Acclaimed As Top Notch Patriotic Revue

(By PETE McGILLEN.)

A sweet-faced little Englishwoman who saw the trainloads of wounded soldiers stream from the coast of England to inland hospitals after Dunkirk, and who heard the whine and shrieks of the death-dealing Nazi bombs dropping on London, sang and joked her way into the hearts of 800 people in the Collegiate Auditorium on Thursday night as the patriotic revue "Pull Together Canada" added another jewel to its already top-heavy crown of successful appearances.

Superlatives seem trite and inadequate when one tries to do justice to this colorful, heart-tingling call to action, so carefully garbed in the robes of humor and satire, but one thing is paramount the entertainment did two things, it made the people howl with laughter, and it sky-rocketed them into another mood, a solemn one, in which they could not help asking themselves the question, "Am I doing all I can to see that it doesn't happen here?"

That "quit your blooming grousing and get on with the job" spirit that has characterized the Britons since this war began threads its way in noticeable form throughout the entire production, and while the two strange bed-fellows, stark fear and humor, walk hand in hand in the scenes, there is another quality glimmering in every corner. It is the dogged unconquerable spirit of the Saxon, so aptly described in the war time phrase "We shall win."

Forty Amateurs Take Part.

Arranged in conjunction with the Second Victory Loan, the revue has a double-barrelled effect. It paints that morale-building picture that unity is essential if Canada is to attain victory, and at the same time provides wholesome, sparkling entertainment by a group of forty amateurs whose spirited enthusiasm and team work blot out any shortcomings that might exist in their efforts as entertainers. The play has zip from start to finish, the songs are catchy, and the audience could not help but start their feet a-tapping in rhythm when the entire cast swung into the finale, the song hit of the revue, "You can fight for Canada. You have something to do."

There are so many splendid little scenes in the entire production, that they pile up pell-mell when one tries to sift out the one that qualifies as the super-highlight. One in particular that tugs at the heartstrings is the scene in the air raid shelter where the well-to-do woman clad in furs and rich garments, stands and sings the age-old favorite "Danny Boy" in a voice that would do justice to the Metropolitan opera. While she sings, the flickering lights throw grotesque shadows on the cold brick walls of the shelter and the occupants of the dismal tube station relax and pull their overcoats a little tighter around their necks. The little English woman clutches her baby to her breast crooning quietly in tune with the entertainer, while all the while the thump and roar of bursting bombs tell the people that Der Fuehrer's murdering night marauders are sowing death and destruction in the streets and homes high above them.

Unity Sought.

Another scene presented with a background of wheels, shafts and pistons pleads for unity between labor and capital in order that the vital tools of war may be had in time to turn back the invading hordes. Another scene features the morale detector, a thermometer-like device that registers the talk and actions of the man on the street as these contribute or detract from a unified war effort.

"Pull Together Canada" in a nutshell tells in vivid, human and entertaining manner that we must "all pull together if we are to pull through." It does a real job, and the collective opinion of the audience on Thursday evening was that here indeed was a show that hit the bull's-eye, a show that was worth four times what it cost to see it.

Between acts, Major B. M. Hallward, D.S.O., of Montreal, was introduced by Vincent Eastwood the chairman of the Peterborough County Victory Loan Committee, and in a brief, meaty talk, Major Hallward told the audience of the great need for money to finance the war. At the beginning of the show His Worship Mayor James Hamilton extended a civic welcome to the members of the cast, and congratulated the members of the local Victory Loan Committee in arranging to have the show brought to Peterborough.

Navy Recruits Wanted At Once

Notice from Lt. Raeder of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve at Kingston indicates that there are several vacancies for young men, mechanically inclined who have three years high school or the equivalent. These men would be following a course of training to be fully qualified engine room artificers, the equivalent in peace time of a stationary engineer with third or fourth class papers.

The plan is to have all satisfactory recruits go to Galt Naval School for a special course, and while at school the men would get a living allowance of $10.00 a week. On graduation anl acceptance in the Navy they would get $3.05 a day.

Applications will be taken at the R.C.N.V.R. barracks, Kingston on Monday, and all applicants must be between the ages of 17½ and 22. All applicants must have a statement from the school principal or teacher certifying they have had three years high school training, and they must also bring two written character references, and a letter describing their previous experience, while not essential, would help.

The course at Galt Ontario Naval School lasts eight months, and on completion of the course, the men would be posted to ships of the Royal Canadian Navy.

It is an excellent opportunity for a boy who is mechanically inclined to get a job with good pay, and training on work that will be of immediate benefit when the war is over.

A.R.P. Class To Hear Lecture On War Gases

The fourth lecture in the basic course of Air Raid Precautions on Sunday will deal with war gases and personal protection against gas and will be conducted by Dr. D. B. Avison, M.O.H., controller of medical services for Peterborough A.R.P. The lectures and demonstration will be given by Edwin Curtin, who has lectured for sixteen months on war gases in army schools. Assistant Fire Chief George Smith will also take part. The lecture will be held in the Lyceum, Simcoe street, on Sunday afternoon at 2.15.

Male applicants are urgently needed for first aid work. They may sign at the fire hall, Lyceum on Sunday or Dick Raine's both stores. Volunteer firemen are also wanted from ages 30 to 50 who are fairly physically fit.

Obituaries

WILLIAM JOSEPH COLLINS.

Impressive funeral services were held for William J. Collins, whose death occurred Monday night in St. Joseph's Hospital. At the Church of the Sacred Heart yesterday Rev. J. J. O'Brien offered Requiem Mass and delivered a most appropriate address to the large gathering of relatives and friends who were present to assist at the services and pay final tribute to a life-long parishioner of the church and a member of the choir ever since the church was opened. Rev. Dr. Masterson and Dr. Grant were present in the sanctuary.

A large number of fellow employees of the Canadian General Electric Company were present at the funeral and the abundance of floral and spiritual tokens presented at the home bore silent tribute to the esteem and popularity of 'Bill Collins' as he was known among a wide circle of friends.

Much sympathy was extended to his bereaved wife, formerly Bertha McDonnell, his son Lawrence and John and daughters Eileen and Marion Collins, as well as to his brothers and sisters. The members of the Sacred Heart choir with whom he had been associated so long were present and rendered their services during the Mass and Libera.

Interment was made in St. Peter's cemetery, Rev. Dr. Grant conducting the services at the graveside.

Pallbearers were Edward Condon, Murton Whalev, Harry Duggan, Raymond Collet, Joseph O'Dette and Lewis McDonnell.

WILLIAM ALBERT BURRELL.

An employee of A. Comstock and Sons for practically 30 years William Albert Burrell, 551 Bethune Street, died suddenly in hospital here on Thursday following a short illness. He was born at Pickering, Ont., and came to Peterborough about 35 years ago. Mr. Burrell was a member of Peterborough Lodge A.F. and A.M., and of Peterborough Curling Club.

Besides his wife, Eva Anne Sherwood, the following survive: one daughter, Mrs. G. B. Bailey, Peterborough; one grandson, Peter Bailey; two sisters, Mrs. F. Wiman, Peterborough, and Mrs. F. Douglas, Toronto.

The remains are resting at his late residence, 551 Bethune Street, until Saturday morning. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, from the Comstock Funeral Home, 305 Water Street, with the Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart of St. Paul's Church officiating. Interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

ALBERT CURTIS.

A Peterborough carpenter, Albert Curtis, of 10 New Romaine Street, died Thursday afternoon in Toronto General Hospital as a result of failing health extending over four years. He was born in Andover, England, a son of the late George Curtis and Mary Newman, and was in his 60th year.

Mr. Curtis came from England about 1911 to Orangeville, and about eight years later moved to Peterborough. He was employed by Tom Ephgrave, contractor.

Besides his sorrowing wife, Eliza Jane Curtis, several nephews and nieces survive in Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock from Nisbett's Funeral Home, 347 Charlotte Street, with the Rev. W A. Filer of All Saints' Church officiating. Interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

Canoe Company Employees Near Objective

Peterborough Canoe Company employees numbering 127 were within two per cent of the Victory Loan objective today with the factory canvass incomplete and T. Taylor, who is responsible for the committee in charge of the canvassing in the factory stated it was a foregone conclusion that the men would go over the top.

Keeping in step with several other factory groups which have batted 1,000, the Canoe builders came through in grand style to push their totals up to within two per cent of the high figure set by the Victory Loan committee as the plant objective and there were few laggards in the entire plant once the canvassers approached the men.

W. A. Richardson, manager of the Canoe Company, expressed appreciation of the wonderful response by the workers, who have apparently been following the pattern in other factories, namely that of taking the selling of the loan into their own hands.

KNOCKABOUT TWEEDS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

TWEED knows no age limits ... either amongst its enthusiasts or its terms of service. Grandma and Baby both look fine in tweeds, and as Grandma has stopped growing she'll be able to wear her tweed suit or coat for years and years.

Besides the heathery tweeds and the solid color weaves, there are now very high style color combinations available in this practically heirloom cloth. Violet and turquoise; chartreuse and brown; green and purple; pink and gray ... those are but a few of the eye-filling offerings.

Brown and blue tweed here is made into a collarless longer jacket; skirt is straight; shirt is brown rayon crepe.

What should a young girl wear to school and simple parties? Marian Martin, famous fashion designer, says "A tailored mode is correct, if it flatters her youthful figure," and offers Pattern 9901 as the perfect example. The skirt has just the right amount of graceful flare, with its bias front panel, and the bias effect is repeated in the yoke. It's very decorative in checked or plaid fabric. The contrast collar and cuffs are smart, too, plus the six little buttons on either side of the yoke. The sash belt is a youthful note, and if you want extra warmth, make the sleeves long and gathered into a wrist band. You'll find the Sew Chart helps with details so much you'll have this frock finished in no time.

Pattern 9901 may be ordered only in girls' sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10 requires 2⅞ yards 35-inch fabric and ⅜ yard contrast.

School Children Present Patriotic Concert In Support of War Loan

On Thursday evening a patriotic concert was presented by the pupils of Immaculate Conception School in support of the Victory Loan campaign. From the opening chorus to the climax in the final tableau the children showed much carefully trained talent. The varied program, excellent in its performance received rounds of applause from the appreciative audience.

A welcome, by tiny Frances McCormick touched the hearts of all.

The Rhythm Band, colorful in uniforms of royal blue, scarlet and gold, under the baton of the youthful director, Gerald McMurray, delighted the audience with their rendition of two selections.

Folk dances have preserved for us the culture of the nations. In two Danish dances the younger children transmitted the spirit of friendlines and co-operation portrayed.

The Sailors' Hornpipe done by a group of twenty-four girls in costume was particularly well received. Rhythm is an important phase of musical training. The tap dance which followed was a very effective demonstration of this rhythm.

"The Minuet" recited by Joan Clancy preceded this dance done by Frances McCormick, Doreen Driscoll, Shirley Conway and Marie Clancy in ful length while frocks.

Choral reading has become an important topic in present day education. Three selections exceedingly well rendered by a group of fourteen pupils were an excellent example of the art.

Particular interest on the part of the audience greeted the Marionette show, "Cinderella" in which the old fairy tale was relived by the little people, the handiwork of the children themselves. "Learning a Recitation" recited by Chris Mongraw added a note of humor to the entertainment.

The patriotic play "The Builders of Canada" in its beautiful stage setting was a fitting climax to the evening's program. The Victory Loan speech by V. J. McElderry, K.C., introduced by Right Reverend Monsignor O'Sullivan, vividly and eloquently conveyed to the audience the valiant efforts made through the centuries to preserve Christianity and the dire need of similar efforts and sacrifices today.

The leading parts in the play were taken as follows: Sleeping Beauty, Gloria Leonard; Jerry, Shirley Leonard; Jimmie, Billy Duignan; guards, Bernard Amyotte and Robert Armstrong; the Provinces: Prince Edward Island, Jack Vincent; Nova Scotia, Anne Leahy; New Brunswick, Margaret Amyotte; Quebec, Jean Jones; Ontario, Beverly Primeau; Manitoba, Rose Marie Vincent; Saskatchewan, Marie Leonard; Alberta, Eileen O'Toole; British Columbia, Raymond Spencer.

Miss Sara McComb is Honored By Friends In Warkworth District

WARKWORTH, Feb. 27 (ENS)—About twenty ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. G. B. Bowen this week to honor Miss Sara McComb who has been an operator for the Percy Municipal Telephone System for the past sixteen and a half years.

A program consisting of contests was enjoyed after which Mrs. Frank Boyce read an address in which tribute was paid regarding the efficiency of Miss McComb's work and also her willingness to assist with Young People's work and the Dramatic Society, following this Mrs. J. F. Duigman presented her with a beautiful gold bracelet. Although taken entirely by surprise Miss McComb replied in a few well chosen words.

In a few days she is leaving her work at the telephone office for a well earned rest.

Popular Baritone, Thomas L. Thomas Will Sing Here

The youngest baritone ever to tread the historic boards of the Metropolitan Opera House, Thomas L. Thomas, comes to Peterborough next week. He inherited his beautiful voice from the same source as his name, a longe line of music loving Welsh ancestors. His father, indeed, was a Fellow of the Royal Academy of Music.

Last summer Mr. Thomas sang at a promenade concert in the Varsity Arena in Toronto and the audience, which had applauded most of the great artists of this continent, went wild with enthusiasm and called back the young singer again and again for encore after encore. So great was his popularity with this critical audience that he was invited to repeat his visit—and his success—within a phenomenally short time from his first triumph.

Those who have heard him on the radio know the mellow richness of his voice, the wide, effortless range of his artistry, which performs with equal skill the simplest lullabye, or the grandest of grand opera. Those who have seen him in person claim that in addition to this he is the possessor of a warm and joyous personality, which wins his audience even before he starts to sing.

Thomas L. Thomas comes to Peterborough through the auspices of the Canadian Concert Association and will sing in the Collegiate Auditorium on Wednesday evening, March 4.

W.C.T.U. Hears Of Life and Work Of Frances Willard

The W.C.T.U. held its February meeting in the Blue Room of the Y.W.C.A. on Thursday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. H. Rehill, in the chair.

The meeting opened with a reading by the president, followed by a hymn and a Scripture reading by Mrs. S. E. Moncrief and a prayer. The treasurer's report was read, and showed that 26 had been sent to the provincial treasurer toward the establishment of a Christian Home Centre at Petawawa, as a result of the tea held recently. Mrs. Rehill expressed her gratitude to the ladies for the help they had given, especially to Mrs. A. H. Campbell, who lent her house for the tea.

Mrs. T. Whittington entertained the meeting with a vocal solo, accompanied by Mrs. S. Moncrief. Mrs. Rehill conducted a quiz on the life of Frances Willard, founder of the temperance movement, in which the members read the answers to her questions from newspaper clippings.

Mrs. C. Elliott then gave a short, inspiring talk on the life and works of Frances Williard, describing her early life in Wisconsin and showing how the wise upbringing given her by her parents had prepared her for her life-work.

Frances Williard was woman consecrated to a single cause and this fact is made increasingly apparent as one studies her career and sees her unswerving, selfless devotion to the cause she chose to serve.

Mrs. Elliott also touched on the work of the W.C.T.U. today in all parts of the world, and pointed out that the W.C.T.U. because of its inter-denominational character, could carry its Christian message into places that would be closed to a mission of a single church.

After Mrs. Elliott's talk a report was given on the bale sent to the Indian reservation at Curve Lake at Christmas time, for which a letter of thanks had been received.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

Question.—In the paper recently you discussed using honey in cakes to replace sugar, and you stated that "soda must be added when honey replaces sugar in a cake." But in the recipe called "Plain Honey Cake" you didn't mention including soda. Was this because you were not using honey entirely?

I made the hot milk cake (1 cup sugar, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, pinch salt, 2 eggs, half cup hot milk, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon vanilla), and I used ½ cup honey and ½ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon soda. The cake was a great success, but was a light brown color. Would this be on account of the honey or the soda. I find that a cake made with 2 cups flour is much too large for my small family (2), so I am always looking for recipes using only 1 cup flour. Thanking you.—Florence E.

Answer.—It is the honey that makes the cake light brown. You have probably made many cakes using soda that have retained their white color. We are working on cakes using white corn syrup which we hope to have ready for print within the next two or three weeks. At present the color is perfect but the cakes develop a gumminess after the second day. We are trying to eliminate this gumminess and will let you know as soon as we succeed.

There is no harm in dividing a cake recipe in two. We often do this with our experiements as long as the halved recipe calls for 1 whole egg.

Yes, it was because the cake contained sugar that we left out soda.

Question.—May I have a copy of the recipes using honey and molasses instead of sugar? I notice you recommend using soda with honey and molasses. I understood that soda killed the minerals in vegetables. Doesn't it do the same to baked goods?

Some time ago you offered to send directions for making a fireless cooker. I wonder if I might have the directions?

Do you have a recipe for white wheat pastry without the use of white flour? I seem to be able to get lots using white flour but can't find one where all whole wheat flour is used. At least one that is moderately flakey. Perhaps if I used a mixture of whole grain flours I might have better results. I would be very grateful if you could help me.—E. F. W., Maidstone.

Answer.—Recipes for honey have been sent.

Soda does not kill the minerals in vegetables or baked goods. The only way minerals are lost is by draining them down the sink in the water the vegetables have been cooked in.

Fireless Cooker

Essentially the fireless cooker is a large box or bucket in which a metal or enamelled bucket is set surrounded with an insulating "nest" nest of soft hay, excelsior, ground cork, sawdust, or tightly crumpled newspapers. The outside container—a 100-lb. lard pail to something of the sort with a tight-fitting lid—may be used for the purpose,—this should first be lined with asbestos paper—the kind used to cover furnace pipes. The inside container—a 10-quart galvanized bucket with straight sides and a tight top is best—is then covered with the same sort of asbestos paper lashed on with wire bands.

Ground cork—the kind used to pack California grapes, is the best packing material. Whatever is used pack 2 or 3 inches of it very firmly into the bottom of the large container, then cover it with a sheet of asbestos paper. Place the smaller bucket exactly in the centre and pack tightly around it. Cover the packing at the top with a ring of asbestos paper.

A "collar" which may be cut out of cardboard, but which is better cut out of tin, is then fitted to cover the insulating material at the top, leaving a hole just large enough for the smaller bucket to slip in and out.

Finally a pillow big enough to fill the remaining space between the collar and the outside lid is used. This may be made of muslin stuffed with the packing material.

It is a good idea to have a soapstone (heated in over or in boiling water) to place in inner pail if kettle of food to be cooked is not placed in inner pail. If inner pail is used to hold food to be cooked soapstone cannot be used.

The fireless cooker may be used to keep things cold, too.

Whole Wheat Flour Pastry.

One teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 cups whole wheat flour, 2/3 cup shortening (butter and lard mixed are recommended), ½ cup boiling water. Sift the bran from the whole wheat flour and over it (the bran) pour the boiling water and immediately add the shortening and beat until all is creamy, then add all remaining ingredients which have been sifted together and mix all until very smooth. Chill until firm in refrigerator, then roll out. Do not roll without chilling. This makes two 9-inch crusts, and is tender and delicious and healthful.

This Week's Wartime Recipe

By MRS. M. POPOWICH.

Mrs. Popowich has not named these recipes but calls them wartime recipes. They both call for hamburger and are very good.

Wartime Recipe No. 1.

(Contributed by Mrs. M. P.)

Buy ½ lb. hamburger and ¼ b. ground pork (¾ lb. altogether). Boil 4 medium-sized potatoes cubed, boil 3 medium-sized carrots, cubed, and 1 cup turnip cubed. Boil all these separately. Drain water from all vegetables. One tablespoon flour, ½ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper to make white sauce. Mix meat with salt and pepper and ½ small onion and brown.

Put vegetables in narrow deep greased pan with white sauce, then meat on top, then cover all with crust made same as for any pie or bread crumbs and put into the hot oven until crust is nice and brown. Will serve six.

One can tomatoes or soup or tomato sauce may be used instead of the white sauce.

Or No. 2.

Three-quarters lb. hamburger fried till brown with salt and pepper to taste. Soak ½ lb. macaroni, drain and make white sauce with 1 tablespoon flour, salt and pepper and dash of cayenne to taste. Put macaroni and sauce in deep greased pan and add 1 cup grated cheese, and meat. Top all this with breadcrumbs with a little butter and put into oven to brown.

Thank you, Mrs. Popowich for these fine dishes—keep up the good work — other clever readers, we would like to hear from you.

IN-LAWS NOT DIFFICULT IF YOU USE COMMON SENSE

Don't Butt in on Their Problems or Give Advice Until It Is Requested.

IF you have children, the chances are a hundred to one that sooner or later—and it always seems sooner—that you will have in-laws. And it is as certain as that God made little fishes that your happiness will depend upon how you get along with them. Talk about the difficulty of husbands and wives adjusting themselves to each other, it is nothing to learning how to gumshoe around the peculiarities of John's wife and Mary's husband. Now all parents know, either from observation or their own experience, that the in-law relationship is a delicate dangerous and ticklish job to tackle. They also know that handled right it is productive of peace, helpfulness, comfort and joy to all concerned. But bungled, it floods the terrain with tears, causes more broken hearts and bitterness, and brings out more cruelty and meanness in human nature than anything else in the world.

Such being the case, one would think that every father and mother would begin betimes to prepare themselves for the hot spot on which they are going to have to stand some day, and try to work out some plan for successfully treating the situation. But they don't do it. They act as if they expected all of their children to be old maids and old bachelors. So when John brings home his bride and Mary introduces her new husband into the family circle, Mom and Pop don't know any more about how to treat in-laws than they do about lion taming.

Look to the Future

So to the prospective parents who about to receive large bundles from Heaven, or the other place, I address a few well meant words of counsel:

First, while your children are still in kindergarten begin by preparing yourself to be an in-law. Don't kid yourself into believing that whatever other people's children may do yours are never going to grow up and fall in love and get married.

If you will accustom yourself to the thought that Junior and Babikins are not always going to stay little tots who love Mama and Papa best and want no other companionship but theirs, it won't be such a shock to your nervous system when you find out that they want to get married and set up homes of their own. And you won't feel that Junior's wife is a designing huss who got him to sign on the dotted line at the Marriage License Bureau when he wasn't looking, and that Babikin's husband is a kidnapper who would be jailed if he got his pust deserts.

Go slow about opposing your children's marriages unless you know some good and valid reason why they should not marry the girl or boy they have picked out for their mates. Because their choice isn't your choice is no reason for trying to break up the match. Husbands and wives are purely a matter of personal taste and every individual is entitled to please his own fancy in a life partner.

Keep a Silent Tongue

And put the soft pedal on what you say about John's sweetie being a flighty little nitwit and Mary's boy friend having come from the wrong side of the tracks, and that you would rather see them dead than married to them. You will have to take it all back when the first baby is born, and although you will patch up a truce no daughter-in-law or son-in-law ever gets over knowing that he or she was not wanted in the family.

Don't go to live with your in-laws or let them live with you if there is any possible way to avoid it. No two families can live together in the same house without friction unless they pass into a state of grace that you seldom see in this wicked world. What you don't see doesn't worry you, and if you only have a visiting acquaintance with our in-laws you will never find out what a poor housekeeper Mary is, nor how many cigarettes John smokes, nor will they know how bossy and cranky you are.

Court In-Law's Friendship

As you are the older and more experienced and worldly wise, make the first advances in conciliation to the new comers in your family Court your new daughter-in-law as assiduously as your son did. Use as many arts and wiles to ingratiate yourself with your son-in-law as your daughter did to catch him. Make them feel that they are welcome members of the household and that all that you have is theirs, instead of treating them as sneak thieves who had somehow broken in and stole the silver spoons.

Don't make suggestions or offer advice to your in-laws, no matter how much they need it, or what fool things they are going to do. John and Mary married to get away from their own parents trying to run them and they are not going to take it from any in-laws. If you will just keep quiet until the young couple find out that they can always depend upon you to stand by but never butt in, you will have them eating out of your hands.

In short, just remember that an in-law whom we love and who loves us is one of the prize packages of life, but we have to put it up for ourselves.

When Is a Girl "Old."

DEAR MISS DIX—Are girls 16 years of age old?

WONDERING GIRLS

ANSWER—No. They only think they are. Girls of that age always consider themselves blase, sophisticated women of the world. They think they are wiser and older and more experienced than they will ever be again, and particularly they are sure that they know much more than their mothers know.

contact these lectures and talks to a medical student?

Dr. Tower finished his coffee, and set the cup on the table.

Parris sighed: "Maybe it would be more sensible for me just to be a doctor, and not start out to specialize in any sort of way, but—"

"Well?"

"It's just that I think I really want to. It sounds a lot more interesting."

"It is. It is a vast field for research. I don't know if the time has come for this kind of study, or not. It looks as if it might come now. There is a stir in Vienna. Whether it's the real thing or not, I fancy no one can say."

"I guess I keep thinking of Lucy Carr, the—"

"Oh, yes. The insane woman you played to. Oh, yes, yes."

"And Benny Singer."

"You don't feel such people — well, sort of objectionable?"

Parris looked as if he didn't understand what the doctor meant. He shooked his head. "No, sir, Never. I liked Mrs. Carr, and I like Benny Singer."

Dr. Tower half closed his eyes. "I sometimes think the whole thing is a problem for the poet."

"Because he's a sort of madman, too?"

"The madness of poets is simply a larger sanity that comes from a special vision. I suspect poets, and great writers of other kinds—novelists, know more about the way the human mind works, and is likely to work, than all of the psychologists rolled into one."

Dr. Tower stood up. He pushed books and papers about impatiently. "Well, I hope you've enjoyed the chat. I did. Now, get on with you, Parris Mitchell. You've got a summer of tough work ahead. I won't fool you about that. We'll get those letters off to Vienna, and then we'll know in a month or so how things stand."

Parris was deeply concerned for Drake, whose pride had been dealt a telling blow by Dr. Gordon. That Drake was in love with Louise Gordon, Parris did not doubt—nor that frail, pretty Louise, weakened in strength and purpose by the united wills of overwhelming parents, loved Drake.

Because Drake was considered "wild," and the "town was talking," Louise was forbidden to see him. The two of them had quarreled, Parris interceding in hopes of salving Drake's petulance, easing Louise's pain. How, he wondered, could Dr. and Mrs. Gordon be such pillars of virtue in Kings Row and at the same time so determined to make their daughter miserable? He felt again the strange working of that intuition that made him doubt accepted values. They were steely—the Gordons. Couldn't they see that Louise was—he supposed "sweet" was the word, and really in love? And that Drake, for all his swaggering, was a fine boy, and lonely?

"Listen, Drake."

"I know that tone of voice. You're going to have some kind of a sensible suggestion. I don't want sensible suggestions. I want you to say something to make me feel better."

"I was just going to ask you why you don't marry Louise, right off. You're your own boss, as Louise said. You've got enough money—"

"Not to get married."

"I'm not 21 yet, Parris. The Farmers Exchange Bank hasn't got much to say about what I do, but they don't have to give me a cent more'n they think I need to live on."

"But I thought—"

"I've got a checking account. But it's just about three thousand dollars, or was, I mean. I've spent a lot of it. Can you imagine what old Mr. Curley, he's the trustee, would say if I told him I wanted some of my money so I could get married? He's already been after me about spending so much."

"Could you start in some kind of business, do you think?"

"I've been turning that over and over in my mind. You know I've been talking to Peyton Graves. He's going to work in real estate."

"Sure enough. Old Peyton Graves. I didn't know he had any get-up about him."

"Peyton's got the same idea I had about that tract of land right up there by the public school. He said if I could get my money out and put some in with him—his uncle would let him have some—we could swing in together and make a lot of money."

Parris looked respectfully at Drake. Drake talked like a man of affairs.

"Are you going to do it?"

"Can't. I just halfway hinted to old Curley something about an investment, and he nearly jumped on me. Not a cent till I'm 21! I'd borrow it against my inheritance, but I don't expect anybody'd let me have it. Curley'd stop anything, I guess."

Colin Althouse Gets Promotion

Major C. Richardson, district inspector of the Ontario Voluntary Constabulary reported following inspection of the Peterborough unit, that the men were "100 per cent.", and the officer added that the men were making excellent progress in their training.

It was announced that Colin Althouse, officer commanding the local unit, had been promoted to the rank of Captain, and that the unit now had 40 members on the rolls, all active. During the past few weeks, the quarters of Constabulary has been changed from George street into the Royal Bank building at the ecorner of Hunter and George streets.

The men parade for drill and instruction every Tuesday and Thursday and all recruits for this war-time police auxiliary unit are invited to attend parade and obtain all pertinent information. The Ontario Voluntary Constabulary, or the O.V.C. as it is more commonly known, is an auxiliary police unit whose members buy their own uniforms and equipment, and drill without pay so as to be ready if called on by the authorities during wartime. They are affiliated with the Provincials as the occasion arises.

In New Camp

Ottawa, Feb. 27. (CP)

THE Algonquin Regiment of the Canadian (Active) Army has reached a new station "without mishap," national defence headquarters said today.

A brief statement from defence headquarters said:

"The Algonquin Regiment, formerly in the Niagara area, has reached a new station successfully and without mishap."

The statement was issued after defence headquarters had been informed of reports, current in North Bay, Ont., whence came many of the personnel of the regiment, that the ship on which the Algonquin Regiment travelled, had been the object of enemy attack.

New Slip Covers Are in Season!

Make In Easy Pin-on Way

An Easter bonnet for you—a new slip cover for your chair!

Ravishing in springlike green, with white binding and a contrasting flowered flounce, your chair would never be suspected of grease spots and scratchy legs underneath!

And you can make the new cover so easily the pin-on way. Pin fabric firmly to top-back of chair and then smooth and pin fabric down the inside-back and seat, allowing 4 inches for tuck-in between. Cut 1½ inches outside pins for seams.

Now smooth and pin goods over arms, front, sides and cushions—a section at a time—and pin and baste all sections together. Apply binding over seam on right side.

The contrasting flounce (very smart indeed!) is just a straight piece of goods shirred and sewn to the upper cover.

Our 32-page booklet shows you exactly how to make a slip cover, diagramming every step. Shows how to cover sofas, auto seats, too, the pin-on way; tells how to trim with binding, welting, swag and pleated flounces.

For your copy of "How To Make Slip Covers" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

PROBABLE READINGS AID

MANY PRETTY good players, who have made no intensive study of card reading, have an idea that the greatest experts are generally able to figure out the exact location of all important cards and the length of each outstanding suit after the play of a trick or two. That is not so. On many an occasion it is impossible to reckon the exact distribution of suits, to say nothing of the location of key cards. Reckoning the most likely distribution, however, and the probable location of those cards, can be the decisive factor in lots of hands.

Pretty badly overbid, that hand, by South, but he had some justification. His not-vulnerable opponents sounded as if they were just trying to impede him, so he attributed more strength to his partner than the latter held, especially after the ace-showing cue bid of clubs brought in answer the shower of the diamond control, and the response to his Blackwood 4-No Trumps showed the missing ace. But, after West doubled and led the diamond K, and he saw the dummy, South knew West was not fooling.

Then South began to figure, thus: "West probably would not have bid No Trump with a singleton, and he probably would have supported the hearts over the 4-Clubs, to show a sacrifice fit, if he held three of them, hence he probably had two. If he held a five-card suit anywhere, he probably would have bid it instead of No Trumps. Hence he probably had two four-carders and a three-carder besides two hearts. If the three-carder is spades, I have a good play for it."

After that analysis, he took the diamond K with the A, ruffed one diamond, took the club A, ruffed a club, ruffed a second diamond, ruffed a second club, ruffed a third diamond, cashed the heart A and K, ruffed the third club, then led the set-up diamond 8 to the tenth trick. East ruffed with the spade 2, but West had to over-ruff with the 4 and then lead back from the spade K-10 into the A-Q, giving the declarer his contract.

Rumor-Mongers Held Bad As 5th Column

(By DEWITT MACKENZIE.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Washington's action in rounding up enemy aliens and interning the dangerous element is a battle won, since there is in the United States a host of enemy agents such as played a large part in the downfall of unhappy France and other unwary democracies.

When enemy aliens have been smoked out, however, there still will remain at large another far greater group which daily is doing untold damage—the rumor-mongers and slanderers among the American people. Some of their work is deliberate and vicious, for they are the Quislings who side with the enemy. Some of it is due to addlepatedness which sops up idle war gossip and Axis propaganda and spews it out in public places, lowering the morale of others and in effect sabotaging the war effort.

Something goes wrong somewhere on the vast expanse of ocean which covers two thirds of the earth's surface, and you hear a raucous voice squawk: "Where the hell's the American navy! Did the Japs sink it all!"

Well, where is the United States navy? Silently and without advertising, it's helping police the seven seas, domination of which is essential to victory. As President Roosevelt pointed out Monday night, among other things it is helping to keep open four main lines of communication— "the North Atlantic, the South Atlantic, the Indian Ocean and the South Pacific. The maintenance of these vital lines is a very tough job."

Fleet on the Job

It is hunting down submarines off both United States coasts, and keeping these sea-wolves from committing greater depredations than they have already achieved. It's extending protection clear down to the Republics of South America. But why waste time arguing The fifth columnists and quislings among the American people will pop up with another insidious question and the rumor-mongers will start to bleat again.

There are those Americans who are constantly slinging mud at their Allies, thereby creating bad feeling and doing untold damage to morale. These people either have tongues which are loose at both ends, or are impelled by personal animosity. Here's a common query, which is the product of pro-Axis cunning:—

"What's the matter with the British; they haven't won a victory since the war started?"

Nothing could be further from the truth than that. Yet unthinking or vicous Americans pick up the Axis propaganda and broadcast that the British aren't pulling their weight.

There is still another class of Americans who unwittingly are serving the Axis. David Low, the brilliant British cartoonist, has summed these folk up in his famous character "Colonel Blimp," who represents the reactionary elements in all walks of life.

Sir Stafford Cripps, new leader of the House of Commons, referred to "Blimpery" yesterday in his first speech in the House since he took over this post. He blamed "Colonel Blimp mentality" for the loss of part of the Empire. But Blimps aren't confined to Britain. There are plenty in the United States.

The Dog Tried

St. Catharines, Ont., Feb. 27. (CP)

THE icy waters of the old Welland Canal yesterday claimed the life of four-year-old Gerry Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Turner, St. Catharines. The youngster, going to the store for his mother, climbed down to the swift stream, followed closely by "Chum," a faithful mongrel owned by some neighbors.

Their tracks indicated that the boy walked out on the thin ice and plunged into the water. The dog's tracks showed he had plunged out on the ice as he ran downstream for about 150 yards trying to rescue the lad.

Youth Steals Officer's Gun

BANCROFT, Feb. 27.—(ENS)—Police court was held in Bancroft Tuesday afternoon, presided over by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd of Northbrook, and Col. B. C. Donnan of Belleville representing the Crown. The following cases were disposed of:

Roy Downey of Bancroft, charged with having liquor in other than his residence, was found guilty, paying $35 and costs.

William Switzer and Everett Hogan of Bancroft and Ira Edwards of New Carlow were each assessed $10 when found guilty on a breach of the L.C.A.

Fined $500.

Henry Donner of Steenburg, who was arrested on February 12, charged with cruelty to animals, having been in custody from date of arrest, paid a fine of $5 and costs.

Gardie Russell of 32 Regent Street, Lindsay, accomanying a friend of his to Bancroft on January 28, stole a .32 calibre revolver from the office of Provincial Offiver S. W. Palmateer. The incident occurred when the constable and his friends were upstairs in the constable's home recovering a quantity of goods which had been stolen from his property in Haliburton during September of last year. Russell remaining downstairs pocketed the gun in their absen . The gun had been left with the officer for registration. The officer proceeded to Lindsay, and with Provincial Officer William McBrien of Lindsay recovered the pistol from G. Russell. Russell appeared in Bancroft court charged with theft of pistol and was placed on six months' suspended sentence and paid the costs of the court.

RCAF Target Ship Too Frisky For The Bombers

(By FRANK LOWE.)

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN AIRPORT, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Canada's most frequently bombed ship is a trim little torpedo boat that bears the red, white and blue insignia of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Fast, manoeuvreable and well-armed to withstand the hammering of high explosives, this craft is used by the R.C.A.F. as a practice target for their aircraft—a type of fun guaranteed to thrill even the most blase.

Manned by a crew of five or six husky excitement-lovers, the tough little craft will speed out of the protecting harbor and knife towards the open sea, followed by a pack of circling aircraft loaded with 11-pound practice bombs that really explode with a bang.

When a good spot is reached, the boat begins to zig-zag furiously while missiles plummet down from the pursuing planes, flying at heights up to 10,000 feet.

Naturally the boat is specially built for this work and care is taken to see that the crew is not facing too great risks. The cabin in which they crouch as they dodge the bombs is a solid steel structure, waterproof and capable of withstanding a direct hit from the bombs.

2 By 12-Inch Windshield.

However, it is not comfortable, space being sacrificed for instruments and armor plating. And the boat is hard to steer accurately as the windshield is merely two by 12 inch slit of soild glass set deep in the protecting steel hide of the cabin.

As the tiny cabin is airtight it becomes close and the necessity of wearing gas masks doesn't add to the pleasure of the trip. Neither do the bulky crash clothes the crew wear to counteract the jouncing of the boat.

Equipment consists of stakes, something like fence posts, that the boys use to plug holes made in their craft by the bombs. Also, by pressing a button, a smoke signal will go up, signifying that the boat has had enough.

But so far the poles and the signal have not been used. Not once has the boat been struck by the bombs or even seriously damaged.

Farm Forum Meets At Seymour Home

CAVAN, Feb. 27—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. W. Seymour entertained a very interesting session of the farm forum, at which fifteen were present, on Monday evening.

They listened to the farm broadcast, the topic of which was "Will the soil last?"

The discussion which followed was interesting and helpful, all realizing that as much fertilization as possible, must be returned to the soil.

One of the members, who had relatives from the west visiting him this winter, told something of the methods used in farming in the west, particularly of two men working 800 acres entirely with machinery.

They listened to President Roosevelt's broadcast, had a sing-song and a cup of tea with hot muffins, served before dispersal.

Allied Navies Fling Armada Off Java

BANDUNG, Java, Feb. 28 (AP)—Warships of the United Nations scattered today an attempt by a huge fleet of Japanese warships and transports to storm the Surabaya naval base and invade Java, but tonight the armada was believed reorganizing somewhere in the Java Sea for a second onslaught.

Battered and scrambled in a night-long battle, the Japanese warships and their train of many transports retreated northward, and at 8.30 p.m. (8 a.m. E.D.T.) the Aneta News Agency said "it may be stated with absolute certainty there has been no landing of Japanese troops anywhere on Java."

Action at sea still was being joined late this afternoon, but informed United Nations sources here said the bulk of the invasion fleet apparently was in the process of reorganizing for a renewed attempt to land troops, probably in the vicinity of the naval base.

The approach of the Japanese sea force was preceded by repeated air raid alarms at Surabaya, but each time approaching enemy planes were driven off by anti-aircraft fire before any bombs could be dropped.

The Indies said "several tens of ships," in the continential equivalent to "scores," were in the invaders' strongly-protected convoy, first scattered and the pursued by the Allied warships.

Unspecified losses on both sides were acknowledged.

The first unofficial reaction in Bandung was that the communique was the most cheering since the battle for Java loomed—and therefore for the Netherlands East Indies.

Twice before the United States and Indies Fleets have teamed to inflict resounding defeats on the Japanese sea power— in Macassar Strait and in the Strait of Lombok off Bali.

Battle Rages All Night.

The Indies said there were losses on both sides in the Java sea fight, which began late yesterday and raged into the night. But early accounts did not give the extent.

In other areas, the communique reported Netherlands successes in fighting on the Southern Celebes, north-east of Java, in Central Sumatra, where the Japanese are attempting to consolidate their positions for an assault on Western Java and on the half-Netherlands, half-Portuguese Island of Timor east of Java.

The Indies said their troops had inflicted serious losses on the Japanese on Timor.

The war report also told of raids on the port of Batavia and an air-

Packed Air Transports Mowed Down Bound To Doomed Nazi Army

(By EDDY GILMORE.)

MOSCOW, Feb. 28—(AP).—The Russians reported today they were shooting down big troop transport planes jammed with Nazi soldiers fresh from training in Germany for a Spring offensive but who, instead were rushed to the front in a desperate attempt to reinforce and save the trapped German 16th Army near Staraya Russa.

Dispatches declared that Russian gunners and fliers were frustrating repeated Nazi efforts to get such troops through and to drop supplies and ammunition to more than 96,000 Germans virtually doomed within the tightening Red Army ring.

The German position was imperilled further by an outward thrust from the Red Army's position at Leningrad and by the activity of guerillas there who were said to have killed 10,480 Germans, including two Generals, in the last six months.

Four Snags Hold Java Assault Behind Schedule

(By J. B. BROUWER.)

BATAVIA Feb. 28 (Aneta to CP)—The Japanese this week made further gains on the islands surrounding Java but the launching of their invasion drive against this last bastion of the Netherlands Indies appeared to be behind schedule.

Many observers had believed the preparations for an assault on Java to be completed with the occupation of Bali, but this week the invaders went to extend their foothold in Sumatra, occupy Bangka—and, it was reported, also Billiton—and press deeper into West Borneo.

The delay in the launching of the attack on Java is attributed here to four circumstances:—

1. The losses inflicted by Allied forces on enemy naval units and shipping in these waters, which are making it difficult for the enemy to maintain a line of communications.

2. The failure of the Japanese to knock out the Allied Air and military bases on Java, whose anti-aircraft and fighter defences are being strengthened by the arrival of Allied reinforcements.

3. The thorough scorched-earth operations of the Netherlanders, which have made it necessary for the Japanese to lose valuable time in turning occupied points into usable bases and have left them without the oil supplies they counted on seizing.

4. The guerilla warfare in occupied territory, which has exceeded all expectations of the military authorities who planned it, which is forcing the Japanese to divert unusually large forces to cope with these harassing operations.

Garirsons Still Fighting.

In Northwest Borneo the Japanese have occupied Pontianak and Sintang, but the garrisons of both cities are virtually intact and have joined garrisons from British North Borneo and Sarawak in harrying the Japanese. These guerilla forces can withdraw eastward into the interior as necessary.

In East Borneo most of the garrisons of Balik Papan and Samarin succeeded in escaping to the interior and they, too, are pressing their guerilla warfare. In South

Canadian Red Cross Will Alone Make Separate Drive

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 —(CP)—The Government announced today its decision to finance from public treasury the requirements of the Canadian Legion, the Knights of Columbus, Navy League of Canada, the Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. for auxiliary war services.

War Services Minister Thorson made the announcement which was forecast some time ago.

These organizations have appealed for contributions in national drives in the past.

The minister said similar action in respect to treasury assistance was not possible in respect to the Canadian Red Cross, which must continue to be of a voluntary nature.

The Red Cross will make a drive for funds in the late spring and it was estimated an amount of more than $8,000,000 will be sought.

7 Million Last Drive

Prior to 1941 these organizations carried on separate public appeals, but in March, 1941, they united in a joint public appeal. Their objective was exceeded and approximately $7,000,000 was received from the Canadian Public. These funds were held by the Canadian War Services Fund Incorporated and released from time to time to the organizations as required.

It had been agreed that the Navy League of Canada should join with the national auxilary services organizations in a joint public appeal for funds to be made in the Spring of this year, at a date to be announced.

It had also been planned that the Canadian Red Cross Society should join in this united public appeal with the above mentioned national auxiliary services organizations.

Consideration was also being given to the claims of other organizations for leave to join in this appeal.

The total budgets of all these organizations were estimated at from $17,000,000 to $20,000,000.

"In order to permit such a public appeal the government would have to stand aside for a considerable

74,319 Individual Loan Subscribers Friday Set New Day Record As Total Hits 506 Million

OTTAWA, Feb. 28—(CP).—The cumulative total of subscriptions to the second $600,000,000 Victory Loan reached $506,272,150 last night at the close of the lightest day of business during the three-week campaign which started February 16, Victory Loan headquarters announced today.

Subscriptions yesterday totalled $38,140,300.

The number of individual subscribers yesterday reached a new high for a single day's business, however, the total being 74,319, including 31,340 factory, store and office employees who subscribed $2,853,050.

"One of the most striking features of the campaign is the rising number of employee subscriptions, these now having reached a total of 148,238, the dollar amount subscribed being $14,308,450," the loan committee said.

France's Best Ready To Fight Again More Die In Camps Than Battle

(By DREW MIDDLETON.)

LONDON, Feb. 28—(AP).—"All the women cried for gladness when the United States went to war with Germany and in the streets that night they laughed at German officers," the French Colonel said.

"Someone painted 'Etats Unis' (United States) on the wall of a civic building, in the village six kilometres from where I was hidden.

"You remember the old barracks in our town?

"They wrote 'Remember the Meuse and the Argonne' on the gate that night. It was the same all over occupied France."

At first, said the Colonel, many people in France were disappointed by news of the war in the Pacific, but now "they listen to the British broadcasts which tell them all the news, not just the bad as the Germans do." And he continued:

"They are very angry with Vichy. They think Vichy gave Indo-China to the Japanese and that made the taking of Singapore easy.

Will Give Anything Away.

"Also, they think Vichy will give the Japanese Madagascar, will give away anything as long as they can drink and play politics and forget about France."

I said: "How do they feel about the British?"

The Colonel asked what I meant.

LONDON, Feb. 28 — (CP). — The Japanese are massing troops for a renewed smash toward Rangoon and the Burma front situation is "very serious," a British commentator said to-day.

He admitted that reports the Japanese had cut the road and railroad north of Pegu probably were true and emphasized the strength of the imminent Japanese onslaught aaginst British troops holding the lines west of the Sittang River.

The Japanese infantry suffered 2,000 casualties in a series of bull-like rushes against a small British force holding a bridgehead across the Sittang, the commentator added.

LONDON, Feb. 28—(CP). —British bombers seeking out the berths of the already damaged 26,000-ton German battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst struck by moonlight last night at the great naval bases of Kiel and Wilhelmshaven in a developing campaign to hold the Nazi fleet at home and hit it there. The raid, described as effective because of an improvement in weather over the Continent, was the third in succession on Kiel where the Gneisenau is reported in a floating dock. The Scharnhorst is reported at Wilhelmshaven.

In The Whip Seat Reds Keep Adolf Hopping

(BY MAJ.-GEN. SIR CHARLES GWYN.)

LONDON, Feb. 28—(CP Cable).—A new phase has opened in Russia. Both Russian and German sources indicate fresh Russian reserves are engaging in a major effort to relieve Leningrad and capture the major key points of the German line. A notable beginning has been made with the success in Staraya Russa.

If the Germans have been forced to use up the greater part of their resources their position must be critical, and the Russian drive should have a good chance of finding places where the defence has weakened and where reserves are not available for any attempt to be made to restore the situation.

It is practically impossible to ensure that a defensive front of such great length can be strong everywhere, and the German front, moreover, includes many dangerous salients difficult to reinforce or relieve by counter-attacks. Much will depend on the strength of reserves capable of effective action that each side possesses.

Russians Hold Initiative

The Russians, however, have the advantage of initiative which enables them to apply their reserves at points of their own selection.

The success just announced in Staraya Russa, south of Lake Ilmen, is likely to affect the Germans, already in a precarious position at Schlusselburg and east of Leningrad, for it will almost certainly draw Von Leeb's reserves southward to cover his communications that run northward between Lake Ilmen and ePipus.

In the centre Rzhev, Vyazma and Smolensk itself are all closely threatened and German reserves have evidently been employed to maintain the great bulge in the line that stretches out towards Moscow. Indications are they are prepared to accept the risk of attempting to hold it at all costs.

Rumor Nazis Slashing At Raiders' Ships In Channel Battle

LONDON, Feb. 28—(CP).—Daring British parachutists and sea-borne infantry combined today in a destructive attack on a German radio detector post in the first sizeable incursion of the northern French coast since the fall of France.

Under cover of a protecting umbrella of Royal Air Force fighters and with navy assistance the raiders then withdrew.

Timed to the minute, the parachutists dropped out of the clouds to form hastily as an assault group against the German garrison at the same time that infantry, ferried across the English Channel, landed on the beach.

Joining forces, the two detachments which a military spokesman said could not be assumed to be "small," dealt a one-two punch to the Nazi force while demolition squads wrecked the radio stations.

Then they departed as quickly as they had come, leaving behind a ruined location post and a dispersed force of German guards.

Take 2 Hit garrison

Early this afternoon a military spokesman in London said it was not yet known whether ships bringing the raiding parties back had yet landed in England.

Huns After Raiding Ships?

The spokesman said the possibility of a major air battle between German bombers dealing an aerial counter-stroke and the R.A.F. fighter umbrella "can not be denied."

(Apparently this meant that possibly German bombers might be attempting to destroy the ships carrying the homeward bound troops in the English channel and were meeting stiff opposition from British fighter planes).

Momentum was made in a joint air, army and navy communique

Killer Suspect Is Remanded

CHICHESTER, Sussey, England, Feb. 28.—(CP Cable.)—Pte. J. W. Moore, 18, of Chathah, Ont., was formally charged with the murder of a police officer to-day and was remanded for 21 days. He was also bound over on a second charge of causing grievous bodily harm to another policeman.

The soldier was taken into custody in Hertfordshire yesterday after 1,000 Canadian troops had joined armed police in a widespread manhunt.

The manhunt which ended in Moore's arrest yesterday attracted nationwide attention and was given almost unprecedented play in Britain's wartime papers.

Private Subscriptions are Checking Loan

Analysis of returns in the Second Victory Loan up to Friday evening indicates that unless there is a real avalanche of private subscriptions during the last week of the campaign, Peterborough city will not reach its objective, although the county and the Special Names committee will probably have the satisfaction of topping their quota.

For this county the loan was into three distinct sections, with the total objective set at $2,750,000 or $50,000 less than in the First Victory Loan drive last June. The Special Namer Committee quota was set at $1,000,000 and already $941,000 of this amount has been subscribed with every hope that the desired total will be reached before the middle of the week. The county was asked to raise $400,000 and as the campaign slips into the last week, there is an increase in the tempo in the rural section and canvassers throughout the townships are optimistic over the outcome. Peterborough city was listed to take care of the balance of the objective of $1,350,000, and with practically all of the factories working at top speed, and employees making more money than ever before it should have been comparatively simple to obtain subscriptions totalling this amount. However to date there has been complications, the first one being that banks sales are down, that is the people who have money salted away, and who should contact the banks immediately and subscribe heavily to the Loan are not doing it. Another reason is that many employees not engaged in wartime industries, but who are still making good wages, feel that because they have not been given the cost of living bonus, they won't buy a bond.

This leaves the big war-time industries to carry the load, and early reports indicate the men are doing a topnotch job, subscribing to the point where it means curtailment of pleasure, and a definite reduction in spending. If these industries do not beat the tentative quotas set out by the Victory Loan committee, and if the private citizens who are comfortably well off, and not engaged in industry do not take up the slack in the loan by subscribing heavily this week, then the campaign will have been a failure.

G. N. Brown, local organizer said today, that everything had gone along so fine up to now, that he was just a little bit afraid, the sledding would be tough on the home stretch, because several of the city canvassers who had hoped to start clicking before this, are still ticking off around $300 worth of bonds each day. The returns, he said had come in steadily up to Thursday but the daily average has not been high enough to ensure success.

Up to Friday night the total reached was set at $1,756,150 or 63.8 per cent of the total and the total for the city alone reached $596,800 out of the $1,350,000 or 44.2 per cent of the goal.

An interesting slant on the returns to date is that there has been 2,821 subscriptions in the county to date or one in every 16 of the population. The population of the coun-

New Vichy Fleet Pledge

Assures U.S. No Belligerents Will Be Aided

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 —(CP)—The menace of any German control of the French fleet has been emphasized again in a United States warning to Vichy against aid to the Axis and the Petain government has pledged to refrain from any violation of neutrality, especially any "use of French vessels for purposes of war."

The Vichy government further stated that it would not, therefore, "lend any military aid to one of the belligerents in any place in the theatre of operations, particularly the use of French vessels for the purpose of the war, nor all the more, adopt a policy of assistance to the Axis powers beyond the terms of the armistice agreement."

Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State. Mr. Welles said, however, that relations between the United States and Vichy are still under review here and that clarification on several important questions is awaited from the Petain government before any final decisions are possible.

Army Artists In The Field

3 Chosen From Canadian Fighting Forces

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(CP).— The Canadian army overseas has its own war artists in the field, contributing with oils and water colors to the pictorial record of the army's growth and achievements.

Three painters were chosen from among men who enlisted as fighting soldiers and they were given 2nd lieutenant commissions. They are Will Ogilvie of the 17th Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars of Montreal, and E. J. Hughes, Royal Canadian Artillery, and O. N. Fisher, Royal Canadian Engineers, both from Vancouver.

The paintings done by the artist trio probably will go to Ottawa, where Col. A. Fortescue Duguid, director of the historical section at National Defence Headquarters, is compiling a series of war paintings. In London, Maj. C. P. Stacey of Toronto, historical officer at Canadian Military Headquarters, aids the artists in selecting topics and directing work.

The new lieutenants all had high reputations in peacetime as artists.

P.C.V.S. Presents - - -

Special The Examiner By a P.C.V.S. Student

Our column was superseded by Victory Loan copy last Saturday but we hope you spotted the familiar headline in Monday's paper. Rather humorous gibberish was caused by the mix up in tenses but we would ask your indulgence just this once. Thanks!

Fanny and the Servant Problem

Beware!!! This is your last warning regarding the feature presentation of the P.C.V.S. Dramatic Club —"Fanny and the Servant Problem" next Thursday and Friday, March 5 and 6. A polished performance can be expected from the cast of 17 due to their own efforts and the superb assistance of Miss White and R. L. Hale.

To sharpen your interest in this attraction we will attempt to reveal enough of the plot to arouse your curiosity—but no more. Are you willing?

The title suggests a problem — a problem that is swept forward to a hilarious climax after four intriguing acts styled in the Jerome (author) manner. Double personalities are evident and complicate circumstance since Fanny marries Vernon Wetherell believing him to be a painter while she is an actress. Fanny sums up the whirlwind romance in the pert phrase: "He came—he saw—I conquered!" The situation isn't improved any when it is discovered that the butler, Martin Bennet, is her uncle and that all the other servants are her relatives. The servant problem now enters—small wonder! The relatives attempt to train Fanny in her new station of life and you can imagine the co-operation (or can you?). There, we've told you enough—for the solution of this problem you simply must attend the play next week. When the doors open we'll expect to see a veritable stream of eager people pouring into the auditorium, but this will be impossible unless you—and you—get out and sell sufficient tickets to guarantee a packed house both nights.

Don't forget that 50 per cent of the proceeds will go to the mobile kitchen fund to supplement the previous grand total of $187.09 donated by the Dramatic Club. The Club is doing its part—will you do yours?

Echoes From the Tournament

Congratulations girls. The girls of P.C.V.S. proved that they could organize and conduct a sports calendar that outclassed any other in the history of the Collegiate. For two days the girls basketball tournament ran off without a hitch to mar the proceedings and was climaxed by a dance that was unusually successful for P.C.I. More orchids to you!

As someone said at the tourney: "You can't run an event like this and win it as well!" The Senior and Junior girls' teams did their utmost to disprove this statement but when the final count was taken Cobourg and Port Hope walked away with the Junior and Senior championships. The Seniors defeated Bowmanville 16-8 on Friday but were in turn eliminated by Port Hope on Saturday morning. It took the Juniors one game to get into their stride as they were narrowly edged out by Cobourg 6-2. However, they displayed championship form in the next two games as they licked Port Hope 20-4 and Bowmanville 12-2. The Juniors upheld P.C.I. in the tournament since they won the loser's finals (known also as the consolation finals). The guards were right on their toes in the Juniors' finals as the low opposition score clearly illustrates.

Miss Stuart, Miss Bailey, the G.A.A., the teams, and all those who helped to make the tournament such a success can rest back on their laurels and take a bow for a job well done. The mobile kitchen fund will rise considerably from the proceeds of the week-end of basketball and the girls (and boys) of the school will remember this tourney for some time to come.

Now for a few more basketball notes.

The Senior boys went down fighting last Saturday night in the "Y" gym before five Collegiate pupils to the tune of 81-43 at the hands of the Quaker team of the city basketball league. Better luck next time, boys.

The Juniors went to Lindsay a week ago and returned with another defeat to their credit. They were nosed out 26-23 in a game that meant a lot to the Juniors' hopes. That hectic last quarter will live long in the memory of the players. Have you heard why?

War Sales

The sale of War Savings Stamps this week was $385, and that of Certificates $48. Total sales were $433—the same as those of two weeks previous. Let's get out of the rut.

It was two weeks ago that we reported a War Savings duel and this week we are pleased to announce the winner—Grade X A Commercial with a total sale of $72.50. The challenger won and the loser was Grade X B Com. with a total of $60.00. Congratulations to these wide awake forms and may other follow their example. Why not try it in your form?

The Mobile Kitchen Fund

This was a comparatively slack week for the mobile kitchen fund with $13.30 cents swelling the total to $974.85. Grade IX G Academic had the honor of being the only donors this week. Bravo!

There should be no difficulty in boosting the fund over the thousand dollar mark next week—let's see what happens. One hundred and seventy-five dollars and fifteen cents is all the remains yet to be collected—that shouldn't take long.

Grade IX E held a skating party at the Bonnerworth rink last night (Friday). According to advance reports it was a success and should help the fund considerably. By prying around we discovered that Grade XI A Academic is cooking up some novel money making scheme for the play nights next week. We'll not tell you what it is but when you go to the play give this form all your support.

Teasettes

Two propaganda radio skits were put on this week in Junior and Senior assembly in the interests of the coming play. Entertaimnent plans for Students' Night on Thursday are nearly complete—lots of fun is promised.

Several girls of the school had their pictures in a Toronto paper this week in connection with the Girls' Shooting Club. Congratulations!

The Camera Club and Cripp's studios had their hands full this week since most of the pictures for "The Echoes" were taken. The showcase was occupied with explicit directions for time, place, and group but at the first of the week there was room for pictures taken by Walter Hanbidge at girls' basketball practises. A copy of this picture was in this paper last week. Did you see it? Colin Jack took over the Senior Camera Club meeting again on Wednesday to continue his fascinating demonstration of microphotography.

Three representatives of "The Echoes" went to a conference at the University of Toronto last Saturday and came back with favorable reports for our school magazine. "The Echoes" was judged to be one of the best of two out-of-town magazines—the other being the "Tatler" of Lindsay.

A Fashion Show is being planned by Household Arts girls for March 26. The Glee Club will add further talent to this display, so keep this date open.

The Seniors turned on the heat last night in the school gym and thoroughly trimmed the Dominions 36-25. Half time score was 20-10 for the Collegiate. Dominions ran around in circles in their desperate efforts to outclass the P.C.I.'ites but the score tells its own story. Ferguson, Saunders, Richardson, Taylor, MacTavish, Gardner—everybody was superb for the Bamforthians and Burns didn't do too bad for the Dominions. Hmmm! About 40 students and several teachers saw the game that reinstated our team in the City League. Congratulations boys!

France's Best

I told him in the United States some people say the British won't fight, that they make others do their fighting for them.

"The Germans must have told them that," he said. "But I was at Dunkirk with them.

"The British are very good. Quiet and not excited. And disciplined. The officers walked around with only those flat caps to show their men that bombing and shelling were nothing.

"It was very fine for people under fire. I have been in two wars and I have seen nothing like it. But of course it is hard to make people who have never seen a war understand how good it is.

"There are not many of them, it is true. But in 1940 the Germans thought they would win.

"Who stopped them? The Australians? The Canadians?

The Stubborn English.

"I heard German aviators when they came back—it was before I was a prisoner. They kept saying, 'The damned stubborn English'."

The Colonel said that after France's fall the Germans "wanted me to teach their troops to use our big guns that they'd captured. All through the war, I swear it, ours were better than their's. I told them 'No' again and again.

"Finally I got angry. There was a fight and they took me over the frontier to a prison camp.

"Many died. There was much consumption. The Boche kill many in battle, but not as many as they kill in prison.

"Often they would come and ask me to reconsider and help their artillery. They needed skilled artillerymen for the war in Russia.

"I had no great love for Russians, but they were men like us, defending their homes.

"But I knew I would die if I stayed and when I found where the guns were, I agreed to help them. After one meal I escaped.

"Soon we will go back, I think. Many of us were afraid as men are in battle, and more of us were foolish or worried about ourselves and our belongings.

"Now the best of us are here waiting to go back or are there waiting to help us."

When they talk like that, simply and quietly, you wonder how the Germans ever did it.

fortifications virtually gun by gun, a broadcast said 1,140 more Germans had been killed and an artillery battery and six more pillboxes destroyed.

In an undesignated sector of the same front, where 96,000 or more encircled Nazis are reported faced with the choice of death or surrender on the frozen marshes of Staraya Russa, the radio said a counter attack by the Germans had been repulsed.

This, presumably, was an attempt by the trapped Germans to break out of the Soviet pocket.

Two Axis divisions—the German 113th and the Rumanian 1st—were routed on an undisclosed sector in the south, and 7,500 of their soldier were killed, the Soviet Information Bureau said.

Against these troops, it said, "our troops dealt vigorous flanking blows. Overwhelmed them and forced them into a hasty and disorderly retreat."

(Reports reaching London indicated the Germans are confronted with deepening worries over manpower and material on the Russian front.

(A Reuters dispatch from Ankara, Turkey, said Axis troop movements eastward from Germany were increasingly heavy and that suspension of Rumanian railroad passenger traffic was a step toward shipping 300,000 men to Russia during the next 10 days.

(Russia radio reports heard in London said many companies of the Spanish division had only 20 or 30 men left and one company of skiers was whittled down from 150 to 10 men within three days.)

The Soviet War News predicted that oil would prove to be Germany's most vulnerable spot.

Against needs of 3,500,000 tons a month at home and at the front, it said, the Nazis were able to obtain 11,000,000 tons from all sources throughout 1941 and, consequently, had to dig into their reserves to the extent of 1,000,000 tons a month. "For lack of fuel," it said, "whole divisions had to travel on foot from Germany to the German-Soviet front."

field in Western Java.

But it was the massed Battle of Java Sea which held the attention of the Netherlands and their Allies.

Word that the enemy fleets had met and that the important engagement was on was flashed without detail by the Netherlands, through Aneta, Indies News Agency.

Biggest Scrap of War

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(CP)—A Reuters dispatch from Bandung today called the Battle of the Java Sea the biggest naval engagement of the war in the Pacific so far and the first round of the fight for the Island of Java.

The battle lasted through most of yesterday and still is being waged today, it said, reporting that British United States and Netherlands warships and submarines supported by Australian, American and Netherlands air forces are co-operating in a great attempt to smash a Japanese invasion thrust against the last stronghold of the Indies.

It was reported the Japanese expeditionary forces included a considerable number of transports laden with men and equipment and a strong force of protecting warships.

The Allied navies, acting as one fleet under Netherlands Vice-Admiral Conrad Helfrich, United Nations naval commander, immediately went out to attack the enemy with the fullest air support possible from air forces based on Java, Reuters said.

Contact was made Friday afternoon, it added, and raged unabated through the night under a bright, tropical moon which made visibility excellent and enabled planes to remain in the battle.

The Reuters report said the Japanese had sent two expeditionary fleets against Java — one which headed for Batavia on the western end of the island and the other aimed at Surabaya on the east.

The dispatch said the Surabaya thrust was understood to be in considerable strength.

Allied Fleet Goes in Action

The N.E.I. communique said in part:—

"In the afternoon of Feb. 27 a strong Japanese fleet which covered a convoy approaching from the north was attacked in Java Sea by an Allied squadron.

"In the course of the fighting, which also continued after darkness had fallen, losses were sustained on both sides. The extent of these losses however, is not yet known because complete reports have not yet been received.

"For the same reason, no review of this naval action can yet be given. The reports received indicate, however, that the convoy, which consisted of tens of ships, retreated to the north in the course of the battle."

The remainder of the communique reported raids on the port of Batavia and an airfield in western Java.

The communique reported two raids on Tandjong Priok—the harbor of Batavia more than four miles from the city.

Claims 3 Allied Warships Sunk

TOKYO, (from Japanese broadcasts), Feb. 28 —(AP)—Japanese headquarters claimed today that the Japanese fleet in the Netherlands East Indies has sunk one Allied cruiser and three destroyers in a fierce battle in the Java Sea and is pursuing the enemy fleet.

(This claim lacks confirmation.)

The announcement did not mention Japanese losses.

Domei claimed that Japanese bombers put a British cruiser of the Exeter class "out of action" off Batavia, scoring two hits on the ship. The news agency claimed a large fire broke out.

Another formation of Japanese naval planes located three enemy warships "of 3,000 tons" off the Indies capital, it was claimed.

Nichi Nichi, identifying the three as Netherlands ships, claimed the planes scored direct hits on them and one ship was set on fire.

The Japanese news agency also claimed 26 vessels of 64 enemy ships which sought to escape from Singapore to the East Indies Feb. 13 were escorted back by Japanese destroyers after being captured in waters around Bangka Strait.

(These claims lack confirmation.)

Borneo the Japanese, by holding Bandjermasin and Tanahgrogot, dominate the fertile Ulu river valley, but here, too, the Netherlands Indies garrisons are continuing resistance which they can maintain indefinitely.

In the Celebes the enemy has conquered the Minahassa region in the north and the Kendari area in the south-east but is meeting continuing resistance in South Celebes. The Japanese have not yet invaded any other part of the Celebes.

In the eastern part of the Archipelago the Japanese succeeded in subduing Amboina, site of what was the Netherlands Indies second important naval base, after a fierce three-week battle in which the Japanese suffered heavy losses.

The same story is being repeated in South Sumatra, where the enemy is finding himself unexpectedly obliged to use large numbers of troops to protect occupied points and unable to crush the defenders in any concentrated attack.

In the long run the battle of the East Indies will be decided by the reinforcements which the Allies throw in, but the delaying operations of the Netherlands Indies forces in the outer possessions have played an important role in gaining priceless time for the United Nations.

As matters now stand the assault on Java will be a risky business for the Japanese of the location of the raid except "on the north coast of France."

(There have been previous raids by detachments of commandos on Norway, and small parties of soldiers have been reported harassing the Germans on the continent, but this was the first announcement that parachute troops had been dropped directly on France by bombers flying from Britain).

Some British sources predicted that this feat by hard-bitten parachutists and infantry might be the opening gun of a series of stabs against the Germans' long, exposed flank from the Arctic Circle to the Bay of Biscay.

1st Major Stab at Continent

The attack, against a radio post which presumably was used to detect British bombers crossing the Channel, was the first major British raid on Northern Europe and also the first reported use of parachutists since the raid on Southern Italy February 14, 1941.

The raid apparently was on a large scale since the troops were mentioned specifically as "infantry" and not as Commondos.

It was the first time regular British infantry had been in France since the last of the British Expeditionary force left Brest June 18, 1940, after the French armistice.

The use of an airborne division suggested that Britain might employ this unit—which had been trained secretly since the fall of France—in a series of extended raids on occupied territory.

In The Whip Seat

In the south the situation is obscure, though Berlin reports heavy Russian attacks. It would seem probable that here also the Germans will fight for every foot of ground that would be of value to them in a renewal of the offensive in the spring.

Burma Defence Problems

In the far east the gravity of the situation shows no decrease, nor is there any sign of Japanese exhaustion, except possibly in the Philippines where fresh troops have had to be used in a renewal of attempts against MacArthur.

The situation in Burma is especially critical for our troops must be exhausted after weeks of heavy fighting and difficult withdrawals. Rivers seldom form satisfactory defensive positions for the line is clearly marked and can be subjugated to great concentrations of artillery and mortar fire. Opportunities for counter-attacks do not occur until the enemy has actually passed the obstacle.

The weakness of a river line is emphasized when the force to hold it is of inadequate strength. For, being a rigid line, a high proportion of the defending troops must be deployed along it with a resulting lack of defence in depth and of reserves for counter-attacks. Troops as highly trained in infiltration tactics as are the Japanese are capable of exploiting rapidly footings gained across the river and may delay the delivery of counter-attacks until the bridgehead has been firmly established.

The most favorable aspect of the situation in Burma has been the effective action of the R.A.F. and American airmen. If airdromes can be kept in operation the striking superiority so far shown over the Japanese airmen may be maintained for far-reaching effects.

The fact the Japanese have heavily reinforced their land forces, however, is a most serious matter. The situation in Java is not yet fully developed. The remarkable successes gained against warships and transports used in the invasion of Bali show how much depends on effective air defences. There can be little hope, however, that the Indies have troops available to recover the island.

Rommel Still Hesitating

The lull in Libya continues and it is still impossible to forecast Rommel's next move. There has been increased patrol activty on both sides and stronger detachments have been useed, but this may not have much significance. Neither commander would of course, willingly allow the opponent to establish ascendancy in patrol activity for the moral effect would be considerable.

It would certainly seem that Rommel does not consider himself strong enough at present to attack Ritchie's position, but whether he is awaiting further reinforcements or is satisfied with what he has achieved in recovering the western Cirenaican airfield and in neutralizng Ritchie's army is doubtful. That he remains a potential danger must be admitted, though he is less so than he was before Auchinleck's offensive and the relief of the Tobruk situation.

In view of the approaching spring in Russia can Hitler spare him the Panzer troops and strong detachments of the Luftwaffe required to make him ormidable It seems doubtful, for Hitler's policy is generally one thing at a time.

That is the picture this week. Glancing back a quarter century to the week ended Feb. 28, 1917: British and Indian troops commanded by Gen. Sir Stanley Maude routed Turkish forces on the River Tigris to recapture Kut-El-Amara Feb. 14. Less than a year before a British force under Gen. Sir Charles Townsend had been forced to surrender at Kut after undergoing a siege lasting 143 days. On the western front British troops forced the Germans back several miles on the Somme-Acre battlefront.

No Compulsion Ottawa Decides

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (CP).—A special House of Commons committee considering the manpower plebiscite bill today agreed there should be nothing in the nature of compulsion in respect to balloting.

The committee agreed also that there should be no provision requiring voters to show their registration cards when they attended the polling booths.

State Secretary McLarty, chairman, said that opposition leader Hanson had suggested voters be required to show their registration cards at polling booths and Angus MacInnis (C.C.F. Vancouver East), had suggested that voting be compulsory.

After D. K. Hazen (Con. St. John Albert) had said the plebiscite bill as drafted gave the impression of being a continuing measure; the committee agreed it should be effective only for the manpower plebiscite.

"This should be regarded as extraordinary wartime legislation and we should limit it to that," said Mr. Hazen. "If we do not impose that limitation we are changing the constitution and we cannot do that without much consideration."

Mr. McLarty said it was agreed that the life of the bill should be limited.

The committee will suggest to the House of Commons that a clause be added to the bill specifying that it applies only to the plebiscite to seek release for the government from past commitments in respect to methods of raising men for overseas service.

No Public Appeal

"The Government has now decided to finance from the public treasury the requirements of the Canadian Legion, the Knights of Columbus, the Salvation Army, the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. for the rendering of their auxiliary services to the members of the armed forces of Canada, at home and abroad in military establishments in camp or barrack areas in Canada, special defence areas as designated by the Director of Auxiliary Services and the National War Charities Funds advisory board, Newfoundland and overseas. The hostel operations of the Navy League of Canada for the men of the navy and the mercantile marine will also be included.

"There will therefore be no public appeal for funds this year by the above-mentioned six organizations."

3-Man Group To Handle Jap's Removal

(By C. R. BLACKBURN.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 —(CP)— The House of Commons entered its week-end recess today with little government legislation on the order paper but with the promise of Prime Minister Mackenzie King that resolution on "wheat and agriculture" will be ready for consideration Monday.

Yesterday the main debate was on trade agreements negotiated last fall by Trade Minister MacKinnon with Brazil, Chile and Argentina.

The agreements were offered for parliamentary ratification by Mr. King as Secretary of State for external affairs. The debate was unfinished at adjournment and will be resumed next week by Hon. Grote Stirling (Con. Yale).

But the feature of yesterday's sitting was the announcement by the Prime Minister, just before adjournment, that he had appointed Austin C. Taylor of Vancouver to head a three-man "British Columbia Security Commission" to take complete charge of the removal of Japanese from the protected area on the Pacific Coast.

Extraordinary powers are to be given to this commission, personnel of which is to be completed after Mr. Taylor consults the British Columbia government. All three members will be residents of the province.

Details of the committee's powers are being incorporated in an Order-in-Council creating the commission, to be passed to-day or early next week.

The Trip South.

For an hour the House listened yesterday to Mr. Mackinnon describe the journey he and a group of trade and diplomatic experts made last fall through the Latin-American countries.

He dwelt at length on the lavish hospitality showered upon his party by the governments of all countries visited and Conservative House Leader Hanson commented that "evidently the minister had a good time down in South America."

All the treaties became effective last fall when they were negotiated. Mr. Mackinnon having been given power to conclude them under an Order-in-Council passed before the mission left.

Mr. Hanson M. J. Coldwell, acting C.C.F. House Leader, and New Democracy Leader Blackmore commended the treaties not so much for the immediate increase in trade that might result, but for their value in cementing relations and for what may come of them in the post-war period.

Mr. Coldwell made a direct appeal to the Government to join the Pan-American conference in which are the United States and all the Latin-American Republics, and in which a seat is said to have been reserved for Canada for many years.

Thinks Value Over-done

Paul Martin (Lib. Essex East) suggested the value of trade with Latin-American countries was "over-emphasized" because of the competition with the United States and the fact that Canada and the South American Republics were largely competitors between themselves.

But he said he saw a great deal of good in any move that would cultivate close relations between all the countries of the western hemisphere and a better understanding between their peoples.

Mr. Hanson introduced a different note when he observed that the trade mission had been in Chile and asked if inquiries had been made as to what Chile was going to do about her external debt.

"I have some Chile bonds...not many of them," Mr. Hanson said. "The fact is that large quantites of these bonds are held in Canada and it will be most reassuring and a mark of the best of bona fides if those countries were—I shall not say compelled, but—offered a suggestion that it would be a policy of good neighborliness on their part if they would resume payments on their obligations."

Mr. Hanson stressed the importance of building up trading possibilities with the South American Republics in anticipation of trading difficulties after the war in the impoverished nations of Europe.

Transportation facilities were of the first importance and had been an obstacle in the past, he said.

It should be the duty of the government to plan that some of the cargo fleet now being built be diverted to southern trade after the war and that careful planning be undertaken in this direction to prevent a post-war depression.

U-Boat Work?

Belmar, N.J., Feb. 28 (A)

BELMAR police reported sighting a ship afire about five miles offshore early today, and United States Coast Guard vessels from New York and New Jersey stations put out to the rescue.

Police Sgt. William Briden said he was on oceanfront patrol at 12:40 a.m., EDT, when he saw "a big wall of fire that shot about 200 feet into the air" arise from the vessel.

Thousands of coast residents saw the blazing ship, which, silhouetted in its own flames, appeared to be a tanker, drifting slowly northward to a point about halfway between here and Asbury Park, six miles away.

Submission Was at the Root Of Christ's Passion

REV. E. R. JAMES

Jesus shewed Himself alive after His passion. Acts 1; 3

Are you startled by this word "Passion"? Do you ever fly into a passion? Are you a passionate man? The word has an interesting history. The Latin word "passio" implies a state of inaction. You are doing nothing. But when you fly into a passion you are not inactive. You are greatly disturbed by some event. Your emotions have been moved greatly and you fly into a passion. Your passionate disposition effects your whole being, body, mind and spirit. A student of the emotions reminds us you are truly a "sufferer". In simple everyday language the word passion today has an evil meaning.

St. Jerome, a great Latin scholar, translated the Holy Scriptures into the Latin tongue of that day. When he came to this unique Greek word, only used here, Jerome translated it by the word "Passio". Several centuries later Wycliffe translated it into the English tongue and gave us the word "passion", which has been retained in the King James' Version.

The root meaning of the word is submission. You were not very submissive when you flew into that passion. Perhaps the next time you are tempted to let your emotions blow off you will strive to control them. Such explosions are bad for your soul and your whole body is violently injured.

During Lent we meditate upon "The Passion of Our Lord". You will only rightly understand the deeper meaning of the word when you remember that submission is at the root of Our Lord's act. "I am come to do the will of Him that sent Me" is His constant claim. We see that spirit in His Boyhood enquiry: "Wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business"? Since that day it has become a habit of His mind. In the Garden of Gethsemane that habit reveals itself in the prayer—so often used by many a sufferer—"Father, if it be Thy will let this cup pass from Me; nevertheless, not My will but Thine be done". It does not mean resignation but an active co-operation with the will of the Father. Our Lord is the obedient Son and though in the Garden He cannot see through the darkness yet He knows all will be well. "I lay down My life of Myself" is His tremendous claim and it is seen in His dying words: "Father, into Thy hands I commend My Spirit."

In some mysterious sense the Perfect Son "was made perfect through suffering". All the days of His earthly life He was willingly submitting to the Father's will. It was not easy. There was the stress, strain and the testing. Then came the great failure. For failure it was to His beloved disciples and friends. Death upon the Cross was the most awful of deaths. No Roman citizen could be crucified. It was reserved for the most degraded of criminals. When the Pharisees and high priests howled for His death by crucifixion they knew it meant degradation of the deepest dye. "He called Himself the Son of God" is their real charge before Pilate. In their sight no degradation was deep enough for such a blasphemer.

Through His perfect submission and willing obedience He was raised from the dead. "God raised Him from the dead."

"In all points He was tempted and tested even as we are". Through His experience of the awful pain and death He is able to assure us in our dark days that He understands and is full of compassion for us. "I will never leave thee not forsake thee" is the word of a Gentleman—THE GENTLEMAN — Who never broke His word.

We are passing through a terrible time of pain, suffering and disaster. These are the days of "our passion", the writer humbly thinks. Like Him, we must submit our wills to the Father's will. There is no doubt about the result. God must conquer the evils that are let loose in this age. He is able to deliver us. Let us face the darkness and perils in quietness and confidence "looking unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith. "Only be strong and very courageous."

Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong.

The parable of the pearl of great price

"Never man so spake."—John 7:46

Why Does Christian Church Give Its Support to War?

Most churches and churchmen have expressed their loyal adherence to their country's cause and are duly patriotic. But there is, in the minds of many people, a slight distrust, and even a definite uneasiness, about the loose combination of Christianity and patriotism offered to them. It leaves them unconvinced, because they cannot forget how recently the dominant message of the churches was quite different in tone and in content. Folk who a few years ago were being exhorted by Christian leaders to pledge themselves never to participate in war and never to let the name of God be used in connection with any war are bound to be perplexed when they are exhorted now, perhaps by the same leaders, to give their best and utmost in the present conflict. They wonder naturally whether the church is merely falling in with national enthusiasm and letting its own peculiar teaching drop for the time into the background; in other words—and this is a serious matter for the church—whether the church, for expediency's sake, is letting its attitude and message be determined from some other source than Jesus Christ. Therefore it is necessary for the church, in giving its support to the government in prosecuting the war, to say distinctly why it is doing so. It is not enough to say that our country is at war and therefore Christians within her bounds are at war. There could be a war waged by our government which Christians would have to oppose. Neither is it enough to say that freedom is at stake and that therefore all Christian must rise to the defence of freedom. Freedom is a word which in our world has ceased to mean just one thing. A Christian must ask: "What kind of freedom am I being asked to defend?" Nothing less must be undertaken than to show that it is because we believe in Jesus Christ, and for no lesser reason, that as Christian people we must engage with our fullest strength in the present war.

Jesus Talks In Parables To Multitudes by the Sea

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 1 is Matthew 13; Mark 4:1-34; Luke 8:1-16; the Golden Text being John 7:46, "Never man so spake.")

A PARABLE is a story used to illustrate a certain point or moral. It is a story in which the incident related never happened, yet it might have happened. Thus is a parable distinguished from a fable, which is a story told about something which could not have happened.

Jesus talked to the multitude in parables, as mothers tell little stories to their children to make certain truths clear to them.

In our story today, Jesus sat by the seaside, and when the crowd found Him there, He entered a boat, and sitting in the boat, with the interested multitude on the shore, He talked to them, telling His truths in parables.

The first story told by our Lord was about a man who went into his field to sow grain. Some of the seeds, said Jesus, fell by the wayside and fowls ate them; some fell onto stony places where there was not enough earth for them to grow in, and they died; some fell among weeds and thorns which choked them; but others fell into good ground and grew and made a good harvest.

The disciples asked Jesus why He talked in parables, and He answered: "It is given to you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given." He then explained to them that to some persons the truths he told would be like seeds dropped by the wayside, the evil things of life would catch them up ere they could sprout. To some others the truths could not prosper because there was no soil in the soul to nurture them. When trouble or persecution came, the truth in their hearts would perish.

Worldliness Chokes Truth

The "deceitfulness of riches," the material things of the world, would distract others, these being the weeds that would choke out the truth in some hearts. But to those who, like the disciples, had pure understanding hearts, the word would multiply and bear fruit "some an hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty."

"The kingdom of heaven" is like a grain of mustard seed, said Jesus. It is one of the tiniest of seeds, but becomes a great herb, and later "a tree, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof."

The Kingdom of Heaven, was also likened to leaven which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal, and the whole was leavened. Anyone who has seen the effect of yeast on a large quantity of bread mixture, can appreciate this parable.

The Kingdom of Heaven is also like a treasure hid in a field, "the which when a man hath found, he hideth and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field."

Buying Their Treasures

In olden times men who had to leave home hid their treasures in holes in the earth. Sometimes they died while away, and the treasure could not be located. A law was passed that when it was found it should belong to the owner of the land. God's truth is likened to this treasure which when a man found, he sold everything else he had to buy it. How much more is this truth worth to men than earthly treasure!

A similar parable is the one about the man who found the pearl of great price, and sold his all to purchase it.

The last parable in this 13th chapter of Matthew, tells of the fishers who cast their nets and drew up many fish of all kinds, both good and bad. The sorters on the shore threw away the inedible varieties and saved the good. "So shall it be at the end of the world: the angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from the just," said Jesus.

When Jesus went to his old home and entered into the synagogue to preach, his old neighbors heard Him with amazement, saying, "It not this the carpenter's son. . . Whence then hath this man all these things."

And they were offended with Him. Jesus said, "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country, and in his own house," and He refrained from doing miracles in Nazareth because of their lack of faith.

Let us look into our own hearts. Is there within us the soil in which will grow and blossom truth, righteousness and love, such as the world needs in its present unhappy state? Can we follow the Master through persecution and suffering, striving always to live for His glory—for Truth and Righteousness?

The Parables by the Sea — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

—Scripture—Matt. 13; Mark 4:1-34; Luke 8:1-18—

Jesus sat on the seashore, and when great multitudes gathered on the shore, He entered a boat and, sitting therein, gave them His message in stories or parables.

Jesus first parable was of the man who sowed his seed in the field, where some fell on stony ground, some was eaten by fowls, and some took root and grew.

In another parable Jesus likened the kingdom of heaven to a grain of mustard seed, which, being the tiniest of seeds, when grown became a great tree.

In a third parable Jesus likened "the kingdom of heaven to leaven," which when hidden in three measures of meal, leavened the whole.

A Hardy Municipal Annual

A hardy annual which comes up this time of year for municipal Councils to look at from every direction, without quite knowing what to do about it, is the pay list for civic employees. It is not only a worrisome problem, for members elected to public bodies want to do what is fair, but it seems never to have been disposed of in the most business-like way, at least in most municipalities.

Peterborough has the subject right on the table before the City Council now. Many hours may be spent, probably, in a discussion as to whether any increases of pay should be given or not, to whom a boost is to go, if to any one, and what is the best method of keeping everybody good natured — including ratepayers, who have been known to take the view that a person should be happy to work for a municipality merely for the honor of it.

There are two suggestions the Examiner offers in connection with this sometimes rather perplexing matter. And it is perplexing, inasmuch as the personnel of elective municipal bodies changes from year to year and too because the taxpayers require that there shall be an absolute justification for whatever increases are given. The suggestions are these:

That there is a Municipal department of the provincial government at Toronto. It has data which pertains to all matters of civic administration throughout Ontario. Were that department consulted it is likely that valuable information could be obtained as to what general conditions prevail in other cities and towns. This would be a guide for any individual Council. The other proposal is that all positions in the municipal service should be based on a minimum salary or wage, and moderate increases should come more or less automatically until a certain maximum is reached, providing the employee performs his or her duties faithfully and well.

The value of this policy has long since been found to be worthy in the civil service, both provincial and federal. The number of employees in those two systems is large, of course, and therefore classifications can be made more easily than in civic life, nevertheless the principle is sound and can be applied with certain elasticity in any public service.

As it is now an employee sometimes remains in the service of a community for years and never gets a dollar increase until he has an offer to go somewhere else. Then suddenly somebody thinks about allowing him a little more. Such a policy is not conducive to the most contentment on the part of the person who has the job. On the other hand, if a graduated scale upward to a maximum were arranged, an employee would have an incentive to improve in the service and to feel that his or her services, well done, were bringing a reward.

Too often in the hit-and-miss practice which has been so common in most communities, employees who feel they are not earning enough to be comfortable and satisfied, have to carry on a kind of political propaganda in behalf of themselves among aldermen or members of a school board or of a public utility. This is embarrassing both to the elected representative and to the employee. Such a condition should not be necessary.

It has also been the habit for years among elected members of a good many municipalities to take the position that they are too new to all the circumstances of a case to know what should be done and so they shuffle things over from one year's board or council to another. That may be a convenient but it is not a courageous way of dealing with a matter. When a person is sworn in to a public office his or her duty is to handle the business, frankly, expeditiously, which comes up for consideration. No member should have to be button-holed nor should any employee have to resort to such ends to get a little "leg up."

If civic employees anywhere, in whatever capacity they serve, do their work well and merit confidence, they are just as much entitled to a decent wage as are persons in offices, stores, factories or other places. With the graduating principle in force, elected representatives would not have to worry much about wage and salary matters. Boards of education have such a method in operation but of course it is rather easier to classify and to make pay levels in that field than it is in council and utility lists. Still, it can be done and when it has proven to be so wise in the civil service and education—and indeed it is now in effect in well organized business and financial enterprises—it should be put to use in all branches of municipal service.

Another Canadian Steps Up

The appointment of Graham Spry to be personal assistant to Sir Stafford Cripps, now Lord Privy Seal in the shuffled Churchill Cabinet, and leader in the British House of Commons, is another example of the part which Canadians more and more are playing in the political life of Great Britain. Mr. Spry is a graduate of the University of Manitoba and a native of St. Thomas, Ont. He was active for several years in the Association of Canadian Clubs and in the political affairs of this country. His future career will be watched with interest by his fellow-countrymen who extend congratulations to him on his elevation to so responsible a post.

Other Canadians who have been figures on the present stage in the Old Land have been Lord Beaverbrook, Beverley Baxter, Garfield Weston, and in a previous administration, Lord Greenwood. This fact emphasizes the trend, which is growing quite apparent, of inter-political relationships between the Mother Country and the young commonwealths of the Empire.

Despicable Black Traders

So angry is the population of the British Isles over what has come to be known as "black trading"—which means the making of illegal gain and profits out of the hazards of war—that the subject has pressed its way into Parliament and has been up for discussion. Stern punishment, even the death penalty, is demanded by the press and the public generally for these "cheap little men"—a polite way of saying "human vultures," who have become profiteers and are lining their pockets with earnings from illegal operations of many kinds.

There are few types of persons more despicable than those who, while the great majority of the people are doing their bit, whether in uniform or out of it, to fight against a desperate, murderous foe, take advantage of the abnormal state of things to make themselves rich. Others can sacrifice, die in battle, be wounded, lose their possessions, suffer inconveniences — anything, everything, in the interests of society's welfare but none of that for the black traders. They steal cargoes coming in on ships, put all sorts of fake goods and schemes before the gullible masses and in innumerable ways deliberately go out to unduly "feather their nests." The wonder is that the public temper toward these rogues has restrained itself so long!

A Wise Step

The Government at Ottawa has taken a proper step, a step with which every loyal citizen of the Dominion should agree, in giving the Minister of Justice, Hon. Louis St. Laurent, power to exclude any or all persons, regardless of their citizenship, from protected areas, as defined under the Defence of Canada Regulations. Furthermore, the authority vested in him should be rigorously exercised.

This country has not been in a hurry to adopt measures that many laymen have been urging, through the press and elsewhere, for quite a time. These observers have watched events closely in Europe and Asia since the war began and they have felt that the Government should have acted in some of these defence matters before this. Today is getting rather late, in view of what Japan is accomplishing in the Far East, but now that this order has been passed, it should be put immediately in operation all over the Dominion.

High Number Of Rejects

It is rather an impressive reflection on the physical aspect of Canadian life that since the outbreak of the war no less than 3,932 soldiers have been returned to this country from overseas as unfit for service, according to a report made to the House of Commons. Of these 1,608 are still serving in the Canadian Army, and so there are no figures available as to how many were actually rejected on medical grounds, but it can be assumed that quite a considerable percentage would be in that class.

But this is not all. These men got past examining doctors when they enlisted and, while they succeeded in passing into uniformed ranks, there were scores of other applicants in every depot not up to a sound enough bodily standard to be admitted for military service. And practically all who were either accepted, or who applied and were turned down, were comparatively young men. The question, therefore, comes up as to why this should be the case?

When consideration is being given to a new and better order of things after the war is over, to an improved type of civilization and to sociological measures for the benefit of the masses, one of the major subjects that should be placed well to the front is the matter of public health. An open, northern country such as Canada should breed a strong vigorous race of young men and women. Medical, hospital and industrial statistics show that physical defects and sickness are much too prevalent now.

Siamese Twins

A unique outcropping of biological phenomena is revealed in the birth Thursday of two baby girls, joined together and who rested together in a single crib at St. Vincent's Hospital, Staten Island, New York. It is a rare thing that Siamese twins come into the world and live. Consequently, the origin of this phrase is of interest.

The words came into use when two male babes, native to Siam, now called Thailand and which is in the theatre of war in the Far East, were born in 1814. The news about them gradually found its way to other parts of the world because of the intense curiosity awakened over their appearance. They were named Chang and Eng and lived until 1874, thus having reached a fairly advanced age.

Since then Siamese twins have been exhibited at large annual Expositions and in side shows of all kinds in many parts of the world.

In the present instance the physician, Dr. Timpone who delivered these two baby girls, is reported to be studying through X-ray examinations, whether it is possible to perform an operation and separate the two. Medical men in the vicinity are greatly interested in the matter. Disclosing that many physicians had called him to offer their assistance if needed, Dr. Timpone is said to have sighed and added: "I have an idea of how Dr. Dafoe felt after he delivered the Dionne quintuplets."

If surgery can accomplish this feat in safety, the effort will be followed with exceptional eagerness.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Now that the war is driving governments to prohibit rubber in corsets and men's garters and suspenders, perhaps the faithful old safety pin will have a little respect shown to it again.

"If plastic airplanes are produced, they are likely to be made of sugar cane," says a dispatch from New Orleans. What next? Perhaps there will yet be plastic resolves made at New Year's out of onions and spaghetti!

U.S. General Douglas MacArthur is becoming a larger and larger military figure all the time. What he has been able to do with his little army out in the Philippines is amazing. The Japs have found there one of the hardest nuts they've yet tried to crack.

Since the start of the war Germany's public debt has trebled notwithstanding the millions its warmongers have looted from defenceless countries. Imagine what it will be when the Huns finally have to give up. Probably they'll simply repudiate their obligations to other nations as they did after 1918.

IN CHURCH

"God comfort those who suffer in this war," the parson prayed.
The sun shone in through colored glass;
vibrant, the organ played.
Deep in my foolish heart I asked, "How much does God take heed?
Thousands of hearts are broken and a million people bleed!"

And as I sat remembering only such things as these—
The victims of the devil's work were rescued from the seas;
A thousand nurses stooped to ease a thousand soldiers' pain;
A hundred Spitfire pilots rose to clear the skies again;
Many a foster mother kissed some little orphaned child;
Smoke-blackened firemen fought huge fires with spirits undefiled;
Ten million willing outstretched hands fed homeless, hungry folk;
A tired crowd underground laughed at a wounded actor's joke;
White helmeted young doctors braved a screaming shower of death,
Binding up hurts, speaking kind words, restoring failing breath.

"Oh thou of little faith," He said,
And humbled, deep I bowed my head.

Sunshine Girls Bare Legs And Victory Loan

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

It looked for a little while as though Canada's Second Victory Loan were going to be a conscientious, successful drive for funds. It looked as though we were going to subscribe our money up to the point which the Government had asked for, and a respectable amount over it, experiencing nothing very much except a sense of patriotic duty well done. But no! Someone has decided to jazz up the Victory Loan, and it appears that we are going to have a Sunshine Girl to inspire us to greater feats of economic derring-do. Her picture has been in the papers.

Wars may come and wars may go, and the tides of patriotic feeling may ebb and flow, but the appeal of the female figure is a constant factor in the minds of men. It is a well-proven fact that you can sell anything more readily if you can associate it, in some way, with the image of a pretty girl, and the committee in charge of the Victory Loan has learned this lesson as well as anybody. And they have got the girl. Her picture has been published. She is Evelyn Dinsmoor, an eighteen-years-old junior college student, and she is to be Canada's Sunshine Girl. In the picture of her which came my way she was getting off an airplane, carrying a British flag in one hand and an American flag in the other. She was dressed as a drum-major, wearing a hat with a good many feathers in it, a smart military coat, a dainty pair of top-boots, and nothing else which could be seen. It was obvious that the committee which chose Miss Dinsmoor had not been unmindful of her legs. She looked extremely healthy, and a considerable amount of long curly hair, and was smiling broadly. She certainly looked like a Sunshine Girl.

Possibly there are some people who do not see any necessity for a Sunshine Girl to help with the Second Victory Loan. There is none. The loan would be a success without the aid of Miss Dinsmoor. But it would be a gloomy world indeed if we never allowed ourselves to have anything which was not necessary. The Lord Mayor's Show in London is not necessary, but the Londoners have it, in spite of war, and they feel all the better for it. We may not need a Sunshine Girl but we shall probably feel all the better for having one. If she cheers us up she will be worth the comparatively small sum of money which will be required to enlist her services during the period of the Loan.

Some people will undoubtedly dispute this. Why should we be cheered up, they will ask, when so much of the world is plunged in gloom? What kind of people are we, that we must have pretty girls to point out our patriotic duty? The answer is not an easy one to make. The logical necessity may not be apparent, but there are a vast number of things in life which cannot be explained or governed by logic. The fact that much of the rest of the world is plunged in gloom is all the more reason why we should keep up our spirits; depression is an enemy of the war effort and we must fight depression with Sunshine Girls or any other effective means. To admit depression is a failure confession. We must combat not only depression but the apathy which still exists in the hearts of many people toward this war. He who relaxes aids the Axis. Our Canadian war effort is a magnificent one, and we may well be proud of it, but with things as they are at present in the Pacific and in the other theatres of war we must double our present war effort, and even then we will hardly be doing enough. Our war effort needs a strong shot in the arm, and if a Sunshine Girl can do the trick, let us have one by all means.

The notion of the Sunshine Girl will seem silly to some, but hundreds of thousands of others will like it, and the fact must be borne in mind that this war is being fought by Canada as a whole, and not by the heavier minded among its citizens. A winning smile from the Sunshine Girl will fan the flame of enthusiasm in hearts which are impervious to the close reasoning and economic blandishments of Mr. Ilsley. Her legs speak a language unknown to the pin-striped extremities of Mr. Mackenzie King. The Sunshine Girl looks like a very nice girl, she excels rather, in charm. Her flashing eyes, her floating hair will carry a message to quarters inaccessible to the pure reason of those gentlemen who are giving their time and their highest talents to advancing the War Loan. In fact, we think that the discovery and employment of a Sunshine Girl is a smart move.

Frivolity is only frivolous when it is an end in itself. When frivolity is made to serve a greater end it becomes a kind of wisdom. The Sunshine Girl represents a sort of wisdom which we had not, frankly, expected to find in the Victory Loan Committee, but which we are delighted to acclaim there. If her attractions are presented to the Canadian people in the right way they should be extremely helpful, not only in connection with the Victory Loan, but in stirring up enthusiasm for our war effort generally. And if our enemies wish to represent us as marching to victory or death behind the figure of a girl in an abbreviated drum major's costume, let them do so. We would rather be behind a Sunshine Girl than behind Hitler. We all know where he is going to lead.

• Norway Scare Nazi Rumor

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—In view of bitter British experience in the ill-fated attempt to bolster Norway against Nazi invasion, rumors afloat in Scandinavia that the Germans fear a repeat Anglo-American performance there are subject to suspicion.

Desirable as it would be to involve Hitler in two-front war while the revived Russian counter attack on his east front is still at its height, Norway offers little prospect of success. The British forces discovered to their sorrow that the deep fjords of that rugged coastline could become deadly traps.

That does not discount the diversion value of such hit-and-run commando raids as have already been staged on the Norwegian islands or exposed coastal areas. They tend to pin substantial German forces in Norway that could be useful to Hitler against Russia.

PERILOUS COAST

It would be a different matter, however, to attempt to land heavy forces for a major counter invasion. The Atlantic is too perilous a sea for that still; the Norwegian coast too well adapted to submarine and air defense. Nor could a successful invasion of Norway, even if the Nazis were driven out, be decisive.

It can be surmised, therefore, that the rumors of Nazi invasion fears have been deliberately set afloat in Scandinavia for some other purpose. They are coupled with reports of extensive new German activity in Norway that actually may prove to be the preliminaries of a Hitler spring offensive in the Atlantic rather than a defensive move.

Unquestionably German efforts to shut off the Arctic supply route to Russia via Archangel are to be expected. There have been reports that even though the trio of Nazi heavy warcraft which escaped from Brest are still out of action, even more powerful naval forces have been sent northward in Norwegian waters for that purpose.

MUSTERING SURFACE CRAFT

The Tirpitz, sister ship of powerful lost Bismarck, is among the ships said to have been despatched on that mission. Spotting them by air would be a difficult task. Norway's fjords offer numberless hideaways. Air patrols would have to pass directly over a deep and narrow sea-gorge at fairly low altitude to be certain what lay below it. Shore and ship anti-aircraft batteries easily could prevent that.

British air scouts took some days to find what they believe is the damaged Prinz Eugen, one of the trio of Nazi ships which escaped from Brest through Dover Strait. She is reported in a Norwegian fjord while her more powerful companion craft in that daring escape, the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, are under renewed British bomb attack in German repair bases.

If the ship the British scouts discovered is in fact the Prinz Eugen, that tends to confirm the report that Hitler is mustering a force of naval surface craft in the Far North Atlantic. It justifies British warnings that heavily armored and fast German raiders are apt to reappear in the Atlantic at any moment to supplement the expanded Nazi U-boat attack. And the Atlantic-Arctic supply route for Russia seems a prime target for such operations.

To The Editor

THINGS LEFT UNDONE NOW CANNOT BE DONE

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—An English vicar, writing to his people a year ago, among other things, said the following:

We have been a pleasure-loving people, dishonoring God's Day. Now the sea shores are barred. No picknicking or bathing.

We have preferred motor travel to churchgoing. Now there is a shortage of motor fuel.

We have ignored the ringing of church bells calling us to worship. Now the bells cannot ring except to warn of invasion.

We have left the churches empty. Now they are in ruins.

We would not listen to the way of peace. Now we are forced to listen to the way of war.

The money we would not give to the Lord's work now is taken in taxes and higher prices.

The food for which we neglected to thank God now is unobtainable.

The service we refused to give to God now is conscripted for the country.

Lives we refused to live under God's control now are under the nation's control.

Nights we would not spend "watching unto prayer" now we spend in anxious air raid precautions.

Is it not time we checked up on this thing here, too? Or must it take bombs to awaken us?

Some Difference

Mrs. Dumbly was waiting to be served in the boot shop. Presently a girl assistant approached her.

"What size shoe do you wear, madam?" she inquired.

"Well," said Mrs. Dumbly, "I bought size four last time."

The girl looked puzzled.

"Yes, madam, I remember," she replied; "but you're buying this pair for yourself, aren't you!"

A Bit of Nonsense

New Lodger (sarcastically): "Is that all the soap there is in this room?"

Landlady (decidedly): "Yes, sir, all I can allow in one room."

New Lodger: "Well, I'll take two more rooms. I've got to wash in the morning."

A class in natural history was reciting. The teacher asked, "Where is the home of the swallow?"

A long silence, and then a hand waved.

"The home of the swallow," declared Robert, "is in the stummick."

O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me....Thou compassest my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways....

Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: If I make my bed in hell, behold thou art there. — Ps. cxxxix, 1, 3, 7, 8.

Spikenard Gone In 3 Minutes After Torpedoing

LONDON, Feb. 28—(CP Cable).—Survivors of the Canadian corvette Spikenard, torpedoed and sunk in three minutes by an enemy submarine while on escort duty in the Atlantic, turned to the sea again to-day with vengeance in their hearts for the lives of 59 of their companions who perished.

Three of them walked down the long platform of a dingy London railway station last night, said goodbye to relatives and friends and started for an unnamed British port where they will join others of their little company who were not injured and sail for Canada.

Quietly Chief Petty Officer Alexander Day, 34, of Verdun, Que., told how he and seven companions saved themselves in the midnight darkness after a torpedo smashed into their little vessel below the bridge, knocking a great hole in her side and setting her afire. Two others died.

Two Die on Raft.

For 18½ hours thereafter the survivors struggled to maintain life in their numbed limbs as they lay afloat on a raft. Two died and their companions lowered them overside with a prayer, after stripping them of their clothing and donning it themselves against the bitter cold.

Day, Stoker Red MacMillan, 22, of Mount Stewart, P.E.I., and Stoker George Morrison, 22, of Pictou, N. S., passed through this capital at the end of the leave they got after a British corvette picked them up and brought them to Britain.

Day, a stocky veteran of the sea, wearing a new uniform, was the spokesman for the party.

He said most of the men aboard were asleep when the torpedo struck. "The explosion awakened us," he said, "and when we reached the deck we saw other Canadian corvettes attacking submarines to port and starboard."

It was an attack by a submarine "wolf-pack" on their convoy but the convoy got through with its precious cargo of goods for Britain.

The Spikenard started sinking immediately, Day said, and he had no time to clear a life raft before he and it were floated over the stern where he was caught in the suction of the sinking ship.

Blown to Surface

An internal explosion blew him clear of the raft and he came to the surface where he was able to grab a float. The lifeboats had been rendered useless, one smashed by the blast, the other set aflame.

". . . When I made the surface I heard voices and saw MacMillan, Morrison and others on the float," Day recounted. "I swam over to the float and when I reached it they were changing to the raft. They pulled me out and we heard a couple of cries over the water, but the voices faded and died before we could locate them."

Morrison said only three of the men left the ship together "and we picked the others up in the water."

None of them was properly clothed. Day, in a cotton shirt and trousers, lacked shoes and socks. MacMillan had shoes, socks and dungarees, Morrison a shirt, pants and shoes. He had just come from the hot stokehold.

They huddled together for warmth and sought to tend four men so badly burned they were taken to hospital on arrival in Britain, besides the two who died of injuries they had suffered in the explosion.

Day said that despite the unexpectedness of the attack there was no excitement aboard the Spikenard, "just men working in silence to get the rafts and floats free."

The three men who left here last night will be joined at their embarkation point by H. J. Haas and a fourth uninjured companion while their burned mates remain behind until their injuries are healed.

Day told his grey-haired mother and sisters as he said goodbye; "We'll even up the count against them and get a submarine for each of the boys if possible."

MEET WAR NEEDS

The Canadian production of steel ingots and castings amounted to 2,411,887 tons in 1941 compared with 2,014,172 tons in 1940.

Look in the Mirror to-night and say this to yourself:

"We've got a big job to do in this war. It's going to take every ounce of energy we've got.

"I want to do my part as a Canadian. With the war at our door, it's certainly true that we must all do our share.

"I can't get into the fighting forces; but I'm doing essential work. I'm paying the heavier taxes. I've subscribed to all the war loans so far.

"I'M DOING ALL I POSSIBLY CAN!"

Then turn out the light and try to go to sleep.

That's all. It's yours to say whether your statement can stand examination. No one else can decide for you—not in a free country.

The grim fact is that MORE effort, MORE sacrifice, MORE of the "impossible", is needed if we are to win.

Many Canadians have offered their lives—others are tightening their belts till it hurts.

C.G.E. GENERALS TAKE LEAD IN THE LADIES BASKETBALL LEAGUE

St. John's Girls Nose Out Normal Students

C.G.E. Generals moved into undisputed possession of first place in the Ladies' Basketball League standings by defeating Quakers with whom they have been battling for the top spot all year, by a 28-17 score at the Y.W.C.A. last night. St. John's kept the spark of hope they have of winning a play-off spot alive by nosing out Normal School, 22-19. Prior to last night's game, the Generals and Quakers had been tied away out in front of the pack for several weeks, each team having lost but one game and both team are assured of play-off berths, while the third and fourth place play-off slots are still open, with most of the rest of the teams still having a chance.

C.G.E. Generals held a small edge through most of their game with the Quakers, and slowly built up their winning margin. They took an 18-11 lead in the first half, holding a decided edge in this half as far as shooting accuracy was concerned and then in the low-scoring last period they settled back into a defensive game that held the losers to six points. Quakers had a goodly share of the play and could have made it a lot closer with a little more accurate shooting as they had plenty of scoring chances. They also passed up a good chance to close the gap in the score by sinking only three of 12 free throws, while Generals sank two of four tries. M. Ward and A. Craig spearheaded the winners' scoring efforts and P. Ayres and D. Weese led the Quakers. The teams:

Quakers (17).—G. Allen, H. White, M. Youdell, H. Rutter, P. Ayres 8, M. Duncan 2, D. Weese 5, P. Lawless 2.

C.G.E. Generals (28).—M. Hodson, C. Stalter 3, M. Snowden 4, D. Wood, M. Wood 11, A. Craig 10, A. De Carlo, E. Harte-Maxwell 2, Norran.

Referees: V. Coleman and W. Thirnbeck.

St. John's used a small first half margin to beat Normalites 22-19. The "teachers-to-be" put up a stiff battle and almost upset the dope bucket by beating St. John's. It was 14-11 at the half for the church team, but Normalites, who have lost more close games than any other team in the league, held the winners all even at eight points each in the last half.

St. John's margin was just about indicated by the score. Their big edge was in superior shooting as Normalite shad almost as many chances as the winners, but lost out with poor shooting. The losers could easily have won out on free throws as they sank only one out of 12 tries, while St. John's failed in both of their attempts. T. Laws was the big scorer with 10 points, and R. Roblin and E. Van Allen starred for the losers. The teams:

St. John's (22).—D. Groombridge 2, A. Bowler 4, E. Clark, T. Laws 10, F. Gynane, E. Hewitt 6, M. Mason.

Normal (19).—R. Roblin 8, McMillan, Y. Rowan 4, E. Van Allen 7, C. McKelvin, R. Ainsworth.

Referee—J. Cooper and W. Thirnbeck.

Paced by Sutton and Johnston the winners stepped into the scoring picture early in the opener and had rammed home four by the end of the period. E. Sutton got the opening goal of the game early in the first and Johnston scored tv› minutes later on a fast one into the corner of the net, then taking the disc from centre ice he jacked the score up once again to make the score 3 to 0. City Carpetball

According to reports received this week it appears that the Pork Packers had a sweet revenge on the struggling Auto Top gang, handing them the worst trimming they have received this season, 22-3. It means an even break on the round, but is little satisfaction to the Auto Tops who were out to save themselves from slipping cellarwards.

The Quaker Oats squad are still climbing, and for the second time this season took all points from the opposition, thus being ahead of any other team to date for this accomplishment. No. 3 took 4 from No. 11; No. 8 took 4 from No. 3; No. 4 beat both No. 6 and No. 11.

Only three reports today:
SOE 1, 8-12 v. PFD No. 7, 13-10.
Auto Tops No. 12, 5-3; v. St. George's No. 9, 12-22.
LOL No. 4, 13-13 v. Brintons, No. 11, 4-10.

Games for next week:
PFD No. 8 v. St. George's No. 9.
BESL No. 5 v. PFD No. 7
LOL No. 4 v. Moose No. 10
LOL No. 3 v. Auto Tops No. 12.
SOE No. 2 v. Brinton No. 11
SOE No. 1 v. BESL No. 6.

Just three teams are entered in the President's Cup so far: Auto Tops, No. 12; St. George's No. 9, L.O.L. No. 4. We would like to hear from the other teams, so that the schedulde can be drawn up and games started. All games will be played on neutral carpets.

Moore Gets Jolt Sale To Yanks Only A Transfer

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP) — If you've ever had a chair yanked out from under you just as you were about to sit down you have an idea of how Gene Moore feels these days.

Gene Moore is the 32-year-old outfielder with the boneless knees who not so long ago was acquired by the Yankees from Boston Braves.

Boy, oh boy, was that a break. Gene just purred and bubbled and grinned and reckoned that now, after some dozen years in baseball, he finally had landed with a pennant winner. He'd get in that Yankee outfield, by gum, and next October would be sticking out his mitt for a slice of that world series melon.

Then what happens well, Gene never even sees the Yankee training camp. He was just a piece of mail to be forwarded as far as Ed Barrow was concerned, and the other day it was announced Gene had been sold to Montreal, and even Del Baker, who gives every team a chance, hasn't picked Montreal to win the International League pennant yet.

It was a sneak punch, no less, but Gene has the satisfaction of knowing it could be worse. Montreal is a Dodger farm, and the Dodgers are very much contenders for the National League flag. Besides, Larry MacPhail likes his ball players aged in the wood, so before the summer is over Gene might find himself with those other life-begins-at-30 guys at Ebbets Field.

With 16 Clubs in 9 Leagues

During his 13 years of campaigning Moore has made more stops than a brush salesman. He's averaged about two clubs a year since his debut with Midland in the West Texas League in 1929. Some of his stops were for repeat performances, but it meant shifting clubs just the same.

Counting his recent double play of Boston-to-New York-to-Montreal he's been with 16 different clubs in nine leagues.

Despite his pony express existence which might indicate he wore out his welcome quicker than he does his uniform, Gene always has been a good, journeyman ball player. He's never been a .300 hitter in the majors, but he's been up there crowding that figure several times.

The Moore case is cited just to show that all the heartbreaks in baseball aren't caused by a muffed fly or a strikeout in a pinch with the bases loaded.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Peterborough Soldiers are group champions. They turned the trick at Oshawa last night when they badly outplayed Whitby Palm Billiards to win 9 to 3 and take series 3 games to 1. The result must have been a surprise to some of the "wise guys" around town who had it all figured out that the Petes would take a mickey finn and cash in on a big home gate for the fifth game. The Ellis-Scates outfit were not having any part of that. They wanted that group championship and they wanted it in the bag as soon as possible—and they played just that way. They roared along all through the engagement, making every post a winning one and despite the fact that Whitby had all their Oshawa reinforcements in action Palm Billiards looked like a very ordinary team, especially in the high-scoring third period when they got within a goal of the Petes and they found themselves nearly blown off the ice by a sustained Peterborough onslaught that saw three goals fired past Hurst in 76 seconds. That was the uprising that broke up the ball game. There wasn't much fight left in the Whitby crowd and the best they could do for the balance of the game while the Petes were picking up three more markers was to nick one goal while they had a two-man advantage.

* * * * * *

Every member of the Peterborough squad made his contribution to the brilliant win but particularly outstanding was the work of the second line with Bruce Bennett centring Perce Nichols and Joe Blewett. Soldier Nichols picked last night's important game as a good time to bob up with his best exhibition of the campaign. He performed the hat trick in the third period by coming through with three goals and each of them was a smart effort. Two were scored from close in on passing plays and Hurst never had a chance and the third was registered on an individual rush, climaxed with a sizzling back-hander on which the Whitby goalie fanned completely. Bennett, too, turned in his best effort of the season, skating at top speed and figuring in four goals, setting up plays for three and getting one himself. The former Belleville player certainly earned brackets on his night's work.

* * * * * *

The Petes will now meet Collingwood in the senior B playdowns and the first game will likely be played in Collingwood on Tuesday night with the return game here on Friday of next week. Goals on the round will settle the series. The Shipbuilders will be doughty opposition. They have a team that is packed with classy puck-chasers and are reported to have plenty of scoring punch. However the Petes have oodles of that themselves and if they can play back to their winning form of last night in the Collingwood series they should give the northerners plenty to think about. It will be a nice round and undoubtedly the battle here next Friday night will draw the biggest crowd of the season. The Petes have the town decidedly hockey conscious at the present moment as a result of the convincing manner in which they swept through the final series for the group championship. They won the honors so decisively that the losing them had no alibis—except of course the one this column has frequently pointed out that it is impossible for amateur hockeyists to play four games a week and expect to be at the top of their form. Those Toronto games added to a heavy O.H.A. schedule has been a big load for Cooper, Covert, Barnes, Durling and Gamble.

Win Six Out Of Eight

On the season's record the Petes have undoubtedly demonstrated their superiority over the Whitby gang. They have met eight times in the schedule and playoff games and six times the Petes have emerged victorious. The two games won by Whitby were one-goal victories, the first in overtime and the second by 5 to 4 in a game in which the Petes had them hanging on the ropes for the last thirty minutes. In the matter of goals for and against the Petes have also had a big advantage outscoring Palm Billiards 54 to 26 in the eight games played between the two outfits this season. However the Whitby team has helped to make this a real senior B loop this season and it is to be hoped they will be back in there next year. Incidentally they were quick to wish the Petes luck as soon as last night's game was over. Ab Barnes and other Palm Billiards players invaded the Petes' dressing-room and expressed the hope that the winners would go right through to the senior B championship.

* * * * * *

Should Be A Battle

Basketball fans will be rewarded for a trip up to the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium tonight when Quakers and C.G.E. will hook up in a City League battle that should be a sizzler. The Quakers who have only lost one game this season need a win tonight to keep at the top of the heap while C.G.E. must grab off a victory if they are to have a chance for a playoff spot. The porridge men have sharp-shooting Jimmy Thorburn and Joe Jakafby to lead their attack, while the Electricians are sparked by Joe Stewart, one of the high-scorers of the Outboard Marines. There should be plenty of action all the way as the game has a direct bearing on the City League race which is now getting close to its final stages, with every fixture counting from now in. The game is scheduled to get under way at 8 o'clock sharp and will be well worth seeing.

* * * * * *

Coach Bamforth's fast-travelling Collegiate and Vocational squad who are waiting for an interscholastic playoff with Oshawa Collegiate improved their chances for a berth in the City League playoffs appreciably last night when they knocked off the second-place Dominions in a lively game at the Collegiate gym. On the big floor the students showed too much speed for the Dominions and their shooting was better with the result that they earned their win. The victory practically ensures a tie between Dominions and Collegiate for second place unless the C.G.E. who have games with Quakers and Collegiate coming up spill the beans. It is a cinch the Quakers will finish in first place.

* * * * * *

Down at the Y.W.C.A. gym last night C.G.E. Generals took over first place in the ladies' loop with a clean-cut win over the closest rivals, the Quakers. It was only the second defeat of the season for the porridge team and they battled valiantly to avert a loss but the Electricians carried too much scoring punch and were not to be denied. St. John's girls won the other game on the program, defeating the Normalites who have not yet succeeded in getting into the win column. The Westclox-Y game, also scheduled for last night, was postponed by mutual consent.

* * * * * *

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Seven Peterborough players scored goals in last night's game. That spreading out the scoring punch....It was a bad night for Oshawa....The Generals absorbed a 13 to 6 beating in Brantford while the Oshawa contingent with the Whitby Palm Billiards were being beaten in Oshawa....Tip Miller, former Stratford ball player who came to Oshawa six or seven years ago to play with GM-Men joins the Oshawa fire department today. He had been with General Motors ever since arriving in Oshawa....There will be a lot of American League pitchers who will demand a new deal so far as the draft laws are concerned....Ted Williams, Boston slugger, has been deferred from military duty by a presidential appeal board order....That means grief for the aforesaid pitchers....They had better not read Boston out of the party too soon....Bill Cowley may be back with the team shortly and even Dit Clapper hopes to get back by playoff time....Boley Jeffers, former Argo and Hamilton football star has been fatally injured in an automobile accident....Cliff Simpson had two goals and six assists against Oshawa last night. That's scoring in any man's league.

A missing line from the scoring summary of last night's game at Oshawa robs Nichols and Blewett of assists on the goal scored by Bruce Bennett late in the third period. This explanation is merely to keep the record straight.

Windsor Spitfires Win First Game

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 28.—(CP)—Windsor Spitfires defeated Merritton here last night to collect a five-goal advantage in the first round O.H.A. Senior "B" playdowns series. The second game will be played at Merritton Tuesday night.

The game was one of the fastest and most wide-open played on local ice this year. Merritton out-skated the winners but loose play around their own net cost them the game.

Despite the 11 he missed, Goalie Aimie Clement for Merritton, played a bang-up game and only his agility kept the winners from garnering at least a 10-goal lead.

It looked like the locals were in for a tough night early in the game for after the first seven minutes, the score was 2-0 for the visitors.

The winners, however, started to click and before the end of the stanza, were ahead 3-2.

Windsor took a commanding lead in the second period, outscoring Merritton 5-2. Five goals were scored in about six minutes during this frame.

Merritton drew closer by scoring twice in the last period, but the winners soon got them both back and another beside to account for the five-counter margin.

Loree, flashy Windsor centre, was high scorer for the night with four goals and two assists. His left winger, Crossman had one goal and four assists and Johnson had three counters and an assist.

Bob Melville, Merritton, left winger, had two goals and three assists and Saunders had three goals and an assist to top the Merritton scorers.

Unknown Upsets Zivic In Ten

CHICAGO, Feb. 28 (AP)—Tony Motisi of Chicago, 23-year-old newcomer, scored a spectacular ten-round victory over Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburg, former world's welterweight champion, last night.

A crowd of 4,580 paid $9,165 to witness the upset in the Coliseum. The verdict of the two judges and referee was unanimous.

Motisi started on the road to victory in the fourth round when he cracked Zivic with a right and left to the jaw that made him wobble.

From there on Motisi kept on top by driving ahead fearlessly to score effective body punches.

The Chicagoan shifted his attack to the head in the ninth and tenth rounds, bouncing rights off Zivic's chin.

Zivic was always trying for a knockout punch, but his timing appeared to be off. He missed frequently.

Motisi has engaged in less than thirty bouts, but has won his last four in upsets.

Zivic weighed 148½ pounds, with Motisi scaling 146½.

Theatre Highlights In N. Y.

By LEON EDEL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(CP). — In this lean drama year in which the American theatre is attempting to convert audiences of heavy heart and with little mind for playgoing, the hardy perennials of the British theatre have stood in good stead. Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan, as fresh and joyous as ever—even without the inimitable D'Oyley Carte Company and the late and brilliant savoyard Sir Henry Lytton —stand out cheerfully on a saddened Broadway.

They arrived in town a few weeks ago, brought here by the enterprising Boston comic opera company under the auspices of Messrs. Shubert. First they came in a "bargain package." Half the evening was devoted to the jobs of the Joos ballet and the other half to the operetta.

These strange bed-fellows attracted goodly audiences. Now the ballet has departed and Gilbert and Sullivan carry on, with colors flying, charm undimmed, with wit and patter as pointed as ever and the music tripping as nimbly as the text. The reception, both critical and public, has been cordial.

They have respected text and tradition with one slight exception. When they did "The Mikado" they altered the well-known line "we are gentlemen of Japan" to 'we are gangsters from Japan."

Their repertory has included "Pinafore," "Pirates of Penzance," "Mikado," anl they are in the midst of the most tuneful of them all, "Iolanthe." Their stay on Broadway has gladdened all hearts at a time when they were badly needed. The defects of their production, and there are some, have been more than compensated for by their timeliness.

A New England Play.

Herbert B. Ehrmann, a serious-minded Bostonian, brought to Manhattan this week a play of New England life before, during and after the American Civil War. "Under This Roof" preached an important thesis for wartime—that it is not enough to fight for freedom, that once the battle is won steps must be taken to maintain it. This simple idea, developed against the background of the abolitionist movement, and the subsequent civil war, pointed constantly to the lesson to be derived from the past. Yet despite its good intentions "Under This Roof" is not going to be here very long because it is not sufficiently dramatic and because its action, sprawled across three decades, lags.

In the lead Barbara O'Neil, back from Hollywood, reveals herself as an understanding actress and she gives the play what little life it has. There are several other good performances, and the mounting is tasteful. But a history lesson in the theatre does not constitute drama, as the sincere, but unskilled author has already found out.

Quebec Shaping For Gala Brier Playdown

(By HAROLD ATKINS.)

QUEBEC, Feb. 28.—(CP). — Extensive arrangements have been completed for the Macdonald Brier playdowns for the Dominion championship which will be played here from March 2-5.

Expected to be one of the most colorful events of its kind staged here in some years, curling officials are looking forward to the pick of Canada's granite curlers who will vie for the outstanding crown. The competition will be played on the hockey arena here.

Although most of the entries competing for the honors are unknown around these parts, it being the first time a Dominion championship has ever been held east of Toronto, the curling faithful are predicting better things for the east this season.

Since 1927 when Murray MacNeill's Halifax rink of Nova Scotia won the first title played for by championship teams from each province, with Ontario represented by teams of the Northern Ontario Curling Association and Ontario Curling Association the east hasn't had much of a look in.

Manitoba has won the Canadian crown on nine occasions with Alberta having three to its credit and Ontario two.

N.B. Hopes on Connolly.

The man expected to end the east's championship famine is Daniel P. Connally of the Bathurst club, New Brunswick. With his twin brother, Joe, Dan Connally has competed in the event on three previous occasions, and his steady all-round game is compared with the best in the country.

As in former years, the west sends a formidable army of curlers. Heading the list is the seasoned veteran, J. Ken Watson, who won the crown in 1936 for the Strathcona club. From Alberta, where the crown went last year under Howard Palmer's rink, a newcomer in John Slavik of Viking will be bidding for a second straight crown for his province.

Rated with Ken Watson as one of the strongest rinks on paper, Gordon Campbell of Hamilton Thistles will again try for the award he won for Ontario in 1935. Northern Ontario's banners will be carried by Bill McMitchell, a steady performer, who is making his first appearance in the Brier meet.

Warkworth Boys Are Nosed Out 3-2

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 28 — (ENS)—In the second game of a double header performance here on Friday night Campbellford Midgets nosed out Warkworth by a 3 to 2 score which gave them leadership of their group and the privilege of advancing into the O.M.H.A. playoffs. It was a sudden death game which came as the result of an earlier contest being ruled out by O.M.H.A. officials following a protest by Warkworth over refereeing which they didn't like and a fluke goal 25 seconds before the final whistle gave the locals the coveted berth in the playoffs. The exhibition was easily the best of the season and attracted by far the largest number of spectators including a few local fans scattered among the crowd from Warkworth who had come over to cheer their lads to victory.

PETERBOROUGH SOLDIERS WHIP WHITBY TO TAKE GROUP TITLE

Petes Outskate, Outplay, Outlast Whitby Team In Fourth Game To Take Series Three Games To One

(By FRED CRAIG.)

Peterborough Soldiers outskated, outplayed and outlasted Whitby Palm Billiards at Oshawa on Friday night to defeat Coach Hap Hamel's team 9 goals to 3 in the game that meant the group championship. The Petes took the series 3 games to 1 and now meet Collingwood Shipbuilders in the second round of the Senior B competition.

Over 500 Peterborough fans, who travelled to Oshawa by car or by special C.N.R. train were on hand to give their favorites vocal support, and the Petes gave them plenty to cheer for by a convincing defeat of the full-strength Whitby team.

The Soldiers were always in front. They got the only goal in the first period, outscored their opponents 2 to 1 in the second session, and then turned on the heat to rattle six pucks past Peg Hurst in the final twenty minutes, against two scored by the Palm Billiards outfit. Going either way, the Petes had too much on the ball for the Whitby gang. They broke fast and had plenty of drive to their attack while steady, effective work by the Peterborough rear guards and consistent backchecking by the forwards had the Whitby offensive under control most of the time.

They Meet the Challenge.

There was only one moment when the outcome of the battle seemed to be in the slightest doubt, and the Petes met that challenge like a real bunch of champions. It came early in the third period when a Covert to Cooper play on a breakaway with the Petes staging a power play with a Whitby man short made the score 3 to 2, and for a brief interval it looked as if the Hamel outfit were back in the ball game. But only for a moment.

Forty-three seconds after Cooper had scored the Petes razzle-dazzle line had swept through the Whitby defence in a typical passing play for a Kingdon goal at close range. Out came the second line, and in little more than a minute Perce Nichols had driven two more counters past Hurst and the Petes were in front 6 to 2. After that outburst it was just a case of playing out the string. The Petes got three more goals before the end of the period and Whitby finally managed to cash in on one when they had the Soldiers two men short, thanks to penalties to Crowe and Tompkins.

Second Line Stars.

Last night it was the second line that carried the bulk of the scoring punch for the Petes. With Bruce Bennett shoved into the centre ice position by Coach Ellis, flanked by Perce Nichols and Joe Blewett, the second trio came through with four goals, three of them from the stick of Nichols, who turned in his best game of the year at right wing. All three of his markers were smartly executed. Bennett, given a chance in the pivot position, came though with a real effort. The former Belleville player was skating fast and passing smartly and he figured in four of the Peterborough ogals, while his consistent backchecking also helped.

The razzle-dazzle line contributed goals by Heal and Kingdon, but it was not their best exhibition of the year. They have been carrying a big share of the burden, but on this occasion the other line took up the slack and the defence also came through with unusual scoring punch Johnny Godfrey, Les Burton, and Don Crowe all rifling pucks past Hurst during the engagement. Back of the blue line all four defence players played smart, steady hockey and Harding gave a fine exhibition in the nets.

Gamble, who led the Whitby attack in the game here last Monday night, scored two of their goals last night, and that made him a standout with Cooper and Covert also having their moments, although they tailed off badly before the finish. Barnes was the best of the defence men, but this time failed to get in on a scoring play.

Two Players Cut.

The game, well handled by Referee Johnny Jones of Guelph saw some strenous checking at times, and two of the Petes had to be sewed up after the game. Crowe was slashed over the head by Bagnall near the end of the first period, and came back with a bandage round his dome to finish the game and then go to a doctor's office to have three stitches put in a deep scalp wound. Les Burton got a crack over the right eye near the close of the game and he, too, required medical treatment and a couple of clips to close the wound. The only casualty on the Whitby side was Doc Dafoe, who was dropped in mid-ice by a jolting bodycheck from none other than Art Heal, the Petes' lightest player, and the Whitby right-winger didn't figure much in the doings after that.

Petes Score First

The Petes got the only goal of the first period and had an edge on the play but failed to cash in on a number of scoring chances. Referee Johnny Jones lost no time in handing out penalties, Tompkins drawing the first for slashing and soon after Gamble got one for tripping. Neither team could get organized with the man advantage and both Hurst and Harding arose to the occasion when the attackers did get close enough for a shot. Crowe was chased for charging and nothing happened while he was off and the Petes had no better luck when Gamble was sent off for his second trip to the penalty box. The sides were even when the Petes finally broke into the scoring column. From a face-off deep in Whitby territory Kingdon passed back to Art Heal whose quick shot from the side beat Hurst for the first counter of the game. The Petes came close to adding to their score in the next few minutes but could not beat Hurst. The period was almost over when Bagnall got a five-minute penalty for slashing Crowe over the head inflicting a deep cut.

Bagnall had still four and a half minutes to serve when the second period opened and the Petes took full advantage of it. They pressed from the first face-off and hemmed Whitby in behind their blue line and the pressure soon got results. After 75 seconds of play Johnny Godfrey put the Soldiers 2 to 0 in front when he took a pass from Bennett and drove a shot into the corner of the net. A little over a minute later the Petes made it 3 to 0 when Les Burton on a pass from Godfrey tore in and rifled a high shot from the penalty shot line that had Hurst handcuffed. That quick start took a lot of pep out of the Whitby crowd and they were outplayed for the next ten minutes although they managed to keep the Petes from adding to their margin. Finally at the 15:30 mark with Johnny Godfrey serving a penalty Whitby managed to get on the score sheet. The marker came when Gamble picked up a loose puck during a power play and beat Harding with a quick shot.

Penalty Backfires

Early in the final session Barnes got a penalty and the Petes poured in to add to their score. This time however the play backfired for Covert broke out of a Peterborough ganging attack and fired a forward pass to Cooper who took the rubber at top speed and coasted in for a smart goal. That made it 3 to 2 but before Whitby had time to feel that they were back in the ball game the Petes struck back with three quick goals. At the 4:03 mark Bun Kingdon scored at close range after a passing play with Heal and Tompkins. Thirty seconds later Perce Nichols made it 5 to 2 when he took a pass from Bennett in front of the Whitby net and his shot high into the rigging had Hurst beat all the way. Forty-four seconds after Nichols came back with another pretty goal on a pass from Joe Blewett, Bennett also getting an assist on the play. It was all Peterborough at this stage and when Barnes drew a penalty for dumping Blewett, Don Crowe made it 7 to 2 when he scored on a rink-length rush going around Vipond to go in on top of Hurst before he fired. The goalie had no chance.

Petes Pile Up Score

A minute later Bennett scored from close in on a pass from Blewett after Nichols had carried the rubber in and Hurst had made a neat save. Soon after the Petes came within an ace of another counter when Bennett got a clean breakaway and outskated the Whitby pack to the goal mouth only to be foiled by Hurst. Whitby got their last goal at the 16:41 mark when the Petes were short two men owing to penalties in quick succession to Don Crowe and Honey Tompkins. A neat passing play inside the Petes' blue line by Cooper, Covert and Gamble gave the latter a chance to score at close range.

When the sides were even again Nichols got that one back on a lone rush from his own blue line. He pulled the Whitby defence over and then cut lose with a back-hander that Hurst failed to handle and the score was 9 to 3. Nothing much more happened in the short time left to play.

At least two of the others have suggested Gardner should out his own salary to $21 a month before he starts talking . . . Boston Clouter Williams Gets Army Pass

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 28—(AP).—Ted Williams, clouting Boston Red Sox outfielder, has been deferred from military duty by a Presidential Appeal Board order because of dependency of his mother, State Selective Service Headquarters announced Friday.

Williams, single, originally was classified in 3A because of support of his mother, but recently was reclassified into 1A and passed a preliminary medical examination prior to formal army induction. The new order reclassified Williams to 3A.

The American League batting champion did not ask for deferment.

SARASOTA, Feb. 28 — (AP). — The selective service deferment granted Ted Williams, the American League batting champion, last night created considerable excitement in the Boston Red Sox training camp.

"It came as a bombshell to me," said Manager Joe Cronin. "Naturally I'll welcome Ted with open arms when he arrives here, for he will settle our left-field problem and Jim Tabor will be able to remain on third base."

"But there still is another side to the case," Cronin continued, "and I want it known that the only reason I am enthusiastic about Ted's deferment is that I am certain his is a most worthy case. I am sure Ted wouldn't hesitate an instant about jumping into the army when and if he is called. If Uncle Sam says fight, he'll fight. Since he has said play ball, Ted has a right to play."

The manager added that General Manager Eddie Collins, who announced in Boston that Williams had signed his 1942 contract, reported that the player was so "dazed" by his draft reclassification from 1-A to 3-A that he would be unable to leave Minneapolis for Sarasota until Monday.

Alsab Is Listed At Poor 5 to 1

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The fanfare that once greeted him was muffled today as Alsab, the great 1941 juvenile who lost his first two starts this year, sought to regain his Kentucky Derby prestige against a fast field in the $25,000 Flamingo Stake.

Many selectors passed up Alsab in favor of Mrs. Ralph McIlvain's Bright Willie, Ben F. Whitaker's Requested or Mrs. Charles Freeman Shelden's More Than A Few.

Because he failed so completely in two races here this year, the hope and pride of the Al Sabath barn found himself a 5-to-1 bet on the morning line, where Bright Willie was 5-to-2 and Requested and More Than A Few 3-to-1.

A secondary feature, the $2,500 Eastern Air Lines purse, drew such favorite for the $50,000 Widener next week as Charles S. Howard's Mioland and Porter's Cap, W. L. Brann's Challedon and Pictor, Samuel D. Riddle's War Relic, Mrs. Parker Corning's Attention and Louis Tufano's Market Wise.

Some Highlights From Ball Camps

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — With the signing of Coaker Triplett, all St. Louis Cardinals outfield candidates now are in the fold. Infielders Frank Crespi, Eddie Lake and Elwood English are the holdouts.

HAVANA—Peewee Reese, Brooklyn Dodgers' hustling shortstop, gets the first chance today to try out his theory that added weight will increase his batting prowess. Reese upped his poundage to 165 during the winter and will be at short against New York Giants.

EL CANTRO, Calif. — Frankie Frisch, pilot of Pittsburg Pirates, caused some surprise by ordering a five-inning practice game the third day in camp. Al Lopez guided and batted his squad to an 8-1 verdict yesterday over Babe Phelps' crew.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Jimmy Bloodworth, the youngster who was with Washington last season but is slated to be Charley Gehringer's successor, made his first appearance at Detroit Tiger camp late yesterday. His principal challenger for the post is Dutch Meyer.

MIAMI, Fla.—The infielders and outfielders of Mel Ott's first New York Giant nine go into today's battle with Brooklyn Dodgers at Havana without a single inning of competitive practice. Ott is depending on physical condition to make up for the lack or rehearsals.

TAMPA, Fla.—All the Cincinnati Red infielders and outfielders are signed and will participate in today's workout. Centrefielder Harry Craft has been troubled with an eye malady and must take treatments for at least a week.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—Four Cleveland Indians, including Manager Lou Boudreau, start a special workout to improve their hitting today. Boudreau's companions in private hitting practices will be Gene Desautels and utility infielders Oscar Grimes and Russ Peters.

Canadiens Face Last Chance For The Playoffs

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—(CP)—The great struggle for sixth place in the National Hockey League moves into an important phase during the week-end, with Brooklyn Americans and Montreal Canadiens meeting twice.

Canadiens are one point behind the battling Brooks and the last playoff spot in the N.H.L. post-season series hangs in doubt as the two clubs turn into the last three weeks of the schedule. Americans will travel to Montreal for tonight's game and will be at home to the Canucks in New York tomorrow night.

Little change in the standings is likely to result from the other games on the league's week-end schedule. Chicago and Toronto meet twice, in Toronto tonight and Chicago tomorrow night, and it will be Chicago's last big chance to move out of fourth place. Toronto cannot catch the first place New York Rangers, even by winning two. Chicago could move over Boston into third by beating Toronto twice, but recent in-an-out performances of the Chicagos lean against such an eventuality.

Rangers are idle during the week-end, with Detroit meeting Boston in Boston Sunday night in a contest which lacks the significance of the other weekend series. Detroit seems firmly entrenched in fifth place and Boston could lose most of its games for the rest of the season and still wind up third or fourth.

John Ford, now a Lieutenant Commander in the United States Navy, was awarded a gold statuette for his directional work on the film, adapted from Richard Llewellyn's best-selling book. Ford also won best directing Oscars in 1935 and 1940 for "The Informer" and "Grapes of Wrath."

COBOURG, Feb. 28 — (ENS). — The death occurred yesterday at Cobourg of Frank Meehan. In his late seventies, Mr. Meehan was a well-known citizen of the town. He has no relatives surviving, as far as can be learned. A sister, Mrs. R. Nicholson, died last year. The late Mr. Meehan was born and raised in Cobourg. He was always known as a hard-working, conscientious workman, and up until a short time ago when ill-health prevented it, he was always available as a handyman. By religion he was a devout Catholic.

His funeral took place this morning with interment in St. Michael's Roman Catholic Cemetery, following a funeral mass at the church.

Cobourg Students Present Merchant Of Venice

Hailed as one of the best performances ever staged by Cobourg Collegiate Institute pupils, the presentation of "The Merchant of Venice" under the direction of Lettice Bingham, was warmly praised by the audience. It was staged in the Cobourg Collegiate auditorium. ABOVE are shown Constance O'Connor as "Portia," with John Wilson as "Bassanio," and in the other picture are Bassanio and "Antonio" played by Jack Parkinson.

Closer Relationship Is Sought With Rural Red Cross

COBOURG, Feb. 28.—(ENS). — Very satisfactory progress during the past month was reported at the monthly meeting of the Cobourg branch of the Red Cross. A budget of $500 for the month of March was approved at the meeting last night. It was felt that this amount was needed if the present output of the room were to be maintained. It was also pointed out that should a further national emergency arise, this amount would of necessity have to be increased.

Report of the workroom committee, presented by Mrs. A. R. Richards, showed that 353 knitted articles and 199 sewn articles had been shipped during the period of January 29 to February 26th. This was smaller than usual due to the fact that headquarters in Toronto had asked that no shipments be made during the first two weeks in February. The total expenditure for the month in the workroom was $38—.7.

List of articles shipped included 67 quilts, 13 leather coats, five dresses, two pairs of breeches, two sweater coats, 70 pairs of pyjamas, 35 pairs of sleepers, two layettes, one afghan, 7 sleeveless sweaters, 40 turtle neck sweaters, 60 pairs of mitts, 50 scarves, 15 aero caps, 90 pairs of socks, 40 pairs of seaman's stocking, 20 turtle neck tuckins, five pairs of gloves and five ribbed helmets.

Mrs. Richards declared that during the period covered, many ladies had joined the workers in the rooms. The activities of the W.A. of Trinity United church, the King's Daughters and several social groups had augmented the work already done by local ladies, and the splendid efforts of the Red Cross workers in Hamilton township. The devotion of the workers both at home and in the work room assured the branch, she said, of an ever-increasing output. The average number of workers in the rooms during the period under review was 14. The workroom committee expressed its pleasure at being able to co-operate with Mr. J. E. Skidmore in the preparation of window displays several weeks ago. The display windows were highly commended by the president, Mr. A. S. McLean, who felt that they had done much to arouse interest in the work of the society.

Gratitude was expressed to Mr. R. Pratt for the use of a sewing machine; Mr. M. Mangles for the donation of a clothes rack for the workroom; Trinity United church for a third table and to Edwards & Edwards for the leather with which the society is kept so generously supplied. Mr. J. E. Skidmore was appointed as a delegate to the Red Cross annual meeting in Toronto March 12 and 13, replacing Mr. W. J. Maize who will be unable to attend. Mrs. William Jamieson was added to the workroom committee. Mr. Lester Caughey informed the meeting that he had contacted Reeve R. Burrison of Hamilton township in an effort to have a representative attend the monthly meeting of the Cobourg branch. It was felt that there might be a closer relationship between the workers in the rural district and those in Cobourg and this might be brought about by a representative from the township attending the meetings here.

Peterboro County Schools

Colonel R. E. Birdsall Was One of Volunteer Guards, Required By Insurance Company, to Prevent Incendiarism at S.S. No. 12, Asphodel.

Prior to the year 1869, the children of the southwest area of Asphodel had to walk to Westwood to attend school. After a great deal of red tap have been overcome, permission was given to organize a school section in this part of the township. In 1875 the section was extended to include the west halves of Lots 4, 5 and 1 in the 3rd Concession of Asphodel.

The first meeting was held at the residence of R. E. Birdsall, deceased, and the following trustees were elected: John Borland, F. Birdsall and Patrick O'Neill.

In 1869 the school was erected on land contributed by R. E. Birdsall. The building was of wood, plastered inside and out. The blackboards were of painted wood. The first teacher was Marjorie Coughlin of fine Irish stock, but her salary was not princely, $13 a month. Her successor, Miss Johanna Coughlin, always won great praise for her teaching ability from the inspector, the late J. Coyle Brown.

It was agreed that half a cord of wood was to be provided on behalf of each scholar; otherwise 75 cents was charged. In 1921 this clause was cancelled, and since then wood has been bought by tender.

Caretaker's Contract

The minutes of the trustees' meeting of December 28, 1898, contain an interesting requirement which is worthy of note: "Mr. William Lynch is to light the fires, find the lightwood, sweep the school clear every afternoon after school, scrub the floor twice, dust all decks and table, put in the glass and put up the stove pipes for the sum of $11."

The old school was burned some time in 1891, and school was carried on in a log building owned by R. E. Birdsall, which was situated a little to the south, on the opposite side of the road from Mr. Graham's house. This building was also burned in a short time, both fires being of incendiary origin. The brickwork of the present school was laid by Thomas Hill, and the carpenter was Allan Copperthwaite. The woodshed was built at the same time on the site of the old school house. When the trustees applied for insurance, the insurance company would not issue a policy, unless a guard was placed over the school at night. Colonel Birdsall was one of several men who mounted guard on the building.

In 1915 a new stove was bought; in 1917 a maple floor was laid; in 1926 by free labor, ratepayers drained the yard and filled it in with sand. In 1928 a fence was built on the north and west sides of the yard.

Two Originals Left

Of the scholars who attended the opening of the school only two survive, Colonel R. E. Birdsall and William Lynch of Hastings. Many of the teachers as well as the pupils have gone to the Great Beyond, and their graves are scattered over both hemispheres.

When the great appeal came in 1914 to help save the world from the Prussian hordes, our school, like the rest, sent their qcota. A list of those who served in the war includes Lt.-Col. F. E. Birdsall, John Cleary, Victor Cummisky, Douglas Copperthwaite, Robert Hinthorn, Frank Huycke, Stewart Lasher, Phillip Lynch, Arthur Richmond, James Warner, Helen Fowlds, a teacher who enlisted as a nurse.

Those who did not return were Truman Douglas, Stewart Lasher and James Warner.

On May 22, 1939, the occasion of the Royal Visit, 11 of our pupils journeyed by train to Toronto, to see Their Majesties, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. In Exbition Park we eagerly watched the passing of our beloved sovereigns—an even unprecedented in the history of our Dominion.

Our present school board is composed of Gilbert Elmhurst, George Lancaster and William Post. Our secretary-treasurer, J. J. Breckenridge has held his position ever since his appointment in 1917.

List of Teachers

The following is a list of all the teachers who have taught in Birdsall School from 1869:

Marjorie Soughlin, 1869; Johanna Coughlin, 1874; Priscilla Powell, 1875; Ella Foley, 1876; Kate O'Leary, 1876; Ella Foley, 1878; James Foley, 1879; Miss Tudhope, 1881; Miss Ryan, 1884; Miss Martyn, 1885; Miss Reliss, 1886; Miss McCleary, 1887; Miss Stewart, 1888; Miss Kenneally, 1890; Margaret Tudhope, 1893; Miss Kelly, 1896; Miss Elmhurst, 1897; Mrs. Lancaster, 1899; Miss Breathen, 1900; Miss White, 1901; Miss O'Keefe, 1904; Miss Lough, 1905; Miss Nesbitt, 1906; Miss Helen Foulds, 1907; Miss Weir, 1910; Miss Skinner, 1911; Miss Kelly, 1912; Miss Dalton, 1913; Edna Luke, 1915 (Jan.); Miss W. Heavy Going For American Convoy

This official photograph, just released by the U.S. navy department, shows vessels of an Iceland-bound convoy making heavy weather during a North Atlantic gale. Though rolling seas like these make the going tough, they also cut submarine activity to a minimum. A particularly bad gale wrecked a U.S. destroyer and a supply boat on the rocky Newfoundland coast.

Too Little and Too Late As Applying to Christians

Some of the sayings in connection with the war will remain for many years after the war is over. One of the most frequently used in public addresses which criticise the policy of the democracies is "too little and too late." It was used first in connection with the British expeditionary force which was sent to Norway, it has since been applied to British forces in Hong Kong, Singapore and several other places.

This short, telling phrase applies to many people in their relation to the Christian religion, especially in their response or the lack of it, to the call and challenge of Jesus Christ.

The following questions are raised by this apt phrase coined in the travail and tragedy of war. What does God demand from us?

Is a half hearted Christian life satisfying to either God or man?

In what ways do people put God off with too little?

Is it ever to late to come to Jesus for salvation?

Is it wise to postpone the great act of religious decision?

These questions will be answered in St. Andrew's church on next Sunday night.

Northumberland Victory Loan $200,000 Behind

COBOURG, Feb. 26 — (ENS). — Northumberland County is still lagging about $200,000 behind the figures for the first ten days of the Victory Loan campaign, according to figures issued for the period ending February 26 at the local Loan headquarters. The figures for the town and villages compare favorably with those for last year, but out in the rural sections the bad roads are still making it very difficult for the canvassers to get around. Total to February 26 is $522,850, or a cumulative percentage of 46.47, while the required percentage is 55.56. Following are the totals for the districts:

Cobourg $161,800, 52.20 per cent; Hamilton Township $62,400, 54.27; South Monaghan $4,850, 18.60; Haldimand Township $19,200, 32.08; Alnwick Township $10,800, 54.00; Percy Township $47,600 53.00; Cramahe Township $18,500, 37.10; Hastings $11,700, 46.80; Colborne $22,750 56.90; Brighton Township $15,700, 28.50; Brighton $43,750, 56.09; Murray Township $21,600, 36.09 Campbellford $49,300, 39.44; Seymour Township $33,000, 45.83.

U.S. Will Double Its Aluminum

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—(AP)—The War Production Board yesterday announced a program to increase United States aluminum production 640,000,000 pounds annually and nearly double present production goals for magnesium.

The aluminum expansion program estimated to cost $350,000,000, was found necessary to meet President Roosevelt's requirements of 60,000 fighting planes this year and 125,000 in 1943 William L. Batt, W.P.B. Materials Director, told a press conference.

The aluminum program alone, designed to reach a production rate of 2,100,000,000 pounds annually, represents an approximate doubling of the pre-war aluminum industry and equals the old increased production goal of 640,000,000 pounds set recently. Batt said the Government hoped that the peak production now contemplated could be reached early in 1943.

A major factor in the situation is the Government's plan to approximately double its imports of primary aluminum from Canada to a total of 450,000,000 pounds a year. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation Metals Reserve Company already has increased its Canadian commitments Batt said, to reach this figure.

The magnesium expansion plans contemplate addition of 325,000,000 pounds to the 400,000,000 pound program now under construction.

P.C.I. Outfit Whips Dominion Team

P.C.I. kept alive their hopes for a spot in the City Basketball League play-offs by ringing up a 36-25 victory over the second place Dominions over at the Collegiate gym last night. A scoring splurge in the latter part of the first half by the Garnet and Gray quintet, during which they scored ten points without reply from Dominions, almost tells the complete tale of the game. Through most of the rest of the battle the teams practically traded basket for basket. Half way through the first half the score stood all even at 10 all. Then P.C.I. ran in ten points while Dominions went scoreless from there to the half. At half time it was 20-10 and P.C.I. continued to press until they had run their lead to 28-12. Dominions came back strongly in the latter part of the game but never came closer to the winners than within ten points. The school team held an edge most of the way in passing and shot with better effect than the losers who passed up a lot of good chances with poor shooting. The deciding factor in the game was the contrast between the free throw records of the two teams. P.C.I. had the remarkable record of scoring all but two of their 12 free throws, while Dominions cashed in on only 1 of 11 tries. Gardner, Ferguson and Saunders played well for P.C.I. and Rogow, Johnston and Town were outstanding for the losers. The teams:

Dominions 25—Burns 6, Town 6, Johnston 2, Craig 5, Rogow 6, Grose, Gillespie.

After playing five nights of double headers the semi-finals of the Neill Trophy—main event—was reached last evening. It will take until Monday night to get that far in the Consolation.

It was rather unfortunate that the weather turned just a little mild yesterday, and caused the ice to become a little sticky—but we have no kick coming, we had one grand week of it.

Looking over the week's play what stands out the most is the way the top heavy favorites rinks were mowed down like ten pins, we cannot recall a bonspiel where the talent got such a rude shock as they did this week.

There were many close games and two or three were decided only with the playing of the last rock—but the one that caught the crowd's attention was the C. Williamson-C. Giroux game. This was very close and mighty well played. All square coming into the last end. Williamson took command of the play with the first stone and held it right to the end, but Mr. Giroux made it very uncomfortable many times. When the end was over there were exactly thirteen of the sixteen stones on or touching the rings.

Play will continue Monday evening at 6.45 o'clock. The draw for the main event is: Semi-finals:

Bees Issue Challenge

Farnsworth Bees, of the Centre Hastings Rural League, have challenged Glen Miller, 1940-41 winners of the Dr. Robertson Trophy, to a game for possession of the cup for the 1941-42 season.

Farnsworth are the 1940-41 winners of the Centre Hastings Rural League, and are in the finals against their opponents of last year, Roslin.

Four Plead Guilty Theft From Aged Man

COBOURG, Feb. 28 — (ENS). — Arrested on Thursday in Toronto for local authorities, Rose Lane, Lilly Mitchell, Steve Mitchell, and Edward Lane of Toronto appeared in Police Court yesterday in connection with the robbery two weeks ago of 84-year-old Samuel Brown at Newcastle. Two women entered Brown's home, police said, on the pretext of interviewing him about employing a housekeeper. After they left, Brown found that $25.00 had been removed from his wallet. In court yesterday, the two women were found guilty of theft and the two men with conspiring. Upon payment of the court costs and restitution, the four were allowed to go on suspended sentence.

BERLIN ADMITS IT

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Feb. 28—(AP)—The German high command reported today that British parachute troops overcame weak coastal defences on the northwest coast of France last night and said they withdrew by sea two hours later "under pressure of German counter measures."

This Week In Radio

RADIO is not permitting its war services to supersede entirely the cultural pursuits of peacetime. Some people might say we should turn over a new leaf, let music make way for more vital things—planes and guns and tanks. Yet wars are not won by these alone. They are also won by the much more elusive, yet highly important factor, morale. Great music is indestructible, and is a fortification against temporary defeats. As a matter of fact we could not do better than follow the example of the British as regards music in war time. In spite of air-raid alarms, falling bombs and fires, handicaps of the worst sort, music has kept on in London—it would not be stopped. We have on this continent now some of the most outstanding musicians of all times who are heard over the radio on many of the programs. And since culture is a thing of the past in Europe as it is today it is up to us to carry on. Let us not turn over any new leaf in our playing and enjoyment of music.

Lovely Madeline Carroll will be heard Sunday on the program "Behind the Mike," (WJZ 4.30 p.m.) when that program will preview "The Ontario Show", which starts this year on March 20. Miss Carroll who will be guest star on the premiere performance of the Ontario Show will appear with Col. Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle, good humored "inventor" who will be M.C. of the Canadian series.

"The Devil Take Her" is the one-act opera to be presented Sunday over CBL at 10.00 p.m. by the British Ballad Opera Series and is to be directed by its composer, Arthur Benjamin who is now living in Vancouver. This is the story of a Fifteenth century romance about an unfortunate young poet who marries a wife, beautiful but dumb, who lives to regret her recovered speech when she displays a fiendish temper every time she opens her mouth.

Even before the first robin chirps you can tell that spring will soon be coming when Betty Moore, well known interior decorator will return on Tuesday morning over CFRB at 10.15 with her helpful suggestions on home refurnishing.

Not one, but three Barrymores—John, Lionel and Diana will be heard on Rudy Vallee's show on Thursday at 10.00 p.m. Diana will join her father and her uncle in taking complete charge of the show while Rudy protests in vain.

Mozart's famous two-act opera "Don Giovanni" will be broadcast in its entirety from the "Met" Opera House on Saturday, March 7 at 2.00 p.m., CBL.

The Fred Allen Show moves to a new spot on March 9 and henceforth will be heard Sundays at 9.00 p.m. Shirley Temple will be heard on the Wednesday spot vacated by Allen over CFRB at 9.00 p.m. No one needs to be told how important it is to make the second Victory Loan triumph and radio is certainly giving its most effective support. The times of Victory Loan addresses and variety programs are all listed in the chart.

New Beauty - - - -

To the person who must wear glasses, there is the constant question—how will, I look? But new styles in glasses have taken care of that question neatly. Designed to flatter the face they make the wearing of glasses a pleasure rather than a disfigurement.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

START SERVICE LATER.

In order to give war-workers who are employed on Sundays a chance to attend church, the local Salvation Army has decided to try the experiment during the next month, starting tomorrow, of commencing the evening service at 7.30 o'clock instead of at the usual hour, 7 o'clock.

CONDITION IS CRITICAL.

Eric Howard, well-known merchant and manager of Howard's Men's Shop on George Street, is reported to be in a critical condition in the hospital. He suffered a fractured skull while skiing at Bethany on Wednesday afternoon, and has not regained consciousness so far. So far as can be learned, his head struck the stump of a tree while he was skiing down one of the fast slopes. He also received extensive lacerations of the scalp.

A BIG SUBSCRIPTION.

National headquarters of the second Victory Loan at Ottawa have announced that the T. Eaton Co. have subscribed for $3,500,000 of the new loan. This does not include private subscriptions from the employees submitted through the store, and indications are that Eaton's store staffs across Canada are investing in greater numbers than in any previous loan. This is true even of the stores in the smaller centres.

RED PATCH CLUB ENTERTAINED.

The Sergeants' Mess of the Prince of Wales Rangers entertained the Red Patch Club, representing members of the 1st Division C.E.F. of the Great War, at the K. of C. bowling alley Friday night. Following the games, the party retired to the sergeants' mess where a social evening was spent.

EARLY SPRING.

Ross Dobbin reported to-day that the bear at the Filtration Plant Zoo made his first appearance this morning and from past experiences an early spring can be expected.

TO WELCOME NEW MEMBERS

New members will be welcomed at Monday's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club. The address to them will be given by Rotarian Dr. H. R. H. Kenner.

VISITS TORONTO

W. J. Smith, Mark street and Jack Smith, Benson avenue, attended the Ontario Horticultural Society's convention at the King Edward Hotel this week for the express purpose of sitting in on special sessions of the Canadian Lily Society. Jack Smith was called on to preside during most of the deliberations, and considerable progress is reported in the development of this organization.

MAKING IMPROVEMENT.

John Ayotte, Armour Road, employee of the Canada Packers plant, who was injured in an accident several days ago, is reported to be making progress at the hospital. At first some fears were entertained because of the nature of the accident, but each day he seems to be winning the fight back to health, and he had a good night.

LAKESHORE MEN ENLIST.

Of the four men who enlisted with the active service here yesterday from four different centres, three of them joined the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps. They were R. Lane of Cobourg, Harold Prescott of Bowmanville and H. McCoy of Trenton. G. Nolan of Colborne was accepted for service with the Veterans' Guard of Canada.

Sends Cigarets For Local Boys

It is nice to know there are some people who have not forgotten the boys overseas. These words conveyed to Hum Hoy, proprietor of the Paris Cafe, the appreciation of one of the many Peterborough boys in England who regularly get their smokes from Hum 'no charge.'

Since last summer, this kindly Chinese has sent overseas in excess of 6,000 cigarettes to a dozen or more Peterborough men. "There are more than that," declared Hum, "I can't remember just how many."

At Christmas, 2,000 cigarets reached the men and Capt. Ross Hood, among others took time off to express in a letter his appreciation for Hum's gift. Jim Gillespie sent a card.

"They're all my friends," said Hum as he produced a copy of the letter that went with the Christmas cigarets. It read in part: "I hope you boys are keeping real well. I certainly miss you coming in (to the cafe). I hope you will soon clean up the Hun and the Jap when we will have a celebration on your return. Best of luck from myself and the boys at the cafe—Hum Hoy."

"I usually send a lot of cigarettes over every three months," said Hum. "The next will be going over in April and there will be 2,00—maybe 4,000."

Boot Of German Flying Officer Shot Down Over Midlands Sent Home by Peterboro Boy

Mr. and Mrs. A. Pooley, 575 George street received a war souvenir today from their son, Corp. Alf Pooley now overseas with the Canadian Legion War Services in England.

It was a German Flying Officers boot, brought back from England for Corp. Pooley by Capt. Ben W. Allen, director of Canadian Legion Entertainments.

The 19-year-old officer, Huhle by name according to markings in the boot issued June 6, 1939 was shot down and found dead in a German fighter over the Midlands. His boot bearing mud from a Belgian or French flying field was a 17-inch lambs' wool lined affair with double zippers, one inside and one outside the leg, covered outside with soft leather on the leg extension. The wool went clear to the toe inside and the shoe part of the boot appeared to be made of leather resembling French kip with a separate boot inside the outer one of softer leather. The sole was of rubber like our Panco brand with round rubber studs on the bottom, bearing what appeared to be a German coat of arms but stamped with the words "Original Wilop". The zippers were very sturdy and had two-inch leather taps on the ends to facilitate a quick pull — they bore markings D.P.R.—Rl Rl. Altogether it appeared a well-made warm boot with no signs of ersatz materials in it.

$9,600 Grant To Hospital Is Unanimous

After hesitating upon an incidental question of whether the installation of certain new equipment should be classified and regarded as permanent improvements, the finance committee of the council last night unanimously approved the grant of $9,600 to Nicholls Hospital this year.

Payment for permanent improvements required a vote of the people, Alderman Sands, chairman of the legal committee, emphasized with reference to the statute relating to the council's authority in this matter. On the other hand, E. B. Fowler said that the equipping of a new service room, required for greater facility and efficiency, was intended "for the purpose of maintaining the hospital."

Alderman Gordon objected that many patients were admitted from the surrounding district. "I was told that half the cases in the hospital this week were from out of town," he said, suggesting that if the hospital rates were increased the Board of Trustees would not have to apply to the council for financial assistance.

Mayor Hamilton moved, seconded by Alderman Dutton, that the appropriation to the hospital be $9,600. An amendment by Alderman Gordon, seconded by Alderman Swanston, proposed the sum of $7,500, eliminating an item which had been disputed as a permanent improvement.

The motion was supported by Mayor Hamilton and Aldermen Cotton (chairman), Glover, Sullivan and Dutton.

Aldermen Curtis and Mark voted with Aldermen Swanston and Gordon for the amendment.

Aldermen Bradburn and Sands declined to vote. "That settles it," said Alderman Gordon, referring to the 5-4 division, lacking a majority of the council. Alderman Glover proposed that the committee try to agree on a compromise sum of $8,500. Alderman Bradburn said he would support that sum. From that brief pause in decision before the committee turned to some other business, Aldermen Glover and Mark urged that the committee agree unanimously. That was another step back from the decision of a few minutes earlier.

"Unanimous for $9,600," Alderman Glover said. When Alderman Cotton called for the vote on that motion not one opposing hand was raised, and the chairman declared its adoption.

Dr. J. Malcolm McCulloch and C. F. Kitney accompanied Mr. Fowler in renewing the hospital board's request.

Problem Remains.

"In spite of our new addition we have not solved our problem of accommodation," said Mr. Fowler. "Sixteen of the eighteen wards are now occupied. If the children's section was open, it would be crowded too. Equipment wears out and must be replaced. For instance, last year we had to put in a new boiler at a cost of $5,000. That is directly related to maintenance. Food costs are up 11 per cent., salaries are up, and there is the wartime difficulty of getting certain goods. Our demands on the ratepayers are extremely moderate in comparison with other communities pay."

Dr. McCulloch said the hospital was getting full value for the money expended and was giving good service, "and keeping down the hospital-day cost. We compare very favorably with other hospitals of comparable size."

The Board was reluctant to increase the charges to patients, it was said, because that extra expense falls on citizens who cannot readily pay it. In many instances persons who could easily pay a higher rate had homes in which they could be treated with nursing attention. Mr. Fowler said there was a slight increase in the rates for the new wing.

"The hospital is for those who need it," said Mayor Hamilton, "for ourselves, our friends, for the people generally, and it is their benefit to have the facilities that are required for the best treatment."

"The doctors and their families should not be treated at half price. That is a degree of favoritism which cann t be justified," Alderman Gordon said.

"If the Board is not running things satisfactorily, why not ask for an enquiry?" Alderman Dutton suggested.

"The general administration is quite satisfactory. There would be no need of going that far," Alderman Gordon answered.

Alderman Bradburn said that three members of the Board were not "resident ratepayers," as required by statute.

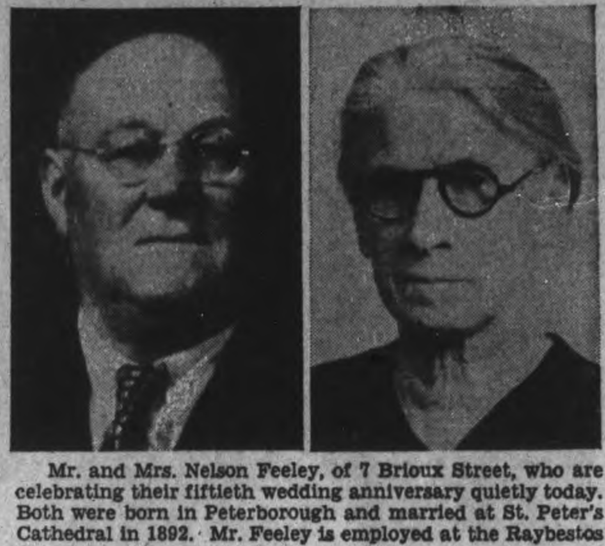
Fifty Years Married



Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Feeley, of 7 Brioux Street, who are celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary quietly today. Both were born in Peterborough and married at St. Peter's Cathedral in 1892. Mr. Feeley is employed at the Raybestos Company.

Couple Married Fifty Years

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Feeley, of 7 Brioux are quietly celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary today. They were married at St. Peter's Cathedral by Rev. Father Dubay in 1892 and have lived in Peterborough all their lives.

There are three children, Mrs. O. Guerin, Hildos and Leon Feeley, all of Rochester, New York. Both the boys served overseas during the last war. There are ten grandchildren and one great grandchild. One of the grandsons is serving in the United States Army, and there are also two nephews overseas in the Canadian Army, Leo and Roy Feeley.

Because Mrs. Feeley is in poor health, the celebration will be very quiet. Mr. Feeley works at the Raybestos company and enjoys the best of health. He is 71 and Mrs. Feeley is 70.

They will be at home to their friends on Sunday afternoon and evening.

Inspector Given Salary Raise

A salary increase of $200 a year for Sanitary Inspector MacPherson was recommended by the finance committee Friday night. His new salary will be $1,800 a year, plus $300 for the use of his car in the course of his work.

"He'll be driving a horse and buggy before many months have passed," Alderman Gordon said, referring to the approaching tire shortage.

Some of the members said that it seemed the Sanitary Inspector was too frequently applying for increases in salary.

"The trouble was," Alderman Dutton said, "that we hired him at only $1,200, and that was too little."

"And then he got married," Alderman Gordon said.

'He was quite glad to come to us," Mayor Hamilton added. "He had nothing definite when he applied for the sanitary inspectorship."

Alderman Dutton pointed out that Mr. MacPherson was a graduate of the University of Toronto and was doing good work for the Board of Health, "and if we were engaging a new man in his place we would have to start him at $1,800 a year."

The committee followed Alderman Gordon's comment about the approaching eclipse of the motor car. His motion, seconded by Alderman Sullivan, instructs every city employee receiving car allowanes to make a daily report of their driving, "a log," beginning April 1.

The committee recommended a grant of $50 a month to Anson House, to be raised by a special levy on Protestant ratepayers.

Reduced income from investments together with increased costs had forced this appeal it was said, but change of securities was expected to produce a higher income by next year.

Miss Elizabeth Wright of the Queen Mary Hospital is to receive an increase of $124 a year, and the night nurse $60 a year more on her salary.

A grant of $300 was made to the Chamber of Commerce, the same amount as last year.

"Jim Dorris did a fine job in the billeting of visitors to the plowing match last Fall," Alderman Swanston said. "I know because I was chairman, and that is only one of the things I have notoiced."

St. Luke's Sunday School Aids Fund

Marking one of a number of contributions to come to the local and district British War Victims Fund, from St. Luke's Church to-day is acknowledged the second donation to be given the fund from the Sunday School, this time the amount being $6.00.

The Get-Together Club is listed with its 12th donation, an amount of $7.00, which brings their total up to $135.20 for approximately one year of operation. At the present time, they are sponsoring the sale of tickets at 10 cents each or three for 25 cents for a draw on a pair of hand-embroidered pillow-slips—made and donated by Mrs. J. J. Stewart of Alymer Street.

Two collections were made from penny boxes, that at Zeller's Store contributing $2.00, and a further $1.32 coming from the box at the Peterborough Pet Stock Store on Simcoe Street.

A. C. Woolrych of 819 George has offered a mantel clock and a wrist watch to the fund for the purpose of raising money, and the secretary of the fund would be glad to hear from any person or group who would like to sponsor the sale of tickets for a draw on these as a contribution to the cause.

Lord Mayor's Thanks.

His Worship Mayor James Hamilton has received a letter from the Lord Mayor of London, dated February 3, which acknowledges receipt of the 15th donation of £500 cabled at that time, which says in part: "I am very grateful to the citizens of Peterborough and district for this further expression of their sympathy for our air raid victims and shall be glad if you will convey to all contibutors my warmest thanks for all that they are doing for us in these difficult days. The sustained support given to my fund by the people of Canada evokes my deep admiration, and is encouraging not only to me in my work on the fund, but also to those who have suffered distress as a result of enemy air raids."

C.G.I.T. Group Meets

BETHANY, March 2—(ENS). — Thirteen members of St. Paul's Anglican C.G.I.T. girls met at the home of Betty Phillips and decided to stage a play in the near future. The girls made flowers from felt under supervision of Mrs. Mason. It was reported that Rev. Mr. Mason is slowly making recovery following a heart attack.

Newsboy Who Purchased $50 Victory Bond Has $5 Placed to Account By Unknown Lady

A heart-warming little sidelight on the Victory Loan campaign came out today when it was reported a woman had entered the Bank of Montreal and deposited $5 to the account of Bernard Monaghan, a newsboy who is purchasing a $50 bond on the instalment plan.

The boy is 12 years of age, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Monaghan, 255 King George street. He carries newspapers and the returns from the sale of the papers amount to about $2 each week. He had succeeded in saving $10 and with the permission of his parents he drew five as the first payment on a $50 Victory Bond. Now he must bank his earnings every week to meet the payments on the bond. This story was reported in the Examiner on February 24 and yesterday a woman deposite $5 to Bernard's account at the Bank of Montreal. She explained to the bank clerk that this boy was making such a splendid sacrifice to help his country, that she wished to help him along, and the $5 was to be applied to the purchase of the bond.

The donor of the $5 wishes to remain anonymous and perhaps Bernard Monaghan won't know that he is $5 richer until he reads this in the newspaper.

Santa Sadly Closes His Tin Toy Shops

Priorities in tin have laid a heavy hand on toyland, and Santa Claus is worrying about the kind of substitutes his ingenuity may devise for the little boys and girls next Christmas, W. J. Cunningham, manager of Woolworth's told the Examiner today.

"We had a rather sad letter from Santa Claus just a few days ago," Mr. Cunningham said. "He was just getting ready to go into production for delivery next Christmas Eve, after resting up most of the winter, when he got official word from Ottawa that he cannot get any tin for toys. And so he sent us word that he is shutting down his biggest department—no bright tops, no tanks, no trucks, no airplanes, a whole extensive line of toys for boys, they will all be missing when Santa harnesses Donder and Blitzen and his other reindeer next December.

The letter from Santa said he had some odds and ends of tinware toys on hand, most of it in stock in some storehouses in the big cities, but it won't make two bagfulls. Girls are going to miss those cheap sets of dishes that are made of tin, but they are going to fare better than the boys because the doll department is not affected.

Santa said he did not want the news to go abroad, because it was the first time he had ever failed the little ones, but he added that the news might as well be passed out now so as to soften the blow that would have to come unannounced next December. Santa said he had no heart to get his plant going this spring, because a lot of wee folks are going to be greatly disappointed, and they won't understand why he is failing them. He told us that he could not get used to the idea that he won't have tops for the boys, the first time in ages."

Incidentally, it is altogether likely that the small boy is going to be disarmed of pea-shooters on Hallowe'en and for weeks before that autumn date.

Lumber Firm's Employees Go Over Top

Peterborough Lumber Company employees have topped their Victory Loan objective by almost two hundred per cent and practically 91 per cent of the workers have subscribed for bonds, either for cash or through the payroll deduction plan.

Coupled with this fine effort is the fact that the Company itself has taken $10,000 worth of the bonds in the Special Names bracket.

Almost 75 per cent of the bonds purchased by the workers were cash sales, and the remainder took advantage of the payoll deduction plan. A few of the men felt they could not afford to invest in a bond, but to keep the wheels of wartime industry turning they increased their purchases of War Savings certificates through payroll deductions.

The announcement was made this morning by plant officials that the internal canvass was practically complete and the effort viewed in comparison with other industries in the city is one of the finest to date. Vincent McCabe, plant superintendent was chairman of the drive and he was assisted by Cyril Blackbourne and Bud Delaplante, acting as employee representatives on the committee.

Police Seek To Check Transient's Record

Picked up by Constables C. J. McGillen and Harold Mesley when the officers considered he was taking too great an interest in the movements of bank messengers in the business section on Friday afternoon, John Jasper, 31, of no fixed address, appeared before Magistrate E. A. Gee in Police Court this morning charged with vagrancy.

Jasper told the court that he had no home and admitted that he had been deported from the United States. He added that he had been discharged by the Army.

"Where are your discharge papers?" asked Chief Constable Newhall.

'I just had a rejection slip and I tore that up," replied Jasper.

At the request of the police the accused was remanded in custody until Friday of next week to give the authorities a chance to check up on his record.

Civic Salaries Discussed In Committee

Maximum salaries of city officials proposed by the finance committee Friday night were:

City Clerk Outram $3,500; City Treasurer Shaver $3,250; W. J. Henry, Assessor, $2,750.

Mayor Hamilton declared several times that the position of the city clerk was primary in the city service, an opinion which Alderman Gordon disputed for a while and then bowed to Mayor Hamilton estimate.

"A man has to be a qualified accountant to get any kind of position as a treasurer," Alderman Gordon said. "He has to prepare the money bylaws, prepare the budget, and he has got to be an expert accountant. I admit that the City Treasurer in Peterborough is in a somewhat different position than in nearly all the other cities in Ontario because we have a City Trust Commission looking after the debentures and so on. But, all that work should come through Mr. Shaver's hands."

Mayor Hamilton enquired whether any immediate provision was to be made for any of the city employees. He especially enquired in regard to the City Clerk.

"We could get along with a clerk-treasurer. It is done in other places," Alderman Bradburn said.

Fire Chief Gimblett was not included in the list. Alderman Sullivan said the Chief's salary would be considered later.

Some of the other maximums were: Tax Collector Couper $2,500; Engineer Parsons $3,500; Street Commissioner Burgess $2,400.

Relief Officer and Sanitary Inspector Metheral $2,200; Dr. Avison, M.O.H., $3,500; City Solicitor Huycke Huycke, $2,500; City Auditor Humpage, $2,250.

The employees were classified into categories, with present salaries as one limit and the maximums the other. The class A, group, appointed by bylaw, and getting the highest salaries are to receive an annual increase of $160; the second group of intermediate salaries get $100 a year increase until the maximum is reached, and the lowest group $80 a year.

The committee recommended to the council the schedule after several hours' discussion, and then decided that it is not to go into operation until some time which the council may designate; and further the schedule of increases may be suspended "at such times as the council deems fit" and this suspension may be applied to any or all employees.

In the discussion as to when the scale of increases should go into effect, some of the members stressed the fact that the council has been paying all civic employees whether full time or part time the cost of living bonus, approximately $160 a year, since last July. Their immediate opinion was that some of the junior girls should be the first to receive attention and increase, because their bonus is only 13 per cent of their salaries.

Open New Wing For Sergeants Training Center

A jolly party marked the opening of the new ante-room and mess room of the sergeant's mess at the Military Training Centre here last evening.

The sergeants' mess at the Centre has for the past three weeks been undergoing alterations, with the result they now enjoy quarters equal to any in Military District No. 3. The party last evening took the form of a social evening.

The guests, among whom were included a number of the officers of the centre and a number of residents of Peterborough, were received by C.S.M. R. Ross, president of the sergeants' mess. Assisting the president in the reception of the guests were the other members of the mess committee, namely C.Q.M.S. H. Gabbutt, M.C.; C.Q.-M.S. Farran, Sergts. C. A. Burns, A. Hudson and Jack Gray.

Games were played during the evening and dancing was enjoyed to music furnished by an orchestra from the Centre. At midnight an excellent buffet supper was served and the guests were thanked for their attendance by R.S.M. George McKenna.

The entertainment reached the usual high standard set by the sergeants since the Centre opened, and with their now commodious quarters, it is expected that events such as that last evening will be held monthly. The commanding officer, Lt.-Col. E. O. Keeler, M.C., V.D., was unable to attend due to important military duties requiring his attention in another city. He was represented at the gathering by Major C. L. Wallbridge, who is acting officer commanding in the absence of Lt.-Col. Keeler.

Car In Collision With C.N.R. Engine

Mrs. N. Godfrey, 290 Stewart Street, and a woman passenger in her car, had a narrow escape from injury at the Charlotte Street crossing of the C.N.R. on Friday night when the vehicle in which they were riding collided with the side of a C.N.R. engine.

Mrs. Godfrey told the police that the wigwag system was working, but that a bus crossed the intersection in front of her and she thought she could also pass in safety. However, the engine was at the crossing by that time, and a collision followed.

No one was hurt and the only damage to the automobile was a broken headlight and a bent fender.

The program opened with three choruses, sung by the pupils of all the schools, "Canada, Dear Land O' Mine," "Our Pledge to Canada," and "Our Canada, From Sea to Sea." Then the pupils of number two school, Smith, presented an amusing sketch entitled "War Effort." Minister's Night At St. James' Church

"Minister's Night," sponsored by St. James' W.M.S., was again a red-letter day for the Auxiliary members and their friends. This meeting was arranged by the pastor, Rev. F. W. Craik, with Mrs. H. F. Doig responsible for the music, and was opened with a hymn and the Lord's Prayer in unison, followed with prayer by Mr. Craik. All joined in repeating the Twenty-Third Psalm, after which an informal evening ensued, proving highly inspirational.

Miss Frances Wells, a local favorite, pleased with her piano solo, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desire," while Mrs. C. Wood gave two delightful vocal solos, "Grateful O Lord am I" and "Hold Thou My Hand," both accompanied by Mrs. Doig. Mrs. Doig also contributed to the evening's music in vocal solos, "Resignation" and "Abide With Me," accompanied by Miss Wells.

Rev. Dr. McLean of Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church, Rev. H. J. Mahoney of Knox United Church, and Rev. W. A. Filer of All Saints' Anglican Church were the speakers of the evening, when each gave in an informal way his experience as a minister of the Gospel. These very interesting personal experiences, interspersed with hymns, brought the pulpit into a closer relation with the pew than many sermons could effect, and the evening was much like a cosy home gathering. The hall was tastefully decorated in patriotics colors by Mesdames Harris, Hanlon and Clarke. Rev. Mr. Craik acted as chairman in his usual genial manner, while Miss M. Deyell was the treasurer.

The thanks of St. James' W.M.S. to the ministers and to all those assisting on the program were voiced by Mrs. W. K. Sloane.

Rev. Fred W. Craik Addresses All Saints' Ladies

The monthly meeting of the Women's Church Year was held in the chapel of All Saints' Church, with more than 100 members present. The president, Mrs. Adams, was in the chair and opened the meeting with a hymn and a prayer. Mrs. H. E. Connolly read the lesson. The president then welcomed the large and enthusiastic group of ladies.

The months then came forward with money received, and a most gratifying amount was realized. The National Anthem and the Doxology were sung.

Mrs. R. N. Jones gave a report on the work done for the Navy League, and Mrs. L. Dobbin thanked the ladies who had help sew for Nicholls Hospital.

Mrs. Kitney, accompanied by Mrs. Percy Hooper, sang a delightful solo. Rev. Mr. W. A. Filer introduced the speaker; Rev. Mr. F. W. Craik, who spoke on "Women Who Walked With Jesus," and stressed the need for everyone to hold on to their faith and as an example he mentioned Florence Nightingale.

Mrs. G. R. Penhall and Mrs. M. Metheral moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Craik and Mrs. Kitney. As the treasurer's report was not ready at this point, Mrs. Kitney sang a hymn, by request, after which the report was read. The rector closed the meeting with prayer and tea was served in the ladies' parlors by Mrs. H. E. Connolly and her assistants. The next business will be on March 26.

C.W.V.S. Plans To Form Branch In Peterborough

C.W.V.S. Plans Meeting in City March 9

"In this strange and terrible war there is a place for everyone, man and woman, old and young, hale and halt. Service in a thousand forms is opened," said Winston Churchill.

Are you giving your service? If you are, are you sure it is the service you are best qualified to give? Or have you felt, up to now, that you had no ability to offer; that you were not fitted to serve in this hour of crisis?

An organization has been formed in Canada to serve your need; to find for you the service for which you are fitted, and train you for the carrying out of that task. It is called the Canadian Women's Voluntary Services, and it is patterned on the Women's Voluntary Services of Britain. Mrs. Graham-Bryce, of Manchester, England, who is leader of the W.V.S. there, has come to Canada to help organize it. Its object is to find for every woman, young or old, her proper war-time work and to fit her to carry out that work. Fifty-five Provincial Women's Organizations are represented on the C.W.V.S. Advisory Council.

Every woman's voluntary services are valuable, whether she belongs to another organization or not. There will be no registration— the records of the voluntary women's registration in 1939 will be used.

The demand for volunteer workers is urgent. Every day brings fresh calls for new kinds of volunteer workers, drivers, clerks, canvassers, publicity workers, hospital volunteers, playground assistants, factory workers and innumerable civil defense workers.

Training will be given for full or part time work. Instruction courses will be held to equip women to serve as Air Raid Wardens, and refresher courses will be given in other subjects.

The Peterborough Branch of the C.W.V.S. will be organized on Monday evening, March 9. Mrs. Gordon Conant and Mrs. Graham-Bryce will address the meeting.

Kiwanis Queens Entertained At Ladies' Night

The annual ladies' night at which Kiwanians are guests of Kiwanis queens was held last night at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club with about fifty-five persons present. It was a personal party and there was no guest speaker but there was plenty of entertainment. Following the sumptuous dinner, humorous contests were held. One of these stood out in particular in which Kiwanians had to decorate a hat. This produced much laughing. Another contest for which booster prizes were furnished led to delving into the ages of those present and number of years married.

Although card playing had been planned, it was not a part of the program. Members and their wives spent the balance of the evening in dancing. A feature in this entertainment field was dancing of the Virginia Reel and Paul Jones as well as the regular round dancing.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, March 1.

Sunday's horoscope is a disconcerting one, with signs of sudden and devastating adventures, in which unforeseen factors are at work to undermine, baffle and confuse by their unpredictable quality. Strangers, queer circumstances and stubborn obstacles seem to incite to rash, impulsive and ungoverned conduct, which may make bad matters worse with reactions on the nerves and health as well as possession. With calm, control and restraint there may be some benefits.

Those whose birthday it is may runrun ino a year calling for much cleverness, sagacity, self-control, and poise. in order to cope with stubborn obstacles, or surprising visitations of a devastating and perplexing force. These seem to have strange factors and may best be met by similar tactics, but not with impetuosity or strife. Be calm.

A child born on this day will have a very impetuous, reckless, erractic disposition, with many reversals or upsets, although its younger years may bring surprising good fortune.

For Monday, March 2.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a fairly favorable state of affairs, especially in connection with public activities or in the interest of large corporations or secret, political or fraternal bodies. Use strategy and discretion and moderate recognition may accrue, despite peculiar underlying problems. Elders or old associations may be of assistance, but resort to finesse rather than force.

Those whose birthday it is may have a moderately interesting and progressive year, especially in matters of public, community or group welfare. But superiors and those in high places are not over-eager to co-operate and must be placated. Elders or old institutions may prove more friendly, but these also need tactful approach. Shun show and extravagance.

A child born on this day may be fairly successful despite certain unconventional ideas and conduct, which may be subtle and sly.

DOROTHY DIX

RECIPE FOR POPULARITY: BE EASY ON EYES, HARD TO GET

No Man Pursues the Woman Who Is Hot on His Trail—He Likes Conquest.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I have just been reading the letter of the fifteen-year-old girl who is having trouble with her dates, and it amused me terribly. Poor little kid! She doesn't know what it is all about. So let an experienced old woman of eighteen give her a few points.

Of course, the question of to pet or not to pet is the main problem of every girl. I won't say that I have never done any heavy pitching because that wouldn't be true and, besides, it would make me seem old-fashioned. But before I started dating I kept my eyes on the older girls to see what it took to be popular. I soon discovered that the girls who were supposed to be fast had more dates than the other girls, but before long I found out to my amazement that the wild women didn't stay popular long. They dated almost every boy in school two or three times, but after they had made the rounds they were left high and dry. They were too easy.

Then I discovered that the way to interest a man is to challenge his ego. Don't fall for him at sight. Keep him guessing. Make yourself hard to get. He may tell you that if you will only yield to him he will love you forever, but you can't believe everything a man tells you. If you refuse to give in, he will wonder what has happened to his charms that he was so sure of. Consequently he will come back again to try to find out. And if you keep refusing he will keep coming back to try to find out what the trouble is, and by the time you are ready to give him that kiss he has fought so hard to get you will have become a habit with him and you will have him where you want him, wrapped around your little finger. Furthermore, you can keep him there as long as you wish.

Another thing is that if a girl has to stay at home reading an improving book instead of stepping out with the gang at night, it isn't because she is a non-peter. It is because she is a hag with greasy hair and messy makeup, or because she dances like a truck that has to be dragged around a ballroom floor, or she talks like the Encyclopedia Britannica, or she is just plain dumb. Take these tips from one who knows.

Wisdow Indeed

ANSWER—Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings proceedeth wisdom! So I offer this counsel from an eighteen-year-old sophisticate, confident that it will be a lamp to the feet of many of her younger sisters who have just arrived at the place where Bobby Jones ceases to be just the boy next door and becomes a potential date and who doesn't know what to do about it.

To add a single word to the expert advice given by my correspondent, whose letter I publish, would be like guilding the lily and painting the rose. Nevertheless, I feel constrained to impress upon the mind of the little sub-deb the fact that the real secret of attracting men is for a woman to make herself desirable, yet hard to get. And this goes from the cradle to the grave.

No man wants to kiss the woman

With Peterborough Red Cross Branch

"Peterborough Red Cross has been most enterprising," says the latest News Bulletin of the Canadian Red Cross, "and last November, through the generous co-operation of Grafton and Co., an exhibit of Red Cross work was displayed for one week in this firm's show windows. This was excellent publicity, as many Peterborough citizens had no idea of the extent and quality of the work done by the Red Cross volunteers.

At the Branch annual meeting, the reports showed ever-increasing activity: more Home Nursing classes; courses in "Emergencies in War"; introduction of a blood transfusion service; 200 pounds of jam made and shipped (as well as 96 pounds of honey, the gift of the Bensfort Red Cross); 17,304 articles (including 10,000 knitted supplies) were made and shipped to Ontario Division during 1941. In answer to the Blanket Appeal, $600 and 268 blankets and quilts; and $1.000 sent to the Russian Relief."

Mrs. Dwight Davis, National Director of the Volunteer Services of the American Red Cross will address the annual meeting of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross, to be held on March 12 and 13 at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

In an article for the "Volunteer," a monthly publication of the volunteer special services department of the American Red Cross, Mrs. Davis summed up the duties and responsibilities of women in war time clearly and forcefully.

"The old adage that "Men must work and women must weep," no longer holds good," she says, "And in the hard months ahead if some American women weep, they will be working, too."

"There is plenty of work to be done. For many of us, the first job is to reappraise our own values. Each, for herself, must resolve the creed, the code of action which will best help her to serve her country. Once on that foundation the avenue through which she serves will be unimportant—the service will not."

Mrs. Davis bids the women of America give every minute and every dollar they can spare. "Everything we possess comes from our country . . . " she says.

"These are tangible services, but it is in "Things of the Spirit" that American women can make the contribution which is peculiarly and particularly ours.

Behind every man in the armed forces stands a woman. We too are a great army. Our courage is their strength. Our self-control, our common sense in crises, their peace of mind. Our confidence in them, our loyalty to them and to our leader, is the rock on which they build.

Above all things, we must keep faith."

Men's Sketch Club Presents Annual Exhibit of Work

There must be a lot of satisfaction in a hobby which brings such attractive results as are displayed in the exhibit of paintings by the Men's Sketch Club of Peterborough in Hall's store.

The pictures really make an excellent showing and this exhibit has now become one of the main artistic events of the Peterborough season.

Outstanding among the pictures, perhaps because they were in the minority, were the portraits; one of a beautiful red-haired woman, by Adrian Macdonald; and a collection of life studies by Joseph Tattersall, who is now serving overseas.

Most of the paintings depict local landscapes, some of them so familiar and close to home that they are recognizable at a glance. Such is J. E. R. Munro's study of the Canada Packers Plant, reflected in the river.

Charles Saunders and Jack Hamer have some beautiful water colors on show; notably a picture, "Birches--Lake Nipissing," by Mr. Saunders, and October in Douro, by Mr. Hamer, a fine interpretation of a patchwork autumn countryside.

There is an interesting study by Stanley Harris called "Cloudy Weather," in which the artist seems to have caught the uncertain light, the peculiar clarity of a cloudy spring day. D. G. H. Melton, in "Sand and Shadows," has caught unmistakably the golden gleam of sunshine on a sandy woodland road.

Carl S. Browne, in "Hill-top," has portrayed faithfully the stunted, stubborn trees and shrubs that adorn our rocky hills and the bright, yet delicate blue that tints our skies in spring and fall.

The pictures of Horace Steggles, most of them painted in the Antipodes, strike an interesting foreign note in the collection, contrasted with the familiar Ontario landscapes. One in particular, "On the Waikato River," is striking and attractive.

Arthur B. Burrows showed some exquisite pastels, but a single sketch of an old house and over-grown garden stood out. Mr. Burrows should show more of his pencil sketches if they are all as attractive as that.

Lay Singapore's Fall To Water Awful Bombing

BATAVIA, Feb. 28—(CP).—Maj.-Gen. Henry Gordon Bennett, commander of the Australian Imperial force in Malaya, who escaped from Singapore in a Chinese junk, yesterday attributed the fall of the stronghold to "lack of water, incessant bombing and greatly superior numbers."

In an interview with the Netherlands Indies War Department correspondent at Padang, Sumatra, Gen. Bennett said his forces did all they could to hold the town.

"The Australians fought in three most important positions in the defence lines and managed to hold their ground until the very last," Gen. Bennett said.

When Singapore surrendered, he added, "two hospitals had only enough water to last another 24 hours.

"Since February 4," he went on, "the bombings had been so violent that in one group of 400 Australians only 14 men were left after a three-day attack."

Before Singapore surrendered, Gen. Bennett gave his men new clothes and enough food for two days. Only after the surrender did he attempted to escape with a few of his men. When they reached the shore they found no boats available. One officer, risking his life, swam out to a drifting boat and brought it ashore.

With the help of a Chinese guide, the party put out to sea, but first headed in the wrong direction, nearly falling into the hands of the Japanese forces on an island along the coast.

Frightened by this experience, the Chinese guide wanted to return to Singapore. Thereupon Gen. Bennett himself took over command of the boat and headed for Sumatra.

After many hardships caused by the blazing heat and the shortage of water, the small sailboat was met off Sumatra by a Netherlands launch, which brought the party ashore, where they were welcomed by the district officer.

The Tokyo radio had already reported that Gen. Bennett had been taken prisoner or killed.

How Japanese Extend Sway Over Most Of Southwestern Pacific

Fighting fiercely, Dutch forces, reinforced by Americans and Australians on land and sea and in the air, have given the Japanese their stiffest opposition to date as the enemy attempts to invade the key island of Java in the Netherlands East Indies. However, the advancing tentacles of the Japanese drives through the southwestern Pacific have threatened supply lines from the United States to the Indies making extremely precarious the route north of Australia (3). Off Java and around the island of Bali (1), planes and warships of the United Nations have delivered smashing blows against the Jap invasion fleet. Meanwhile, British and Chinese armies still were fighting in Burma to protect the Burma Road (2).

TIME IS SHORT

CHAPTER XVI

"Say—when are you going to Europe? Not soon?"

"In September."

"Whyn't you tell me?"

"I didn't know it until today."

"Say—that's tough! I'll be darned if I know what I'm going to do without you." Drake thwacked Parris resoundingly to lessen the sentiment of the remark.

"I don't know what I'll do without you, either. My grandmother arranged it all with Dr. Tower. He told me. They just move me around like a chair or something. Just to suit themselves."

"Parris, you and me have been in pretty much the same kind of boat so much of the time. You remember I said that right here at this corner about three years ago. We still are, in lots of ways. My girl can't see me, and won't, and yours can't come out in the open either and go around with you like other girls and their fellows."

"Cassie's not exactly my girl, Drake. Dr. Tower is very peculiar—"

"I should say he is. I think he's kind of crazy—keeping Cassie shut up all the time away from everybody. But Dr. Gordon's not crazy. He just don't like me."

"Drake, you take on like everything was over. You can get things fixed up all right, but it's like Louise says, you got to have a little patience."

"I haven't got any patience. I don't give a damn whether they're fixed up or not." Drake spoke louder and louder. He was feeding his temper with itself and was beyond listening.

"Now, listen, Drake—"

"Oh, let me alone! You don't know how I feel. Don't talk to me, Parris, I—I just can't stand any more." He turned quickly and almost ran up Federal street.

For the first time Parris drew back a little from Drake to get a better perspective. He realized, as he never had, that Drake could be completely illogical and inconsistent, and then feel terribly hurt because he was misunderstood. He hated to admit it, but he knew that Drake not only didn't think things out, but that he wasn't really capable of thinking when his emotions were involved.

A new and deep fear for Drake arose like a physical ache in his heart. Drake was the best friend he had, probably the best he would ever have. But even as he thought about it he knew that his hopes for Drake had always been uncritical. He had refused to look squarely at a single fault in him. Drake carried the signal of terrible dangers to himself written clearly in his face. The ache inside of Parris hardened to actual pain. That overhandsome face of Drake's was not a thinking face.

The chances of terrible frustration lay deep in Drake's character—chances, even, of disaster.

Just a few days earlier, at the conclusion of one of their long and fruitless discussions, Drake had said: "Things are going to be different from now on." Yes. Things were going to be different. Everything was moving. Everything was getting under way.

He and Drake were no longer spectators. He groaned a little disconsolately under his breath. Already the days just passed seemed so happy, and spacious, and free. Restraint was falling across his way. It seemed to be coming from every direction. And compulsion.

Struggle. He had heard that word a thousand times. He saw it and recognized it. But he had never realized that he would have to take part in it.

Parris worked hard. He read day and night, and for the first time prepared digests for his reading for Dr. Tower.

There was a conspiracy of silence among Madame's older friends. Most of them knew of Parris' almost fanatical devotion to his grandmother. They looked at him a little pityingly, but said nothing. Even Drake seldom asked about Madame, but he knew. Sometimes he was uneasy and several times was near to telling Parris. He feared for Parris if Madame's death should come suddenly and unexpectedly.

Anna looked with wide, dry, wondering eyes at the seemingly unbreakable old woman, so slight and thin now she scarcely dented the heaped-up pillows. Madame insisted each day on having her hair done high on her head and fastened with a tall silver comb. For a few moments she smiled and spoke casually to Parris. Then she gave over to the interminable hours of incredible horror—one minute at a time until tomorrow.

During the next two week's, Dr. Gordon came every day. It was no longer possible to put Parris off with childish answers.

He was eating breakfast absently and gloomily. Anna came downstairs. He looked up quickly. "She is terribly ill, isn't she, now?"

"Very ill, yes. But the weather will be cooler soon—it is usually better the last two weeks of August, you know."

Parris went quietly upstairs and into his grandmother's room. She lay on her side, asleep. He could not see her face, but her shoulder showed sharp and thin under the sheet. He went out again and stood for a moment in Madame's little dressing room. The table was covered with medicines. A hypodermic case was lying open: the needle and piston evidently freshly dried had not been replaced. He picked up the tube of white tablets and read the label.

Just then Anna returned. He pointed at the hypodermic case. Anna blanched a little.

"How long has—has this been necessary, Anna?" His voice shook slightly.

"For several weeks, Parris."

He waited as if he could not say the next word. He picked up the shining hypodermic needle and laid it down again.

"Cancer?" he was surprised that he could say it.

Anna answered in the same tone of voice. "Yes, Parris."

"Why wasn't I told? Why have I been kept out of this—like a child?"

"Madame wished it, Parris. She wanted you to finish your work without worry. She insisted, Parris; she made me promise."

"Yes, yes. I guess so. So that's it! But why did she make plans for me to go to Europe in September? Didn't she—doesn't she know?"

"Yes, of course she knows. She—she thought she would live through September."

The last tinge of color left his face. Anna moved instinctively nearer.

"And—she won't. Is that what you mean?"

"It is impossible that she should live more than a few days. I had made up my mind after Dr. Gordon's visit yesterday to tell you."

"A—few—days? Only a—a few days?"

"Yes, Parris."

He turned and left the room without speaking. Anna heard the door of his room close softly. She shook her head. Then she took a long breath and released it jerkily.

"Parris!" Cassie's voice over the telephone sounded hurried and anxious. "Listen, Parris. I've got to see you."

"Oh, I can't now, Cassie—"

"Parris, I wouldn't call you if it wasn't important!"

"All right. Nine o'clock at the corner of Aberdeen campus." Of course she couldn't understand what was happening to him just now. He'd have to tell her.

But Cassie had come to tell him.

"I don't think they're treating you right, Parris, and I've got to tell you."

"Cassie, I don't know what you're talking about. Who? What?"

"You know—well—you love your grandmother terribly much, don't you?"

"She's all my world, Cassie."

"Everybody's been trying to keep you from knowing how sick she is."

Parris did not reply. Cassie's words struck through him. It had seemed this afternoon a sort of secret that only Anna knew. But everybody knew!

"They should have told you long ago."

Still he did not answer.

"Parris," she took hold of his arms and shook him slightly. "Parris, your grandmother is dying, and they don't tell you!"

"Who told you?" He asked the question roughly.

"Papa."

"Oh, I see."

"He talked to Dr. Gordon, I guess. You know you're the only person I ever saw Papa be interested in. Your grandmother is dying of cancer. I know how you feel about her—and Parris, darling, I was afraid of what the sudden shock might do to you. I guess it's been just as much of a shock the way I've told you. . . . "

"No, it's all right, Cassie. I knew it."

"Did you?"

"Just today. Anna told me. This afternoon."

"Oh."

They sat in silence for a long while, watching the fireflies, and then talked in gentle voices of other things.

"I'll have no one when you leave, Parris," Cassie whispered.

They walked soberly down the long avenue.

"You're not like anybody else, Parris. Do you know that?"

"I don't know. How, Cassie?"

"Of course, I don't know anybody. Ever since I can remember I've just lived in our house and yard. I don't ever think much about the time I went to school. I just know people in books, and from seeing them pass on the street. But—I just know you're altogether different. Even Papa says you are."

"Does he? I've wondered what he does think about me. I like him an awful lot, Cassie. He's taught me everything."

"I wouldn't want you to be different. When I think about you, you seem kind of mysterious, almost. Just kind of enigmatic. Papa talks about you sometimes — not often. He doesn't talk to me very often about anything except books."

"What does he really say about me, Cassie?"

"Well, he said one day that you were—now, let me see, I want to get it just right. He said you were a very rare personality."

"Oh, gee! That sounds so sort of grand and important, doesn't it?"

"And he said something else, too. He said: 'a dark nature.'"

"What do you suppose he meant by that?"

"I don't know. He said you were going to be a great doctor someday."

Parris stopped and held her by the arms. "Listen, Cassie: I want to be a good doctor—a great one if I can. When I come back—maybe, somehow the time'll pass quickly—when I come back will you marry me?"

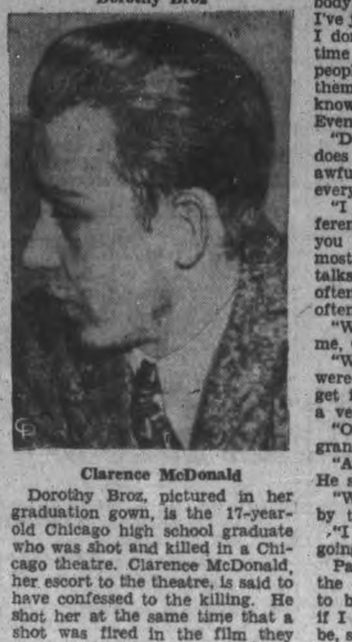
Dorothy Broz



Clarence McDonald

Dorothy Broz, pictured in her graduation gown, is the 17-year-old Chicago high school graduate who was shot and killed in a Chicago theatre. Clarence McDonald, her escort to the theatre, is said to have confessed to the killing. He shot her at the same time that a shot was fired in the film they were viewing and many patrons did not know the murder had taken place.

Wide Selective Service Plan Soon Ready

(By JACK WILLIAMS.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 28—(CP)—Cabinet consideration of a broad form of selective service to divert a larger part of Canada's manpower to direct war production is in the final stages and the Government's program forecast in the Throne Speech will be made public "in the very near future," an informed source said today.

It is understood large increases in the number of women employed in industry and on farms will be among the results of the program now under consideration

Selective service has been a leading topic of Cabinet discussions in recent weeks and was specifically forecast in the Throne Speech which said: "The Government's policy of national selective service will be extended, as generally and rapidly as may be necessary, to effect the orderly and efficient employment of the men and women of Canada for the varied purposes of war."

Special study of the manpower situation has been made by a Cabinet committee comprised of War Services Minister Thorson, Revenue Minister Gibson and Justice Minister St. Laurent.

Means More Women

In the past some industries have shown hesitation at employing women in jobs formerly held by men. Officials today intimated that forthcoming regulations, which they described as "drastic," will leave many employers with no alternative but to use women.

Cabinet ministers and members of parliament have received hundreds of letters urging that farmers' sons be exempted from military service to protect farm production.

Under recent legislation farm representation has been provided on advisory boards which deal with application for postponement from compulsory military training, but steps now are to be taken, it is understood, to provide assistance to farmers which will help relieve labor difficulties which result from calling up young farmers.

Proposals are also being made that secondary schools should be closed at times when help is most needed on the farms. This was tried in some sections last year and a large number of high school girls were used to assist in picking fruit on Ontario farms.

The plan is to be repeated this year.

A lucky door prize was won by Mrs. Harry Mann. The proceeds amounted to over $6.00.

Y.P.S. Meets.

The United Church Y.P.S. Wednesday evening meeting this week was shelved in favor of a skating party which was held at Havelock Rink. A large crowd of members attended the very enjoyable skating party, and on their return from Havelock a substantial lunch was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brown, and a social time spent by all.

Property Changes.

A number of changes of property and residence have taken place in the neighborhood recently. Ward Glenn has purchased Cecil Jenkins' farm, while Mr. Jenkins is moving to the Martin McArthur farm which he has secured. J. L. Hay has bought the Albert McGowan farm, and Ed. Hubble is moving from the Joseph Johnson farm to the Harold Woods farm, and Mr. Cook, who has been on the Woods farm for some time is moving to Percy Boom.

Mrs. Watson of Havelock is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. M. Wight, and Mr. Wight.

Mrs. K. L. Drummond (nee Grace Blackledge) of Toronto and Miss L. Davidson of Campbellford, were Wednesday visitors at the village.

F. C. Bonnycastle of Campbellford was in the village canvassing for the Victory Loan this week.

IN MEMORIAM

WILLSHAW.—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, George Thomas Willshaw, who passed away February 29, 1940.

Time speeds on, two years have passed
Since death its gloom, it shadow cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light, and ever will
His vacant place there is none can fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain
For up in heaven we will meet again.
—Lovingly remembered by his Wife and Family.

WILLSHAW.—In loving memory of a dear father, George Thomas Willshaw, who passed away February 29, 1940.

Gone, dear father; gone forever.
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed—
How sweet the memory still—
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Ever remembered by his daughter Emelie and son-in-law Harold.

SMITH.—In loving memory of my father, George Smith, who died February 23, 1933, and mother, Ethel Smith, who died February 28, 1935.

One by one they go before us,
They are fading like the dew,
But we know they're watching o'er us,
They the good, the fair, the true.
They are waiting for us only
Where no pain can ever mar,
Dear ones who left us lonely
Watch us through the gates ajar;
There a father, there a mother
Gone within those gates ajar.
—Ever remembered by Family.

who proffers her lips. No man pursues the woman who is hot on his trail. When a woman throws herself at a man's head, he always dodges.

The girl who makes the most of her looks and is easy on the eyes; the girl who is entertaining and amusing; the girl who flatters a boy by listening to him talk about himself and who makes him feel that he is a prince of entertainers when he takes her out, has no need to bait her hook with kisses. She plays a subtler game and one that nowadays attracts by its novelty. She rouses a boy's sportive spirit by being elusive. She is the peach that is highest on the tree that he hankers to possess.

Mother-in-Law Domination

DEAR MISS DIX—For the past 10 years I have been keeping steady company with a man whom I love very much, but because of financial difficulties we have not been able to marry. I have always held a good position, while he has drifted from job to job, but at last he has secured a worthwhile situation. So the problem now is not money, but his mother. She is a very domineering type of woman, very jealous of any affection he bestows upon me, becomes upset when he takes me out and not her, and when he becomes angry with me she gloats over the fact. She is forever complaining of being ill when, in reality, she is a perfectly healthy person. I am willing to continue working and I mean never to interfere between her and her son, but I refuse positively to let her live with us if we should marry. Financially we could take care of her, and we could visit her often. Do you think that I am being unkind and unfair in refusing to live with her?

ANSWER—No. I think you are only being sensible and that if you will stick to your determination you will save all three of you a great deal of unhappiness.

Your prospective mother-in-law has shown you what you can expect of her. She is one of the possessive mothers who would hate any woman who took her son away from her and who would use any tactics to separate him from his wife. She is also a domineering woman who would insist on running your house, rearing your children, and generally bossing you until she made life a burden to you.

Your fiance shows unmistakably where he stands. He is still tied to Mother's apron strings and he will never cut them. If you marry him, you will always play second fiddle to Mama, and that is a hard role for any wife. I can see small prospect of happiness in such a marriage. None, if you weaken and let Mother come to live with you.

Simple Exercises Ease Aching Feet

Feet Affect the Figure, Too

"Let me sit down!" gasps the woman with aching feet.

Even her oldest shoes haven't relieved the strain on her tortured foot muscles. Severe pain, a haggard expression and poor posture are the result.

Simple exercises for the feet would do wonders for her—enable her to step gaily along like her smartly shod companion.

Usually the metatarsal region in the ball of the foot is the first to give trouble. Undue pressure on this part strains the muscles that hold the bones in place.

To strengthen your metatarsal region so it can "take it"—do this simple exercise.

Lay a towel on the floor and, keeping feet pointed straight ahead, place toes on edge nearest you. Keep heels on floor and, using gripping movements of the toes, pull towel back under the insteps. Repeat five to seven times.

With right exercises you can correct other body faults, too—have a trim, young figure. Our 32-page booklet gives illustrated exercises to slim the waist, hips, legs, to improve bust, shoulders and arms, to relieve foot and nerve troubles, constipation. Has exercises to improve posture, a daily routine for whole body.

For your copy of "Best Exercises for Health and Beauty" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

BEWARE OF BIG HANDS

IT IS VERY pleasant to pick up a nice bunch of aces and kings. But the more you play bridge, the more wary you will be when you find yourself holding a great powerhouse. So many of those hands go awry because you have to lead away from them, and can't take any tricks in the opposite hand, that fine players hesitate to go the limit with them unless they find from the bidding that their partners have either a few high cards or distributional values through fair length in some fitting suit.

North: ♠ 7 5 4 2 ♥ 8 5 3 ♦ 6 3 ♣ Q 9 8 3

West: ♠ A Q 9 8 ♥ Q 9 6 ♦ A 7 ♣ J 6 4 2

East: ♠ 10 ♥ J 10 7 4 2 ♦ Q 8 5 2 ♣ 10 7 5

South: ♠ K J 6 3 ♥ A K ♦ K J 10 9 4 ♣ A K

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

	West	North	East	South
1.	1 ♠	Pass	Pass	3 NT
2.	1 ♠	Pass	Pass	Dbl
	Pass	2 ♣	Pass	3 NT
3.	1 ♠	Pass	Pass	Dbl
	Pass	2 ♣	Pass	2 NT

There were still other bids on that deal, in a duplicate, though the three tables reported were typical of most. Where West opened with 1-Club and South doubled, North bid 1-Spade and South 4-Spades. Loss of three spades and a diamond beat that contract. In fact, the only declarer who made his contract was the 2-No Trump man at Table 3. Just about the same play came at all three of the tables reported.

West led his spade 8 to the 10 and J. South laid down the club K and A to set up the Q in dummy, which he never was able to use. Next, to get out of West's hand the diamond A which he needed for his first bid, South led the diamond K. West took it and had sense enough to avoid repeating spades. He led the heart 6 to the A. South sent the diamond J to the Q and took the returned heart J with the K.

Then he ran three diamonds, making a total of eight tricks, but when he had to finish with a spade to the eleventh trick, discovered that West had held the spade A-Q and the heart Q, which took the last three tricks, making a total of five for the defense.

Tomorrow's Problem

Aside from the value of aiding your partner to read your holding accurately, what advantange is there in an honor lead such as the jack from a combination headed by ace-jack-ten, over a fourth-best lead from the same combination?

Only one survivor, Frank Leonard Terry, 23, of Lansford, Pa., reached shore from the Atlantic Refining Company's 10,227-ton W. D. Anderson, which was smashed by a torpedo and burst into flames off Florida. Others in the crew of 36 are believed lost.

Survivors of the big British merchantman, its identity undisclosed, told how the "biggest sub we ever saw" sank their ship Feb. 6 about 900 miles from New York. Two men were killed by the blast, 15 reached here and 54 are missing.

Capt. Wilfred G. Evans, 45, said he lost 21 pounds living through six days and five nights of "freezing hell" and "greedy seagulls" in an open lifeboat.

Electrical Department Revenue Of Utilities Is Up $50,000

Elsewhere in this edition is published the Annual Financial Statement of the Electrical Department of the Utilities Commission for the year ending December 31, 1941.

It will be noted there was a surplus of revenue over expenses of $29,234.67, which is a little less than in 1940.

Total revenues have increased $50,000 over 1940, but to counterbalance this the cost of power purchased has increased $44,000, and some other items of expense are up.

To cover the cost of certain expenditures on the plant, such as water heaters, range services, distribution facilities and other items, it was found necessary to issue $50,000 of ten year serial debentures, the first since 1927.

At present the value of the electrical system amounts to $946,659.27. Against this is a debenture debt of $527,926 which is offset by a sinking fund reserve of $402,424.93. Taking into account other liquid assets and contingent liabilities, the net debt against the system is only 12 per cent of its value.

At the end of 1943, debentures to the extent of $280,000 will be paid off, and the system should then be out of debt.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mary Taylor, and two sons, Amos and James of Curve Lake, also three daughters, Mrs. H. Irons and Mrs. W. Irons of Curve Lake and Mrs. M. Howard of Bridgenorth. Interment was in Curve Lake Cemetery.

Wasting Its Fragments On The Desert Air

This 4,000-pound bomb, similar to the type that caused such havoc in London and Coventry, is shown lying quietly and wastefully on what was once a German airfield in Libya. It is inspected by a British soldier after the bomb was found by the British occupying forces.

Planes Collide 10,000 Feet Up Both Land Safe

With the Royal Air Force, Somewhere in England, Feb. 28—(CP).— Pluck is spelled with a capital "P" in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The casual and simple admission that "I was nervous" was the only reaction of Sgt. Pilot Rae Macklem of Fort Frances, Ont., to a freak mid-air collision that might have cost him his life and that of his flight-commander, Flt. Lt. Fred Kelly of Toronto.

Hurri-bombers piloted by the airmen collided 10,000 feet up during a practice flight over the airdrome. The propeller of Kelly's machine knocked off the hood over Macklem's cockpit, nicked the collar of his Mae West and chewed pieces from the wing, fuselage and tail-plane of the aircraft. Kelly lost his propeller.

The Hurri-bombers were doing more than 300 an hour when Macklem came up under Kelly, and the first thing Macklem noticed was Kelly's propeller hitting his perspex, the transparent cockpit hood.

"The perspex disappeared," Macklem related. "I was nervous and ducked when the 'prop' hit. I thought I was for it, but we separated."

Spins 8,000 Feet

Macklem fell 8,000 feet before he was able to regain control of his machine and pull out of the spin. He thought of bailing out but decided not to.

Flt. Lt. Norm Bretz of Toronto, a flight commander with Kelly, said Macklem was so cool he even took a precautionary run over the airdrome before making an almost perfect landing with a machine hardly fit to fly. He touched the ground at 120 miles an hour because it was only at a high speed that his aircraft flew decently.

Kelly, in his propellerless machine, glided downward and landed with his wheels up at 80 miles an hour in a field near an army camp, he nosed over but stepped from the Hurri-bomber without a scratch.

Fire Destroyed Smithy's Shop

DOWNEYVILLE, Feb. 28 (ENS). —Fire of undetermined origin swept the garage and blacksmith shop of Timothy Dorgan, a quarter of a mile north of Downeyville on Friday afternoon, and the blaze disrupted telephone communication with the entire northern section of Emily township.

Both buildings are a total loss, and besides losing all of his stock and tools, Mr. Dorgan was unable to save a car owned by John Collins. The car was in the garage under repairs and both rear wheels were off it when the blaze started. Another car parked outside, and owned by Cecil Lynch was pulled to safety.

The fire burned fiercely, converting the buildings into an inferno within half an hour, and the volunteers had no chance to check the flames. Fortunately there was little wind at the time and other buildings were not endangered. There was no insurance, according to the owner.

The buildings have been used as a blacksmith shop for more than 70 years, as the first shop in the district operated by a Mr. Clarke was located on this spot. As the automobile came into more common us, Mr. Dorgan converted a portion of a dwelling house next to the blacksmith shop into a garage and office, and it was in this office that the fire is believed to have started.

Hurling Death At Retreating Nazis

A Soviet minethrower (mortar) is shown set-up amidst some snow-drifts as it goes into action against the retreating Nazis somewhere along the lengthy battlefront. Latest communiques from the Red capital claim the destruction of an entire German army corps in the Leningrad area in which 12,000 enemy troops have been slain.

Another Poland Bound To Rise

WINNIPEG, Feb. 28 (CP)—There will be another Poland after the United Nations have won victory in this war, Dorothy Thompson, famed United States columnist, predicted in an address here last night.

Poland will rise again, she said, because of the spirit and determination of its fighters in their futile defence of Warsaw early in the war.

Speaking to 5,000 at a Manitoba Victory Loan rally at the Winnipeg Auditorium, Miss Thompson said the war against the Nazis is one against peoples whose minds cannot think of anything but war and whose ideals are on a par with people of the Middle Ages.

The war against Japan in the Pacific is a "race war on Japan's part" and became possible only because Hitlerism managed to drive a wedge right through western civilization, said the journalist.

Miss Thompson praised Russia for sacrificing its own consumer prosperity and beginning to arm following aggressive moves by Germany in the Rhineland in 1936 and Japan's invasion of China. "We today thank the fact that there is still a huge army opposing Germany on contiguous land."

"In our own weakness, our selfishness, our mean and cowardly hope of escaping the fate that others as good as ourselves had suffered lies certainly one of the causes of this war."

Now, however, Miss Thompson continued, "having found one cause of our martyrdom in our lack of brotherhood and co-operation, the beginning of victory lies in a supreme act of nonversion."

"We move toward victory when we pronounce the word, 'United Nations,' and had we pronounced them in 1936 this war would never have been moving upon us like a torrential wave."

Cars Radios Guns Taboo For Japs

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (CP).—Persons of Japanese race living in the protected area of British Columbia are forbidden possession or use of "any motor vehicle, camera, radio transmitter, radio receiving set, firearm, ammunition or explosive" under an amendment to the Defence of Canada Regulations made known today.

These restrictions are contained in the same order, made known yesterday, whereby a curfew is being imposed on people of Japanese race under which they must be at their usual place of residence each day before sunset and remain there until sunrise.

"No such person (of Japanese race) shall go out of his usual place of residence aforesaid upon the streets or otherwise during the hours between sunset and sunrise," the order-in-council said.

The same order contains the provision, previously made known, for removal of all Japanese, men, women and children numbering some 24,000 from the protected areas of British Columbia which comprise the coastal zone and the coast islands.

Movement of persons of Japanese race from the coastal areas already is underway and is to be accelerated. They are being moved into the interior.

Long since, following Japan's entry into the war, the Canadian authorities took over the Japanese fishing fleet at the Pacific coast but the order which was made public today was the first official word that Japanese may not retain motor vehicles.

Motor vehicles, cameras, radio transmitters, radio receiving sets, firearms, ammunition or explosives must forthwith be turned in.

Test Goes Over

SALEM, Mass., Feb. 28—(AP).— As efficiently as an individual city, 12 North Shore communities covering an area of 185 square miles participated last night in New England's most widespread blackout test. The only unscheduled lights reported were from a raiload train passing through the area and from a shed fire here. Lights showed also from some defence plants, which were exempted from the test, and from a Beverly airport beacon, which guided airplane observers.

Omemee Pupils Present Concert In Aid Of Loan

OMEMEE, Feb. 28.—(ENS)—The pupils of Omemee public and high schools combined to present a patriotic concert in the interests of the Victory Loan campaign on Wednesday night. The pupils are to be congratulated on putting on such a fine concert under the capable leadership of the public and high school staff and the musical instructor, Mr. Harle of Peterborough.

Rev. R. M. Patterson acted as chairman for the evening and in his opening remarks expressed the regrets of teachers and pupils that Mr. Harle was unable to be present owing to illness. Miss L. Race acted as pianist in Mr. Harle's absence.

The program opened with a rousing chorus by the whole school, 'You Can Fight For Canada.' This was followed by a one-act play, 'Blue Boots' by the pupils of the junior room of the public school, the part of the little girl who was feeling so blue being taken by June Parker. Helen Campbell acted as narrator. Other characters in the play were Lulu Carew, Doris McIntosh, Evelyn McQuade and David Eggleton. A group of children entered and sang a song entitled 'Look For the Silver Lining.'

The pupils of the senior room presented a play entitled 'The Builders of Canada.' Sleeping Beauty, played by Henrietta Parker, awakens to find the provinces of Canada grouped around her and she learns of the beauty of Canada and its resources. The two main guards were Bob Brown and Bob Burrett. The provinces were played as follows: Prince Edward Island, Josephine Mitchell; Nova Scotia, Rolene Endicott; New Brunswick Florence Carew; Quebec, Helen Brown; Ontario, Katherine Evans; Manitoba, Clare Fox; Saskatchewan, Arnold Crowder; Alberta, Jean Rowan; British Columbia, Marie Mitchell. During the play solos were sung by Rolene Endicott, Helen Brown and Jean Rowan.

Following the play, Ivan Moore of Lindsay addressed the gathering, urging the people to buy Victory Bonds so that the people of Canada might be free.

During the pageant, 'Cavalcade of Canada,' put on by the pupils of the high school, solos and duets were rendered. Those assisting in this part of the pageant were: Solo by Dorothy Brocks; duets by Elzena and Gwen McConnell, Elva Boate and Elvina Magee. Several fine choruses were featured, 'O Canada,' 'Au Claire de Lune,' 'White Cliffs of Dover,' 'Blue Bells of Scotland,' 'Men of Harlech,' 'We Gather Together,' 'In Poland There's An Inn,' 'Hunter's Horn' and 'Home on the Range.' Piano solos were also rendered by Miss Race. 'Dark Eyes,' a Russian folk song, and 'Spring Song,' by Felix Mendelssohn.

The closing number on the program was a chorus by the whole school, 'You Can Fight For Canada,' followed by the National Anthem.

For the past week or so, the pupils of the school have been selling tickets on a red fox skin, purchased from Mr. Harold Laidley of Omemee. A draw was made during the evening's entertainment and Mrs. Harold Graham of Omemee, was the lucky winner. Proceeds of draw for red fox skin were $53.10, which will be donated to the Red Cross and Soldiers' Aid Soociety. A silver collection was received at the door amounting to about $24, which will be given to the British War Victims Fund.

U.S. Accords De Gaulle Recognition

Aiding In Defence Of Vital Pacific Islands

LONDON, March 2 —(CP)—The United States has given partial recognition to Free French rule in the Pacific and is co-operating in the defence of French islands there, Gen. Charles De Gaulle's headquarters announced today. These islands are vital stepping stones along the route to New Zealand and Australia.

The Free French released a statement attributed to the United States consul general at Noumea, New Caledonia, which declared the United States government would deal with Free French authorities in "effective control" of French islands and "with no other French authority."

De Gaulle's French national committee in London was named officially for the first time as the recognized authority governing the French Pacific possessions, although the United States maintains diplomatic relations with Marshal Petain's administration in Vichy.

"In its relations with local French authorities in French territories," it added, "the United States has been and will continue to be governed by the manifest effectiveness with which those authorities endeavor to protect their territories from domination and control by the common enemy."

The statement was originally issued by the United States consul general at Noumea, New Caledonia, Free French headquarters said.

The policy of the United States government, the statement as released here said, "as regards France and French territory is based upon the maintenance of the integrity of France and the French empire and of eventual restoration of complete independence of all French territories.

Man, 4 Women, 4 Firemen Blaze Victims

MONTREAL, March 2 — (CP). — The death toll in the destruction by fire last night of a brick shop and residential block in Ville Emard district soared to eight today as firemen carried from the charred ruins the bodies of a man and four women who had been reported missing. Three firemen suffered fatal burns and injuries.

The dead.—Raoul Brouillette, furniture store proprietor. Mrs. Isaie Gauthier, 75-year-old invalid. Ida and Alice Gauthier, Mrs. Gauthier's daughters. Yvette Jacob of St. Maurice, Que., the Brouillette's housemaid. Lieut. Elzear Montpelier, 47, Montreal Fire Department. Fireman Emery Lebeau, 43. Fireman Armand Brisebois, 36.

The first five were tenants in four apartments situated above Brouillette's furniture store. Their charred bodies were taken from the gutted block early today by firemen.

The other three were firemen who died en route to hospital from burns and injuries suffered in fighting the flames, believed to have started with a furnace explosion in the basement of the block.

Fire Station 100 Yards Off

The dead firemen, from a station only 100 yards from the scene of the fire, entered the basement of the building just as a second explosion occurred. They died a few minutes later.

Invaders Raid Indian Ocean Hit Christmas Island Sealane Base, Radio Station

Burma Road War Traffic To Chinese Army Replaced By Horde Of Refugees 1,000 Villages Blasted Along The Route

LONDON, March 2—(CP).—British patrols ranging along the Sittang River fought today to break up feeler thrusts by Japanese forces massed in gathering strength for a drive across the river toward virtually-deserted Rangoon, the broad Irrawaddy, and the approaches to India.

The Japanese radio reported that, for the second time, the invaders had struck beyond the battle lines with aerial attacks in the Indian Ocean

The broadcast said Japanese naval bombers raided a radio station and "base facilities for the Allied fleet" at Britain's 60-square-mile Christmas island, on key sea lanes 220 miles south of Western Java. In the first such attack the Andaman Islands between Lower Burma and the tip of India were bombed last week.

Dispatches from Burma indicated British and Indian forces still held the west bank of the Sittang, and said two parties of Japanese had been ambushed by patrols on the east bank north of the important rail centre of Pegu, 30 miles from Rangoon.

That once great Oriental seaport, bustling only a few days ago with the unloading of supplies for China via the Burma Road, has been abandoned now by virtually all except weary Empire troops and looters.

Refugees Clutter Road

On the 434-mile road north from Rangoon past Pegu and on to Mandalay the flow of trucks for China has been replaced by the stream of bewildered peasant refugees and bandit-beset Indian laborers plodding toward their homeland and hopes of safety.

In the hard-bombed towns along the roadside nearly 1,000 villagers are reported to have been killed in the past few days of repeated air raids.

There still has been no word of Japanese attempts to land from the sea on the delta below Rangoon, or westward where the many-mouthed Irrawaddy enters the Bay of Bengal.

The strong tide of the lower Sittang makes it a death trap for poor swimmers. Many of the British rear guard reached the river after the rail and road bridge had been destroyed. Some swam. Others stood their ground on the east bank and fought it out with the Japanese until they were overwhelmed.

Aussies Stand Behind Bennett

(By VERN HAUGLAND.)

MELBOURNE, Mar. 2 — (AP).— The Australian Government expressed to-day its full confidence in Maj-Gen. Gordon Bennett, who remained with the Australian Army in Malaya until after the surrender of Singapore and then wrote a thrilling new chapter in his military career by a daring escape from the Japanese.

Gen. Bennett, at 55 the senior major-general in the Australian Army and commander of the Australians during the disastrous Malayan campaign, made a full report on that fight to the War Cabinet.

After hearing his account, during which the veteran officer referred to a small blue notebook filled with pencilled notes on the campaign, Prime Minister John Curtin told the country that "we have expressed our confidence" in the general, "whose leadership and conduct were in complete conformity with his duty to his men and his country.

"He remained with his men until the end completed the formalities

Jap Wins Forcing Allied Blow To Smash Hitler

(By DEWITT MACKENZIE.)

Each passing day gives fresh support to the Russian call for an Allied offensive in the spring against Hitler's military Frankenstein—perhaps even including a grand invasion of Western Europe across the English Channel.

Paradoxically enough, it's the steadily-mounting Japanese success which makes it imperative that the Nazi chief be stopped quickly. He, and not the Mikado, is the atlas who is lugging the Axis about on his back, and the only way the Axis can be smashed is through Hitler. He mustn't be allowed time to profit by the Jap conquests

The hard-hitting Muscovites hold that the Germans can be knocked out in the new blood-bath which will begin with the good weather. Whether that appraisal is well-founded, this much seems sure:

If the backbone of the Nazi military might can't be broken this coming spring and summer, then the Allies will have a long and terrible conflict on their hands. But if they can definitely cripple the Hitlerian striking power, then their dangerous path will open into a broad highway whose end can be seen.

The importance of the immediate future was stressed at the week-end b. President Roosevelt in his letter to Donald Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board. Emphasizing the urgency of speeding up production, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The months just ahead are the critical months of the war. Victory depends in large measure on the increased war production we are able to get from our factories and arsenals in the spring and summer of 1942."

Indian Ocean Next.

The way things are going, according to to-day's reports, it's likely that Japanese successes soon will enable them to invade the Indian ocean with considerable naval forces and co-operate with Hitler in a pin-

Batavia Begins Firing Vital Resources; 85,000 Japs Landed

BANDUNG, Java (By Tele- p.m. (12 noon EDT), March 2 —An Allied counter stroke delivered against Japanese invasion forces wedging into Java was declared officially tonight to have "developed satisfactorily" but all details of the hard-fighting defence were kept secret.

New Negro Housing Setup Starts White Riot

DETROIT, March 2 —(AP)—All dwellings in the $1,000,000 Sojourney Truth Defence Housing Project over whose occupancy white persons and negroes rioted Saturday stood empty today with city authorities awaiting advice from Washington.

Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, who said it would take "at least 3,000 policemen" to place negro families in the new homes, planned to go to Washington to consult with defence housing officials after the orders to halt the projected tenancy.

Police guarded the area, where stones flew and steel bars and clubs were brandished at the height of the disturbance.

In contrast to the original wild scene when at least 17 persons suffered injuries requiring hospitalization, the district was relatively quiet Sunday. Four persons, however, were arrested because of scattered fighting. Both automobile and pedestrian traffic were directed away from the vicinity.

The project was planned originally by the Federal Government for negro occupancy. Later this decision was changed, for white occupancy, and still later the housing authorities turned it back to negroes.

Can Ruling to Change Housewife Buying

OTTAWA, March 2 —(CP)—The Wartime Prices and Trade Board today announced issuance of two orders with far-reaching effect on the processing of this year's fruit and vegetable pack, and on the buying habits of the average Canadian housewife.

One provides that after June 30 tinplate containers may not be used for a wide range of food products and restrict the size of tins which may be used for many others. Temporarily at least, some canned goods will go off the market.

The other order sets prices at which canners may sell tinned tomatoes, peas, corn, green beans and wax beans.

It also provides that the commodity prices stabilization corporation which functions in collaboration with the prices board will buy surplus production from canners who pay growers higher prices this year than last. The range of increases varies from $1 a ton for tomatoes to $7.50 a ton for peas.

The tinplate order, issued by Metals Controller G. C. Bateman in his capacity as administrator of non-ferrous metals, restricts to a specified list the sizes of tinplate containers which may be used for packing fruit, vegetables or juice therefrom.

It provides that after June 30 next tinplate containers shall not be used for packing pork and beans, baked beans, spaghetti, macaroni, vermicelli and ready-to-serve soup.

During the six-month period ending June 30, canners of these products are permitted to use up to 50 per cent of the tin they used for the same purpose in the corresponding period fo 1941, and any canner wholly engaged last year in packing ready-to-serve soup may obtain permission to use up to 50 per cent of the tin used in 1941 if he decides to change over to condensed soup.

As examples of the authorized sizes of containers, tomatoes and tomato catsup are to be sold only in 28-ounce and 105-ounce sizes; condensed soups only in the 10-ounce size; green, wax or lima beans, green peas and corn, cream style, will be only in 20 and 105-ounce containers. Tomato juice may be sold in 20, in 48 and 105-ounce sizes.

"In regard to containers, the situation is that tin is available for essential, perishable foods of high nutritional value such as tomatoes, peas, corn and beans," the prices board said. "It is not available for foods which can be preserved in some other way than by use of tin—such as apples, white beans, beets and carrots.

Day of Pork And Beans Numbered.

"Pork and beans will soon have to be put up in domestic kitchens.

"Tin is not available for the canning in Canada of imported raw fruits and vegetables. This country's limited supply of tin must be conserved for use in taking care of essential, perishable foods which at present can only be preserved by canning.

"In this connection, it is made known that experiments are proceeding with a bonderized plate

Churchill Hand Forced—New Crisis Predicted

LONDON, March 2 (CP Cable)—Hannen Swaffer, veteran London editor, suggested yesterday in his weekly column in the current World's Press News that Lord Beaverbrook has parted entirely with the government and will return to his newspapers in Fleet street.

Swaffer wrote in part: "I do not think he is going to America, but rather that he has parted entirely from the government and he will return to Fleet Street soon to develop by natural stages into a critic, for outside he will see things very differently.

"Churchill dropped him. He had to. It was a choice between the Beaver and several other ministers. Already they had whittled down his power as minister of production until he found himself with an impossible job.

"As long as three weeks ago Beaverbrook was telling his intimates: 'I have not a friend in the government.'

"Some people consider this is the end of him in practical politics. I do not think so. We shall see in all probility another Downing Street crisis in six or eight weeks. Then anything may happen."

HEAVY ARTILLERY GOES INTO ACTION ALONG ENGLISH CHANNEL

German Cap Griz Nez Guns Light Calais Batteries Thunder In Night Mystery

British Raid Gives Nazis The Jitters Brighton Checks Identity Cards; Canucks Take Part In Friday Swoop

LONDON, March 2—(CP).—Fog blotted out the Channel area today where the heaviest gunfire in recent months had been heard last night, and official reticence was just as thick as the fog.

Most of the firing was concentrated during the early hours of the night. German long-range guns near Cap Gris Nez, on the occupied French shore of the Channel opened the attack soon after dark and then, after a lull, turned loose a fierce bombardment.

Smaller guns joined in later from the direction of Calais but the thick haze hid the scene and shore watchers could not tell whether they were naval or anti-aircraft guns.

(Except for periodic shells lobbed into the Dover area, the Germans have used their guns principally against British convoys pushing through the Strait.)

Although coast watchers said they heard planes over the Channel and the chatter of machine guns as though from air combat, officials said there were no immediate reports of Royal Air Force activity in that area. Others suggested the exhaust of motor torpedo boats sometimes is mistaken for the roar of warplanes.

The intense action, which lasted until the early hours of today, coincided with the first published reports that information had leaked in advance on the British raid of the French coast Saturday and the disclosure of new check-ups of service and civilian identity cards at the Channel resort of Brighton.

Canuck Pilots on the Job

Canadian fighter pilots and bomber crews participated in the French coast raid which resulted in destruction of an enemy wireless location station at Bruneval, France. The foray was described as a "routine patrol" by members of a Canadian Spitfire squadron which formed part of the umbrella for the raid.

"It was just like an ordinary patrol," said Flt.-Lt. Al Harley of London, Ont. Harley was one of those in charge of a section of Spitfires guarding the vessels carrying the returning paratroops.

PO. Hugh Merritt of Smithville, Ont., said it was a "dull trip." He met the convoy about midway across the Channel and "saw the ships all right, but I don't know yet what they did."

Shortly after their return from the dawn patrol the squadron escorted Blenheim bombers in Saturday's daylight attack on Ostend. Sgt. Pilot Gerry Clarke of Winnipeg was reported missing after the afternoon operation.

Harley said he heard the Winnipegger report over his radio-telephone that he had been hit. "We ran into a bunch of 190's on the way back and apparently one of them went for Clarke," he said. "I heard him say his aircraft was hit but that he was all right. Later someone in another squadron saw a Spit doing down, and it must have been Gerry."

which would not require any tin, the surface being protected by a special lacquer baked on at high temperature. This would be suitable for non-acid food products such as peas, green and wax beans, and probably pork and beans.

"This new plate may be available by next winter."

Large-size containers are more economical in use of tin than small containers, the board said. For this reason consideration had been given to the possibility that if containers were too large for home use there would be waste of contents.

The maximum-price order was issued by Foods Administrator J. G. Taggart. It sets the top prices at which canners may sell tinned tomatoes, peas, corn, green beans and wax beans which together comprise more than 80 per cent. of the vegetable pack.

Many Prices Fixed

These are the basic maximum prices per dozen tins, f.o.b. factory or warehouse:—

Tomatoes (28-ounce containers). —Fancy; Quebec $1.15, Ontario $1.20, four Western Provinces $1.25. Choice: $1.10, $1.15; $1.20. Standard: $1.05, $1.10; $1.15.

Peas, 5's and ungraded (20-ounce containers).—Fancy: $1.15, $1.20, $1.25. Choice: $1.10, $1.15, $1.20. Standard: $1.05, $1.10, $1.15.

Corn (20-ounce containers). — Fancy and choice: $1.10, $1.15, $1.22½. Standard: $1.05, $1.10, $1.17½.

Green and Wax Beans (20-ounce containers).—Fancy: $1.35 in each zone. Choice: $1.25 each zone. Standard: $1.20 each zone.

Tomato Juice (Fancy and Choice) —10-ounce containers: 75c; 80c; 85c; 26-ounce containers: 87½c; 92½c; 97½c; 20-ounce containers: 90c; 95c; $1.

"The price schedule announced give encouragement to growers of those vegetables which are staples for canning," the Prices Board said. "It is recognized that in most districts growers' costs will be higher in 1942 than last year. For one thing, much experienced farm labor has gone into war industries, and less efficient labor increases costs.

"Canners are being asked to produce large quantities of staple vegetables, some of these for Great Britain and her Allies, but it is impossible to forecast these needs exactly, and in some cases production may be greater than domestic needs.

Corporation for Surplus

In order, therefore, that canners and growers may proceed immediately with plans for maximum production it has been arranged that the commodity prices stabilization corporation will stand ready to buy at guaranteed maximum prices any surplus of canned tomatoes, peas, corn and green and wax beans.

"Only those canners who pay growers the prices stipulated in the order will be entitled to sell their surplus to the corporation."

The prices to growers must be $1 a ton higher than in 1941 for Tomatoes; $7.50 a ton higher for peas on the shelled weight basis and $1.50 a ton higher on straw weight; $2 a ton higher for corn; and, on the average, $5 a ton higher for green and wax beans.

The prices at which surplus output of these staple products, when canned, will be bought by the stabilization corporation will "safeguard the canner against undue loss," the board said.

Basically the prices for fancy and choice grades will be five cents a dozen cans below the maximum selling price established for choice grades; and the prices for standard grades will be five cents below the maximum price for standard grades.

No maximum prices to be charged by canners are established for the Maritime Provinces but canners in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island may qualify to sell his surplus production to the prices stabilization corporation, at a price five cents a dozen cans higher than that payable to Ontario canners.

To do so, he must comply with "all the terms and conditions and with respect to prices to be paid to growers."

cers movement against the Allies in the Middle East.

The defence of India and the mastery of all the other vast territory washed by the Indian ocean have depended on John Bull's control of three key positions—the Malacca Strait, which was dominated by the guns of Singapore; the Suez canal, and the Cape of Good Hope on the southern tip of Africa.

The little men of Nippon already have seized one of these keys—the Strait of Malacca. But for the necessity of stopping to conquer the essential base of Java, the warships of the Rising Sun probably would be roving the Indian ocean right now.

To say that Java is in dire peril is stating it mildly. It's a crisis that calls for the oxygen tent, and while that doesn't necessarily mean fatality, it's pretty bad.

If Java falls, and the Allies are forced to fall back on Australia as their final base for operations, the Japanese are bound to start combing the Indian ocean, over which must pass the Allied convoys with their vital supplies for Russia and the Middle East. That would create a nasty position for America and Britain. It would be doubly serious if the Nipponese were able to seize the great French island of Madagascar, which dominates the shipping route off Southeast Africa.

Occupants of other flats above Brouillette's store, led to safety by firemen, were Mrs. Brouillette, Mr. and Mrs. Anatole Dubuc and their two children, and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Tasse and their three children.

According to witnesses who arrived early at the scene, Brouillette helped in rescuing his wife and members of other families and then returned to the burning structure in search of young Miss Jacob, who arrived from St. Maurice only last night to enter his employment.

From his bed in Notre Dame hospital, Lieut. Filion told reporters his escape with Firemen McLaughlin, Collette and Huard was "a miracle."

Filion suffered near asphyxiation in the flooded cellar of the building when the first floor collapsed, killing Lieut. Montpellier and Firemen Lebeau and Brisebois and injuring the other three rescued men.

He said he was in a group of firemen who entered the structure by the front door and went down to the cellar where the blaze apparently originated. The second explosion occurred just as Filion entered the furnace room.

"There was a sudden puff and everything went black," he said. "We could see nothing. When I recovered from the shock I heard McLaughlin shouting 'we're trapped' and we realized we couldn't get out the front way due to the flames."

Filion and McLaughlin started to drag Montpellier towards a rear cellar window. Filion collapsed near the window, to be pulled to safety later by firemen who ripped out an iron window grill. McLaughlin climbed through the flames to the floor above and was found exhausted inside the front door by other firemen.

Firemen Lebeau and Brisebois also made their way to the upper floor and were found about 15 feet from the door. In a desperate effort to have themselves from asphyxiation they had buried their faces in a chesterfield. They died in an ambulance with Montepellier, removed through a cellar window with Filion.

Busy Weekend At Arms Plant For McNaughton

HAMILTON, Ont., March 2 (CP) —Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton today continued his tour of defence plants in this area after a painstaking examination of work being done at massive industries here and at St. Catharines over the week-end.

He was busy until the early hours today scanning the output of two firms at St. Catharines, inspecting the manufacture of fuses and shells, and as at other points on his Canadian tour dropped numerous helpful hints to the production men from his own experience on the working end of the weapons.

In a press conference here yesterday he made it plain that the Canadians are not overlooking the importance of close liaison between air and ground forces. "I lay the greatest importance on maintenance of close personal liaison between air force and tank squadron leaders," he remarked.

"The army co-operation squadrons actualy are the eyes of an army on the ground, making possible the quick changes of plan and great speed of movement necessary for success."

Lauds Home Defence.

Gen. McNaughton dropped a word of approval of the system envisaged in Britain whereby airdromes will be defended against enemy ground attack by air force personnel. "That would be a definite step forward," he said. "There are hundreds of mechanics at each air station. They are a superior type of fighting men, mainly, and could easily be trained to man light anti-aircraft guns. It would be a great advantage to have the air force in complete command of airdrome defence, and it would free army units."

But he did not approve of proposals that the air force and army be placed under a single command. "No matter what our opinions may be, these organizations are functioning now and doing their jobs," he remarked. "Time is needed to make a change complete. We may want unified command of the army and air force for the next war but someone else can worry about that. There was no suggestion from army fellows that even our army co-operation squadrons be taken away from the air force command and supply facilities."

He amplified previous statements regarding lowering the age limits for officers. "This is not an arbitrary scale of age limits," he said. "Physical fitness and alertness count more than anything."

source said. "Their losses have been heavy in men, but losses of material will be what will stop them.")

LONDON, March 2.—(CP). — A Reuters dispatch from Bandung, reporting that British troops had gone into action against the Japanese on Java, said to-day there was reason to believe that Allied forces had cut off a Japanese column which penetrated 40 miles inland to Subang.

Fall of Subang, which is less than 30 miles from Bandang, headquarters of the Allied command, was announced in a Netherlands communique last night.

Japanese losses in both men and equipment were described as enormous.

"Japanese troops casualties may be reckoned in the thousands and their losses in tanks, armored cars and artillery in the hundreds," said the news agency, "but still they come on.

"If the Allied forces in Java had been about twice as strong, the Japanese attack would almost certainly have been doomed to failure.

"The Allied air forces have done magnificently, but have been unable to prevent landings on a considerable scale."

Grim Struggle On

The official war report acknowledged that "the situation in some parts of Java is obviously critical" but added that the invaders were "receiving blows, hammer and tongs."

"Up to now," it continued, "there is no information received about fifth column activities.

"Everywhere our troops are going to meet the Japanese.

"Although there is no question of a direct threat to Batavia, vital objects are being made useless to exclude all risks."

The Netherlands and Allied counter moves against the invaders' three hard won beachheads were described in the communique with these words:

"From well-informed circles it is heard that action against the Japanese troops developed satisfactorily. Although in connection with the character of the operations no details can be published, it can be said that the enemy received fair hits."

Aneta reported that up to a short time before midnight there had been no words of any new Japanese landings on the Java coast or of the approach of any new invasion armada.

"Attack, and not defence, must be the wacthword," said the order of the day which disclosed that British troops had gone into action.

Joined also in defence of this richest island of the Indies were Americans, who with Australian and British troops made up some thousands of reinforcements for a slim Indies army variously estimated at from 100,000 to 250,000.

Indicating that a crucial stage had been reached in the plans of the defenders, the Netherlands command said nothing concerning the landing fighting.

But for all eyes to see was the stream of taxicabs and camouflaged trucks loaded with green-clad Indies and Malayan reserve troops which rumbled down the volcanic slopes toward the northern coastal plains where the invaders had established footholds in three places Saturday night.

Flotilla Leader Bagged

The communique said one torpedo boat had sunk a flotilla leader, adding one to yesterday's total of 26 ships sunk or damaged of the approximately 50 transports and 20 warships sent by the Japanese on this expedition.

By flotilla leader, navy men usually mean a large destroyer used by the commander of a group of destroyers.

Allied planes continued strong in the air, maintaining a continuous "ferry service" with bombs between their bases and the beachheads, and driving off enemy planes which caused two air raid alarms here this morning.

The Japanese planes apparently were attempting to operate from distant bases in Sumatra, Bali and Borneo, and they were able to give their troops little support.

To combat the column which had driven in from Indramajoe toward Bandung, all but militay traffic was ruled off the roads, and it was all moving in one direction—toward the front.

Japanese barges engaged in landing troops and tanks from 20 transports near Rembang were sunk yesterday when Netherlands fighting planes swooped upon them, a special communique of the Netherlands fighting services said today.

of surrendering, and then took the opportunity and risk of escaping."

The Prime Minister also paid tribute to the "efficiency, gallantry, and devotion of our forces throughout the struggle."

Leaders of the Government said Gen. Bennett's report might have an important influence on future strategy against the Japanese.

Flies Last Leg Home

Gen. Bennett flew here from Batavia after his dramatic escape from Singapore in a junk. His arrival in Batavia was reported last Thursday. With him were his aide-de-camp, Capt. Gordon Walker, eight members of the Singapore volunteers and seven members of British regiments.

The General who landed in Sydney yesterday bore good news—that all the Australian nurses had escaped from Singapore and that a lot of Australian soldiers also had fled that city. Here is his account of the flight:—

"When I got the news of the surrender, I decided to try to escape. All the boys on the island had the same idea. It was every soldier's big aim.

"I was successful and so were a lot of others. I am convinced many more will get out...

"I abandoned an earlier idea of making a dash across the island, getting into the jungle and disappearing until I could escape across the country.

"About 10 p.m. with Capt. Walker, Maj. Moses and other members of my staff, we set off for the city by car.

"We drove like hell. Later we heard that two Japanese officers heard of our escape and chased our car for half an hour.

"Later the party swam out to a sampan and then paddled about a mile off shore where we ran into a big junk. The Chinese owner didn't like us but we stayed. Some other Malayan citizens and army men swam out and we pulled them aboard. Two British soldiers and an officer and a non-commissioned officer tried to swim out to us but could not make it. They drowned.

"There were 21 aboard. The owner did not want to leave the roadstead but we had to use a little persuasion. An American took charge and later a Malayan assisted.

"In the morning we found ourselves drifting back to the island. It was a horrible feeling but eventually we managed to change course. A light wind took us clear.

"We were three days at sea with little food. Japanese planes were above us most of the journey but we kept good watch and when we saw them coming dived below."

Furious Battle See-Saws On Java Island

BANDUNG, Java, March 2 (AP)—Furious fighting raged less than 30 miles from this military headquarters of the Netherlands East Indies today as the defenders, including Netherlands, British, Australian and American troops strove desperately to check an invading Japanese column which already had knifed inland from a beachhead on Indramaju Bay.

The Netherlands high command's afternoon communique shrouded the land fighting, but said a speed motor torpedo boat has sent a Japanese flotilla leader to the bottom of the East Java Sea.

"In the present phase of the battle against the Japanese invasion no particulars can be given about the development of the action," the communique said.

It was known that the 250,000 Indies troops and the thousands of Australian, American and British Allies had shifted swiftly to the offensive after the Japanese had swarmed onto the rich and strategic island—the final bastion in the southwest Pacific before Australia.

Girl Orator Jars Montreal Again

MONTREAL, March 2 — (CP). — Montreal today wondered what next to expect of its blonde, self-styled soap-box crusader against war effort apathy.

Last night the girl, who has told police she is Margaret Jean Preston, assumed the role of heckler to enliven an otherwise quiet meeting of anti-conscriptionsists in East-end Maisonneuve market. And she ran afoul police for a second time.

Friday night she told newsmen she was giving up her "soap-box" campaign because she wanted to co-operate with the authorities. A few hours before she had paid $3.50 costs for holding a meeting in mid-town Phillip's Square without a permit.

She said she would wait until she could speak before a "duly-constituted" meeting before continuing her campaign to arouse Canadians to greater war efforts.

So last night she rose to her feet to heckle Jean Drapeau, a speaker at the meeting called by the Pere Marquette section of the St. Jean Baptist Society and held under the auspices of the League for the Defence of Canada. He was speaking against conscription for overseas service.

When the girl interrupted a large part of the crowd booed and shouted: You're not in Phillips Square now."

Someone added: "We don't have to go over there (overseas)."

The girl replied: "You better go over there before they come over here."

"But they will never come here," a man shouted back.

"Did Hitler promise that to you?" she asked.

At this point two policemen escorted her outside and stated they sent her home in a taxi.

Using Nazi Planes

WASHINGTON, March 2—(AP).—The United States War Department reported today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Philippine forces were bombed by enemy planes with unusual markings which "may have been German-built."

The raids, made behind the defenders' lines on the Bataan Peninsula, were local and did not inflict damage a communique said.

Three two-engine planes were said to have had unusual markings, being painted black with white crosses on the wings. Japan, the communique said, is believed to have had German-built planes in reserve.

6-9 Of Convoy Hit 111 Rescued Off Four Ships

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Mar. 2 — (CP). — Survivors from four Allied ships torpedoed over a week ago in mid-Atlantic, numbering 111 men, reported the possibility that between six and nine ships in their convoy had been torpedoed in a U-boat "wolf-pack" attack on the convoy which one seaman said lasted three days. The men were brought here by two vessels.

Seamen praised the work of a vessel they called a "rsecue ship," which they said picked up survivors shortly after their ship had been torepdoed. This ship brought 92 of the rescued men to port, the other 19 coming ashore from a United States warship.

The "rescue ship" apparently a new development in convoys was described as a fast craft, a former coaster, which came up near the stricken ships to pick up survivors.

Fifty-eight men are still missing—38 from one ship, 20 from another—from two vessels which sank within a few minutes after being struck by torpedoes. Among the missing were a British naval reserve lieutenant, a British chemist, and a Norwegian airman, all passenegrs on a small freighter.

The submarines let loose 'almost enough (torpedoes) to sink the British Navy," one seaman declared, but added, "there were plenty that missed their mark."

WHO TOOK THE SHOVEL?

Fraser Watson is not suggesting for a moment that somebody deliberately stole his snowshovel. He is more inclined to the belief that the fellow who took it, had lost his own, and from force of habit tossed the shovel into the car. It all happened after 11 o'clock one night last week, when a motorist whammed into a snowbank on Sophia street, and became marooned. The man walked up on to Mr. Watson's verandah and picked up a snowshovel, then proceeded to dig the car out of the snowdrift. Before putting the shovel back, he hopped into the car and gunned the car out of the drift, then sped away. That's just fine, and Mr. Watson can claim an assist on the job—but what about the shovel.—McG.

On hand at the present time are three more tops ready for quilting. Other reports tabled were made by the treasurer, Miss Kae Bygott, the flower fund convener, Miss Jean Wallace; the war convener, Mrs. H. T. Scott, and the book convener, Mrs. J. D. Mills, who disclosed that a number of books would soon be made available to the branch by the library.

Group reports disclosed a number of activities were being planned by each to raise their quota for the year. Only event for which the date has been definitely set is a bingo being arranged by Group 3 on March 21. Group 2 will sponsor a program at the local theatre and Group 5 captained by Mrs. Verna Rutherford is selling tickets on a rug. A new feature planned for each regular meeting will be a draw on one dollar's worth of War Savings Stamps. Each member will voluntarily contribute five cents and at the end of the meeting the draw will be made with the winner getting the stamps. Any surplus will go into the Chapter's regular funds.

Members were particularly interested in the report of the Salvage Committee who announced that nine truck loads of waste paper, newspaper, magazines, tires, tubes, rubbers, metals, bones and grease had been collected during the two-day campaign held last Tuesday and Wednesday. In addition to two trucks with drivers the Chapter had also the assistance of two men provided by the Rotary Club and two by the Corporation. According to the statement made by one of the committee the 20 by 40 storage shed was "practically filled" but sorting and baling remains to be done. The next collection will be made within two weeks. To assist with the sorting and baling, Mrs. F. Free, Mrs. R. E. Fox and Mrs. H. T. Scott volunteered to be on hand this Tuesday and on Wednesday Mrs. John Storie, Mrs. E. C. Roberts, Mrs. J. D. Mills, Mrs. J. D. McEacherne, Mrs. George Hawthorne and Mrs F. G. DeCarrol will take over. The draw on three quilts for which members have been selling tickets for the past three weeks, will be held at the meeting on March 12. A letter of thanks was read in appreciation of the week-end arranged by the Chapter for airmen from Trent, and following this a vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. E. C. Roberts, convener of the hospitality committee, and to Mrs. F. N. Brown of the lunch committee.

Ontario Toll Is 4 Over Weekend

(By the Canadian Press.)

Four persons were reported killed in Ontario during the week-end as a result of four accidents involving three trains and three automobiles.

At Hamilton, Edward Near, 60, was killed a few minutes before midnight when struck by an automobile operated by Russell Fowler.

Edmind Joseph Rivard of Sudbury died in a Chapleau hospital from injuries suffered last Monday when caught between a tender and a pillard. Rivard had been recently moved to a Canadian Pacific Railway roundhouse at Chapleau from Sudbury.

William Brown, 31, of Nestleton, was killed at a level crossing at Burketon, 13 miles north-east of Oshawa, when his car was struck by a Canadian Pacific Railway train while he was driving to Pickering where he was employed in a munitions plant.

The second train-automobile fatality occurred one mile west of the Peace Bridge at Fort Erie when a car driven by William Franklin Willson, 75, prominent Fort Erie customs broker, was struck by a Canadian National Railway freight train. Willson died in hospital a few hours later.

Bible Society Conducts Big Canvass

CAMPBELLFORD, March 2.—(ENS)—Officials of the Seymour East branch of the Bible Society have just completed the most thorough canvass in recent years and have just turned over $60.95. The canvass of the territory began early in December last following a meeting at Rev. J. R. Bick's when Rev. Donald McKay, President H. T. Rutherford and Secretary J. A. Murray met to discuss details and appoint canvassers for the various districts. Having been advised of the increased demands on the Society as a result of the war these men determined that this should be a most thorough canvass and only this week they completed the work which began late in December and their efforts were rewarded as they collected the largest amount the Society has gathered from this district in ten years. H. T. Rutherford who had the Stanwood district got the best response with contributions amounting to upwards of $13. Canvassers appointed by the committee were Misses Doris Ingram, Helen Nelson, Helen Smith, Jean Hume, Muriel Heagle, Marion Oddie, Jean Hoard, Laura Third, Mr. Ronald Dunk, Misses Dorothy Loucks, Helen Arnold, Mr. T. Rutherford, Misses Thelma Wallace, Dorothy Eagleson, Doreen Pollock, Jean Murray.

Fire Destroys Six-Family Terrace Occupants Escape Unharmed

COBOURG, March 2—(ENS). — Six families were rendered homeless Saturday afternoon when fire devastated a terrace north of the C.N.R. station. Formerly a clapboard building, it was later rough-cast and consisted of six dwellings. All the occupants escaped safely but the fire spread so quickly that much of the contents of the dwellings were a prey to the flames. The Salvation Army took charge of the fire-ousted families and arranged temporary accommodations for them. So quickly did the fire spread that had it taken place in the middle of the night, loss of life might have occurred. Firemen managed to save the west end of the terrace where Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith reside. However, it will be some time before their part of the place becomes suitable to live in due to smoke and water damage.

The fire broke out in the upper part of the east end of the terrace, where Mr. and Mrs. William Murray reside. By the time it was discovered it had spread into the next dwelling, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, and when the blaze was brought under control about an hour later, it had consumed the premises of William Miller and James Nicholls, and had just started to attack the end of the terrace where Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith reside. The terrace had been erected many years ago and being of wood and dry with age it burned fiercely once the fire got underway. Cobourg fire department had a job on its hands getting the fire under control. So quickly did it spread that in less than 45 minutes it was ablaze from the east end up to the end house at the west. Neighbors worked feverishly in assisting the occupants of the burning terrace to get some of their possessions out but the swiftly extending fire made it impossible to save very much of the furniture. One woman had been down shopping when she heard of the fire, and on returning to see her place in flames became hysterical when she failed to see her children around until she was assured by her neighbors that they got out all right. Another occupant had only paid the final instalment on her furniture a few days before and then lost almost all of it in the fire. All the families affected by the fire were people of modest means, and as far as it could be learned, none of them had insurance on their household possessions, with the result that their loss will be extensive. The building, which is owned by Henry Climo, is said to be partially covered by insurance.

Captain V. Greenwood of the Salvation Army is being lauded by the neighborhood for his work in seeing that the homeless families secured accommodation elsewhere, and it was no easy task scouring the town for temporary shelter. As some of the occupants of the terrace lost all their clothes, except those which they were wearing, in the fire, the Salvation Army provided them with some extra clothing.

Cause of the fire is unknown.

Cobourg Terrace Is Destroyed By Fire

Only smoking ruins and one section of a six-family terrace remained after fire broke out in it at Cobourg on Saturday. In the ABOVE picture, the charred remnants of the building is shown. The occupants lost most of their possessions in the fire.

Many Choristers Sing On Sunday

PORT HOPE, March 2.—(ENS). —The congregataion of the United church enjoyed a large junior choir on Sunday evening. Over forty children took part in this service and sang three choruses beautifully, the first one a three part chorus, 'For All They Care' and the second 'Just the Same,' and later in the service the chorus, 'All Things Bright and Beautiful,' an old English song.

At the morning service a beautiful offerings plate was presented to the congregation by the choir Thomas Garnett who for many in loving memory of the late Mr. years served God as a member of the church and was always deeply interested in the welfare of the choir.

The U.N.D. class had as a guest speaker on Sunday afternoon Mrs. F. N. Belyea, who spoke to the girls on 'Beauty' from the Biblical standpoint. Mr. Gordon Garnett's Bible class of boys had Magistrate R. B. Baxter for an interesting address.

First Field Ambulance Receives Orders To Mobilize At Kingston

KINGSTON, March 2—Announcement was made today by Headquarters, M.D. 3, of the immediate mobilization as an active service unit of the No. 1 Field Ambulance R.C.A.M.C. (R.F.) of Kingston. The unit will be brought up to full war establishment with Lieut.-Colonel P. A. McLeod, also of Kingston, as Acting Officer Commanding during period of preliminary organization.

The new active force unit of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps will be completely mechanized and will have a personnel of approximately 12 officers and 230 other ranks, consisting of medical officers, one quartermaster, one R.C.A.S.C. officer attached and one dental officer attached will make up the officer slate. It is possible that a chaplain will also be attached.

Start Recruiting

Simultaneous with the announcement of the unit's mobilization was a statement issued from unit headquarters, in the Kingston Armouries, that recruiting will begin immediately to bring it up to full war strength. While it is expected the drivers for the vehicles as well as artificers will be supplied by the R.C.A.S.C., there will be room for a large number of other ranks for administrative and ambulance duties. Stretcher bearers, cooks, carpenters and operating room attendants will also be required. It is understood that all personnel joining the unit will receive training first at a basic training centre and will then go to an R.C.A.M.C. training centre for advanced instruction before they report for duty.

No. 1 Field Ambulance is expected to be equipped with a mobile operating unit, ambulances, lorries, cars and motorcycles. The unit itself will be made up of Headquarters and two companies.

The only other Field Ambulance unit of the Reserve Army in Military District No. 3 is No. 23 Field Ambulance (R.F.) localized at Ottawa. Both No. 1 and No. 23 Field Ambulance units (R.F.) have already supplied one company each to units now in the Canadian Army Active Force. A large part of the medical personnel who have gone on active service from M.D. 3, in fact, were members of the No. 1 Field Ambulance.

Important Role in Field

The role of the unit in the field will be important and when in action each company will be trained to set up and establish a main dressing station to the rear of the front lines.

"The mobilzation of No. 1 Field Ambulance as an active force unit presents an unusual opportunity for service by men of Kingston and the surrounding district," Colonel McLeod said. "We shall welcome all physically fit men who desire to play their part in the country's war effort and who are keen to get into a branch of the army which will prove interesting as well as instructional. This opening with No. 1 Field Ambulance makes it possible for Kingston and district boys to serve together and to enjoy their own companionship. The need of this work is becoming increasingly important and great opportunites lie ahead for war service for the most interesting and valuable kind."

Colonel McLeod pointed out that men interested in joining the unit should apply tao the unit's Orderly Room in the Armouries, Montreal street, Kingston.

Accent On Youth In Canadian Army, McNaughton's Plan

Visiting war plants in Toronto Lieutenant-General Andrew McNaughton, commander-in-chief of Canada's armies in the field and at home, paid a visit to the plant of Research Enterprises, Ltd. He is shown, ABOVE, viewing prisms made at the plant which are used for range finders, binoculars, telescopes and many other magnifying units. While in Toronto, General McNaughton expressed the view that Canada's expanding army should be, and will soon be, a young man's army. He expressed the view that lieutenant-colonels should not be over 30 brigadiers well under 40, divisional commanders—major-generals — not much over 40, and other senior officers about 50.

Who is going to win this war?

THE answer is yours to write, right now! So far, the United Nations have taken a merciless beating on almost every front. The Axis aggressors, pressing the advantage that falls inevitably to the fore-armed, the double-crosser, the assassin who stabs in the back, have made alarming headway in too many directions.

The Axis gangsters robbed and starved their own people for years to gain this advantage—hoping to enslave the free peoples of the world. Their victims in conquered countries also do as they are told—at the point of a gun.

We, as free Canadians, still make our own decisions. We went into this war of our own free will, knowing it would be a fight for dear life and dearer freedom. This fight can and shall be won, but not without many more millions of tons of the vital sinews of war.

Idle money is traitor money today—and will be worthless money if the Axis should win this war. Lend your money now, for Victory.

Outstanding Cheese Record

The dairy industry is one of the largest, taking in all its branches, of the many industries in Canada—one of the largest and one of the most important because it supplies food, and in that nation-wide field the cheese producers of Hastings county have been, and still are, making a remarkable record. Northumberland and Peterborough counties are also in the rich cheese producing belt and have reason to feel a sense of elation over what they turn out year after year.

The report of the Harold Cheese and butter Company, comprised in their annual statement, is particularly striking. It shows that a seventy-two per cent. increase in the volume made during the 1941 season was achieved by this group of producers and at this time, when cheese is so vital a commodity not alone for home but for overseas markets, the showing is most gratifying.

In addition to this it is noted that their cheesemaker, Roy Brown, turned out 99.8 per cent. first grade cheese with only five boxes of under-grades up to the end of November. The detailed finding of L. Fair, District Agriculture Representative for Hastings county, must give dairymen in that area a feeling of pride. He states that the factory up to November 30 had sold 2,428 boxes of cheese of which 99.8 per cent. was first grade or over, as compared to 98.05 which was the Hastings county average and 96.9 for the entire province.

Another point of special interest was brought out by W. H. Heath, long secretary of the company, who said, among other things, that the Dominion premium on their high scoring cheese was $4,402.97, or $3,266.84 more than during the preceding year.

With so much of the normal production of Canada going abroad now to help supply needy markets, the increase and high quality of cheese manufactured here in these splendid dairy counties merits congratulations.

The Commander's Views

Regrettable though it may be, yes, and perhaps a distinct loss will be sustained in some instances, nevertheless the announcement of Lieut.-General McNaughton, commander of the Canadian Corps in England, and who is now in Canada, is undoubtedly wise when he proposes to reduce the age limit for officers. The reason for this drastic action is the stern task of putting the most vigorous, strong and daring manhood possible in the fight against the enemy. In order to battle against the tremendous odds which modern warfare has created, men must be fit in every respect.

"Leadership," says the Commander, "is of the greatest importance in this conflict, probably more than ever before, and officers and men alike must be in condition. They must train like athletes and keep in good condition. I may say that very shortly we will reduce the present age limits by many years."

No doubt there are men past fifty who are quite capable of standing up to the strain of the struggle, officers whose minds are active and clear, but when the Lieutenant-General, with his wide knowledge and sound judgment, advises that fifty should be the limit for all officers in the active ranks, there is not much argument about it. When he says the older fellows can't stand the hard going, again there is experience. Tough though the judgment may be for a large number who have served well, and are willing to go on serving to the best of their ability and endurance, nevertheless the general principle laid down appears to be logical. It is hoped, however, that ways will be found of using the best abilities and advice of officers who have proven their worth. As the Commander states, they have a background and an experience which is important.

Litvinoff's Proposal

It can be assumed that the remarks made by Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Ambassador to the United States, before the Overseas Press Club in New York, in which he sounded a call for a new Allied front in Europe this spring, will make things buzz not a little in government circles in London and Washington. Undoubtedly he spoke on authority from his chief, Josef Stalin, and therefore what he said has particular significance in the entire war picture.

What is suggested, apparently, is that there should be a major offensive started in Western Europe to co-ordinate with the Russian drive on the Eastern front. If this becomes a plan of strategy and is carried out, it will mean that the British Army will invade the continent assisted by the United States and other Allies. In view of the spectacular work of the Russians in defeating the Axis forces and driving them out of much of the territory they had taken during their terrific blitzkreig, what Stalin may urge cannot be disregarded.

The victories of the Soviet fighters have been phenomenal and it would seen, from intimations that have come of late from capitals in England and the United States, that the time is arriving when the British are going to make a more aggressive move than has characterized their policy for some time. A war of attrition, by which the enemy would be worn down, may be the view of some leaders in the High Command, but with the Germans receiving such constant blows in the East, blows that are taking a tremendous toll of lives and equipment, it would appear that the proposal of Litvinoff for a second front and a bold campaign would the quicker bring the Axis powers to their knees.

No Doubt About It

"You know it, you know it, you know it," sings the robin when he gets half a chance to arrive here from the south, as he did during the sunshine of Saturday, and to tell us that spring is on its way too. Yes, we know it because the small boys have begun to shoot marbles and if there's any truer sign that old Winter is being driven back into his lair for another seven or eight months, we haven't discovered it.

The snows may melt and run in rivulets or lay in pools; the sparrows may come out of their hiding and chirp away as an excited chorus; mother may become restless with the house-cleaning urge and dad may start talking about the fish he caught last season, but those marbles! Ah! Sometimes shot at with pinks, right on the sidewalks—they are what concur in the lyric declaration of the redbreast that "We know it." There may be misgivings, now and again, when the skies suddenly become pouty and the North sends along a blast of sleet and rain just to prove that it still has a place in the weather household, but make no mistake, when that group of chattering lads with their tense voices gets into a real battle with the marbles and alleys, well, the war against the Decembers and Novembers, the Januarys and Februarys is practically over.

Yes, Mr. Robin, we know it. We know it!

Values Of Walking

Walking is one of the best of all exercises to keep a person strong and healthy, yet few people enjoy its advantages. Sickness is prevalent everywhere. The hospitals are always filled with patients, but what builds the body, promotes strong circulation of the blood and increases the strength of the lungs is practically neglected.

A phase of this truth is brought out in a report of the American Institute of Public Opinion which has conducted a survey of pedestrians, in view of government regulations cutting down the use of automobiles, rubber tires and so on. While the effort made to discover the walking habits of people took in only a cross section of the population, the finding was nevertheless indicative of what probably is the case all over the North American Continent except in the sparsely settled areas where men and women have to go here and there by foot for long distances.

Of those interrogated, it is recorded that 25 per cent. walk less than a mile a day; 15 per cent. walk two miles a day; 6 per cent. go three miles, and a sturdy 8 per cent., five miles or more per day—these figures are on the average, of course.

From this it will be seen how far the present generation has got away from the vigorous pioneer stock who were obliged to rough it and grew hardy as a result. It was not at all uncommon for men to walk fifteen or twenty miles in rural districts some years ago, and quite a number still use Adam's means of getting about. The majority, though, either through pressure of time or an indifference to the fundamental laws of nature, complain if they are required by one reason or another to do a couple of miles a day. No computation has been made, unfortunately, of what distance the average housewife travels from morning to night, but it is no doubt considerable. That kind of bodily movement is not, however, equal to brisk walking out of doors where the air is fresh and vitalizing.

Over and above the value of walking for physical welfare, there is a pleasure in the pastime which can only be realized by those who try to get the most out of their movements. Merely to drag one's self along, bored with the forced endeavor, will do little or no good. An enterprising mental attitude is necessary. Then, to step out in a brisk way, with the shoulders back and a free motion of the arms, meanwhile breathing full and deep as one goes—that is what gives one a sense of exhiliration, of poise and of bodily ease.

Perhaps, now that cars are going to be fewer and joy-riding is to be practically prohibited, people will of necessity return to the old-fashioned methods of getting about and in doing so they will find their health has improved.

Intend a New Industry

It will be of interest to rural communities and to people in cities who are dealing in furs to learn that the first chinchilla farm is to be opened soon in Lanary county, which lies some distance east from Peterborough. A syndicate of Eastern Ontario farmers has arranged for the purchase of chinchillas and will, it is stated, carry on the industry of breeding them.

The word chinchilla has two or three meanings, those applying to animals being (a) a genus of small rodents peculiar to South America; (b) a variety of rabbit bred by its fur. It is the former with which the fur trade here is mostly concerned. They are very valuable and delicate little creatures and are found up on the high altitudes of the Andes, a large mountain range in South America. A few were brought to the United States and eventually breeding there became a success on a small scale. Nevertheless progress is being made by the interests that invested in the enterprise. Now a similar commercial effort is to be made in Ontario. The softness and density of the fur of these little animals is what makes their pelts so fabulously expensive. A chinchilla coat would empty a fair-sized bank account.

NOTE AND COMMENT

That German warship the Scharnhorst must belong to the eel family, it is so slippery and elusive.

Supply Controller Williamson, speaking in Ottawa, has strongly emphasized the gravity of the rubber situation. It doesn't seem that the stuff can be "stretched out" at all.

The Winnipeg Tribune has issued one of the most striking and effective pieces of journalism in support of the Victory Loan that has come before our eyes—particularly impressive, indeed, for the rather large foreign population which that city has. It is a four-page regular newspaper size publication with articles, stories, illustrations and reproductions and adaptations, some in English, others in foreifgn language. It is titled: Das Winnipeger Lugenblatt. No wonder Winnipeg "went to town" in a hurry and in a big way in raising its quota. After seeing the material anybody would want to go out and buy all the bonds he could carry in order to take a crack at Hitler and his thugs.

FALLEN STAR

Musing on the many changes
In the news-sheets' daily crop,
Back my fancy often ranges
To one now forgotten flop.
Almost as completely vanished
As the Monster of Loch Ness
Sits the bottled-up and banished
Portent known as Rudolf Hess.

Shadows, closing round him greyly
Hide him as behind a wall;
Once he hit the front page daily,
Now he's never there at all.
Still the Fuhrer struts as ruler,
But his Deputy we see
Cloistered in an alien cooler,
Safely under lock and key.

Do they bring him soup and salmon,
Choicest wines and dishes rare?
That, I think, is mostly gammon
Rather than his prison fare.
Anyway, the chiefest point is
We have got him where desired;
Rudolf in his present joint is
"To be called for" when required.

That was not what Hess intended
When he flew his Nazi coop;
That was not the vision splendid
Which inspired his sudden swoop
What a come-down; Poor old Rudie,
Crashing from his peace-plan blitz,
Rather like a hen that's broody,
In seclusion sits and sits.

Still, some day there may be others
Who will join his sad estate;
Leading Nazis, men and brothers,
May drop in to share his fate.
So we leave this star performer,
Now cut off from all his troupe,
Pensive as the pot grows warmer,
Sitting, simmering, in the soup.

Panic? Never But Courageous Faith In God

(Contributed)

THE prophet Isaiah has sounded a triumphant announcement for the return of Israel from exile in Babylon. The figure of a messenger is seen coming over the hills, crying aloud in jubiliation. He is the herald of freedom, to announce that God has become King, has begun to rule, has established a Kingdom to last forever. The whole world will witness Jehovah's deliverance of His people. The herald calls upon the exiles to prepare to leave Babylon and accompany Jehovah, who will both go before them and also guard their rear as they trek homeward. They shall not go in haste, they shall not give way to panic, but proceed deliberately and in perfect security. There is to be no stampede.

"Ye shall not go out with haste, nor go by flight; for the Lord shall go before you: and the God of Israel shall be your rearward." (Is. 52: 12.) The prophet is here urging against anything like panic. There is a nervous, excited activity, which people adopt when they are in dismay. When people get panic-stricken, they act not because they see their way, but because they are blinded by fear and cannot see their way. They make haste because they know the situation demands some kind of action and they give away to excitement uncontrolled by reason.

Panic forces people to rush to do the immediate thing without regard to consequence. A terrorized, runaway horse is blind to danger and will gallop to death. It is said that when an overloaded excursion boat sank in Chicago harbor a few years ago, hundreds of lives might have been saved but for panic. People lost their heads and stampeded each other into disaster and death. Not ignoring legitimate grounds for alarm there is surely ground for this counsel today. A calm, courageous faith in God is the need of the hour.

To give way to panic is not a peculiarity of the British people. The whole world has stood amazed and thrilled at the self-possession of the Britishers, upon whom have rained the flaming, terrorizing, deadly enemy bombs. It is a thing to ponder that the great souls in human history have faced the blackest night and met the powers of darkness with cool confidence. They see there is a law, a moral necessity, by which certain qualifying reconciling and redeeming things come into play. And they have perceived it to be their responsibility to themselves and to succeeding generations to articulate confidence, to be encouragers of mankind and to predict the ultimate triumph of right, calling on all who are like-minded to help buoy up the faint-hearted lest they yield to panic and to that cowardice which panic really is.

How wonderful and hope-inspiring is it when a man who seems to be the anointed of God speaks with a background of wisdom that would indicate he has been cloistered with unseen and invincible forces; who, like Winston Churchill, before the American Senate, has access to some secret strength which was incredible to other people—until his words went forth from his mouth. Moreover, it augurs well for a nation when it is capable of detecting the note of gravity, rebuke or challenge in such words, spoken in tones of triumphant faith in God and in the future.

The elementary convictions of faith are more certain than the surface subterfuges and transitory appearances of the world, and the trusting heart is anchored deep in them. Success and failure for the time being may alternate like the noonday sun and the blighting, blasting frosts. Many a great cause has been overborne for a long time. Truth is on the scaffold and falsehood on the throne. Only a fragment of the mighty drama is seen. All the while, and even so, the victory is being won.

This is a world where nothing comes to pass haphazard. Truth and honor, freedom and justice, do not survive the wrecks of time by any law of chance. They survive as the reward of toil and self-sacrifice. They live and remain by reason of nurture and care. Words fail to describe the tragedies, the dislocations and deviltries let loose upon the world today, but here once again the course of wisdom is to turn mind and thought powerfully, and with all the concentration possible, not merely and not chiefly upon the tragic and distressing, but upon the enduring, comforting things. Is there not a peculiar charm in the courageous composure of those who suffer most in these days?

One of the most beautiful singers among British birds is the nightingale. When the evening shadows are falling and darkness draws on and all the other birds are gone to rest, the song of the nightingale rises sweetly in the darkest hours of night, and if legend is true, its sweet song is song is the song of triumph over the song of triumph over pain; the song of victory. If in these dark hours of human life, when four-fifths of our race is at war, we can maintain faith and confidence in God and keep hope bright so that we can sing of His mercies and sustaining grace, He will accept our praise and keep us from panic.

This exhortation of the prophet our defenders do not need. There is no fear of them failing or giving way to panic. The Navy! Never did braver, better men man Britain's ships. Never did they sail the seas in such danger and at such risk of their lives nor do it so magnificently. The Empire soldier! John Ruskin says: "Put him in a fortress breach with all the pleasures of the world behind him and only death and his duty in front of him and he will keep his face to the front, and he knows that the choice may be put to him at any moment, and has beforehand died to all he cherishes in life." Never were finer men ranked to die for freedom! The Bird-men! They uphold their shining argosies upon the vast ethereal seas in the combined courage and heroism of both Army and Navy. Surely, with a just cause and a valiant spirit, the love of right prompting to willing sacrifice, the issue is with God to decide.

"I ACCUSE!"

• U.S. Arms Force Unity

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, March 2 —(AP)— The second Great War enters the mad month of March amid a fury of conflicting expressions from Allied spokesmen on how it should be fought—which would bode no good for unity of action but for one circumstance.

All such discussions, whether by British, Netherlands, Russian, Australian or Chinese debaters of strategy, agree that the weapons to achieve ultimate victory over the Axis can be forged only in the American arsenal of democracy.

Accept that thesis—and none challenges it — and it follows inevitably that the final decisions on when, where and how those made-in-U.S.A. war weapons are to be used must rest with Washington. That is the reason the great general staff of the United Nations is located in Washington; that tends to force unity of action by the Allies.

GRAVE NEW PROBLEM

There can be small doubt that Japanese success in breaching the United Nations' defense line at Singapore imposed grave new problems. Singapore even when closely besieged, was the connecting link of the Australia-Indies-China-India front. It is obvious that it was greatly hoped at the time of the Roosevelt-Churchill conferences that Singapore could hold out for months.

Mr. Churchill all but said so in his recent accounting to Parliament. He deferred discussion of why Singapore collapsed so quickly, saying there were more urgent matters to be dealt with. He made no effort, however, to conceal his feelings that there was ground for criticism of the way the final defense of Singapore was handled.

That is water over the dam. The fall of the great British citadel has thrown upon Java the burden of holding the already dangerously breached Allied defense front while American power is mustered to turn the tables on Japan. That is why strategists watched breathlessly as the United Nations and Japan locked in a great sea battle off the Java coast during the week-end which did not keep Japanese troops from landing on the island.

AUSTRALIA THE KEY

If Java should fall, the breach in the Allied front in the western Pacific-Indian Ocean area would be very great. It would mean probably a complete revision of the single command arrangement of the Allies in that area with General Sir Archibald Wavell as Commander-in-Chief. His recall from Java to centralize British-Chinese efforts in the west would be logical. A separate Indies-American-Australian command on the eastern flank of the breached line probably would evolve—and with it pressure in the United States to recall General Douglas MacArthur from Luzon to head the new command.

The obvious key to the situation from the American-Australian viewpoint is Australia. There seems small doubt that it must be in Australia that the main concentration for defensive and ultimately offensive action in the Pacific Theatre as distinct from the Burma-Indian Ocean sector, is to be expected.

Australia is a continent, not an island. Its natural resources are vast, although its population is small. The task of feeding and clothing a great army, American or Allied, would be easier there than anywhere else, because of Australia's abundant flocks, and herds and crops. Australian war industries are expanding. Its raw materials resources are great. All that would ease the strain on Pacific supply lines.

FEEDING THE BIRDS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I was so glad to read your writeup the other evening, on the feeding of our feathered friends, the birds.

By hording up scraps of bread, etc., that I keep in a special bowl, I have quite a nice morning breakfast for them, which I throw out to them, but they always wait patiently until they hear the door shut, then, they'll swoop down from all directions, chattering and fighting among themselves, like a bunch of busy women, at a bargain sale.

I find these little diversions well worth while in these troubled times, it pays to be friends with our birds, in the pleasure they bring us, we are amply repaid.

We have some very beautiful birds make their home with us in the warm weather, especially the swallows, which invariably nest here, in special houses we keep for them.

THE WAY HE DOES IT

Oh, we'll stub our toes again before we emerge from the darkness of war into the light of peace. But we still have men with what it takes. Men like Colin Kelly! Men like the one-man Philippine army, Captain Wermuth, collecting Jap prisoners in the steaming jungles with the aplomb of a wholesaler in New York buying goods for the firm.

A Bit of Nonsense

Boss—Can you write shorthand?

Pretty Applicant—Yes, sir; but it takes me longer.

... Didn't Bother Him

Feeling in rather a lively mood one evening during the festive season, the men in D Hut gathered round a really raw-looking recruit and started pulling his leg.

But the "rookie" remained quite calm and collected.

"Cripes, man!" burst out "Nobby" Clarke at last. "Can't you hear what we're saying?"

"Sure, I can," was the reply, "but I'm quite used to it. You see, in Civvy Street, I'm an attendant in a lunatic asylum."

Civilizing the Heathen

"As I understand it," said the heathen, "you propose to civilize me?"

"Exactly so."

"You mean to get me out of habits of idleness and teach me to work?"

"That's the idea."

"And then lead me to simplify my methods and invent things to make my work lighter?"

"Yes."

"And next I shall become ambitious and get rich, so I shan't have to work at all?"

"Naturally."

"Well, what's the use of taking such a round-about way of getting just where I started? I don't have to work now."

A Bible Message For Today . . .

A certain man had two sons: and the younger of them said to his father, Father give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living.

And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living.....And when he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare and I perish with hunger!....

And he arose, and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him. And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son.

But the father said to his servant, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet: and bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it; and let us eat, and be merry: for this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found—Luke xv. 11-13, 17, 20-24.

Jail Stepmother For Clipping Girl's Tongue

BELLEVILLE, March 2.—Mrs. T. D. Morgan, strapping 300-pound housew:'e of Thurlow township, was arrested Saturday and charged with maiming her 18-year-old step-daughter, Edna.

Specifically, she was charged with deliberately clipping a small piece off the end of the girl's tongue with a pair of pincers. Police and Children's Aid Society officials who made the arrest found the girl suffering terribly from frost-bitten hands and feet. She was taken to Belleville General Hospital and her condition was reported to be satisfactory. According to the police, the girl told them that her step-mother had driven her out of the house in her bare feet in sub-zero weather. When she was permitted to return to the house her feet were frozen.

The girl complained that later she was ordered to remove the washing from the outside clothes-line and her hands were frozen before she had completed this task.

Mrs Morgan is charged with having clipped the piece of flesh—about the size of a small five-cent piece — from Edna's tongue when the girl took a piece of bread from the pantry between meals.

Thomas Ruston, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, who accompanied the arresting officers, said that the Morgan home was in "a filthy condition."

Mrs. Morgan is 29 and her husband 44. They have six children and Mr. Morgan has three more by a previous marriage. Edna is oldest of the nine.

Mrs. Morgan is charged additionally with assault causing actual bodily harm. It is alleged that on one occasion she struck Edna over the back of the head with a chunk of wood.

A WORLD IS SHATTERED

CHAPTER XVII

"Do you love me, Cassie?"

He felt her stiffen. Her voice was thin and colorless as she answered.

"I don't know, Parris."

He was suddenly angry, but even in this half-dark he could see the haggard, ravaged look that came into her face.

"Never mind, honey, never mind. If you don't want to say it—but somehow I guess I just want you to say the words."

"Never mind, Cassie darling, I—"

"Please don't say it, Parris. Everything is perfect until we try to talk about it. Don't try to understand me."

Back of all the stormy questions that arose against her strange retreat was one small cool question that thrust itself into the heated melee of his resentments. She never permitted him to say that he was in love with her. Just here he was obscurely aware of some justness in her, some intimation of her own that dictated her behavior.

She was something to him that escaped clear definition. But always she troubled him. The slightest thought of her—the most casual image of her that drifted into his day dreaming—carried unrest with it. He couldn't feel treacherous or that he was betraying the man who helped him, however much he said to himself. Some other emotion effectively blocked them off. No: all that he and Cassie were to each other seemed to have its existence in a separate world—a world of their own in which they were accountable only to each other. It was like—some almost forgotten words came easily to his mind—it was like his and Renee's "secret lake."

"Parris!'

"Yes, Renee?"

"What did you say?"

It was still dark when they reached the gate on Cherry street.

"Good night, Parris."

He kissed her. "Good night—my sweetheart."

Parris' heart grew heavier and colder with every step. He did not wish to go home. He felt shut out of it.

He went slowly up the terrace steps and to his room. He had been there but a few minute when Anna knocked and opened the door.

"Ach, Parris, you are here!"

"Yes. I just came in. I—I was out."

"I know. I know. I came for you at midnight when Dr. Gordon left."

Parris sprang to his feet.

'She—is she—?"

Anna looked out of the window at the coming dawn. "Since then," she went on, "she hasn't known anything. I called for you, but you were not here. I thought maybe—I hoped, Parris, maybe it would be over before you came in." She spoke rather apologetically.

Parris did not answer. He was not even thinking. This was the hour. All the long dread and apprehension and terror had led to this dull, leaden center where he felt nothing—seemingly realized nothing. Every nerve was numb.

"Parris, I think maybe you better come now."

"Come—go—in—there?" He pointed like a small child toward the door.

Anna nodded. "Yes. Come. I go with you."

Madame was propped high on her pillows. Her face was white and expressionless; her eyes were nearly closed and deeply sunken.

"Anna. She is asleep?"

Suddenly a low rasping sound grated through the room. Parris started with a kind of terror. He had heard that sound once before. Lucy Carr!

"Anna!" The whisper was wrenched from him.

Parris clenched his hands. "Anna—stop it—some way!"

Anna laid her hands on his shoulder. "Listen to me, Parris. This ould go on for many hours. I think—I think I cannot stand it. Listen to me, my child—if I take the pillows from under her head she—she will die quickly. Think now—it is for you to say."

The color left his face. He looked back at Madame and then, very slowly, back to Anna. He nodded slowly.

"Yes," he said. "Quickly."

Very gently Anna removed the pillows and dropped them on the floor. Parris felt as if screams were trying to tear their way out of his throat, but he made no sound.

Presently a long, hesitant sigh fluttered on Madame's lips, and stopped.

"You go now," Anna said quietly.

The week after Madame von Eln's funeral, Parris made necessary arrangements with Colonel Skeffington and Patterson Lawes of the Burton County Bank about his funds, the sale of the property. Tom Carr and Benny Singer he took care of out of his own expense account.

Wild CRU Meet Proposes 2 Rule Changes

TORONTO, Mar. 2—Words flowed flowed wildly and tempers catapulted Saturday in the sharper moments of a long-drawn-out Canadian Rugby Union annual at the King Edward Hotel before the delegates completed the business at hand, notably that of deciding to carry on the game as long as it is deemed practicable.

Bewildering Session

In a bewildering four-hour session, which was fraught with the technicalities of the constitution, the status of three associate unions, the place of football as a war morale measure, the cross-fire of several eloquent orators, the grid governors struggled through to the bitter end. At one stage the efficient retiring president, Harold Bailey of Toronto, who acted as chairman, was forced to shout for order, and finally threatened to eject some of the more unruly dissenters.

The meeting was no more than two minutes old than one delegate screamed across the room at a tormentor, "It's a lie," to an assertion the first party had made. The rumblings continued intermittently throughout the caucus, ranging from the ridiculous to the sublime.

When the smoke cleared it was decided that two rule changes would be welcomed, one affecting the forward pass and the other imposing stricted interpretation of the rule governing charging of the kicker.

These changes were two of four considered by the rules committee. The committee recommended that the penalty for two successive incompleted passes be abolished, and offenders more severely dealt with for chaiging a kicker.

Two other measures, submitted, as were the two mentioned above, by Western Canada delegates, were rejected. One suggested elimination of the point for a deadline kick, and the other asked for uniform blocking rules, viz., backfielders blocking five yards ahead of the line of scrimmage. Linemen are allowed that privilege under the present rules.

Purchase Victory Bonds

The brief storm of argument was kicked up when the representation of the Interprovincial Union, inactive last season, when it was replaced by the Eastern Union, was questioned by Frank Lennard of Dundas, president of the Ontario Union. The Interprovincial finally was ruled an associate union, with four instead of six votes, while the Eastern was formally accepted into the C.R.U. with two votes.

It was decided that the C.R.U. would make every effort to carry on just so long as football does not interfere with the war effort. In this regard it was decided that $3,000 of the $4,248 on hand be used for the purchase of Victory Bonds.

A long discussion was opened by N. J. Taylor, president of the Western Interprovincial Union, on the aid the C.R.U. could give minor football across Canada. Hamilton Cassells of Toronto was named to head a committee to investigate minor football conditions and decide on the aid needed. Joe Ryan of Winnipeg suggested that funds to aid the minors be taken from the national football final receipts and that the Interprovincial, O.R.F.U., Quebec Union and Western junior leagues be added.

Prof. A. W. Matthews of Edmonton was elected president, succeeding Harold Bailey of Toronto. Hamilton Cassels of Toronto was made first vice-president; Dr. A. P. Davies of Ottawa, second vice-president, and Lieutenant-Colonel Stuart Forbes of Montreal, third vice-president.

The executive members will be N. J. Taylor of Regina and T. H. C. Alison of Toronto. Two changes were made on the board of governors, Dr. E. A. Hardy of Saskatoon replacing C. E. Crown of Winnipeg and H. H. McKee of Toronto replacing W. S. Haney of Sarnia.

Because of conditions in the west, where it is possible that Winnipeg Blue Bombers and one other club may be the only ones operating in a senior league, it was decided that a two-team league may challenge for the right to enter the C.R.U. playdowns but the challenge will be subject to approval by the executive.

It was suggested, too, that the C.R.U. set up its own definition of an amateur.

A report on the year's activities of the Six Man Football Union was given by Jess Fitton, president, who said that 800 schools and other organizations are playing the abbreviated game across Canada. He was voted $300 to carry on the work.

Yank Holdouts Make Camp Rookie School

(By AUSTIN BEALMEAR.)

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP).—Baseball's grapefruit season — the period of dress rehearsal that gets the players in shape, the managers in print, and the fans in a dither—is here again, but this one previews a major league campaign designed to boost both morale and finances of a country at war.

Having contributed their share of manpower to the armed forces, the teams will add further to the war effort by raising funds in several ways, inviting service men to be their guests and keeping the citizens entertained, while settling a little matter of supremacy among themselves.

From now until the mid-April opening dates, the major league clubs will battle each other and minor league foes in a series of exhibitions stretching from their training bases in Florida and California to their home diamonds.

But even the war failed to spare club owners the headaches caused by the perennial strikers—known to the trade as holdouts.

In that department from the standpoint of money involved, New York Yankees again top both leagues. With six regulars still unwilling to accept the club's terms, the Yankee workouts at St. Petersburg, Fla., have resembled a school for rookies the last week.

Joe DiMaggio, most valuable player in the American League last season, wants $40,000 to play centre field this year and is quietly waiting out President Ed Barrow who hasn't made a vote. Other Yanks whose signatures are needed on the dotted line are Pitcher Red Ruffing, Catcher Bill Dickey, Outfielder Charley Keller, and Infielders Joe Gordon and Red Rolfe.

Detroit Tigers, launching an economy campaign, still haven't convinced nine members of their squad that the figures mentioned in their 1942 contracts are adequate. The group includes Pitchers Paul Trout, Buck Newsom, Luther Thomas and John Gorsica, Catcher Bill Sullivan, First Baseman Rudy York, and Outfielders Rip Radcliff Barney McCosky, and Dick Wakefield.

Brooklyn Dodgers have rounded up everybody except Whitlow Wyatt, who pitched them to 22 victories last year. Wyatt worked for $11,500 in 1941 and wants $20,000 this year, threatening to pitch hay on his farm instead of pitching for Brooklyn if he doesn't get it.

President Larry MacPhail, who knows $20,000 isn't hay, may let Whit try it on the farm.

A similar attitude has been taken by Connie Mack of Philadelphia Athletics in the case of first baseman Dick Siebert, who was offered a contract and told to take it or leave it."

Everybody on the Pittsburg Pirate roster is happy except first baseman Elbie Fletcher, outfielder Vince DiMaggio and pitcher Bob Klinger. St. Louis Cardinals also have an unsigned trio in Frank Crespi, Eddie Lake and Woody English, all infielders.

Boston Red Sox, pleasantly surprised by Ted Williams' draft reclassification to 3-A, still need to sign Mike Ryba and Jimmy Foxx, both of whom are expected to be around when the action begins.

Shortstop Bill Jurges is the New York Giants' only holdout.

Jeff Heath hasn't signed his Cleveland contract but the Indians are so happy over Roy Weatherly's early signing they don't care—much.

CURLING NEWS

By HERB MARTIN

Along about this time of the year, when we run into a couple of days of mild weather, a lot of our chaps get excited and they immediately want to throw up the sponge. Spring has arrived; Winter is gone and the curling is all over—some of them even go so far as to securely lock up their stones and start packing up their dry goods and head for home.

We expect the boys will be in on No. 8 today or maybe tomorrow, and each in their turn will tell his little story. One chap will say that he can well remember when he was a little boy back on the farm, how his father commenced ploughing on the last day of February of a certain year and they never had better crops. And then there will be the other chap who will tell us about the ice going out of "Lake Papoose" on February 28, 18—. Excuse us, please, there goes the phone. It was just another cute little fellow who asked us: "Now that Spring has arrived, how long will it be before the ice is entirely out of the rink?"

Well, we never figured that one out, but we expect it will be some dark night. And so it goes merrily on. And, just to soothe the nerves of some of our curlers our records show that over a period of thirty years, March 22nd is the average date on which we sign off.

What we know about the weather is very little, and whether March comes in like a lamb and goes out like a lion or the other way around matters very little. We still know that March is March, and our advice is to keep your furnaces going for a little while yet.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Arrangements were completed over the week-end for the Collingwood-Peterborough senior B series. The first game will be played in Collingwood Wednesday night and the second is slated for Peterborough on Friday—provided of course that the weather man comes through with enough ice to make this arrangement feasible. Otherwise it is probable that the games will have to be transferred to artificial ice arenas. The series is a best two-of-three affair with games, not goals, deciding the issue and in the event of the teams breaking even in the first two battles a third game will be staged on neutral ice. The winner of this series will meet the winner of the Merriton-Windsor Spitfires round for the senior B title. Windsor took the first game at home Friday night by 10 goals to 5 and as goals count on that round they look plenty strong enough to come through. The second game is billed for St. Catharines Tuesday night and the Spitfires are likely to add to their lead.

* * * * * *

The Collingwood Shipbuilders with whom the Petes will battle in the next round are a highly-touted aggregation. They have lots of scoring punch, according to stories from the north and a strong defence. Among the rearguards is a brother of big Jack Portland of the Montreal Canadiens. Other Collingwood players include Kirby and Scott who were members of the Atlantic City Eastern United States League team last season and before that played with Barrie Colts and Kelly who starred with Cornwall Flyers and other good teams. The local Soldiers realize that they are in for a tough series and they are not treating the northerners lightly. At the same time they figure that they have been up against tougher opposition all season than have the Shipbuilders and that because of that fact they are likely to have an edge on an outfit that has been more or less coasting all winter. At all events the Petes are full of confidence and full of fight and they hope to take the Collingwood series in two straight games and make a third game unnecessary. It should be a real round between two smart clubs.

* * * * * *

Looking back over the group the Petes have just captured it will have to be admitted that it was a strong loop than was hoped for at first when Kingston elected to go up into faster company. At the outset the packed Belleville Reliance team looked like the toughest outfit in the loop. Peterborough had lost Jack Jopling from last season and there had been no large-scale importing of players. However the return to town of Don Crowe and Drake Jopling, with the addition of Perce Nichols from the Military Training Centre, Bruce Bennett from Belleville and Din Reilly from Galt, and the fact that the bulk of last year's good team was still here, rounded out the Petes into a squad that proved good enough to finish in first place in the group race and come through in the playoffs to take it all. Whitby Falm Billiards started with a weak squad but gradually added Oshawa strength until they had a squad formidable enough to eliminate Belleville in the playoffs. The other team in the loop, Trenton Flyers, only won one game, that an important one by the way, but they battled to the wire every time out and came decidedly close half a dozen times. They filled every engagement and earned a lot of friends by the manner in which they fought it out to the last ditch in games that did not mean a thing to them. Belleville's flop was the big surprise of the season. They jammed in reinforcements from all over the map but failed to get anywhere.

Electricians Eliminated

The C.G.E. team was eliminated from any possible chance for a playoff position in the City League race Saturday night when they were defeated 57 to 37 by the leading Quakers who staged a second-half onslaught to win going away. The Electricians battled on even terms all through the first half; in fact at the rest period they were in front 22 to 21. But Quakers opened the throttle wide in the second period and with Jimmy Thorburn and Joe Jakafby looping in baskets from all over the place soon pulled out in front and kept increasing the lead. Thorburn helped himself to a 23-point total and Jakafby had 18 to his credit in an excellent offensive display. C.G.E. had an outside chance up to Saturday night. If they had beaten Quakers and gone on to take a fall out of Collegiate they would have tied things up. As it is the Quakers have first place cinched and Dominions and Collegiate will probably wind up tied for second, making a playoff necessary to see which team will meet Quakers in the final round.

Leafs, Canadiens Win

Canada's two representatives in the National Hockey League did well by themselves over the week-end. By winning two games from Chicago Black Hawks the Toronto Maple Leafs, still with a game in hand, cut the lead of the New York Rangers to two points. Leafs overwhelmed Chicago 8 to 2 in Toronto Saturday night with Nick Metz sparking the attack with three goals and came from behind in Chicago Sunday night to win 4 to 3, Hank Goldup getting the winning goal with less than three minutes to play. Leafs and Rangers will battle down the stretch for the N.H.L. championship with Rangers in Toronto Saturday and Leafs playing in New York Sunday. Canadiens made a real bid for a playoff post by defeating Brooklyn Amerks 8 to 3 in Montreal and then going back to New York and holding Red Dutton's gang to a 3-3 tie. As a result the Canadiens picked up three points and climbed into sixth place, shoving the Amerks down into the cellar.

As suspected Guy Roach has been lost to the Petes. Bill Walshe of the Kingston Whig-Standard tells about it in the following paragraph: "Guy Roach, star rearguard of the Kingston Combines O.H.A. senior staff has been transferred to Ottawa for military duty and may line up with Ottawa Senators in the Quebec senior playoffs." Apparently this Mister Roach is a very essential portion of the Canadian army. Last fall he was merely a trainee at the local Military Centre but as winter closed in military headquarters at Kingston discovered that he was just the man who was needed down there to fill a staff gap. By a strange coincidence he also was just the man needed to fill a gap in the Kingston Combines defence. And now that Kingston is out of hockey the military authorities at Ottawa have arrived at the conclusion that Roach's presence at the capital is essential to Canada's war effort and so he has been transferred there. By another coincidence he will be found playing with the Ottawa Senators. And at the end of the season he will probably be just a military number again.

Can He Fill Bobby's Shoes

Vernon Kennedy, LEFT, former ace of the pitching staff of the Washington Senators, recently sold to the Cleveland Indians, promises Lou Boudreau, RIGHT, manager and infielder of the Indians, that he will do his best to fill the shoes of Bobby Feller. Feller, outstanding Indian hurler, is now "pitching" for the U.S. army.

Baseball Training Camp Notes

By The Associated Press).

CLEARWATER, Fla.—That Cleveland vacancy at first base doesn't appeal to Chubby Dean, the pitcher who used to be assigned to the initial bag by Connie Mack. Currently, Handyman Oscar Grimes and Rookies Lew Fleming, Vern Frieburger and Don Barton are the candidates for Hal Trosky's old job along with Rookie Catcher Otto Denning.

"Let those fellows worry about the job," says Chubby, "I'm a pitcher."

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Lon Warneke, lanky pitcher, is the only member of the St. Louis Cardinal squad not rounding rapidly into playing condition. Warneke has been troubled with a cold, but he expects to be in uniform again today.

EL CENTRO, Calif.—Bill Clemenson, Pittsburg Pirate hurler, has been granted a day off March 17 to marry his schoolday sweetheart, Helen Regina Kelly, at his Santa Cruz home.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Detroit Tigers have nine holdouts, General Manager Jack Zeller announced on arrival here, but the only surprises in the lot are Outfielder Rip Radcliff and Pitcher Bud Thomas.

Radcliff is expected in camp shortly, but Thomas has indicated he will remain on his farm at North Garden, Va., until the difficulties have been cleared up.

MIAMI, Fla.—Manager Mel Ott of New York Giants was looking for the answer to the baseball riddle that permitted his club to score in the first inning of each of the two week-end games with Brooklyn Dodgers, but kept the bats silenced the remainder of the way although Sunday's 3-2 game went 12 innings. A hitting drill is scheduled for today.

HAVANA.—Two crowds of approximately 5,000 each saw Brooklyn Dodgers, Cuba's favorites, defeat New York Giants twice during the week-end. Manager Leo Durocher was pleased with the hurling efforts of his rookies and the five-inning, one-hit stunt of Big Hugh Casey.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Although Joe DiMaggio's cabin is only 14 miles from the park where New York Yankees are training, the slugging outfielder hasn't appeared at any of the workouts.

DiMaggio, the American Leauge's most valuable player last season, officially becomes a holdout today when the outfielders and infielders are expected to report.

ANAHEIM, Calif.—Russ Christopher, rookie pitcher drafted by Philadelphia Athletics from Newark, made an impressive big-league debut yesterday by holding Seattle hitless in a three-inning turn on the mound. In addition, he banged out a single and a triple.

Alberta Squads Quit, No Cash

CALGARY, March 2. — (CP).— Plans for starting the semi-finals of the Alberta-British Columbia Senior Hockey League have been blocked by the refusal of the Kimberley Dynamiters and Trail Smoke Eaters to continue in the playoffs.

Both clubs cited finances as the reason for their wthdrawal from the playoffs. League president, Fred Cameron of Turner Valley, submitted new plans for financing the British Columbia teams, including substantial guarantees, but these have been refused.

President Cameron demands that both Trail and Kimberley fulfill their obligations with the A. B. C. League, and an appeal has been made to Frank Sargeant, Port Arthur, vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, for a ruling.

Kimberley was scheduled to meet Lethbridge Maple Leafs in the first game of the best of three semi-final series at Lethbridge Tuesday night.

Then, leaving Anna in charge of the sale, he moved in with Drake McHugh.

"I couldn't go back—out there," he told Lawes and Skeffington.

"A gentleman, Colonel," observed Patterson Lawes when Parris had left.

The Colonel did not answer. He was making great ado with his handkerchief.

"Amazing to see a youngster take the death of an old woman so hard,"

Parris was sorting and packing books. He sat back on his heels and wiped his face on his sleeve.

"It's been awfully good of you Drake, to take me in—just now."

"Aw—"

"I haven't been—I guess I can't be any fun to be with."

"I wanted you to stay here. I wish you wouldn't go away at all."

"I half wish so, too, Drake. Or—that you'd come along."

"Nope. Guess my place is round here."

"Drake."

"Yep."

"You haven't said anything about Louise."

"Ain't seen her—to talk to her—since that day you came along."

"You're not fair to her."

"How do you figure that out?"

"Well, she can't follow you around and try to see you."

Parris reached for a pillow and put it under his head. "Gee, I'm too tired to get up from here."

"You've had a pretty big day, kid. Take it easy. . . . Listen! What's that?"

"What's what?"

"I hear someone running up the drive."

Parris sat up. There was a rush of steps on the long side porch, then a quick knock at the door. Drake opened it, and Casandra Tower came into the room. She was out of breath and a little disheveled. Parris struggled awkwardly to his feet.

"Cassie! What's up?"

"I've got to talk to you a minute."

Drake wheeled a chair forward. "Sit down, Cassie."

She looked at him and nodded but remained standing.

Parris stared curiously at Cassandra. She had that look he had seen a few times before—desperate—a sort of shocked desperation.

"Sit down, Cassie. What's the matter?"

Her eyes seemed to come slowly to focus, almost as if she had difficulty in seeing.

"Parris—you remember the other night?"

"Of course!" His voice was suddenly hoarse.

"You said—when — when you came back—would I marry you."

"Yes, Cassie. I meant it. I'll say it again."

"Parris!"

"You look scared."

"You—you did mean what you said?"

"Of course I did."

"Then let me go with you—now."

"Now?"

"Yes, now. I've got to. I'll run

Krauts Net Three As Volants Fall To Fliers

OTTAWA, March 2—(CP).—Hull Volants learned an object lesson Saturday — you can't stop the Krauts by body-checking.

The three-time champions of the Ottawa City Senior League experimented with that formula against Royal Canadian Air Force Fliers in the first game of the league's best of seven final playoff series and dropped a 6-4 verdict before 7,262 paid admissions, second largest city league crowd since 1929.

Replying in kind every time Volants tried to play rough, the Kraut line rode out a stiff checking barrage to split up seven scoring points—Woody Dumart two goals and an assist, Bobby Bauer one goal and an assist and Milt Schmidt two assist.

Johny Acheson, Buddy Hellyer and Mike Miller contributed the other three goals as the Air Force team posted its fourth straight post-season triumph.

Coach Bob Guertin's Volants, showing unexpected scoring power, counted their four goals through Joffre Seguin, Joe Wilmon, Ab Cholette and Patsy Guzzo.

Second game of the series will be played here Tuesday.

LEAFS TAKE HAWKS TWICE BY 8-2 AND 4-3 IN WEEK-END BILL

Wins Close Gap With Rangers To Two Points

TORONTO, March 2. — (CP)— There may have been some inclination here and there last week to concede the National Hockey League championship to New York Rangers for the second time in three seasons. But that was last week and things sure have changed in the past couple of nights.

Now it is crystal-clear that the Toronto Maple Leafs are far from definitely out of the title picture and will at least make things mighty uncomfortable for the Rangers.

The Leafs picked up four points on the idle Rangers during the week-end, all at the expense of the struggling Chicago Black Hawks, who have been having more than their share of troubles lately. An 8-2 victory in Toronto Saturday night and a 4-3 win at Chicago last night pulled the Toronto club up to within a mere two points of the leading New Yorkers, who have played one more game.

What probably will happen is that the title will be decided next week-end when Rangers and Leafs hook up in one of those week-end double bills, playing first at Toronto and then at New York.

Two Tie Fracases

Both of the remaining games on last night's schedule resulted in ties, which is something unusual in a season that has seen only 11 tie games since the schedule started. At Boston, the Bruins showed they're not entirely out, even if they may be down, by gaining a 3-3 draw with Detroit's fifth-place Red Wings, and at New York Montreal Canadiens gained a 1-1 division of the spoils with Brooklyn's tottering Americans.

The New York game left Canadiens in the unfamiliar but welcome sixth and last playoff spot, one point ahead of the Amerks, whom they whipped at Montreal Saturday night, 8-3.

With each facing five more games to complete their schedule, the Canadiens now are slight favorites to grab the last playoff berth, and they may even make things hot for the fifth place Wings, who are three points further up.

Hank Goldup was Toronto's hero at Chicago last night, cracking a 3-3 draw with less than three minutes left on Bucko McDonald's pass. Syl Apps' second goal, 10 minutes earlier, had put the Leafs on even terms after Bill Carse sent the Hawks in front by 3-2 early in the third frame.

All of the remaining goals came in an action-packed first period. Apps and Pete Langelle gave the Leafs a 2-0 edge that was nullified when old Bill Thoms struck twice against his former mates in the space of nine seconds.

At New York, Toe Blake put the Canadiens in front midway through the second but Pat Egan tied it up a minute later and there was no more scoring.

Roy Conacher finally hit the net at Boston for his first goals in 10 games and scored twice as the Bruins pulled out a tie with the Wings. The other Boston counter went to Jack McGill while Detroit's tallies were picked up by Adam Brown, Syd Abel and Eddie Wares.

Western Aces Favored In Brier Play

QUEBEC, March 2—(CP).—With the pick of Canadian curlers scheduled to see action this afternoon in the opening round of the Macdonald's Brier Tankard playdowns, the feeling among curling authorities today was that the domination the West has hel dover the eevnt in the previous 15 seasons, would hold good again this time.

Western provinces, however, are down for tough assignments in their first tests, and it is believed the outcome of these matches will paint a clear picture of what to expect the remaining eight rounds of the round-robin series which declares a Dominion championship rink.

J. Ken Watson of Manitoba, who won the title back in 1936, is rated the leading Western contender. Known as one of the most colorful figures in the game, Ken Watson returns for the Brier award with his brother Grant, who played with him in 1936.

Manitoba's first clash will be against the Nova Scotia entry skipped by John I. Hebb. The Maritimer present a formidable opponent and has with him two other players who played under him in 1940 in F. W. Cook and W. P. Bickle.

Alberta's Hope, Slavik.

The 1941 champion province — Alberta — pins its hopes on a newcomer to tankard play in John L. Slavik. He also stacks up against a Maritime entry in his first appearance when he meets W. R. Cruickshank's quartette of Prince Edward Island. It will be the second straight year for Cruickshank to bid for the award, but his three teammates are newcomers to the title playdowns.

Like Alberta, Saskatchewan's colors will be worn by a comparative first performer in the Brier, skipped by John E. Franklin. Only J. D. Lang, his second has played in the tourney before but the foursome from Rosetown comes East with a strong reputation.

However, one of Saskatchewan's big obstacles stand in the first round in the form of Gordon M. Campbell's Ontario entry. Campbell is one of the better-known competitors for the coveted Tankard and captured the crown in 1935. On his rink at the time were two brothers, Duncan and Donald. The former returns with him in search of the award, but Donald makes his appearance as skip of the strong British Columbia rink.

The Vancouver squad is rated highly for the award and besides Donald Campbell who played in the event on three previous occasions, it has two other Brier repeaters in lead G. T. Law and third F. W. Avery.

Northern Ontario's team handled by Bill McMitchell takes on British Columbia in the initial round and this match is down as one of the features of the day. It will be the first time McMitchell or his teammates have played in the event.

Daniel P. Connolly brings a seasoned foursome to represent New Brunswick. With his twin brother Joe Connolly and second J. A. Kennah, Dan Connolly has tried on three previous occasions for the crown. His lead is A. E. Landry who played in the Brier four seasons back.

Against this band of veterans, J. A. Ross, Jr., will pit his Quebec four which is getting its baptism in the Brier show.

The first round is scheduled to get under way at 2:30 p.m., with another round this evening. Tomorrow two rounds are set for 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m., while on Wednesday the teams appear again at 2:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Play comes to a close on Thursday, when three draws will be staged, starting at 9:30 a.m., 2:30 p.m., and 7:30 p.m.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, March 2—(AP). — Note on the permanency of athletic fame: When the A.A.U. moguls gathered yesterday to award the Sullivan Trophy, President Larry De Benedetto made the opening speech lauding Leslie MacNitchell. ....The next speaker told about "Leslie MacMullin," and the third congratulated "Mrs. Mitchell" on having such an outstanding and stalwart son....Maybe it's just as well that Cornelius Warmerdam didn't get the trophy....When Joe Louis takes on Abe Simon he may have to go through his first fight without his trainer, Old Jack Blackburne, who is taking treatments for sciatica at Hot Spring, Ark. Jack wasn't able to do more than give advice and moral support in the Buddy Baer scrap, while Manny Seamon did the real work in Joe's corner.

Foul Play

Since no one of his club pulled this one, Nick Etten of the Phils feels safe in reporting what he thinks was last season's prize boner or best hitting—he doesn't know which. Max West of the Braves had just grounded out and advanced a runner to third base. The first baseman threw the ball home and the catcher let it get away just far enough so that the runner made a break. West, heading for the bench, absently picked up the ball and tossed it to the catcher, who made a putout. While everybody, including Casey Stengel, still was speechless, Paul Waner administered a perfect rebuke by fouling one off so that the ball caught Max on the back of the neck.

Pat Egan, Americans, scored Brooklyn's only goal Sunday.

Nick Metz, Toronto, tallied three times and obtained two assists as Leafs trounced Chicago Hawks 8-2 Saturday and then assisted in one of Leafs' goals as they beat the Hawks 4-3 Sunday.

Bill Carse, Chicago, scored a goal in each game in the Hawks' double defeat.

Roy Conacher, Boston, tallied two goals, one of them the tying point, as Bruins tied Detroit 3-3 Sunday.

Requested Takes Flamingo, Alsab Third

MIAMI, Fla., March 2—(AP).— Ben F. Witaker's Requested forced to play second fiddle to Alsab as a 2-year-old, turned the tables Saturday with a spectacular victory in the rich Flamingo Stakes worth $28,150.

Coming out of nowhere with a burst of his old speed, Alsab snatched third place, back of the long-shot Redthorn.

The biggest crowd of the season at Hialeah Park, 26,571, got its first thrill in a mile and an eighth $2,500 race when Louis Tufano's astounding Cinderella horse, Market Wise, beat one of the best fields ever to run here.

From dead last at the start, Market Wise came through handily under a brilliant ride by Jockey Wendell Eads to win going away over such champions as Attention, War Relic, Challedon, Pictor, Mioland and Porter's Cap.

Attention Lands Place

Mrs. Parker Corning's Attention, starting for the first time of the winter, took second, and Samuel D. Riddle's War Relic was third in the event—in which every advance favorite for next week's $50,000 Widener Handicap was a competitor.

Once Eddie Arcaro called upon Requested to make his bid in the Flamingo there was little doubt that the Whitaker colt would triumph. The horse was third at the three-quarter post in the mile and an eighth heat, took the lead as the field of sixteen thundered into the stretch and flashed over the finish four lengths to the good.

Alsab picked up quickly in the mad stretch rush, but wound up five lengths back of J. J. McIntyre's Redthorn, a field horse.

Strung along behind Al Sabath's 1941 juvenile sensation were the pick of the 3-year-olds gathered at Hialeah—including most of the horses which will figure in the Kentucky Derby.

In the face of Requested's lightning workouts this week, the crowd had not backed him heavily and the payoff was $13.10 for a $2 win ticket. The place and show prices were $5.70 and $4.30.

Redthorn returned $6.30 and $3.70, and Alsab closed at $5 even to show.

The triumph ran Requested's total winnings to $78,400.

Payoff Figures

Well liked because of his victory last week in the McLennan Handicap, Market Wise returned $8.90; $4.50 and $3.70 across the board. Attention came in at $6.60 and $4.90, and the show price on War Relic was $4.40.

Obtained by Tufano for the outlay of only $500, Market Wise now has won $112,640.

The winner of neither feature challenged the track record for the mile and one furlong—1 minute, 48 1-5 seconds, established by Brevity and equalled by Stagehand.

Market Wise romped home in a minute, 49 3-5, but Requested needed the comparatively slow time of 1 minute, 50 2-5 seconds.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press

Although New York Rangers remained idle during the week-end, the crack Ranger line of Bryan Hextall, Phil Watson and Lynn Patrick remained atop the National Hockey League's individual scoring list in that order.

Detroit's Don Grosso pulled to within two points of Patrick, obtaining two assists during the week-end to bring his total up to 44 points, 20 goals and 24 assists.

Chicago' Bill Thom's and Detroit's Syd Abel were left tied in fifth place with 52 points apiece, as Thoms scored two goals and assisted in another during the week-end while Abel tallied once. Gordie Drillon of Toronto remained in seventh place but brought his total to 39 points by counting once and obtaining two assists.

Buffalo Upsets Indians 5-1, Eagles Win 6-1

SPRINGFIELD, March 2—(CP)— Playoff time in the American Hockey League is coming around in about two weeks time—the playdowns start March 17—and with still about five games left to play for each team, the standings are still far from being conclusive.

Springfield Indians went down to a 5-1 defeat at the hands of Buffalo Bisons Saturday and with seven games left to play, the Indians hold a nine-point lead over the second place New Haven Eagles in the Eastern divisoin.

The Eagles, their chances of catching Springfield rapidly dwindling, suffered a 5-2 setback Saturday against Hershey Bears but came back Sunday to trounce the Bears 6-1. Centreman Norm Burns paced the Eagles to their Saturday victory scoring three goals in 11 minutes in the opening period to start the Eagles off on a sucessful evening. Phil Hergesheimer counted twice for the Bears Saturday and opened the scoring before one minute had passed in the opening of Sunday's return match.

Barons Hold Position

Cleveland Barons retained their hold on second place with Hershey in the Western division by downing Philadelphia Rockets 7-3 Sunday. The Capitols flipped in five goals in the final period of the game after the Rockets had wiped out their early two-goal lead.

Two wins during the week-end moved Pittsburg Hornets within one point of the fourth place Buffalo Bisons in the Western division.

Washington Lions moved into sole possession of third place in the Eastern division breaking a tie with Providence Reds by defeating the Reds 5-2 Sunday. Louis Trudel paced the Lions with two goals with Irvin McGibbon, Stu Smith and Conny Tudin accounting for the other Eagle goals.

Potatoes Hit $2.25 Mark On Farm Market

"Hold your breath for potatoes are $2 to-day," said Herb Doig on the market Saturday, but that quotation was no surprise after hearing $2.25 from three or four other growers.

The trade lacked agreement and unanimity on the potato figures. A. Olan of Millbrook, was asking $2 for No. 1 Katahdins; W. H. Lindsay, Campbellcroft, $2.25; R. Kinsmen of Campbellcroft $2 for Cobblers and Katahdins; M. H. Johnston & Sons, North Monaghan $2.25 for White Stars.

Erle Tully of Smith, was not much interested in the day's prices. All he was showing were some sample Cobblers and Chippewas, $2.75 for No. 1 and $2.50 for No. 2, presumably of special attraction to those looking for seed.

Mr. Doig's other prices were: Onions 45c the six quart basket, parsnips, carrots and beets 35c for six quart lots, cabbage three for twenty-five cents; and the afore-mentioned potatoes $2 the bag.

The weather was favorable Saturday, bringing out out a considerable increase in the number of producers. H. R. Gill's meat prices were: Pork 18 and 20; beef 16 and 18; lamb 20 and 22.

Butter was 35 to 37 cents, broiler chickens 35 cents, eggs were 32 to 35 cents, hens 25 cents, chickens 27 to 30 cents a pound, and eight or ten turkeys were 32 cents for hens and 30 cents for gobblers.

Norman Moncrief's apples were: Russets Greenings and Talman Sweets 60 cents a peck, Spies 75c and Starks and Scotch Winters 50 cents.

3 Days of Naval Battle.

The bay menacing Bandung was one of three striking into the interior of Java from footholds won by the Jaapnese during the week-end after a terrific three-day series of naval battles, in which the Netherlands announced they had sunk or damaged at least 26 vessels of an invasion armada composed of 50 transports and 20 warships.

East and west of Bandung, the Japanese—who were believed to have set more than 60,000 men ashore — were attempting to fight their way toward the great Allied naval base of Sourabaya and the city of Batavia, East Indies capital.

The Indies reported one of these forces had advanced 16 miles inland from Rembang and captured the town of Blora, on the coastal railroad about 90 miles west of Sourabaya.

The third force, landed in the Bantam district on the Java west coast, about 60 miles from Batavia, apparently had made little progress.

On a Three-way Drive.

It is obvious the Japanese are attempting to cut the 622-mile long Island of Java into three parts but the Allies are said to be massing their forces for counter attacks against the invaders, whose losses already are described as heavy.

To impede the invaders. Netherlands forces were demolishing bridges and railways everywhere along the line of the enevy advance, putting into operation long-rehearsed plans.

Carrying out the scorched earth policy they had followed earlier in Celebes, Borneo, Sumatra, and Bali, they put the torch to everything of value where they were forced to retreat.

Before Japanese reached Blora, th great oil wells and refineries at Tjapoe, 30 miles to the south-east were reduced to a mass of smoking ruins.

It was estimated that to oppose the Japanese, the Netherlands had an army of 100,000 to 250,000 men, composed largely of hard-bitten Javanese, augmented by some thousands of British, Australian, and American troops, as well as Dutch Colonials.

In a desperate attempt to prevent the Japanese from winning footholds on Java, the small but efficient naval force of the United Nations suffered heavy blows—the Netherlands losing two cruisers and two destroyers in violent sea battles which began on Friday and continued at intervals through the week-end.

They declared, however, that their sacrifices were not in vain—that at least 17 enemy transports and nine warships were sunk or damaged.

Terrific Casualties.

How many Japanese soldiers went down aboard foundering transports without setting foot on Java could only be guessed—but it was believed here that casualties were frightful.

Of the Japanese warships participating in the operations, the Indies reported at least two cruisers sunk or put out of action, another badly damaged, three destroyers left sinking and burning, and another vessel of unspecified type blown up.

Two other Japanese cruisers were said to have been hit by bombs dropped by Allied warplanes.

The Netherlands High Command disclosed that the two cruisers lost were torpedoed Saturday night by Japanese submarines in a suicidal attempt to smash the invasion armada after battling the enemy successfully at long range during the daylight hours.

Bombers and fighters of the United Nations command, which played an important part in the sea action preceding the Japanese landings, are said to be giving Allied land forces strong support in combatting the invaders' advance inland.

One flight of Allied fighting planes is reported to have machine-gunned a column of 200 or 300 Japanese for a full hour yesterday as they tried to move along a road, finally wiping out most of the unit.

Although the Japanese already had cut the main railway paralleling the northern coast of Java at two points in their drives southward from Indramaju and Rembang, communications between Batavia and Sur abaya some 450 miles to the east still are intact.

An important problem in the defence of Java is the fact that it is the most densely-populated region of the world—a total of 45,000,000 people being crowded on to the island.

The government issued strict orders forbidding mass evacuation of the civilians from threatened areas, in order to leave highways open for the movement of troops.

Reds In Sight

had cracked within the past few days.

The Germans transformed Staraya Russa, once a Russian resort city famous for its brine springs, into a base for communications on the northwest front south of Leningrad. The city, near Lake Ilmen, is 280 miles northwest of Moscow and 140 miles almost due south of Leningrad.

The mid-day communique of the Soviet information bureau declared that Russian planes were frustrating all German attempts to supply the encircled Nazi forces in the Staraya Russa sector from the air.

Unending Battle in North

Bitter fighting continued in the Leningrad area, where the Russians are attempting to lift the siege of the second Soviet city.

The communique said that Red Army forces, attacking the Nazi siege lines, had destroyed two German blockhouses, 15 dugouts and two observation posts during two days of fighting. The Germans were said to have left 1,200 men and officers dead on the battlefield.

The publication Soviet War News estimated that German losses in the Leningrad sector during the last six months totalled 10,420 men and 490 officers, including two generals and 160 secret police agents.

On the central front, with the Russians concentrating on the Smolensk drive, troops under Gen. Golubev were reported by the Moscow radio to have wiped out two infantry battalions and smashed the headquarters of two infantry regiments.

In some sectors of the central front, it was said, the Germans have counter-attacked with the support of tanks.

Both the Russian and German armies are throwing planes, tanks and artillery into the fighting on the southwestern and southern fronts where the battlefield is a vast quagmire under rain and melting snow.

The Russians said the Germans brought up the 257th and 85th infantry divisions to help hold the Red advance but that Soviet airmen killed many of the Nazis before they got near the front.

The Russian midnight communique reported only vaguely that Soviet troops occupied several inhabited localities.

Beyond reports that the Russians were driving on Smolensk and Dnieperopetrovsk, had encircled Staraya Russa and were attempting to break the Leningrad siege, there was no clear outline of the long winter front. Official reports for weeks have been purposely general to keep the Germans confused on the progress of the winter offensive.

HEALTH CHATS

By D. B. AVISON, M.D., D.P.H., Medical Officer of Health

In our last chat I promised to answer in the next one, three questions:

1.—It is true that as we advance in the scale of modern civilization that our mothers have less milk for our babies and, if so, why?

2.—Is the habit of turning the feeding of our babies over to a cow or a tin can the result of feeling that other things are more important than feeding our babies with the food that nature intended for them?

3.—Is it true that many mothers do not feed their babies lest it spoil their own figures, and is it true that the mother who does not suckle her young will retain a better figure than the one who does?

Experience has convinced doctors who have had the opportunity to observe peoples of different races and of widely different economic status that mothers in the higher scale of modern civilization and the higher income brackets depend more on artificial feedings for their babies than do those in opposite classes. Whether this means that the former are less capable of producing their own milk or not is undecided. Theoretically, the mother who is better fed and has more opportunity for rest and recreation should have more milk, but this apparently is not the case. Why?

This brings us to our second question. It must be admitted that in a large number of cases the answer is "Yes." The feeding of one's own child of necessity requires that the mother is not as free to engage in other activities as when she can leave a bottle of milk in the icebox for someone else to warm up and feed her child. She can get out more to teas, shows or card parties or, if she has a job, can continue her work as a wage earner. In the latter case there is some excuse if her earning are essential to real needs. The other cases provide no excuse except selfishness, something that all true mothers are supposed to be devoid of.

We must also admit that actually many mothers do not appear to have enough milk to meet their babies needs. For this deficiency, we find two causes. One is just the fact that they haven't it and in these cases there is nothing we can do that will increase it. The other type of milk scarcity sems to be due to a number of factors, the most important of which is due to insufficient stimulation of the breast by the suckling infant. For this we have to blame largely the rules of feeding introduced by hospitals and doctors. We all know that if for any reason we wish to dry up a mother's milk supply, all we have to do is take the baby away. There may be a few days of discomfort but with occasional emptying of the breast, the milk gradually ceases to be secreted. When a hospital makes a practice of not taking a baby to a mother for feeding until the third or fourth day, when the milk normally comes in in great quantity, that hospital is paving the way for a scanty milk supply.

I am convinced that a baby should be put to the breast as soon as convenient after birth and thereafter put there at regular intervals whether it seems to be getting anything or not. Of course, it actually is getting a very important fluid called "colostrum," but even more important is the stimulation given the breasts to perform their proper functions.

From the baby's standpoint I am all out for regular feedings but I am not at all convinced that such infrequent feedings as five or six daily is necessary to protect the baby's health, and I am growing more and more convinced that it is one of the major causes for insufficient milk secretion. The oftener a breast is stimulated by sucking and the oftener it is emptied the greater will be the supply. This is borne out by the fact that many mothers can and do provide enough milk for twins or even triplets and for neighbors' as well as their own children. My mother used to say that when she nursed her first child, it was the style to do it every 2 hours, then later it changed to 2½, then to 3, and when I became a doctor it had become 4, and she supposed, in due course, it would lengthen out to none at all. That seems to be where we are for a large number of cases. Of course, folks will say that they simply cannot waken their baby for more frequent feedings. Babies are really creatures of habit and if trained from birth will accept almost any schedule to which they are assigned.

The final question is purely an aesthetic one, and not many mothers who really want to nurse their babies worry about possible effects on their figures. However I know women who frankly state that they aren't going to ruin their figures for any baby. Actually feeding the baby seems to me to have far less to do with one's figure than some people imagine. I have known many women who have fed many babies and still could hold up their heads with Mae West and I have known many spinsters who were as flat as the proverbial pancake. Fulness and flatness seem to be more a matter of heredity. It is also related to age and married or single, some women with advancing age grow more matronly while others grow more spinsterly.

If we love our babies we will do everything possible to give them the food nature intended.

Rangoon Awaits Final Assault, Japs Slowing Up

LONDON, March 2 —(CP)—The once-great Oriental seaport of Rangoon—abandoned now by virutally all except weary British troops and looters defying military control — awaited today the final assault from reinforced Japanese invaders.

Scant official reports indicated that the enemy is increasing his patrol pressure, presumably searching for a soft spot at which to establish a bridgehead on the west bank of the Sittang River for an attack on the city.

(An Associated Press correspondent with the British forces on the Pegu front in Burma said yesterday the Japanese had been driven off in an approach toward the main Burma-China highway north of Pegu after crossing the Sittang under cover of darkness.)

A military commentator said British forces still were holding their Sittang River line and that the Japanese, feeling the effect of the fighting between that stream and the Bilin, still were unable to organize a new attack. He conceded, however, that the enemy probably could cut the railroad to the north.

A vivid picture of the desolated city was given in a dispatch from Rangoon yesterday by Philip Jordan of the London News-Chronicle.

Part of Water Cut

"How long the water supply here will last no one knows," Jordan wrote. "In some parts of the town it has stopped already.

"At night there are several red glows in the sky.

"A form of military control has been declared in the city but....it is not safe to go into the centre of town now without some kind of weapon and, often as not, the only way to deal with looters is to shoot them without mercy....

"In the harbor....are what ships the navy can spare to safeguard communications. At present their main job seems to be to fire on raiding warcraft."

There were reports from Mandalay that Japanese bombs had hit oil stores Saturday in Toungoo on the Rangoon-Mandalay railroad north of Pegu. Flames were said to have wrecked at least a square mile in the heart of the town.

Mother India Speeds Up Production Of Ammunitions

India is in the war's grim spotlight today. With the Japanese lightning advance through Burma, this empire of 389,000,000 inhabitants finds itself almost in the front line of the globar war. The might of the country is being mobilized for war. LEFT is a scene in one of the new plants where airplane engines are being made. The turbaned Sikh and the lean Hindoo are learning how to assemble aero engines. RIGHT is a view of part of a great shell-making plant in India. Strange as it seems, the international labor office has rated India among the world's eight leading industrial nations. All her resources are now earmarked for the war effort.

9-6 Of Convoy Hit

A Canadian survivor from a small freighter said he believed six ships in the convoy were torpedoed, but three of them made other ports safely. He said his ship was the first one attacked.

Asleep As Torpedo Hits.

It was from this freighter that 19 were saved and 20 are missing, most of them were believed asleep when torpedo exploded about 2:30 a.m. sending the ship to the bottom in three or four minutes. The survivors were picked up by a United States warship after two to five hours afloat on rafts and an overturned lifeboat. The captain, third officer and carpenter were lost from a raft, which capsized several times, just before the others were taken aboard the warship.

One of the 11 survivors from a tanker said his ship was holed at about 3 a.m., and went down before any boats could be launched. Swimming and clinging to pieces of the wreckage, men were in the water for more than two hours before being rescued.

Every member of a tanker's crew of 42, mostly from Belfast, Northern Ireland, was saved. They got away from their ship in three lifeboats and were picked up 20 minutes later. Their ship, holed on the port side forward of the bridge, sank in 1½ hours.

Also rescued intact was a 39-man crew mostly Norwegians, who related how they re-started their engines after one torpedo hit their tanker, but were forced to abandon it when a second struck and a third sank the vessel. They were picked up by the rescue ship a couple of hours later.

His 4th Sinking.

One Canadian in the four crews was Romeo Guerard, of Montreal, who experienced his fourth torpedoing. Of the rescue ship he said, "It was marvellous the way the coaster came within a couple of hundred yards of our ship and stood by to pick us up.

"She was here a few minutes after the second torpedo hit us and forced us to abandon ship. I was waiting for her to get one at any moment. That's really a dangerous pob. The fellows who man those rescue ships are the top-notch heroes of the merchant marine."

A shipmate described the work of the rescue ship as "one of the most heroic acts by the merchant marine in this war."

The large number of friends and kindly neighbors who paid their final respects and offered their sympathy at the home of the late Mrs. Jane Frances Lynch and assisted at the high mass of requiem offered by Rev. Mrs. Lynch was a faithful attendant of St. Peter's Cathedral and an active and valued member of its many organizations. She was former president of the Catholic Women's League, Altar Society and the League of the Sacred Heart. Campaign Total Reached $1,844,850 Mark

Rev. C. A. Spence, Victory Loan canvasser, earned the plaudits of the other canvassers throughout the district today when it was announced from Loan headquarters that he had reported over his objective, set for the section embracing North Burleigh, Chandos and Anstruther. The total set was $10,000 and this morning it had been pushed up to $10,100 by this hardworking retired clergyman, who has one of the most difficult sections of the entire county to canvass.

"This man Spence certainly rates orchids for his fine work," G. N. Brown, one of the local organizers said today. "He has no soft touch, covering the rocky, snowbound northern townships, and he gathered in almost 50 subscriptions to reach his total which indicates he had to employ salesmanship and hard work."

The Victory Loan total for the entire county as released today revealed that $1,844,850 of the $2,750,000 objective had been reached, and one of the lowest percentages of any section was for the city proper where the 25 canvassers are bending every effort to secure enough private subscriptions which tied in with industrial returns may swing the Loan over the top.

A subscription of $50,000 from Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company is included in the Special Names total, and this comes on top of a grand piece of work by the employees themselves, who added $37,550 to the general total.

Lakefield has almost reached the three-quarter mark with $44,550 of the $60,000 total and this village is affected somewhat by the fact that many of the wage-earners are working in Peterborough and will be taking advantage of the payroll deduction plan in their respective places of employment.

Otonabee township should go over the top within two days if the two hustlers, Messrs. Moore and Howson down at Keene, can keep up the pace they set at the start of the drive. So far they have written subscriptions totalling $54,850 out of an objective of $60,000 or 91.4 per cent of the amount required.

Mrs. C. E. Moore, canvassing in South Burleigh, Harvey and Cavendish, has obtained $11,650 out of $15,000 or 77.6 per cent of the total, and this energetic woman hopes to complete the canvass well before the week is out. Down at Havelock, the drive is coming along well too with $33,900 subscribed to date out of a $60,000 quota for the Belmont and Methuen townships which include the village of Havelock.

Office workers are checking returns from the industries and by Wednesday some of the larger totals should be appearing in the figures being released which will give a better picture on whether or not it is possible for the city to meet the quota of $1,350,000.

Following is the summary up to Saturday night, and the figures from North Burleigh, Chandos and Anstruther are as to Saturday night, but actually it will read on Tuesday as $10,100 instead of $8,950.

Signs of Spring

LOUIS SULLIVAN, well known Douro township farmer reported today that he had seen a groundhog scampering across the snow on a sunny hillside of his farm, and he adds that it is the earliest of any spring within his memory in which a groundhog has come out. He lives on lot 13, concession 4.

Mr. Sullivan interprets the appearance of the groundhog as a definite indication of an early spring and reports from other parts of the district bears out this theory. Ross Dobbin said today that the deer up at the Filtration Park zoo has shed its antlers two weeks earlier than any other year, and the bear has come out of his winter sleeping quarters, two or three times during the past few days.

This morning three girls living in Ashburnham who attended the Collegiate reported they had been walking along the road just east of the High Bridge of the canal when they saw a skunk, on the road in front of them. The girls were terrified and ran, and they claim the white striped animal gave chase, at least he came in their general direction. As the skunk is one of the seven sleepers, his early trip above ground is another sign that mother earth is warming up, and life is stirring eager to burst forth in the bloom of spring as soon as the snow has melted.

Robins have been reported at Lakefield, and wild ducks and geese have been noticed flying over this district. Lilac buds are showing signs of bursting into leaf, and district residents state that the willows are turning yellow.

Legion Total Is Nearing $600 For War Victims

With almost clocklike precision, Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., could be relied upon to give their monthly contribution to the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, ever since the fund was inaugurated almost 15 months ago, they having promised at that time to give a portion of the net receipts from their Wednesday weekly bingo games, which were conducted in the interests of their own welfare work.

This steady help to the fund has now reached the point where the total is close to the $600 mark, the actual figures totalling $596.72, with their donation recorded to-day of $28.66 per G. Gimblett and G. G. Torrance, president and treasurer, respectively, of the local branch. This help from the veterans of the last Great War is much appreciated.

The box at Hooper's centre store was one of the first producers of this type to help the fund along, and continuing its steady work today we list a collection from it amounting to $1.05.

Magic Show and Dance.

A type of entertainment rarely seen here is to be given on behalf of the fund in the Collegiate Auditorium on Wednesday and Thursday, March 11 and 12, when Joseph Dean, professional magician, who featured some of the biggest and best shown on the continent in bygone years, will entertain with bewildering and startling acts, among which is the disappearance of a young lady in mid-air, and Marion Perry Laird will present "Young Canadians on Parade" to round out a very entertaining evening all for the low price of 35 cents admission, and since all artists are contributing their services on behalf of the cause, the net proceeds will be proportionately high and will come to the fund.

An orchestra directed by Mrs. E. Foster will provide incidental music before and at the close of the performance, and tickets for this event may be secured from interested workers in the industrial plants, the Capitol Grill, Grafton's, Loblaw's, Zeller's, Dick Raine's two stores, W. J. Welch, pupils of the Marion Perry Laird Dancing School, or at the Examiner.

Norwood Pupils Give Concert In Aid Of Loan

NORWOOD, March 2.—(ENS). — In connection with the Norwood Victory Loan campaign, the Norwood public school staged a patriotic concert in the town hall. Much credit is due to principal, teachers, Mr. Hazell of Campbellford, music instructor, as well as the children themselves, for the very fine showing which they made. The numbers were instructive and inspiring, and the large audience showed their appreciation of this effort by a silver collection of $35, which the pupils and staff divided equally between the local Red Cross and I. O. D. E. The concert opened with a group Chapter. of songs by Miss Carter's room, small children of six and seven, but every word could be clearly heard and was enthusiastically given.

This was followed by a sketch entitled "Builders of Canada" by Miss English's pupils. It was a geographical sketch of the provinces of Canada and their produce, interwoven with the story of 'Sleeping Beauty.' Miss People's room were the next pupils to follow with a group of three patriotic songs, sung in parts and very well rendered.

The speaker for the evening was John A. Bradshaw, who stressed the great need for money and munitions at this time.

The concluding item on the program was given by the pupils of Miss Borland and Mrs. R. Pakenham, and was entitled "The Cavalcade of Canada." It took the listeners back to the time when the North American Indian, with the Eskimo, were the sole possessors of Canada. Then each nationality was added in rotation as they came to settle in this land. Those representing the different nationalities were in native costume, and each showed what their particular nation had added to the cultural life of Canada as we know it to-day. The whole Cavalcade was interspersed with songs from these different nations, five girls taking the songs and the whole joining in the choruses. Eight small children from Miss People's room also took part.

War Workers Meet.

Mrs. Franklin Webster's group of wark workers met at the home of Mrs. Andrew Knox with eight ladies present. Quilt tops were donated by Mrs. E. Scott, Mrs. Walter Rodgers, Mrs. W. H. McMilland, and Mrs. F. Webster, and four quilts were qiulted. Miss E. Drain donated a quilt already complete.

The hostess served refreshments during the afternoon.

Complete Two Quilts.

The group of Donegal war workers gathered at the home of Mrs. Sam Buck and completed two quilts which had been pieced by members of the group. This makes 30 completed since the 1st of January and a total of 118 quilts made from new materials since the war began. Some of the group also sew and knit for the local Red Cross.

The ladies also made plans for a concert in the public school in the interest of war work.

At the conclusion of the quilting lunch was served by the hostess.

Successful Bingo

CAMPBELLFORD, March 2.—(ENS)—Well pleased were members of the local Victory Club by the response to their bingo held in the Parish Hall on Saturday evening. A crowd estimated at well over one hundred and fifty attended the affair and the net proceeds were upwards of $47. Mr. Earl Craighead conducted the bingo for the club and eighteen prizes, all donated by local merchants, were handed out during the evening. The entire proceeds will go for war work.

Delivery Boy Purchases Victory Loan Bond Woman Marking 80th Birthday Also Helps

Plenty of stories are coming in from the Victory Loan canvassers indicating that the campaign has its share of human interest stories, revealing in a heart tingling manner the effort many people are making to aid in the war effort.

Bill Hawthorne, 14 year old delivery boy for Mason's Rubidge street store, was not canvassed by Jim Harkness when the latter contacted the other members of the staff, but the boy listened carefully to the details of the plan and decided he should do something about it. When Mr. Harkness came back on the last call, the boy explained that he had to buy two new tires for his bicycle on Saturday and could not make the down payment on a $50 bond, but if it would be alright to make the payment next Monday he would be ready. When he receives his pay next Saturday he plans to make a deposit in the bank and thus be able to start on the bond which he will save out of his weekly wages.

This happy little incident illustrates the other side of the picture. It shows how a boy with only his wages to draw from for his own financing is willing to make a sacrifice to help the war along and at the same time provide for his future, while on the other hand many people sit smugly back and do nothing while they have bank accounts ranging up to $4,000.

Mrs. A. L. McCombe, of 199 Perry street, who is celebrating her 80th birthday to-day, decided it was an opportune time to purchase a bond and she did it.

Another man well over 70 who has had at least two paralytic strokes, told the canvasser that he wanted to help all he could and he subscribed generously to the loan.

Ted Collins, a youngster who lives on Reid street, had saved up $60.00 from his newspaper route and it was tucked away in the bank. He decided he could make a contribution to the war and at the same time double the interest on his money so he gave the canvasser a cheque for $50.00 and this money goes to work at once earning him a good rate of interest, and providing the tools of war at the same time.

War Savings Stamps Are Given To Prize Winning Students

LAKEFIELD, March 2—(ENS).—War Savings Stamps were given in place of the usual silver cups at the annual commencement exercises of the Lakefield High School, held in the Memorial Hall on Friday evening. An interesting feature this year was the address by G. Nelson Brown of Toronto, in the interest of the Victory Loan. Introduced by Reeve C. S. Tanner, Mr Brown read a letter received from England, telling of the wreckage of an English children's hospital by the Germans, but in which every tot was saved. He made an urgent appeal on behalf of the children for the Victory Loan.

J. W. Ridpath, chairman of the High School Board, was chairman of the evening, and in his remarks extended a cordial welcome to the many parents and friends present. He spoke of the recent visit of Inspector Wallace, who in his report, had no complaints, and only one recommendation. He had emphasized especially the excellent discipline of the pupils.

The choruses under the leadership of Charles Renaud showed the excellent training which the students are receiving in this line. With Mrs. Renaud as pianist the following numbers were contributed: "God Of Oour Fathers," "Soldiers of The King," "There Are Many Flags in Many Lands," and You Can Fight for Canada," with Jean Millar taking the solo part in the last number.

Inluded in the program were the much appreciated solos sung by Miss Marion Biggs, entitled, "My Dear Soul,". and "The Sweetest Flower That Blows," and D. McNeely with his solos "The Deathless Army" and "Smilin' Throug." Both artists were from Peterborough.

Other items included, were the piano solo entitled "Gavotte, Fifth French Suite, by Bach," played by Elizabeth Ketchum, and the vocal trio, composed of the Kelly sisters, Helen, Joan and Doreen, with their numbers, "White Cliffs of Dover," and 'Elmer's Song," sung unaccompanied.

Awards Presented.

Miss Emma Kennedy on behalf of the Catholic Women's League presented the prize to Elizabeth Ketchum, the pupil with the highest standing in grammar and composition in the Entrance examinations.

G. W. Smith of The Grove, presented the silver cup to George Birch, winner of the mile race, and in presenting the trophy, he spoke of the friendly relationships existing between the High School and The Grove.

The Senior and Junior Girls athletic champions, Helen Kelly and Dorothy Bullock, were presented with their awards by Mrs. H. Stabler of the staff, who congratulated their girls and spoke of their outstanding athletic abilities. J. Aymes presented the boys' championships to the Senior and Junior winners, Ralph Millage and Donald Nichols. In order that the final results of the Junior championship could be declared, a final race was run off after Field Day, to break the tie between the winner and Gordon Henry.

Proficiency prizes, also stamps, were presented to the following by Mr. Ridpath:

Grade 9.—Doreen Kelly; Grade 10, Mabel Hopkins; Grade 11, Bunice Millar; Grade 12, Rose Wong and Grade 13, Lily Wong.

Principal J. F. Harvey, in presenting the diplomas, said there were 44 ex-students from the High School on active service, with 30 of this number overseas. The following pupils received awards:

Intermediate Certificates: Fred Binnington, Pauline Butcher, Verene Dunford, Stafford Hill, Mabel Hopkins, Mabel Hockaday, Muereta Hull, Joan Kelly, Olive Leahy, Jean Millar, John Moher, Jacqueline Morin, Jean Nichols, Madeline Nichols, Dixon Nichols, Doreen Northey, Minto Pearson, David Spence and Theresa Spencer.

Secondary Certificates: Anthony Delaney, Doris Jackman, Burritt Mann, Evelyn Reid, Maryalyce Renwick, Claude Shewen, Harry Spence, Cecelia Towns, Nona Whetune, and Rosie Wong.

Upper School Diplomas: John Carveth, Jack Coughlin, Dorothy Mann, George Tanner, Archibald Stewart, and Lily Wong.

The report of the school's effort in the Salvage Campaign was given by L. Minshall, showing what the pupils are accomplishing in this line of war work. It is expected that a collection would again be made on Tuesday, March 3, weather permitting.

The Junior Red Cross was responsible for the splendid display of knitted articles which the girls are knitting for soldier comforts. The stall was attractively decorated with red and white streamers.

Gold and black, the school colors and flags were used for the stage decorations. No admission was charged, but a silver collection was taken which was donated to the British War Victims' Fund.

Outboard Marine Employees Promise $37,550

Doing a good job in record time is becoming a habit with the employees down at the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company, who have gone over the top in the Second Victory Loan in a refreshing manner.

There are 290 employees in the big plant, most of which is occupied with war orders, and when the final summary was obtained it revealed that 92 per cent of the employees had subscribed for bonds, and not a single one had cancelled or reduced their pledges to purchase War Savings Stamps. The objective set for the plant by the Victory Loan Committee was $20,000 but the final figures show $37,550 subscribed with a few more to come, and the boys have come through with 188 per cent of the objective.

In every drive for bonds or for charity, the workers down in the southwest corner of the city have dug in and came through in a manner that reflects credit on them. This time is no exception and the Victory Bond effort is one of the finest of any factory during the current campaign. Clarence B. Neal, secretary-treasurer of the company who was chairman of the shop committee during the canvass said: "The members of the committee had no trouble making the canvass, apparently the workers themselves had discussed the loan thoroughly and everyone was ready to accept a subscription form when the committee came around, if not they explained that their finances would not permit any further lending of money at the present time. I want to congratultae the fellows in the factory for doing a splendid job in record time."

The shop committee consisted of Mr. Neal, L. L. Maguire, William Swistelnikoff, Bruce Payne, John Madden, and N. J. White, sales manager.

Kawartha Eagles In Airmen Class

Two Peterborough men joined the ever-increasing number of Kawartha Eagles on Friday last at Hagersville when a class of 51 airmen received their wings in a colorful ceremony.

The Peterborough representatives did well with George Broadley, a former officer in Prince of Wales Rangers, heading the class and besides getting his wings as a fighter pilot, he was given a commission as pilot officer. Jack Cowling, the other Peterborough boy, and fromer tennis star in city competition, placed well up in the class and he also was given his commission as a pilot officer. Both boys were home for a short leave but have been posted to stations across Canada and will be leaving soon for duty.

7,500,000 Eighty-Pound Cans Of Milk Required From Canada For Britain

Can you imagine two rows of standard 80-pound mik cans extending from Windsor on the southwest corner of Ontario, straight across the province to the Quebec boundary? String one row of these cans from west to east and then turn around and set another row east to west, the cans to be side by side.

Then you come to Peterborough and lay a row of the same kind of cans across country to Toronto. Think of them as being arrayed along the C.P.R. Then turn around at Toronto and set up another row parallel back to Peterborough.

Do you know how many cans there would be in all that distance? —7,500,000.

So what! you say. Only this, that the farmers of Canada are expected to fill this year 1,263 2-3 miles of gleaming eighty-pound milk cans. That isn't the only job that is being assigned to them, but it is one of the biggest.

Wilbert Rosborough of Smith township, gave the computation to the Examiner Saturday. In an enquiring mood one day last week he began wondering about that 600,000,000 pounds of milk. Six hundred millions, phrases like that roll off the tongue these days without much pondering them. And so Mr. Rosborough tabulated the pounds of milk into the 80-pound cans, stood them up in rows across the province and between Peterborough and Toronto, and then said that when the Canadian farmer gets those cans filled for Britain he can then start on the domestic job — milk for creameries, dairies, and so on.

Welsh Society Attends Service At St. George's

Members of St. David's Welsh Society attended divine service in St. George's Anglican Church on Sunday evening. It has been an annual practice of the society ever since its organization more than 12 years ago to attend the evening service at St. George's Church on the Sunday nearest St. David's Day.

Captain J. H. C. Ding, of the Church Army, who was in charge of the service, extended a very warm welcome to the Welsh visitors on behalf of the congregation. The hymns sung were set to Welsh tunes, these being quite familiar to the congregation. In keeping with the occasion, daffodils, the national flower of Wales, were on the altar.

Captain Ding delivered an inspiring sermon, speaking of the time when scouts were sent out to spy out the land of Canaan and returned with evil reports of the giants in the land. The speaker said there were many giants which we have to battle in this land of Canada today. The giants of drunkenness, gambling and indifference. Touching on the present war, he said: "We often hear people say that sur-ly God is on our side," and he argued that the question is not, "Is God on our side?" but "Are we on God's side?"

The choir gave a beautiful rendition of the anthem, "Sun of My Soul." Following the offertory, the Welsh National Anthem was sung, followed by God Save the King.

I.O.D.E. Is Sending Easter Boxes To Boys Overseas

NORWOOD, March 2—(ENS). — The regular meeting of the 40th Northumberland Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in their room over the Royal Bank with a very good attendance, and Mrs. W. B. Tucker, regent, in the chair.

It was reported that the opportunity sale had been very successful, the amount realized to date being $45 with articles still coming in and going out.

The knitting convener also reported a busy month. It was decided to again send socks in the boxes of treats going forward to the boys overseas in time for Easter delivery. Plans were made for the future so that it might be possible to send to every boy overseas a sweater in the early fall. Also the Navy needs were not forgotten.

The sewing committee reported 109 articles sent for Polish relief during the last month as well as 40 articles for British bomb victims. Ten quilts were acknowledged from the Westwood War Services Committee, as well as 1 quilt, dresses and pinafores from Norwood Baptist Church ladies, and four pinafores from Mrs. H. Buck.

The Regent again stressed the great need for different kinds of salvage and urged that it be kept moving out regularly, and not allowed to accumulate. People are urged to get in touch with the "collector" on their street as soon as they have a small amount ready. The amount received for salvage during the past month was $37.

Six members of the Chapter attended the mass meeting held in Massey Hall a short time ago, and gave a very interesting and explanatory report on the price-ceiling; what inflation means, and the women's part in the control of both, as presented by Miss Byrne Hope Sanders at that meeting. An eager discussion on the whole topic showed the interest of the ladies present.

The question of affiliating with the Local Council of Women in Peterborough was then brought forward, and a motion passed that the Chapter affiliate for the coming year.

The committee and conveners were named for the coming year, with the addition of an I.O.D.E. Girl Guide group about to be formed in charge of Miss Anne Borisuk and Mrs. Harry Pearce, Jr.

One new member, Miss Burgess, joined the Chapter, and repeated the oath of allegiance.

The meeting closed with prayer and the National Anthem, after which tea was served by Mrs. H. G. Carleton and Mrs Waddell.

POVERTY THE INCENTIVE THAT INSPIRES MEN TO GREATNESS. Don't Moan, Because You Cannot Give Your Children Advantages the Rich Have.

The bitter wail of nearly every mother with a limited income is that she cannot give her children the advantages that rich children have; which means, when you come down to brass tacks, that she cannot give them mink coats, debut parties, high-powered automobiles or indulge them in idleness and wastefulness, pay her sons out of scrapes, and hire a press agent to build up her daughters as Glamour Girls. Doubtless it is nature for Mrs. Poorman to feel that she has as good a right to spoil her children rotten as Mrs. Croesus has, but it might comfort some of these poor mothers to realize that their children are the lucky ones, and that they have privileges and advantages that no millionaire's sons and daughters ever have. To begin with, the poor woman's children have the greatest gift that God can bestow upon youngsters. They have a real mother who tends them with her own hands, who cradles them upon her breast, who holds them tight within her arms and to whom thety can go with all their little joys and sorrows. They have a mother who forms their characters and who fits them to meet the world in which they must live. The poor little millionaires miss this great advantage. They never have a real mother. They are turned over to nurses and tutors and governesses to rear, and they never have more than a formal acquaintance with the lady in a beautiful negligee to whom they are taken to say good-morning, or who looks in on them to say good-night as she is starting out to a party.

Substitutes Not Good Guides.

Hirelings teach them all they know of right or wrong, of wisdom or folly, and the results are seldom pretty. Nurses, governesses or tutors don't turn out the kind of men and women that Mother does who puts her heart in her job. Science has provided us with many valuable substituutes for the real thing, but nobody yet has devised a synthetic mother that would really work.

Poor mothers lament that they cannot give their children the advantages of education, yet more scholars have graduated from the College of Hard Knocks than ever have from the high-priced universities. Ninety per cent of the men and women in this country who have risen to prominence and who are doing the big things were boys and girls who went to night school, or worked their way through college or who educated themselves by reading.

They were the children of the poor, starving for knowledge, who seized upon every opportunity to learn that they came their way, not the pampered children of the rich who went to college to amuse themselves and whose parents vainly tried to thrust an education upon them.

Other Advantages.

Another advantage that the poor children have and rich children miss is necessity. That is the driving force that sends people on to success and develops whatever latent power of mind or body that is in an individual. Riches, luxury, ease paralyze energy and ambition. It is a rare thing for the children of the rich to accomplish anything worthwhile yet they are as talented, as intelligent, as capable in every way as the poor boys and girls who outstrip them in the race of life.

But they have everything that makes existence soft for them, so why worry? It is the desire for the luxuries they have never had, for the place in the sun they crave, that makes the poor girl and boy harden their muscles and stiffen their spines until they climb to the top of the ladder.

The poor mother grieves because she will have no fortune to leave to her children when she dies, but the necessity that has taught them how to work, how to stand on their own feet, and the value of money, will safeguard their future more than any inheritance would. For it is a platitude that it is but two generations from shirt sleeves to shirt sleeves in this country. As a rule the children of the rich go through the money their parents left them by the time they are middle-aged, and then none so poor and helpless as those who only know how to spend money not make it.

Better Chance for Real Marriage.

Mother breaks her heart because she lacks the money to launch her daughters in society and dress them like the Queen of Sheba, but she might dry her eyes if she noticed that the poor working girl has a better chance to make a good marriage than the millionairess, because she is thrown in close contact with the ambitious and clever young men who are going places and will take their wives with them, while the rich girl's only choice of a husband is among playboys. Also, the poor girl knows she is not married for her money and she has a better chance of keeping out of the divorce court than her rich sister has.

Someone once said to a rich, self-made man: "You have given your son every advantage in the world." "Yes," replied the father, "every one but the greatest of all. Poverty." Let the mothers who grieve over not giving their children advantages remember that reply.

Live Alone and Like It.

Dear Miss Dix — What is the chance of success of a second marriage between two people who have not, for many years, been subject to anyone's whims and fancies?

INQUIRER.

ANSWER. — Very doubtful, I should say After we have reached middle age our habits are stronger than our heart throbs and if we have been used to being free to come and go as we pleased, to have no one's pleasure and comfort to consider but our own, and especially not to have anyone who is privileged to criticize us and tell us when to get on or off, we find it very hard to adapt ourselves to a husband or wife We are like the hero of the old song who warbled: "When I was single my pockets did jingle, and I wish I were single again."

Maternity Wardrobes

By PRUNELLA WOOD

DID you know that a large proportion of the men who have made history were born in March? Its' one of those statistics which people can explain by any of a variety of pet theories, along with their answers as to why the census always registers more new-born boys than girls during wartimes.

Here, at any rate, is a swell maternity dress to usher in this March's history makers. It is springlike and pretty, made of a light printed crepe, and its functional feature is also its chic feature the gathered apron front. Note how the slimming V-shaped bertha collar softens the bodice of the frock.

Dorothy Shadgett Is Wed To PO. Geo. Broadley

All Saints' Anglican Church was the scene to-day of the wedding of Isobel Dorothy daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Shadgett, to Pilot Officer George Broadley, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Broadley. The Rev. William A. Filer officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length dress of beige and brown wool jersey with brown accessories and wearing a corsage of roses and sweet peas.

Mrs. Don Hall, sister of the bride, was her attendant, wearing a dress of gold wool jersey with black accessories and corsage of roses and sweet peas. Mr. Don Hall, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man.

After the ceremony the guests were received at the bride's home and later P.O. and Mrs. Broadley left for British Columbia, where they will live. For travelling the bride wore a beige coat trimmed with brown squirrel and brown accessories.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, March 3

Much of this day's progress depends upon the exercise of prudence, thrift, amiability, good judgment and sound management, according to the mutual and lunar aspects. Under an expansive and magnanimous tendency there may be a disposition to attempt overambitious propositions, with extravagance, unjustified outlay of funds, and other excesses and indulgences which may antagonize those influential persons whose support is essential to success.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, although confronted by a year of good opportunity for attaining ambitious objectives, the carrying out of major projects, with a sound stabilization of the fortunes and security for the future, yet may be carried away by enthusiasm or optimism, extravagance or unjustifiable outlay of funds.

A child born on this day although having a capable and ambitious place in life yet may undermine its success by extravagance.

The Badminton Club of the Y.W.C.A. entertained six soldiers from the Training Centre on Saturday afternoon and evening. Supper was served by the club members, who bow to none in the wielding of the can-opener, and the boys helped the girls wash up the dishes. Badminton, ping-pong ,and dancing were the main entertainments of the evening, with some piano solos by Mr. Albert Stephen, one of the guests, thrown in for good measure. The evening, like all good things, came to an end much too soon, but it is hoped there will be others in the future.

SHARPE.—In loving remembrance of Allan Sharpe.
—Mother and Father, Sister and Brothers.

WILLSHAW.—In loving memory of a dear father, George Thomas Willshaw, who passed away February 29, 1940.

Beside your grave we often stand
With hearts both crushed and sore,
But in gloom the sweet words come:
Not lost, but gone before.
God knows how much we miss you,
He counts the tears we shed,
And whispers, 'He only sleeps,
Your loved one is not dead."

—Sadly missed by son Robert, and daughter-in-law, Mary.

away somewhere—let me go with you. I—I can take care of you."

"But Cassie, I don't understand you. I—why, I can't get married now. I've got to get through—all that study first. Why—" He stopped. It seemed an unbelievably absurd proposal. Why—he almost wanted to say he wasn't grown up yet.

Suddenly, every vestige of expression left her features. Her face seemed to go dead.

"Never mind." Her voice, too, seemed utterly lifeless. She turned to go.

Parris was beside her instantly. "Wait a minute, Cassie. Sit down, and—and tell me what's happened."

She looked as if she didn't hear. "Nothing, Parris. Nothing at all. I—I must go."

"Here. I'll take you home."

"No, no! No. you can't. You mustn't. I'm all right, now."

Drake picked up his hat. "You'd better let me walk part of the way with you anyhow, Cassie."

"Thank you, Drake. No. Good night."

And before either of them could say another word she had gone. They heard her running again, going back the same way she had come.

Parris stood in the middle of the room, unable to think or to move. He looked up, a little fearful that Drake would laugh. Whatever might be the matter, he knew that Cassie was in earnest, and that she was horribly frightened about something.

"Drake, do you suppose Dr. Tower found out I've been seeing her?"

"I don't know."

"I can't leave her there alone to take it by herself—whatever has happened."

"I believe she just got to thinking about you going away and just kind of went off her base for a minute. Gee, she's all gone on you, ain't she?"

"It might have been just a—a kind of hysterical outbreak."

"Says Dr. Mitchell!"

"You don't thing I ought to try and find out some way about Cassie? For half a cent, I'd just go in to see Dr. Tower and—"

"And get yourself kicked all the way to the front gate?"

"Well, what is the matter with him, anyway? Cassie's a girl like anybody else."

"Yes, but you know as well as I do that Dr. Tower is a man like nobody else! Ain't he kept her in as strict as if—like she was a prisoner? I don't know what's the matter with people like that. But you know darn-well ain't anything about the Towers been like aynbody else."

Home Lessons in Business Typing

Slipshod Typing Gets Rebuke

No, "hunt and peck" typing has no place in a busy, efficient office. What to do if you haven't been trained in efficient touch typing?

With a chart of the keys and a few simple instructions, start teaching yourself at home—it's easy!

Learn, too, the simple rules of typing form that employers expect you to know. For instance, after the "Dear Mr. Smith" put a colon, not a comma. (Addressing an intimate friend, however, it's correct to put a comma after the salutation.)

And if you indent your first paragraph (five spaces is correct), indent all the paragraphs. Or, if you wish, start all paragraphs at the left margin—but be consistent.

Don't crowd sentences together. After each period or colon type two spaces; and type one space after commas and semi-colons. But a dash, consisting of two hyphens, has no space either before or after it.

Our 32-page booklet gives touch-typewriting chart, instructions and exercises for home lessons. Explains rules for typing correct business, social and official letters and tables of figures. It can be useful as a foundation for a business college course.

For your copy of "Teach Yourself Touch Typewriting" send 15c in coins or stamps to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T GIVE BARGAINS

WHEN YOU enable the declarer to take a trick with a small card which would have been worthless to him except for your action, you are giving him a bargain. That is what happens frequently when a player leads a fourth-best card against a No Trump contract when he could have led some honor-in-sequence from a three-honor combination in the same suit. When the honor lead is made, the declarer can't possibly take the trick with a small card, but must use up an honor of his own.

North: ♠ Q 10 ♥ A Q 5 4 ♦ 9 6 ♣ 10 7 6 4 2

West: ♠ 7 4 2 ♥ K 6 2 ♦ A J 10 7 4 ♣ 8 5

East: ♠ A 8 6 ♥ J 10 8 7 ♦ 8 5 3 ♣ K Q J

South: ♠ K J 9 5 3 ♥ 9 3 ♦ K Q 2 ♣ A 9 3

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	3♥	Pass
3 NT

What a terrific difference the correct lead would have made on this hand, as against the wrong one which was tried. West opened the fourth-best diamond, the 7, and South won it with the 9. The spade 3 was led, East letting the Q win and also ducking the 10, which South overtook with the J. He came in with the A on the spade K and then fired back the diamond 8. With the K-Q to stop the suit, the declarer took all told two tricks in diamonds, four in spades, one in clubs and two in hearts by winning the heart finesse. West had made game easy for him, not only by presenting a trick to him with the spade 9, but by thus enabling him to retain positive control of the suit.

Notice the result, if West had made his correct lead of the diamond J. To win that, South would have had to use one of his honors. Then, when he led spades, he would have had to hope that West had the A. When East bobbed up with it instead, he would have sent the diamond 8 through the declarer's last honor, and West would have captured it with his tenace. That would have given the defenders four tricks in the suit, plus the setter in spades.

All Out To Win

TORONTO, March 2 — (CP). — Gordon Graydon, Conservative member of the House of Commons for Peel, and national chairman of the Conservative Party, last night told the Beaches-Danforth Conservative Association that during a recent eight-week tour of Canada he had found a "definitely war-conscious people" wherever he went.

"In the minds of Canadians today there is only one issue and that is winning of the war, coupled with a solution of the rehabilitation problem that will face this nation when the war closes," he said.

Captain Sticks To Death On Flaming Ship

WASHINGTON, March 2 (AP).—Capt. Mervyn S. Bennion of Vernon, Utah, mortally wounded on the bridge of his battleship in the Pearl Harbor attack, thought only of getting his wounded men to safety and his survivors to others ships where they could fight on, an associate related yesterday.

The Navy made public an eyewitness account of Bennion's death by a junior officer who reached his battle station beside Bennion just after the battleship commander had been hit by a bomb splinter.

It follows:

"He was lying severely wounded and still conscious on the signal bridge with the top of his stomach laid open. I moved him into a shelter, but he refused to be moved from the bridge or into the conning tower for protection.

When all of us on the bridge had been cut off from below by fire, it was again suggested to the captain that he be removed from the ship but he refused, and it was necessary, because of the flames, for the offices to take him up to the navigation bridge, just above the flag bridge, where he remained until his mangled body was removed later.

"He wanted most of all to know how the battle was proceeding. His next concern was to get all wounded men off the ship and to have all available men in condition to get on other ships to fight. A marine, who was manning his station in the fore top of a ship alongside, saw Captain Bennion several times try to get up, but because of his wounds he had lost control of his legs by this time, and there is reason to believe that he was completely blown up about 11 o'clock in the morning of December 7.

"Captain Bennion was alone when he died, having resisted all efforts to take him off the bridge. His concern was only for the safety of the ship and of his men. He ordered all officers and men to leave him, either to man their stations or take care of others."

Getting Scared

Montreal, March 2 (CP).

THE Norwegian legation here reported today it had learned that the Germans have recently undertaken extensive military precautions along the coast of Norway because they fear an Allied invasion.

A statement issued by the legation said that large sections of the coast have been blocked off and several harbors have been closed. It added that the Selbjoerne Fjord outside Bergen "has been blocked at Fondoey, Stordoey and Kalsund because of information indicating a possible attack on Bergen.

The legation declared that most of the harbor at Stavenger has been closed. Ships are prohibited from sailing in the vicinity of any of the blocked-off territories, it was said.

Britons View Nazis' Newest Bomber

One of Germany's newest bombers, the Dornier 217E, is shown being inspected after being brought down in Britain, recently. The craft is powered by two 14-cylinder 1,600 h.p. engines and, according to British technicians, can carry two 2,000-pound bombs within the fuselage and an additional 1,000-pounder beneath each wing. It can also be adapted for torpedo-carrying or dive-bombing. Germany probably counts heavily on this type craft for her spring offensive.

72 Percent Production Increase By Harold Cheese Factory Patrons

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 28 (ENS)—A seventy-two per cent increase in the amount of cheese made during the 1941 season was chalked up by the 43 patrons of Harold Cheese and Butter Company it was revealed in the annual statement presented to them yesterday. In addition to this their cheesemaker Roy Brown turned out 99.8 per cent first grade cheese with only 5 boxes of undergrades up to the end of November.

However these far-sighted Rawdon farmers have another claim for distinction in the cheese industry—a new factory built last year at a cost of $7,630.00 and equipped with every modern device to facilitate the handling of both milk and cheese. Their new 74 x 36 foot 2-storey, stucco building has a metal roof, inside walls plastered and even has automatic hoist for milk cans. It replaces the original factory built in 1885 and inadequate for producing cheese according to the present high standards of quality. The disposal of waste and an insufficient supply of spring water were two of the primary faults with the old factory and both of these were taken into consideration when the new site, a mile from the former one, was chosen by the directors.

262,499 Pounds of Cheese

The year's financial report was given by W. H. Heath, who has been secretary of the company for the past 19 years. He reported 3,090,004 pounds of milk had been delivered to the factory and from this hade been made 262,499 pounds of cheese or an average of 11.77 pounds milk per pound of cheese. Returns from the sale of cheese were $44,657.97, the average price per pound being 17.019 cents. The Provincial subsidy brought $5,251.90 and the Dominion premium on high scoring cheese was $4,402.97, or $3,266.84 more than in the preceding year. Butter fat brought 39.35 cents or 51.03 cents including the bonus, and milk yielded an average of $37.45. A total of 188,461 pounds of cheese were 94 grade; 63,554 were 93's, 6,629 were 92's and undergrades accounted for 460 pounds.

L. Fair, District Agriculture Representative for Hastings County gave a detailed report of the grading for the factory up to the end of November. To that time they sold 2,429 boxes of cheese of which 99.8 per cent was first grade or over as compared to 98.05, the Hastings' County average and 96.9 for the entire province. Second grades were only .2 per cent compared to 1.95 for the county, 2.95 for the province and nearly 4 per cent for the Dominion, or 98.9 of all Harold cheese was in the premium class compared to the county average of 93.7.

Buy Victory Bond

The auditors report was given by Percy Ray who congratulated the secretary on the excellent condition in which he found the books, and at the request of President Charles Mumby, who presided, commented on the Victory Loan drive, urging the Company to invest $200.00 of their balance. This question was subsequently put to a vote and carried unanimously, making Harold the only company in the district to have a share in the loan.

Some interesting figures disclosing the part Canadian farmers have been playing in the war effort were given by Agriculture Representative Fair, particularly with regard to the increased export of cheese. In 1939 Canada shipped 72 million pounds to England; in 1940, 103 million pounds; in 141, 112 million pounds when only 148 million was the total production, thus compelling a reduction in home consumption. Commenting on the increased production of 1,125,000 pounds in Hastings county Mr. Fair pointed out that Harold had contributed one-tenth of this extra cheese. He felt the extension of the war to the far east might effect shipments of dairy products from New Zealand and Australia whose combined efforts had yielded 400 million pounds of cheese and 310 million pounds of butter for Britain in 1941. To meet the 1941-42 bacon products quota of 600 million pounds Canadian farmers will have to market 7 million hogs, he said, and as an indication of one of the changes brought about by the war Mr. Fair estimated 4 million of these hogs would be fed by Western farmers this year. Export packing plants are no longer allowed to butcher light weight hogs, but this is a paying proposition for the farmer who is given a $1.00 premium on selects. A result of this has been an increase of 10% in the number of hogs in Hastings county qualifying for the premium (40% are in premium class). In the year 1930 (before war had spread to the low countries) Canada shipped 1,000,500 dozen eggs to the British market but in 1940 this had increased to 10½ million dozen, and to September 1st, 1941, the number jhmped to 15 million dozen. The quota for the period from September 1st, 1941, to September 30th, 1942, has been upped to 45 million dozen he said. This brought up the question of shipping facilities and Mr. Fair pointed out if all of these could be dried it would mean a tremendous saving of shipping space. One crate of eggs alone would lose 15 pounds by dehydration. The shells of 30 dozen account for 9 pounds and the moisture content 6 pounds, approximately.

A director of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, Ed. Pyear reviewed some of the activities of this group which he said had been instrumental in securing the Federal bonus and provincial subsidy for cheese producers. He foresaw a substantial increase in the price of cheese this year and declared although the Dominion government would unquestionably continue their premium there was no definite information about the Ontario bonus. The standardization of factory statements and payment of exchange on buyer's cheques were other questions he touched on. District Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray also touched on the important question of prices but was of the opinion it would be "settled by the last of April." Officers for the coming season were named as follows: President, Charles Mumby; secretary, W. H. Heath; auditor, Percy Hay; directors, W. J. Tanner, Kenneth Mumby, Albert Cook, Clarence Runnalls, T. A. Cooney, Mowatt Sine.

Rylstone Women Plan Special Concert

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 2 (ENS)—Rylstone Women's Institute called a special meeting on Thursday evening to make large scale plans for their Victory Night program, which will be an outstanding event in the township next week. The affair is designed primarily to raise funds for their Red Cross supplies and will go into wool and other materials which will augment the already large number of blankets, scarves, sox and helmets made by the branch. This year they will again hold the affair at the Orange Hall, Petherick's, and they hope to at least equal the proceeds of a year ago when more than $170.00 was taken in and well over 250 people attended. A feature of last year's program and one which yielded a vital part of the proceeds was the auction sale, for which not only those in the rural district but also Campbellford merchants also contributed. However the program for next Friday will feature an act by Mr. F. F. Long, who has an enviable reputation for his slight of hand performances as well as a number of other well known local artists. Jim Jones' six piece band from Trenton will provide music for dancing and there will also be a draw in connection with the affair. The following committees were named: hall and music, Ernest Irwin, Wilfred Spencer; program committee, Mrs. Charles Stewart, Messrs. Fred Rutherford, Fred Barnum and Ernest Irwin; refreshment committee, Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn, Mrs. S. Meiklejohn, Mrs. Fred Barnum; publicity committee, Mrs. F. M. Rutherford, Mrs. Hector Arnold.

Scot Fighters Roam New York

NEW YORK, March 2 — (AP). — At the dark hour of 5:45 a.m. yesterday a group of soldiers at a United States army post in the metropolitan area rolled out of their bunks, donned kilts and tam o' shanters, and stuck dirks in their knee-length socks.

They were English and Scottish fighting men, first combat force of the British Empire to set foot in the U.S.A. since the First Great War. They liked 'most everything they saw, except the bloomin' mild American beer."

The identity of the fighters, their purposes here and their ultimate destination are wartime secrets. But they made no secret of their likes and dislikes:

The American girls are "wows."

The price of two drinks of whisky in Manhattan night club would buy a bottle back in Glasgow.

The food is better than anything they've had in more than a year.

As for those dirks — they are skeandhus, originally used for skinning wild beasts, now carried only for show.

Around the table quiz and pass-it-along contests were a jolly ending for a pleasant evening of the social club.

Blast Dromes, Planes In 2 Towns Southwest Of Darwin

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 3.—(AP)—Japanese planes drove home the urgency of Australia's newest war measures today by almost simultaneous raids on the small coastal towns of Wyndham and Broome, respectively 300 and 700 miles southwest of Darwin, only other mainland point which has come under direct attack.

In each case the raiders, possibly based on enemy-occupied Timor some 500 miles to the north, concentrated on airdromes and grounded planes. A Royal Australian Air Force communique reported some damaged, but said there were no casualties either at Broome, where bombs were dropped, or at Wyndham, where they attacked only with machine-gun and cannon fire.

(The All-India radio reported that 18 Japanese planes accompanied by fighters carried out another raid on Port Moresby, capital of Papua, New Guinea. The raid was short and only minor damage was caused, the radio said.)

British Wipe Out Patrols – Invaders Depend On Elephants

(By DANIEL DELUCE.)

WITH BRITISH FORCES NORTH OF PEGU, Burma, Mar. 2—(Delayed) — (AP). — Charging across heat-cracked paddy fields, British motorized patrols have trapped and annihilated small forces of Japanese infantry renewing the attempt to cut the trunk highway and railway line between Rangoon and Mandalay.

Ranging over the flat terrain west of the Sittang River, British forces overnight mopped up Japanese infiltrations from across the river. The Japanese used motor transport and ponderous six-mile-a-day elephant convoys for bringing reinforcements to the east bank of the stream.

The Japanese offensive although now virtually at the backdoor of the Burmese capital, has been definitely halted for eight days along the Sittang River.

It is considered likely another week would pass before the enemy will be able to organize and try to press forward over ground favorable to the defenders.

Several co-ordinated Japanese thrusts are expected to be launched against the British line between Pegu and Pyinnana, some 200 miles farther north.

Operations in the Pyinmana sector, as the Japanese are well aware, would lay them open to a smashing flank attack by Chinese forces in the Southern Shan States. The Chinese are understood to have sufficient strength not only to hold the mountan-ringed Shan territory against serious penetration but to divert troops southward in case of emergency.

Heavy Japanese air losses of last week, totalling 100 bombers and fighters, are said to have taken much of the sting out of enemy raids on the British rear and front.

Three Boys Steal $539 And Spent 16 Days On Sight-Seeing Tour

The story of how three Brantford boys have been enjoying a sight-seeing tour of Ontario, staying at hotels and travelling by train and bus on $530 of stolen money was revealed today when Constable Gordon K. Hardy arrested two fifteen-year-old lads after they had tried to sell some articles of clothing at Ruskin's second-hand store.

The two boys, both of Ukrainian descent, were taken to the police station for questioning and there they quite frankly admitted the whole story. One of the boys told police that on February 15 he had entered the bedroom of a boarder at his father's house in Brantford and had stolen $530 from a suitcase.

The other fifteen-year-old arrested with him Monday and another boy aged seventeen were waiting outside the house and the stolen money was divided among the three. Then they set out on their travels. They spent some time in Hamilton, Toronto, Niagara Falls and Oshawa before the two younger lads came to Peterborough. The stolen money was spent on railway fares and hotel bills and the boys bought new outfits of clothing and shoes while in Toronto; they purchased a portable radio and several suitcases.

Older Lad Skipped Out.

When they reached Oshawa a week ago last Sunday the funds had shrunk onsiderably and there the oldest boy stole $50 from one of the younger lads and $10 from the other and departed, taking with him also the radio and one of the suitcases.

A brother of one of the boys is supposed to be engaged in war work in Peterborough, so on Wednesday of last week the two younger lads came here, registering at the Grand Hotel, where they remained until their arrest. By yesterday they had run completely out of funds and decided to sell some of the clothing they had bought. It was while they were attempting to complete the

Spot 52-Ton Tank Columns Long-Range Guns On Move Battle In 50-Wave Assaults

Experts See Nazi Armies Trapped, Doomed Unless Retreat West Across Big Rivers Made Before Mud Of Spring Bogs Divisions

BERNE, March 3—(AP).—Soviet troops are massing in prodigious force all along the Russian front for a revitalized drive and have already instituted attacks "on a scale not hitherto reached in the war," German military spokesmen say.

The Berlin correspondent of the Zurich newspaper Die Tat stated that Russia obviously is starting "a fantastic effort to bring about a decision."

Similar accounts developed in Stockholm, although the Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter said the German spring offensive is prepared and when it opens "the forces will not be spare ."

(German propagandists naturally have some motive in authorizing circulation of bearish statements. It may be to brace the Axis peoples for new reverses already in the making. More likely, perhaps, it is to screen some fresh German activity or to take the edge off urgent appeals by Russia to Britain and the United States for opening of a second front by implying she is winning the campaign alone).

Reports o[illegible]ating in Berlin quarters said [illegible] aer[illegible] l scouts had seen great columns of fresh Soviet soldiers moving up; that many 52-ton tanks and long-rang guns had been thrown into intense assaults on German positions in the Donets Basin and the Crimea.

Attacks Of 50 Waves

The Die Tat dispatch said Red Army troops attacked in 40 to 50 waves in some sectors, striking unhesitatingly regardless of their casualties. Siberian units were singled out in comment for their "almost unbelievable stubborness."

German airmen are compelled to concentrate wholly upon attacks against Soviet communications, the dispatch said.

(Moscow announcements indicate, however, that a major effort of German squadrons just now is to ferry supplies to the 16th Army men encircled in the Staraya Russa sector. The Soviet Information Bureau declared that "during March 1 we destroyed 77 planes" aloft or aground, while losing only eight.)

A foreign military expert is Lisbon, familiar with Russia, expressed belief the Germans must withdraw to positions west of the big rivers before the spring thaw and bridge-destroying floods begin "or they will run the great risk of being crushed by the Soviets for lack of communications."

(With headquarters already in operational zones, the greatest streams behind the Germans are the Dnieper, which flows from an area 140 miles west of Moscow into the Black Sea, and the Ivina, which rises in the Valdai Hills and empties into the Gulf of Riga.)

238 Planes in 8 Days

Canadian Vessel Torpedoed, 20 Are Missing

TORONTO, Mar. 3 — (CP). — Capt. Bruce Angus, shore captain of the Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Company, said to-day that a 6,000-ton freighter owned by his company and manned entirely by Canadians was sunk in the South Atlantic last week, with all but six of the crew missing.

Number of men in the crew was not announced, but it was believed to be more than 20. Capt. Angus said that Capt. John Allan of St. Catharines was in charge of the ship when she was attacked, and was among the missing.

He said four of the six known survivors were picked up by a United States vessel.

Capt. Allan was 38, and had been a commander on the Great Lakes for 13 years before going into ocean service. His wife, now visiting in South America resided until recently in Hamilton, Ont.

KITCHENER, Ont., Mar. 3 — (CP). — Mrs. F. G. Meunier of Kitchener said to-day she had received word that the ship on which her brother-in-law, Capt. John Allan of St. Catharines, Ont., was master, was torpedoed while an route to Port-au-Spain, Trinidad. Sinking of this vessel, owned by the Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Company, was announced in Toronto to-day.

Mrs. Meunier said she had been informed that a torpedo struck the bow of the vessel which sank within 30 seconds. Her information added that four men were picked up by a Catalina flying boat and taken to hospital in Georgetown, New Guinea.

JAP SEA BATTLE CLAIMS

TOKYO, (from Japanese broadcasts), March 3.—(AP)—Imperial headquarters claimed today that 23 warships of the United Nations forces had been sunk in battles in the Java Sea last week-end. New Capital Bandung Raided 90 Mins.; Full Offensive On BANDUNG, Java, Mar. 4 (Wednesday) — (AP). — Allied ground forces early to-day were pressing home a counter offensive to drive the Japanese invaders of Java into the sea, while United Nations air and naval units sought to cut off the enemy's sea lanes of retreat and possible reinforcement.

Netherlands bombers struck some of their heaviest blows at the fleet which put ashore troops near Rembang in North-eastern Java. Aneta News Agency reported on good authority that only five ships remained of the 12 which originally had made up this concentration.

Shortly before midnight an authorized spokesman told Aneta:

"It can be stated without reservation that the situation remains well in hand on all fronts."

Enemy air raiders, meanwhile, smashed at this military headquarters city in a heavy attack yesterday. Two persons were said killed but full casualties were not known. Earlier reports listed them at 102.

Over Bandung 90 Minutes.

The raiders came over in fighter-escorted relays of bombers for 1½ hours, holding their formations despite heavy anti-aircraft fire and the fearless attacks of outnumbered United Nations fighter planes.

Although 42 enemy bombers and 18 protecting fighters were overhead at once, officials said military damage was slight. Abandoned homes near the airfield were destroyed, and during bombing lulls, enemy fighters dived to machine-gun the streets.

Although word had been current that a huge new invasion armada, bearing heavy reinforcements toward the island's shores, was being battered by relays of American for-

Only 11 Survive U.S. Destroyer

WASHINGTON, March 3—(AP).—The United States navy announced today that the destroyer Jacob Jones was sunk by an enemy submarine off Cape May, N.J., before dawn on February 28, and that only 11 men of the destroyer's crew survived.

The number of those lost, including the commanding officer, Lt.-Cmdr. H. D. Black, was not given but was more than 100 since the normal war-time complement of the old destroyer was around 145 officers and men.

Two torpedoes hit the Jacob Jones. The first one blew up the bow and apparently killed all personnel on the bridge as well as men sleeping in the forward liv[illegible] quarters of the ship. The second torpedo blew up the stern and all the depth charges.

Ships, More Ships, Allies Direct Need

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst.)

The two-fisted call of Donald Nelson, United States war production chief, for a speeding up of arms manufacture is grimly emphasized today by the continued onrush of the Japanese against Java where the Allied forces are making a gallant but uphill defence—once more because of lack of equipment.

Production is the price of victory. This must include an intensification of shipbuilding, for production without tranportation is of little avail. One of the serious Allied weaknesses is lack of ships for quick movement of troops and supplies.

Hitler's unrestricted U-boat warfare against shipping along the sea-lanes over which must pass the sinews of war to his enemies is intensifying with the approach of the spring land offensives.

There's no more vital operation proceeding today, although the conflicts in Java and Burma and Russia are the more spectacular and consequently the more impressive.

Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander, has named this the Battle of the Seven Seas. That's an apt characterization, for a struggle that originally was confined largely to the Atlantic and the Mediterranean has mushroomed out until it rides the waves of the globe.

Victory in the Battle of the Seven Seas means triumph in the World War as a whole. Land engagements must play their mighty part, but they can't bring total success unless they are accompanied by domination of the shipping routes.

Resources — industrial production — transportation. Those are the keys to success.

The German U-boat offensive in the Atlantic is no flash in the pan, and the Nazis are reaping a harvest of grave dimensions. Anglo-American shipping losses have increased considerably of late.

Mr. Alexander now states that we may be near the beginning of a fresh period of surface raider activity—both German and Japanese. The Japs will start raiding the vital Indian Ocean shipping lanes if and when Java, last remaining obstacle to a free run of those waters, has been conquered.

The British authorities have announced that German U-boat construction has reached an unprecedented scale and is increasing monthly. The depredations off the United States coast speak clearly of the striking power of the Nazi sea-pack. London now believes that the Nazis may even make a grand assault on Iceland, with the idea of crippling Atlantic communications.

The Germans may be expected to cut loose the full strength of their submarine fleet, supplemented by aerial assault in European waters, as soon as the good weather arrives. The primary purpose will be to prevent the United States from transporting troops and equipment to the Allies for the great land offensives in the spring. To this is added the objective of keeping American warships in home waters to guard United States shores, while the Japs

Drill Book Out The Window

Less 'Sloping' Arms, More On How To Kill Enemy

LONDON, March 3—(CP). — The British Army is tossing most of the time-honored drill book and manual of arms out of the window and devoting more time to teaching soldiers how to fight and kill, officials disclosed today.

Under the orders of Sir James Grigg, new War Secretary, recruits henceforth will be taught only essentials from the old manuals intended to instill discipline and quick response to orders—squad drill and rifle handling, for instance.

The new plan, it is believed, will allow recruits to absorb the fundamentals within five weeks and be ready for specialized training.

Recruits will learn merely to sling the rifles on their shoulders. With the time saved from the former devotion to proper "slope" they will learn more what to do with the rifles when they meet the enemy.

20 To Die Now For Nazi Sentry—20 More Later

VICHY, Mar. 3 — (AP). — German military authorities announced in Paris to-day that 20 hostages would be shot in reprisal for the killing of a Nazi sentry on Sunday.

The German account said four youths attacked a Paris sentry post on Sunday morning and one of them killed the soldier with a pistol shot. Another placed a bomb which was discovered before it exploded. All escaped.

The Germans announced that an additional 20 hortages would be shot if the attackers were not caught before March 16, and that 40 persons already had been seized among "Communists and Jews beloigng to the same circles as the authors of the attack."

To-morrow was designated as a day of mourning in Paris for the German sentry, with all theatres and amusement places closed all day and restaurants closed at 10 p.m.

New Armada Nearing, Indies Sees Doom Unless Planes Arrive

BANDUNG, Java, March 3—(AP).—The Netherlands East Indies high command announced today that Japanese troops had made no advance since Sunday in any of the three landing areas of Java.

The communique declared that Allied troops are "showing splendid offensive spirit" and are in close contact with the Japanese.

It added that a Netherlands submarine sank a large enemy tanker off the coast of the beleaguered island.

The communique said:

"In non of the three regions of Java where the enemy landed troops during the night of Saturday-Sunday has the enemy succeeded in advancing since the infiltration which was carried out in the course of last Sunday.

"On various points our troops who are showing a splendid offensive spirit are in close contact with the enemy

"During an attack on an enemy-occupied airfield some 10 navy zero fighters which were about to take off were machine-gunned and put out of action, including their crews."

The communique said Allied bombers scored direct hits on two Japanese transport ships of 10,000 and 8,000 tons off the coast of Java.

It added that a bomb exploded among three seaplanes which were about to take off and two were destroyed.

tress bombers, the Aneta News Agency said that up to 7 p.m. (8:30 a.m. EDT) nothing whatever was known to support such reports.

The communique announced that a large Japanese tanker had been sunk off the Java coast and that Allied bombers had scored direct hits on two enemy transports of 10,000 and 8,000 tons, but made no reference to any new approach of an enemy fleet.

The new blows boosted the enemy's toll off Java to 30 warships and transports sunk or damaged.

Full Defences Operating.

(Ashore, a Reuters report in London from Bandung said the Indies had put their defence plans into full force and that the fighting was on a major scale).

The communique, which ended more than 24 hours of suspense over the course of the ferocious struggles at three Japanese beachheads on Java, said emphatically.

"In none of the three regions of Java where the enemy landed troops during the night of Saturday to Sunday has the enemy succeeded in advancing since the infiltration which was carried out in the course of Sunday.

"At various points our troops, who are showing a splendid offensive spirit, are in close contact with the enemy."

The war bulletin said 10 Japanese Navy "O" fighters were raked with machine-gun fire as they were about to take off from an enemy-held airfied "and put out of action, including their crews."

A bomb burst among three Japanese seaplanes and destroyed two of them, also as they were about to take off, it added.

(An official of the Netherlands government in London said that the Indies government had shifted from Batavia to Bandung, seat of the military headquarters.)

LONDON, March 3—(CP).—A British spokesman said today the Government had received a safe-conduct guarantee from Italy for a relief ship for Greece which already is loaded with wheat at Haifa Palestine, and should sail this week.

The 11 survivors consisted of nine enlisted men from the engine-room and two apprentice seamen.

Of the 11, only one man was outside the amidships section when the stern was blown up. That one was in the after engine-room.

In its communique reporting the sinking, the navy said that neither the enemy submarine nor the torpedo was sighted prior to the first hit.

After the first hit blew up the destroyer's bow, the submarine circled ahead of her and fired the torpedo which caused the terrible explosion of the depth charges in the stern.

The Jacob Jones was the ninth United States naval ship lost so far in the war, including the Reuben James, which was torpedoed last fall prior to formal U.S. declaration of war.

run wild in the Orient.

The coming clash between Hitler and the Allies is likely to be the big showdown, that is, the battle which will determine how far the Fuehrer can go. Small wonder then that Hitler is bent on cutting the sea-lanes and thus depriving the Allies of the assistance they need to initiate successful offensives against the Germans. The United States shipbuilding program is said to be sufficient to make up current losses—but time is the fateful element. Battles are being fought, and won or lost, right now in the Allied arsenals and shipbuilding yards.

Prisoner Aosta Ex-Ethiopian Ruler Dies Of TB

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, March 3 (CP)—The Duke of Aosta, Viceroy of Ethiopia who became a British prisoner of war, died today.

The Duke, a second cousin of Italian King Victor Emanuel, was 43 years old.

He was taken ill of tuberculosis after being placed in an officers' prison camp following his surrender in Ethiopia last May.

The Duke of Aosta was a brawny, unconventional member of the Italian Royal family, the only prominent person in the House of Savoy who continued to be an ardent supporter of Mussolini and his Fascist regime.

The Duke's father was one of the first to support Mussolini when Il Duce first began organizing the Blackshirts and because of this the Duke almost was given a chance to become King of Italy.

Mussolini once thought he might be able to break the line of direct succession to the Crown in favor of Aosta. The restrained and more intellectual Crown Prince Umberto had a definite dislike for Mussolini. But the conventional King Victor Emmanuel opposed any change and won on the point of Umberto remaining Crown Prince.

He Beat Out Victor

Aosta won once again the King when he wanted to succeed Marshal Rodolfo Graziani in 1937 as Viceroy of Ethiopia. The King did not want the House of Savoy involved too much in the Italian victory over Hailie Selassie's kingdom until it was determined whether Mussolini's conquest was to be permanent. As subsequent events proved, the King was canny in this, but the Fascist Grand Council decided otherwise.

There was no question about it being a distinct honor when Aosta was made Viceroy of Ethiopia; he was later to leave as a prisoner of the British army that restored Emperor Haile Selassie to his throne in Addis Ababa.

The eldest son of the Duke and Duchess of Aosta, he began his military career at 16 when he departed for the front in the First Great War with the rank of corporal. He was born in Turin October 21, 1898.

After the war he was unheard of for some time and then suddenly turned up as foreman of a soap factory in the Belgian Congo.

Returning to the Royal circles of Rome he took the oath of Senator in 1921. After his marriage to Princess Anne of Belgium in Naples on May 11, 1827, he started anew on his military career and led the Italian forces which defeated rebellious tribesmen in Italian African colonies in 1928.

Japanese dive bombers run high risk at each operation.

The Burma campaign is more than ever a race against time—time beind needed for the Allies to bring men and equipment overseas, while the Japanese are most anxious to win the Irrawaddy delta and move up to Mandalay before the monsoon season starts in mid-May.

The All-India radio broadcast a communique reporting that a growing number of Indians were returning to Rangoon and even were opening up small shops in the city, which had been all but evacuated in the face of the Japanese threat from the East.

Along the Sittang River, the communique reported, the position generally was unchanged after skirmishes between British Empire and Japanese forces at one point. R.A.F. fighters and bombers attacked Japanese lines and transport concentrations "with good effect," the communique said.

Units of the Indian Air Force operating in Burma have been so so successful in bombing and reconnaissance raids over Japanese-held terirtory that they have been singled out for praise by Gen. Wavell, now in charge.

transaction that suspicion was aroused and Constable Hardy arrested the pair.

Afraid of Police.

"There wasn't much fun about it," the smaller of the two prisoners said in his cell at the police station last night. "We were afraid all the time of being arrested and we ran every time we saw a policeman anywhere."

According to the boys they have not been used too well at home. "Our fathers are old country Ukrainian people," one of the boys said, "and they believe in beating you often. I have been tied to a post for hours, and we couldn't even get a few cents to go to a show."

They had no trouble in getting accommodation at hotels during their tour. "We paid in advance and no questions were asked," one of the boys said when asked as to whether their youthful appearance had not made it awkward for them to get rooms in hotels.

Brantford police have been notified and officers are expected this afternoon to take the pair back to the Telephone City.

Suggested by Older Lad.

The idea of running away from Brantford, according to the two boys here, originated with the seventeen-year-old boy who deserted them in Oshawa. He had been in trouble before, they said, and suggested that if they could get some money the three would go away together. It was then that one of the fifteen-year-olds remembered the money that the boarder at his home had in his room, and the theft followed.

"How did it happen the boarder had that much money in his room?" this boy was asked.

"He had saved it up to get married," was the explanation, "and then the girl ran out on him."

The boys both declared that they would rather go to an industrial school for a term than to be turned over to their fathers for punishment. "My dad will kill me," one of them said. "Me, too," echoed the other.

Wavell Goes Back To India

May Be Club To Offer Of Dominion Status; Dutch Handling Java

WASHINGTON, March 3—(AP)—In Java's most desperate hour the Netherlands took over supreme command of the fight for the Indies today after the United Nations announced Japanese successes had split the Allied front in the South Pacific, creating a grave threat to India.

Removal of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell as commander-in-chief in the Indies and his return to his former post as commander-in-chief in India was evidence the Allies expected the enemy drive through Burma to assume more formidable proportions.

The shift in commands was disclosed here by the United States army and navy in a joint statement simultaneous with an announcement from Downing Street. The belief was that Gen. Wavell had transferred his headquarters to Burma before the Japanese opened their all-out assault on Java.

The joint army-navy statement made plain the move meant no

US Bans Release On Lists Of Casualties

(By J. F. SANDERSON.)

WASHINGTON, March 3—(CP).—Casualty lists are not being issued in the United States during this war and the American people have not been told how many soldiers and sailors have been killed or wounded since the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor Dec. 7 and pushed the United States into open belligerency.

This practice is being followed for two reasons, first, because casualty lists provide useful information for the enemy on troop and ship dispositions, and, secondly, because some people believe that frequent publication of long casualty lists has a depressing effect on public morale.

Relatives of American soldiers and sailors killed or wounded on active service are informed promptly, of course, and there is no prohibition on local publication of the facts, providing there is no disclosure of military information such a sthe name of a ship or the man's unit or the station to which he is attached.

What has been stopped is the release by Washington of long lists of casualties, such as Ottawa frequently issues, which may be published anywhere.

The rule was waived Feb. 19 when Washington issued the names of 1,009 soldiers and sailors who were presumed to be prisoners of the Japanese.

It is expected here that, periodically, the War Department and the Navy Department will issue casualty totals for a set period but so far that has not been made.

During the First Great War, the United States followed the system of issuing full casualty lists but since then American authorities have come to the conclusion it has both psychological and military disadvantages.

Shorter U.K. Rations Loom

Cut Imports After Reserves Built Up 30 P.C.

LONDON, March 3 (CP) — A British spokesman, reporting that Britain's loss of food through ship sinkings had not been "really substantial,' asserted today that the countrys essential food stocks at the end of 1941 were 30 per cent higher than at the end of 1940.

Nevertheless, he said, it may be necessary to reduce existing rations to some extent.

Food imports will be reduced, he said, but thanks to the policy of building reserves the country will be adequately fed. He indicated however, that rationing would be extended to some foodstuffs now sold without restrictions.

The improved food condition, he said, is due to "very substantial" United States aid and increased home production. Between May 1, 1941, and Jan. 1, 1942, Britain received lease-lend food approximately equal to one month's imports from all sources. American canned meat comprised one-fifth of the meat ration. "We extend our sincere thanks for the way in which the government and people of the United States have helped us with food," he said.

Illustrating the present extent of government restrictions, he said the price control covered 60 food commodities or grades of commodities.

Army Terms And Pay As Nation Girds For Invasion

(By VERN HAUGLAND.)

MELBOURNE, March 3.—(AP).—Thousands of Australians were liable to a labor draft to-day—on army terms and at army pay—as the Commonwealth enforced drastic new measures to gird against an invasion thrust its leaders believe may not be far distant.

The new wartime edicts are aimed at profiting from the lessons Australia has learned from the war in the Pacific so far—the urgent need for fast, uninterrupted and plentiful production and for precision military co-operation.

These were summarized in yesterday's report of Maj.-Gen. Gordon Bennett, the Australian commander at Singapore who escaped the Japanese. He told the Commonwealth Council, which apparently responded quickly to his advice, that the campaign in Malaya proved the need of a modern army for crushing aerial superiority, working in close collaboration with the land forces.

Besides calling civilians for compulsory service, the government also abolished five major holidays and welded the Australian Imperial force, the famous volunteer army, into one unit with the militia and the permanent garrison.

Under Army Rule.

Decision to extend the labor corps system meant compulsory service at army pay—well below trade-union levels—and under virtual army discipline chiefly for work on construction and maintenance projects.

These measures projected Australian readiness yet another long step forward.

Non-essentials already had been trimmed from civilian life, some rationing has been instituted, the blackout has been organized and military rule and civilian evacuation enforced in Northern Australia.

The groundwork for marshalling all resources was prepared last month in regulations providing for

Colonel 30, Heads Armored Unit

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, March 3—(CP).—One of Canada's most brilliant army officers, Des Smith of London, Ontario, and Ottawa, has taken over command of a Canadian permanent force cavalry regiment which he joined as a subaltern nine years ago.

Now at 30 he is a Lieutenant Colonel in command of this armored regiment in England. And he is the youngest Commanding Officer in a Canadian armored division.

There are few parallels in Canadian military history to match his rapid rise.

"This appointment just about makes me the luckiest fellow in the world," was Colonel Smith's comment.

His regiment will be the spearhead of any armored division attack and under Smith, it is generally held, it will get inspired leadership. The new Colonel has been with the regiment only a week, but his troops worship him. Typical reaction of one of his troopers was: "Brothers, there's a man."

Colonel Smith, a permanent force officer, came overseas with the 1st Canadian Contingent in December, 1939, as Staff Captain "Q" at Divisional Headquarters. Then he became deputy assistant Quartermaster General and later attended Camberley Staff College, returning to the division as General Staff officer second grade "in the operations branch.

Following this he went to Canadian Corps headquarters and helped organize the first Canadian junior war staff course, serving as an instructor. When the course was concluded Smith returned to Canada and became a Brigade Major in an armored brigade in the then newly-formed division.

New Recruit System

Ottawa, March 3 (CP)

THE Canadian Army announced today a new system of allocating recruits to various arms of the service and in future recruits will be guided by personnel selection officers into the unit or arm for which they are best suited.

Heretofore, when a recruit was accepted, he was sent without question to whatever unit or arm he requested.

"From now on, however," said the defence department, "if a man insists upon enlisting into any particular unit or arm, he will be allowed to do so—with the warning that if the interests of the service demand it, he will be transferred to one to which he is more suited.

Street Lighting Too Good Aldermen Say

Alderman Herb Bradburn and Alderman James Dutton don't like the idea of giving wartime housing sections of the city such good lighting, and they said so at the council meeting on Monday night, with a motion that stalled action on the report of the Fire and Light committee, of which Alderman J. E. Sullivan is chairman.

The report recommended that the chairman be authorized to instruct the Utilities Commission to instal 100-watt street lamps to serve the wartime houses located north of Parkhill Road, there being one 100-watt lamp for each twelve houses, and that Wartime Housing Limited be notified the city will expect annual payment of $12.00 for each light.

"It is unfair to the older residential areas of the city where people are paying high taxes to give this temporary community better lighting, and I would move that this action be deferred and a report be brought in showing a comparison between city residential areas and wartime housing. I don't think there is a light for every 20 houses in some sections of the city."

"We are not giving them anything near the lighting in the city. In some places we use 300-watt lamps, and another feature is that this wartime housing lighting does not cost us one cent," Mayor Hamilton said.

Alderman Dutton— "Burnham's Point is one of the best lighted sections of the entire city, and we must remember that when the foliage is on the trees it reduces the amount of light, but in the wartime housing areas, there are no trees to interfere, and they should not need so many lights."

Alderman Dutton seconded Alderman Bradburn's motion and it carried.

Decision of this committee to purchase two new fire alarm boxes, one for each wartime housing area, also came under fire from Alderman Bradburn who claimed there could be a re-allocation of existing boxes to serve these communities in view of the fact that few alarms come in by box, and by far the majority over the telephone.

Alderman Sullivan pointed out that this re-allocation of boxes was opposed by Fire Chief George Gimblett, and in the interests of fire protection he was not prepared to oppose a recommendation from the man who had the responsibility of protecting the property of the citizens.

This measure passed the council without further discussion. The committee also recommended that no action be taken this year in the matter of purchasing a new car for the Fire Chief.

Cheesemakers Place Second

CAMPBELLFORD, March 3 — (ENS). — According to Federal grading returns for the part of Ontario east of Toronto the Campbellford district obtained the second highest average score during the season, being topped only by what is known as the Napanee district. The Napanee area boxed 47,916 cheese with an average score of 93.502 as compared to the Eastern Ontario section total of 909,253 boxes and average score of 93.067. The Campbellford area sold 39,983 boxes with an average score of 93.475 points. The Stirling area came third with 48,209 boxes and 93.454 points, while Madoc was next with 30,253 boxes and an average score of 93.356. Lowest score in any of the 25 districts was 92.513. In the 1940 scoring Stirling led the list, with Napanee which is now in first place, taking 4th and Campbellford and Madoc 2nd and 3rd. A check-up of the total paid out for quality premium and provincial subsidy in the entire township of Seymour shows this yielded producers an additional $74,377.85 during the 1941 season.

Hydro Officials Block Rebate To Consumers

COBOURG, Mar. 3.—(ENS).—Cobourg electric consumers can expect no rebate or a corresponding period of free electricity because of a surplus in the electric dept. of the local utilities, according to a copy of a letter sent by the H.E.P.C. to the town clerk. A copy of the letter was read at last night's meeting of the Cobourg Public Utilities Commission, the letter having been sent by the H.E.P.C. to the town clerk in response to a query regarding disposition of the electric surplus. The letter which is self-explanatory, read as follows:

Feb. 21, 1942.

Mr. A. W. Young, Clerk, Town of Cobourg, Cobourg, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—We have your letter of February 16th stating that in is your understanding that there is a surplus in the local Public Utilities Commission business and suggesting that consideration be given to supplying a free month's service to the consumers.

In reply we would advise that we have not yet received the operating statement of the local electric utility for the year ending December 31, 1941, and we are not in a position to state that there is a surplus in the local utility.

Moreover, we would point out that since the beginning of the war, there has been no rebates approved for return to consumers by electric utilities anywhere in the province. This policy was adopted at that time, having in mind the conditions which the war has brought about, necessitating considerable capital expenditures in plant and equipment to take care of the unprecedented growth in load, all of which necessitates keeping on hands funds readily available to take care of such projects without obligating the corporation to go into the market for funds.

It is also considered that there is a probability of a violent reaction after the war when there will be a marked reduction in load, and as a consequence, an increase in costs, requiring the utilities to have on hand funds to meet these conditions.

This Commission has recommended the municipalities throughout the province to use their surplus funds in investing in Victory Loan Bonds, and we think your local utility should be guided by these wishes of the Commission.

Yours truly,
R. T. Jeffery,
Chief Municipal Engineer

Commissioner Jack Delanty expressed surprise at the fact that the council had written the H.E.P.C.

"Do I understand from the letter that the council wrote, unknown to us, to the H.E.P.C. asking for a rebate?" queried Commissioner Delanty.

"That seems to be the only conclusion that can be drawn," commented Chairman Harry McGuire.

Manager McIntosh brought up a matter in connection with some citizens worrying about the fact that the street lights were on sometimes during the day. They had the mistaken impression that the commission was running up a light bill when no lights were needed.

"There are some citizens who are commenting about the street lights being on when the fact is that they are on in the daytime in order that we can carry out a day patrol to see if all the lights are burning. That used to be done at night. However, with the lights on in the day, some people are thinking that the power is being wasted. We are not costing the utilities anything by having them on so long as they are not on during the peak load. We usually turn them on during part of Friday for patrol inspection. If we didn't make a regular patrol there would be calls coming in daily about lights being out and it would cost us more on that basis than it is now," stated Mr. McIntosh.

"The patrol is the right thing to do all right. It doesn't cost us anything to have the lights on for the test as we are only charged on the peak. For instance if we had the lights on for a test at seven, when house lights were going on, we would be incurring extra costs," stated Commissioner Delanty.

Commissioner Delanty also suggested that the utilities issue a financial statement covering a period for some years back, showing the revenue and disbursements. Some people had the mistaken idea that the electric dept. was making from ten to twelve thousand a year, he said. The commission decided to carry out the suggestion.

Following are the accounts passed at the meeting.

Electrical Dept. — H.E.P.C., $5,855.10; Northern Electric, $11.73; Line Cable Accessories Co., $72.35; Judson T. Kennedy, $153.00, and J. D. Larkin $50.15; total, $6,168.61.

Water Dept. — Public Utilities Commission of Cobourg, electric dept., $185.90; British American Oil Co., $16.00; Canadian Brass Co., Ltd., $1.32; R. Patterson & Son, $4.98; Ontario Plumbing and Heating Co., $3.16; Nicholls Chemical Co., $15.39; Stan Pratt, $290.22. Total, $516.97

KINGS ROW

By HENRY BELLAMANN

THE TOWER TRAGEDY
CHAPTER XVIII

When Parris waked, Drake was standing beside the bed with a breakfast tray.

"Better eat this, kid."

Drake's manner was so grave that Parris looked up in surprise.

"Are you all right, Drake? Anything the matter?"

Parris threw back the covers and swung his feet out of bed. "See here, Drake, you can't fool me. Something's the matter with you."

"Cassie's dead, Parris."

Parris opened his mouth but he couldn't make a sound.

"Her father killed her—and committed suicide."

"Good God, Drake! It must have been because—it was my fault."

"Don't even think that, Parris." Drake shook him. "Now, you listen to me. You keep your mouth shut. Tight, do you hear?"

Parris tried to pull away.

"Listen to me, Parris. You can ruin everything if you don't watch out. It's not your fault. He must have been crazy."

"How—"

"She was dead in bed from some kind of poison—they don't know yet what it was. Must have been something quick."

"Drake—I've got to go and find out—"

"Oh, no you don't! You stay right here, and I'll go. But—damn it, kid, don't you see you might get mixed up in this some way?"

"Mixed—up—in—it?"

"Well, you're the only person ever went there. You have been seeing Cassie, haven't you? And she was here in this house, last night!"

"Well, we've got to tell them. I—"

"I swear, I'll knock your head loose if you don't do what I tell you. Listen—just as a favor to me, let me go downtown, and I'll come right back. If everything looks all right, you can go out yourself. I just don't want you to get talked about unnecessarily. That's all. Now, will you promise me?"

"Yes."

Drake didn't come back until noon. He looked hot and tired.

Parris met him at the door.

"Drake—quick!"

"It's all right, kid, as far as you're concerned."

"That's not the question. I mean, did you find out why he killed her?"

"No. His letter—he left a letter on his study table—didn't tell any reason at all. He just explained that he had killed his daughter and was going to kill himself. The rest was just directions that he and Cassie were to be buried here in Kings Row."

"Is that all?"

"There was a letter addressed to the bank, and to Colonel Skeffington—a kind of a will."

"Then he did have kinfolks somewhere?"

"No, He left everything he had to you."

"You're crazy!"

"No, I'm not. But I'm damn sure Dr. Tower must have been."

"Left it to me! Why? What for?"

"No explanation at all. Colonel Skeffington asked all sorts of questions. Wondered if you had any inkling of this. But you see it excuses you, all right, from any responsibility in Cassie's death. If that had been what he killed her for, he wouldn't have left you his property."

Parris beat on the table with his fists. "I don't care about that! It's Cassie! Cassie . . . too! What did she do?" He leaned forward and bent his head on his clenched hands. He began to cry, uncontrollably, making small, incoherent sounds.

"You stay out of it. Somebody'll begin to ask you questions, and just like I said, you haven't got any more sense than to tell everything you know."

Parris looked a little blank. "Everything I know?"

"You know that Cassie came running here last night like something was after her, and wanted you to marry her."

"Well—"

"Can't you imagine what Kings Row would make out of that! Think a little, you numskull! This town's been talking about the Towers ever since I can remember anything, wondering about 'em, and the like."

The narrow circle of questions began its grinding revolutions again. Why? What? Why?

Why did Cassie come last night?

What was she afraid of?

What reason could her father have had for killing her?

What reason could he have had for killing himself?

Why didn't Cassie explain things last night?

Why didn't Dr. Tower leave a letter for him since he was leaving him his property?

Why—and why, why hadn't he ever come right out and asked Cassie about herself?

He couldn't go on always not knowing what lay in the past.

Parris sat rigid, and Drake waited. Drake's lips quivered ever so little as he watched. Parris' face had altered during these hours. That soft-complexioned look he had always had was gone.

Parris and Drake returned from the double funeral late the next afternoon. It had been more of an ordeal than either of them had anticipated. There was a curious crowd that packed the dim, shabby house.

Everyone watched Parris. He had gone a little faint when they seated him near the coffins. A sheaf of flowers hid Cassie's face from him.

No Action Taken On Parking Lot By City Council

Occupants of stores in the block from Louis street to the creek on the south side of Charlotte street were given hopes of a new lease of life for their businesses in the in the same location on Monday night when the city reconsidered their decision to wreck the houses and convert the property into a municipal parking lot.

A recommendation from the Board of Works that the houses be torn down when the leases expire on the first of May was deleted from the report, and discussion indicated the Council members had undergone a change of heart because of changed conditions.

Alderman Glover explained that the curtailment of motoring due to wartime restrictions on gasoline coupled with the fact that the Government was losing $1600 in revenue by demolishing the buildings were in his opinion sufficient reasons for reconsidering the question.

Rented on Monthly Basis

"We should pass the report of the Legal committee authorizing the signing of an agreement with the Government for the use of the property at a dollar a year, then stall off demolition of the buildings until such time as conditions warranted their removal. They could be rented by the Government on a monthly rental after May 1st when the leases expire," May Hamilton observed.

He also pointed out that there was quite a space at the rear of the buildings which could be converted into parking space without much expenditure, and if another entrance to the property off Charlotte street and near Louis street could be had, then the plan should be beneficial to all.

This suggestion found favor with the Council members and the Mayor will instruct one committee to deal further with the proposal.

A recommendation from the Board of Works that a by-law be prepared making it an offence for citizens to sweep sand or calcium off the city streets, after it had been placed there by city workmen for the protection of pedestrians also ran into stormy weather. When the by-law was read Alderman Bradburn asked what would happen if a storekeeper started to shovel away snow, after a storm and removed the sand at the same time.

Some discussion followed and it was apparent the by-law had been framed because the city was liable for damage claims from citizens who fell and suffered injury on the icy pavements, and removal of sand or calcium chloride increased the danger of accidents.

"I move this be laid over, and referred back to the Board of Works" said Alderman Cotton, second the motion, said Alderman Gordon and the by-law went back to committee for the time being.

The by-law confirming the annual grants of the City Council to various organization failed to wend its way through the intricacies of council procedure when the list of grants to the bands were read, and a discussion immediately developed.

It seems that the City purchased band instruments for the Citizen's Band, and before giving the grant this year, they wished three officials of the organization to sign a document giving the city a lien on the instruments.

The legal precaution was merely a guarantee to the city that the band would remain in existence, because on previous occasions the city had financed two bands, which had dropped out of existence, and the instruments vanished with them.

Three letters have been sent band officials according to the City Clerk, but they have not come into the City Hall to sign, so the council decided to shelve the report, ratifying all grants for the time being.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 3 — (ENS).—Employees of this town's largest industry, the Campbellford Cloth Company, have done more than their share toward helping the district's Victory Loan quota. They have exceeded their $9,400.00 objective by 56 per cent., according to the superintendent, J. Cunningham. By Saturday applications at the plant had reached the $13,000.00 mark, or 17 per cent. of the total amount subscribed by the entire town. Reds Learn Fast On Hurricanes Britons Return

LONDON, March 3—(AP).—Hundreds of 12-gun Hurricanes, finest fighters to come off Britain's assembly lines, are being flown daily on Russia's front against Germany —and by Russian airmen—returning Royal Air Force men said yesterday.

Having completed its two-fold task of instruction in the use of the Hurricanes and helping check the German drive against Murmansk, in the far north, the entire R.A.F. wing of two squadrons which had been sent to the Soviet Union, has returned home.

No further explanation of the home-coming was given in the Air Ministry's announcement although it suggested that the Russians now are self-sufficient in air fighting personnel.

"You have to hand it to the Russians," said one of the arrivals. "They certainly learn fast."

One R.A.F. squadron had destroyed 13 German planes with the loss of only one pilot and one plane. The other did not lose a single Russian bomber during the many times it escorted raiding parties. Altogether, 15 German planes were shot down by the R.A.F. in Russia.

Wing Cmdr. Henry Ramsbottom-Isherwood and Sqdn. Ldrs. Anthony Rook and Anthony Miller were awarded D.F.C.'s for distinguished leadership.

One pilot said the "Russian observers corps is most efficient." The first time the Germans came over to raid the airdrome, he said, the Hurricanes were waiting for them in the air and shot down three bombers.

The fliers also praised the Russian anti-aircraft defences.

"We were told," one of them said, "and I see no reason to disbelieve ti, that the ant-aircraft defences of Moscow are in a belt several miles in thickness. That probably explains why so few Germans ever reached the city.

"While we are naturally happy to get back home," he added, "many of us were sorry to leave Russia. I, for one, returned very confident of the part Russia is playing in this war."

Legion Members Purchase Bond

COBOURG, Mar. 3 — (ENS).— Cobourg Branch No. 133 of the Legion practically cleaned out its general fund yesterday in order to do its bit again by buying a Victory Bond. President James Rollings and the secretary W. W. Stephens walked into the Loan Headquarters in Cobourg on Monday morning and signed up for a $1,000 bond.

In the early days of the present war the local Legion decided to cut down spending on annual picnics, various social entertainments, even decided against redecorating the Legion Rooms, in order to have funds to be devoted to some importance service to Canada. It took practically all the general fund to place the $1,000 investment in the Second Victory Loan, and the comrades of Branch No. 133 feel very pleased that they have been able by their forethought to help a bit at this time.

Salvage Co-ordination Plan Urged on Campbellford Council

CAMPBELLFORD, March 3 — (ENS)—Two communications dealing with the knotty question of collecting salvage prompted council to take quick action when they met for their regular meeting here last night. They gave careful consideration to a resolution passed by the Campbellford and District Ministerial Association, pointing to the importance of this particular work and indicating that the people of oot effort. Commending the salvage work already done by both the I.O.D.E. and Red Cross the clergy emphasize the immensity of the undertaking which includes the collection of all waste paper, fats, bones, rags, and other materials required in the war effort. They felt that efforts in the past had "proved inefficient because of the irregularity of collection. People co-operating in this way have held such materials in basements and sheds until they have become a fire harzard. We the member of the Campbellford Ministerial Association feel the town council is the proper body to give effectiveness to this matter, and that the institution of regular collection would collect tons of useful waste and the financial returns could be divided among our patriotic organizations and thur increase their services. Sequel to this was the letter to council from the I.O.D.E. asking assistance for their salvage work. The branch last year collected 25 tons of salvage according to their secretary, who suggested that a truck "several days each month" together with a driver and at least two male assistants, was what they needed most.

"They are not making collections often enough. That is where they are falling down," said Deputy Reeve MacMillan, to which Councillor Anderson added the suggestion the work could be facilitated if printed instructions for baling and tying up papers were distributed to every home. Reeve Calver then made a motion naming the mayor, deputy reeve and Councillor Anderson as a committee with power to act. They will go into the matter thoroughly with the I.O.D.E.

Under the heading, "Report of Committees," Road and Bridge Chairman P. H. MacMillan said he had gone into the question of the sidewalk requested by Charles Bedford, but with snow covered ground it was a poor time to make an estimate of cost. Already committed to a sewer job this Spring, he said his committee was in favor of building the walk as soon as estimates are struck by the Finance committee, when we will know definitely what can be done. Finance Chairman Calver declared he was reluctant to call a meeting till the snow was gone "so we can see the condition of our streets."

Commenting on the bonfire held in connection with the opening of the second Victory Loan campaign, Mayor Long thanked the committee responsible for arranging the beacon, adding he was well pleased with the number of people who turned out on such a cold night. Town Solicitor N. A. McCall delivered a comprehensive report on his findings resulting from an investigation he had made into the distribution of fines collected in local police court. The province had been getting all levies made resulting from breaches of the Traffic Act prosecuted by Provincial police, he said, and according to his information from the Department of Legal Offices, the Government retained 40 per cent of all fines that did not come under the Traffic Act, while the municipality got what appeared at first to be the lion's share—60 per cent. Out of their 60 per cent, however, each municipality had to pay their assessed proportion of maintaining the Magistrate's office at Port Hope which itself amounts to approximately $100 per month. As a result the monthly statements of fines to the corporation might show as much as two or three hundred dollars collected, while in reality only an infinitesimal part of this ever reached the town coffers. No part of this cost was being taken from fines collected by the Province.

Continuing, the solicitor said he had thoroughly explained the situation to the Department of Legal Offices, which had now agreed to pay a proportionate share of these costs of administration and "from now on we should be getting somewhat more from these fines."

Another question dealing with court cases was brought up by Councillor Anderson, who asked if any of the neighboring municipalities had as yet contributed the $1 per case fee for hearings in the local court. On getting a negative reply from the mayor, he once again raised the question as to the prudence of setting the fee. "Hastings is very much opposed to this court room charge, and I understand they are taking all their cases to be tried in Cobourg." He explained that when a Campbellford citizen was apprehended there, he was taken to Cobourg for a hearing and this added to the costs.

Other member of council were of the opinion the levy should stay. Said the reeve, "Every other corporation makes a charge for the use of their police court by outside municipalities and I don't see any reason why we shouldn't. If they don't want to pay, let them stay away. Why should we heat a court room and maintain it for them for nothing?"

Characterizing the work of Auditors W. A. Kingston and J. M. Bygott as "a very fine report," the chairman of finance read to council a recommendation made regarding insurance policies which was their only complaint. Of the condition of finances generally they commented that all departments showed a surplus except the town account operated by the treasurer, which showed a deficit of $2,561.13 plus a loan of $2,200.00 outstanding, which is accounted for by the fact that the budget on which the tax rate was based was designed to leave no bank balance at the end of the year and the uncollected taxes were larger than the budget called for. "The current assets of the municipality exceed the current liabilities by $34,883.92 and the capital assets exceed the capital liabilities by $929,717.57. This shows a very sound condition of the town's af-

Rotarians Hear Progress Report

CAMPBELLFORD, March 3 — (ENS).—A summary of the progress made in the Campbellford district on Canada's second Victory Loan was given to Rotarians at their noon-day luncheon yesterday. Rotarian A. J. Armour, head of the local sales force, told in figures that were none too encouraging the results of the campaign so far. By Monday of this week only $75,000.00 or a little over half of the $125,000.00 objective had been reached, he said, whereas in the township of Seymour returns had been much higher as sixty-five per cent. or over $50,000.00 of the $72,000.00 objective has been reached. As an indication of the trend Mr. Armour pointed out that the number of applications equalled those for the previous loan which was over-subscribed. "We got $125,000.00 from Campbellford alone during the last campaign," he said, thanking the Club for their application which they decided to take out for a $200.00 bond. "In Campbellford and Seymour district we need every two hundred dollar application we can get," he added.

President Denyes expressed the thanks of the Club to Rotarian Stan Robins, who last week purovided a truck to assist the I.O.D.E. for one day with their salvage campaign. It was he who made the suggestion that part of the funds being carried by the Club should be invested in a Victory Bond and the matter was put to a vote authorizing the subsequent purchase of a $200.00 bond. The group headed by L. B. Glover was announced the winner of the attendance contest being sponsored by the club during the past three months.

Capturing The Elusive

In addition to any aesthetic pleasure which members of the Peterborough Sketch Club may get of their devotion to Art (and only those associated with such an organization can fully realize how rich that kind of pleasure is), in addition to this such a body is to be congratulated on the character of the work they exhibited last week in Hall's store. They visualized for the public what the artists have seen and felt in their studies of life and nature in and about this district.

There always has been through the ages, always will be through the centuries to come, a place for what is artistic, beautiful and strong. Art divorced too much from the realities of life serves little purpose unless it depicts what is essentially spiritual, but the subjects of every-day experience—a landscape, a group of flowers, a child's head or a lake or an ocean in a violent mood — these and innumerable other commonplaces transmuted through the mind of the painter and put on canvas are what capture the evanescent and hold it for countless persons to see.

The natural phenomenon of this part of Ontario has practically all the essentials needed for Art—a vast mosaic of farm lands, hills, valleys, lakes, rugged uplands and vari-colored forests, and coupled with these are the living creatures—animals and birds—and over all the ever-changing skies during the four seasons. Why should these features not be enjoyed by a trained eye? Are they not the handiwork of the Supreme Artist? And are not men, women and children who are set in the midst of them a part of the Divine Plan? Religion itself is not more than a communion between the soul of an individual and the Absolute and what is lovely and beautiful is ever connected in the human mind with a relationship to divinity.

But greater than the mere physical world is the human being with all the potentialities that a normal person possesses. Man is the supreme creation. Therefore portraits that are skilful, faithful to the subject and distinctive in character, are studies that the keen, observant eye desires to perpetuate in paint and oil or some other form.

And so the Sketch Club, while having a modest name, really goes beyond what that name would imply. It often does the more substantial work as well as the less pretentious. The exhibition gave a gratifying range of both subject and treatment. Oils, pastels, water colors, some carbon executions—they offered a display distinctly creditable to the members of the organization. A. B. Burrows, as president, and D. G. Melton, as secretary-treasurer of the Club, may well feel that they are encouraging in their official capacity something of what humanity needs in these days of war gloom and war ugliness.

Auxiliary War Services

It should be made clear and so remain in the public mind that the announcement of War Services Minister Thorson with respect to federal cash for six organizations, namely the Canadian Legion, the Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A., Salvation Army, the Navy League of Canada and the Knights of Columbus—that the money which will come from the Federal Treasury is for auxiliary war services performed by these bodies and is not for their regular maintenance and operations.

This change from practices of the past when these organizations appealed to citizens generally for funds has been made necessary, as explained by the Minister, on account of the Government's need to launch Victory Loans and Stamp and Certificate selling campaigns whenever it needs large sums with which to help prosecute the war. It is deemed unwise to have so many appeals made and at periods which might interfere with what is of first importance, namely, the financial requirements of the nation as a whole.

Then, too, as the six bodies do a large amount of work for the benefit of the armed forces of Canada, at home and abroad in military establishments in camp or barrack areas and special defence areas, as designated by the Director of Auxiliary Services and the National War Charities Funds advisory board, it has been felt the resources should come from the Government. The hostel operations of the Navy League for men of the navy and mercantile marine will also be included. The Canadian Red Cross is not among them, it is explained, because of its international character and so it will make its own separate appeal in the spring.

The regular local work of such organizations as the Y.M.C.A. and the Salvation Army for example, the major phases of whose activities are for civilians, generally, irrespective of war, these bodies will have to carry out their annual appeals as usual. It will not be necessary, however, to include in their budgets on which their appeals are based, the amounts that are needed to look after men in uniform.

There might easily be some confusion in the minds of people, as a result of the announcement, and the opinion become rooted that the Government is to supply all the annual needs of these six well-known organizations. This, as has been stated, is distinctly not the case. The funds coming from the Government are for the war aunxiliary services only.

Difficult To Understand

The charge made by the Dies Committee in Washington that the Japanese carried on intensive espionage and propaganda activities in the United States for years before the attack on Pearl Harbor, with the purpose of paving a way for an invasion of the west coast of this North American Continent, is startling news, even though it is entirely conceivable. What is not so understandable is why this was allowed to go on so long, if the United States Government knew about it and why both the States and Great Britain were not in a better state of defence preparedness in the Far East if they knew all the time what was building up against them?

In reporting on these and other subversive matters, the House of Representatives Committee on un-American activities placed much stress on a book by a Japanese officer who advocated a direct attack on the west coast with a temporary halt and consolidation of forces in the Rocky Mountains. This document is an alleged plan for world conquest submitted by Premier Tanka to Emperor Hirohito. It advances the logic that the United States must first be crushed before China can be subdued.

There are many things an ordinary civilian cannot see through in this war because, no doubt, important diplomatic and strategic reasons guide the actions of Government and High Command leaders of which the vast public knows nothing. At the same time a person is entitled to be critical of political conditions that let months slip by complacently and without defensive moves when it is known that a potential enemy is right in your midst getting ready to strike a terrific blow.

Governments hold the purse strings of a nation. They spent big sums on intelligence and secret service work, year after year. Surely every capital like Washington, London and Ottawa knew and must now know what moves other powers that are warlike in mood are making. Why, then, the apparent indifference? Why is it that actual war has to be declared and destructive attacks made before action is taken to thwart the aggressor?

We may ask these questions but the answer? Well, perhaps it may some time be given, but in the meantime many precious lives have been sacrificed!

Getting The News

Little do any of us realize — we are too far from the scenes of action for the experiences to affect us as they would if we were present—little do we realize the dangerous and harrowing things through which correspondents often go to get news to the world of what is going on in war zones. The marvel is that these daring, courageous and keen-eyed men (there are a few women like Eve Curie who gets pretty close to the hazardous areas) escape with their lives from so many "close-shave adventures."

When one picks up a daily newspaper with despatches from many parts of the world, giving up-to-the-minute news, special articles and photograph reproductions, all conveying what is transpiring on the vast world-stage, one takes everything for granted—just a matter of course—without pondering the enterprise behind the headlines. Some of the undertakings of busy war correspondents are as likely to lead to death and serious wounds as are the exploits of men in the armed services. These journalists have been present on torpedoed, sinking ships; in warplanes as enemy guns blazed at them; in positions that have been surrounded, occasionally captured, by the enemy; in battlefields where carnage and bloodshed and pitiable cries tell of the horrors of man's effort to kill, and in offices upon which huge bombs have dropped, ripping the building to a mass of rubble.

Indeed, the various news-gathering and distributing associations and agencies, the network of wires covering all parts of the civilized world, the vigilance of reporters and correspondents to get information and promptly dispatch it, and the thousands of experts who sort, edit, relay and present war news from practically all over the entire globe —the whole result may seem simple when it appears in type on a page and is hurriedly scanned. Behind it though is a ceaseless, fearless organization of men, brains and money—an organization that takes constant risks in order to supply the latest and most informative facts to the waiting public.

Virtuous Impulses

One of the phases of the big Victory Loan campaign is the revelation of little incidents reflecting fine qualities of human nature. An example came to attention when, as reported in the Examiner Saturday, a woman entered the Bank of Montreal, in this city, and deposited five dollars to the account of Bernard Monaghan, a newsboy who had purchased a $50 bond on the instalment plan. The lad is twelve years of age and the fact that he was making such a noble effort to do something to help in the war and also to practice thrift in his own behalf, appealed to her best sentiments.

Sometimes one hears doubts expressed as to whether there is much of the generous, humanitarian spirit left these days, but so many incidents have come to light of admirable liberality of heart, together with a profound sense of patriotism, that there is ample proof of the inherent good which is in most people. In every financial effort conducted by a worthy community, or national body, in which public confidence exists, these virtues come to the front.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A ban has been placed by the Munitions and Supply Department on "mystery" and sightseeing bus tours. More and more it looks as though old Dobbin will come back into the picture.

Every once in a while some one makes a public plea for "better English." A few dictionaries instead of so many cheap dime novels would help raise the standard, but they don't seem to have many takers.

Australia is cetrainly giving evidence of an all-out war effort. The Government there, in addition to all other steps, has decided to close some of the suburban and county banks so as to release man-power. It will be left to the banks themselves to arrange which branches shall be closed down, but men must be available.

Now that real necessity has come, the women of Australia are manifesting a commendable readiness to meet the difficulties of war. They are now carrying their own parcels from the large stores in Melbourne to such an extent that the deliveries have dropped 66 per cent. Shoppers there are accepting also the no-wrapping rule, bringing their own containers to save wrapping paper.

He is a very marvellous man indeed who can be the symbol of a big nation, yet that appears to be the rare distinction belonging to Prime Minister Winston Churchill. W. Averill Harriman, President Roosevelt's Lease-Lend expediter, told a large luncheon audience in London that Churchill "epitomizes to Americans everything we most admire about the British people. No matter how rough the sea, no matter how hard the going—Churchill to us is hope." What a tribute to pay from the greatest Republic in the world to the supreme government figure of the greatest empire in the world!

DIRGE

Dead is the day of glamour,
 Of castles in air and Spain,
Of tinsel and fancy boxes
 The era of cellophane,
The years of sophistication
 And cynical "Well, who cares!"
The epoch of brag and bluster
 And multiple millionaires.
Past is the hour of nostrums,
 Word jugglery masked as truth,
Of lollipop education
 Insurgence and flaming youth.
Gone is the time for trifling,
 For limitless gasoline,
The worship of specious talkers,
 Vague thinking and culturine.
Dead is the day of folly,
 Of wastefulness, yours and mine,
Bid it farewell forever,

Great European Takes Own Life In Foreign Land

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

IT IS surprising that the death of Stefan Zweig last week attracted so little attention in the press. He was one of the commanding figures in the world of international letters, and a truly great European. But, apparently, few Canadians noticed or cared that this man and his wife took poison and died together in Petropolis in Brazil, and that the explanation of his action was contained in a very few words: "My energy is exhausted by long years of peregrination as a man without a country." So passed one of the master-spirits of this age.

Zweig was an Austrian Jew, born sixty years ago, of a wealthy family. When he became a man he did something which was by no means uncommon in Europe, though it is almost unheard of on this continent; he adopted letters as a profession. We are apt to think of an author as a man who followed some other trade or work until his spare-time writing brought him enough money to enable him to give his whole time to it; the period which he lives by work which may be wholly uncongenial to him is usually considered 'valuable experience.' In Europe many writers are professionals from the beginning; if they have any money, they live on it and if they have not they scrape along somehow until their work begins to bring them a living. In passing it may be asked whether the amateurish tone of much of our writing is not attributable to this difference of approach. Thomas Mann set out uopn his career about as poor as a young man could be, but "Buddenbrooks" had brought him fame and a considerable measure of fortune by the time he was twenty-six. Zweig was one of the lucky ones; he had a rich family, and he never suffered the pangs of starving genius.

An Austrian and a Jew, Zweig's sympathies were European and international, and in this respect he resembled most of the other important European intellectuals of his time. Excessive national feeling is rarely a characterist of great minds, and it was a matter of little consequence to Zweig, Einstein, Freud, Unamuno, Madariaga, Madame Curie, Bergson, Ivan Bunin or Guglielmo Ferrero. They were more interested in men than in nations, and in mankind as a brotherhood rather than as a collection of antipathetic groups. They were not Austrian, or German, or Polish, or French, or Italian, in outlook; they were Europeans, and the custody of European culture and learning was safe with them.

THEY were people of influence, too, which is rather surprising to us on this continent, where the term 'intellectual' has dangerous affiliations with such words as 'radical' and 'agitator.' Of them, Jules Romains, a great Frenchman and a good European, has said: "In a Europe whose monarchs no longer counted for much and maintained merely indirect and formal relationships, they constituted as it were a group of rulers of the mind whose exterior existence could be unostentatious—though this might not always be the case—and whose meetings with one another could occur without any publicity." By actual meetings and by correspondence, they did much to guide the thought of Europe. Their association was by no means a carefully planned thing; it was the result merely of one mind of unusual quality finding others which were congenial to it. In these minds, national barriers did not exist.

But they existed in lesser minds. Nationalism, always a dangerous idea, was the keystone of that edifice of hatred and mendacity and cruelty built up by Hitler and his gang. "Patriotism," said Dr. Johnson, in one of his most gnomic remarks, "is the last refuge of a scoundrel." No one has shown this more clearly than Adolf, who took it as his first refuge as well. And the sort of nationalism which Hitler has developed cannot brook the existence of an internationalism founded upon bonds of intellect. Of the good Europeans named above, only Mann, Einstein and Ferrero are able to continue their work on behalf of mankind. How many others have been imprisoned, killed, or hounded to death? These people, who have taken part in what has been called the greatest intellectual revolution since the Renaissance—a revolution tending wholly toward the betterment of man's lot and his greater understanding of the universe —were dangerous to Hitler, and he got rid of them. But, you may ask, if these people were so influential, how did a Hitler ever arise? The question is just, and the answer is a sad one; the victory of the pen over the sword usually comes long after both the combatants are dead. During life the sword has certain physical advantages.

And so Zweig has died by his own hand, heartsick at the spectacle of the Europe which he loved, enslaved by a malign tyrant. And yet, which will have the more abiding influence upon that continent—the man who combined history and philosophy, or the man who turned history, for a few years, into a bloody and improbable farce? The question presents no problem and is merely posed rhetorically.

ADDING TO HIS BURDEN

• Java's Outlook Dark

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—A close Allied censorship covering both sea and land phases of the Battle of Java prevents accurate appraisal of its progress.

It cannot be doubted, however, that with Japanese landings achieved at three far-separated points there is an ominous possibility of an early loss of this last Indies link in the United Nations' defensive front in the far Pacific.

If Java is to go the way of Singapore quickly it would leave only MacArthur's American-Filipino troops on Bataan or in isolated mountain refuges on Luzon and Mindanao still clinging to tiny Allied footholds in the vast island-dotted area the Japanese have overrun in less than three months. A wide rupture in United Nations' contacts would result, forcing drastic revision of Allied strategy and command co-ordination.

85,000 ASHORE

The Java link alone bars a breach thousands of miles wide in the front from Rangoon to the northwestern tip of Australia. Its collapse would probably necessitate recasting the now unified command for an American-Australian stand on one side and a British-Chinese rallying to guard the road to India on the other.

On the Island of Java the Japanese are meeting probably the heaviest forces they have yet encountered; that, too, at the far end of the longest communication lines of their desperately bold bid for mastery.

It is estimated that not more than 85,000 Nipponese troops at most reached shore in the first triple-pronged invasion. The Netherlanders are credited with more than 100,000 seasoned native and colonial forces concentrated in Java, reinforced by both American and British or Australian contingents of undisclosed size. Some statements indicate that 250,000 fighting men are available on the island to meet the Japanese thrust.

It is possible that the main Japanese invasion force may yet be mustering in Sumatra, transferred from the Malay Peninsula. There has been much to indicate that the Indies High Command expected that, rather than an attempted invasion directly from the north across the Java Sea.

MUST LOOK EASTWARD

Prompt firing of oil refinery installations in Western Java under the Indies' scorched earth policy is reported. It suggests that the defense plan being followed calls for withdrawal eastward if necessary to make a last-ditch stand in defense of the Surabaya naval and air base and contacts with Australia.

It is to the east that defenders of Java must look for additional reinforcements, to Australia and the United States. They can expect no help from the hard-pressed British forces in Burma. For that reason the eastern end of Java appears to be the area for a last-ditch fight. There are several successive good defense lines little more than fifty miles long spanning narrows of the island behind which stands might be made.

If that proves to be the defense strategy, the Japanese landing near Rembang, seventy miles west of Surabaya and already pushed twenty miles south and west of Blora, is the most dangerous. It is already far in the rear of short-line defensive positions bolstered by river and mountain barriers which would have afforded favorable ground to the defenders. It is to be assumed that every Allied effort is being made by land, sea and air to smash that enemy spearhead and drive it back into the sea before it can be reinforced.

A Bible Message For Today . . .

Now a certain man was sick, named Lazarus, of Bethany, the town of Mary and her sister Martha....When Jesus heard that, he said, This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby....

Then when Jesus came, he found that he had lain in the grave four days already....Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.... Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again. Mratha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day.

Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die. Believest thou this?

Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.

And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth. And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with graveclothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go —John xi, 1, 4, 17, 21, 23-26, 41-44.

SIR STAFFORD CRIPPS

FROM being more or less of a political pariah Sir Stafford Cripps now finds himself right in the spotlight. This is entirely due to Mr. Churchill's perspicacity in sending him to represent us at Moscow, and to his own patriotic attitude in going there. Sir Stafford returns home probably second only to Mr. Churchill in wartime prestige as assessed by the man in the street.

Yet it is doubtful whether, but for Hitler's blunder in double-crossing Stalin, even Sir Stafford's undoubted ability could have made a success of his Moscow ambassadorship. Sir Stafford came from Winchester to London University to study science, but changed over to law, and, despite some political prejudice, commanded as a K.C. as princely fees as any legal contemporary.

Sir Stafford went to France in 1914 with the Red Cross, but in 1915 was brought back to act as directing chemist in a government explosive factory.—London Cor. Ottawa Journal.

Hospital Women's Auxiliary Hears Dr. J. D. Smart

"Keeping our Health in War-Time" was the topical subject of Dr. J. D. Smart's address to the monthly meeting of the Hospital Women's Auxilary held on Monday afternoon in the Sunday School of St. Paul's church.

Mrs. Joseph Detcher, president, was in the chair, and minutes and treasurer's reports, and reports of various committees were read. The Samaritan Club reported the completion of 60 towels and 40 sheets; the sewing committee 605 articles completed and the membership committee reported a total of 2,364 members to date.

Mr. John Hornal, superintendent of the Nicholls Hospital, thanked the ladies for their excellent help and co-operation in the preparation of the new wing and went on to say that there must be a further move; the hospital situation in Peterborough, inadequate before the war, is even more so, now that war has brought so many more people into the city. He said that because houses are overcrowded and many people are living in boarding houses, many cases of sickness that might be treated at home must come to the hospital, thus rendering the accommodation ever more inadequate. He said that the Auxilary had done much to educate the public as to what the hospital does and to create loyalty to the hospital among those who have received treatment there. This will count for much when the problem of even greater expansion of our hospital facilities must be met.

Mrs. Steinkrauss of Lily Lake introduced the speaker of the meeting, Dr. Smart, who spoke on "Keeping Our Health in War-time."

Dr. Smart began by remarking that nothing would slacken the pressure on the hospital more quickly than by making a determined effort to improve our health. In case anyone should wonder why a minister should speak on such a subject, he explained his belief that, in order to be fit for his task in life, a person must be healthy in body, mind and spirt. He said that scientists and thinkers of today recognize no sharp division between the physical, mental and spiritual; all must be healthy if real good health is to be maintained.

Dr. Smart spoke of the reports coming out of Britain of the improved health of the people, in spite of their scanty rations, and of the reduction of nervous disorders in that country. He explained the latter by saying that we all eat too much; that over-eating is one of our great national pastimes. "Too many people," he said, "prefer the pleasures of self-indulgence to physical fitness." Anyone can be physically fit who is willing to make the effort and pay the price which it demands. We must be physically fit if we are to carry out our jobs.

The speaker said that too many minds today are fed on an exclusive diet of newscasts. News commentators, many of whom have neither the experience nor the education to deliver the opinons they do, take on the character of infallible deities in the minds of their listeners, who stop thinking for themselves. We should read the books of people who know their subjects, who are fitter by experience, education and intelligence to voice opinions. If democracy is to stand up our minds must go to work. And we must not forget that the news we hear is apt to be colored by the situation of the moment. For instance, before Russia entered the war all news of Russia was colored by the hostility which we felt for the Russian way of government; now all that has changed.

"Spiritual fitness is hard to define" the speaker said. But it is virtually necessary if we are to do our job properly. Some people try to keep spirtually fit without benefit of either food or exercise. Too many Christians do not know what they believe; they are unable to say what there is in their religion that they will live and die for.

Don't Slip Up Save Fats And Aid Salvage

Nearly every pound of vegetable oil imported into Canada must be paid for in United States currency. Those dollars are needed for the purchase of munitions. It is time we stopped importing non-essenials and made use of what we have.

Vegetables were used in the manufacture of soap. They were imported from far off romantic places that are now a target for Japanese bombs: the East Indies, Malaya, China. Even if we did not mind paying for them, we cannot get those oils now.

But in our own country there has always been a wastage of surplus animal fats. Now we must save every ounce of fat that we would once have thrown away. It will be used, not only in the manufacture of soap, but to take the place of vegetable shortening in cooking.

Another important reason why we must save fats is because a by-product of soap, glycerine, is a vital ingredient in the manufacture of high explosives.

You can save vegetable fats by using dripping from your roast meats for baking and frying. Fat from fresh pork or beef is fine for baking and frying and fat from bacon and salt pork can be used for frying, poultry dressing.

Pour your surplus fats into a tin can. People are always asking if tin cans are any use. Well, if you use a can-opener that cuts the tops off clean, you can put your fat in them for the salvage collectors. Suet and fat cut off meat must be rendered down. The fat should be stored in a cool place and a paper tied over the tin.

Above all, don't say, "This little bit won't matter." Just multiply your little bit by the two million Canadian homes like yours. That is a lot of fat and it will make a lot of soap and glycerine.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL.

The regular meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association on Monday night was well attended. The meeting opened with "O Canada" and the Lord's Prayer.

Mr. Q. F. McKinney, music director of the Normal school, was guest speaker of the evening. He spoke on "Folk Songs and Folk Dancing." Folk music is the expression of the moods of the people, handed down through the generations. There has been no change in later years as the music has been written. Folk music language speaks from the heart of the artist to the heart of the listening audience. It is a supreme expression of the soul of the people and a notable example of how folk songs are born in the negro spirituals. One of the characteristics of folk songs is that they arose when harmony was non-existent and therefore the ear-taking melody has charm and color and compelling rhythm, making them especially good for children. The vigor and poignancy of the folk songs is lacking in more modern music. There is tenderness without sentimentality in them, and rakish humour without vulgarity. The finest composers have been unable to find weak spots in folk songs and operas have been written around folk melodies.

Folk dancing, generally speaking, are simple and easily learned. There is a growing demand for teaching of folk dances in schools. They have still two advantages, in wholesome recreation, discipline in keeping to correct ritual and joy in participation.

To conclude, Mr. McKinney's speech, ten of the young ladies of the Normal school demonstrated five national folk dances; a Scandinavian dance, 'Gustave's Toast,' a French, 'Chimes of Dunkirk,' English, 'Louby Loo'; 'The Virginia danced to Irish music, and a Scotch Reel,' which is steal from the Irish, dance, 'Cumberland Reel.' The dances were perfectly performed and delighted the audience. Mr. McKinney was their accompanist.

A letter from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, urging co-operation of all Canadian women was distributed.

Mrs. A. W. Nelson, president, was appointed representative to the Home and School Convention to be held in Toronto April 6 to 8.

Mrs. G. P. Puffer read an extract from the Home and School Review entitled "Radio and the Child," written by Miss Mary Grant, director of children's programs. The attendance banner was won by Miss A. Gillespie's class.

CENTRAL SCHOOL

Central Home and School Association meeting took place on Monday evening, with Mrs. O. Leeming in the chair. Reports were heard and Miss Beal's room won the attendance award.

Members were entertained with three dances performed through the courtesy of Marion Perry Laird. Kenny Simmons and Doreen Hogg gave a Scotch tap and Miss Audrey Dugan, second diminutive dancer, performed a clever acrobatic dance. Miss Delahaye was at the piano.

A letter was read from the War Service Council asking for representatives from the association. Mrs. McGee was appointed to this job. A bread and butter tea was planned for March 12. Mrs. L. Groombridge gave an interesting account of the Price Ceiling Meeting held in Toronto.

The speaker of the evening, Rev. Dr. E. W. Young, was introduced by Mr. Dearborn, principal. Dr. Young spoke on "The New World Order."

The speaker said "This New Order can only come from men and women who are determined to lead a new life. There is no doubt we will win this war, but will we win the peace? Reconstruction will be a terrific task for statesmen to undertake. Big issues will be at stake. What will be the fate of the little countries? Federation and amalgamation of nations seems to be the only sensible solution. France refused to boycott Italy when the League of Nations wanted to stop oil going to Italy when she invaded Ethiopia. The league failed at the outset. The new league will have power to enforce its decrees against belligerent nations." The speaker was cordially thanked by Mrs. Leeming and by the association.

Mrs. R. Pearse had on display a baby's layette which had been made by the members. Mrs. L. Groombridge was appointed delegate to the convention to be held in Toronto in April. The meeting closed with the Lord's prayer.

QUEEN MARY

Miss Deyell and Miss MacNaughton, teachers of grades 5 and 6 of Queen Mary School, addressed the Home and School Association meeting on Monday evening. Miss MacNaughton, in her summary of the routine day of a teacher, showed that a great deal of activity on the part of both pupil and teacher is crowded into the 300 minutes which constitute a school day.

The great strides which have been made in improving the old curriculum were evident in the variety and interest of subjects, such as: Studying the enemies of our trees, pasteurization of our milk, the study of germs and bacteria, social studies, current events, singing, art appreciation, weaving, sewing and knitting. The latter two are utilized in the making of simple articles for war relief.

Besides teaching considerable work is done by the teacher in keeping the records of attendance, fees, bank and war savings.

Miss Deyell urged that parents read to and with their children. This method of meeting the child on his own ground forms the basis of common thought and is educational to both. The early years are for the acquirement of material which will provide topics for unlimited conversation and reference in future life. From the vantage point of co-reader the parents should have no difficulty in advising on radio and theatre.

The indiscriminate weekly attendance at matinees by a great many children, simply because it is Saturday and they have nothing else to do is wrong, Miss Deyell said. The theatre can be helpful in education if care is given to the selection of programs with this object in view.

The impression of home training, proper or improper, is carried by the child all his life and is something entirely apart from knowledge gained at school, Miss Deyell concluded.

The meeting was well attended and Mrs. Crowe, president, opened with a word of greeting for those present. On recommendation from the executive meeting on February 17, it was moved that the association send $25 to the Milk for Britain Fund. The skating party usually held at this time has been cancelled and at the request of the [illegible]dren the money has been given [illegible] Milk Fund, as a gift from Canadian to British children.

The date of the annual spring tea was set for April 17, and the date of the convention of Home and School Federation to be held in Toronto in Easter week was announced. Standing committees were heard from.

Mrs. T. J. Carley gave a talk on current events and she urged that the women of this organization realize the gravity of the situation which faces us and since few are trained or called into important office, it should be the duty of all to carry out carefully and conscientiously the instructions of the leaders regarding the conservation of gas and sugar and the collection of salvage.

A choir of grade six pupils led by Miss MacNaughton rendered two part songs and Beverly Gamble was heard at the piano in an extract from a Tschaichovsky composition. Mrs. H. K. Clifton accompanied the meeting in the National Anthem and the "White Cliffs of Dover." The classes of Miss Deyell and Miss Walton won the attendance banners.

Helen Roger Mission Society

The Helen Roger Missionary Society held its regular meeting on Monday evening. The meeting was opened with prayer by the president. A very fine paper on Christian Stewardship, entitled "Thankfulness" was read by Miss Mary Morton. The Easter Thankoffering meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ian McRae. Mrs. A. Pitchford was in charge of the study book and gave an interesting summary of the chapter "City of Refuge." Miss Morton then took over the worshipj period, of which the theme was, "he Faith by Which we Live." The apostles creed was repeated. Mrs. Clegg gave a talk on the meaning of the Lord's Supper. Mrs. A. R. Bennett sang a delightful solo, accompanied by Mrs. W. Taylor. The meeting closed with a silent prayer and hymn

FASHIONS

You, too, can look several pounds thinner if you wear the right frock! Pattern 9998 is definitely right on the matronly figure, says Marian Martin, because of the V neck and soft gathers along the bodice seam, and the continued vertical emphasis of the twin skirt panels. Darts at the shoulders control the bodice fullness—the longer jacket, optional in contract, would conceal a large waistline. Choose a "camouflage print" of budding leaves—add a posy on the jacket and you'll look simply, smartly, appropriately dressed for any hour of the day! Two sleeve lengths are optional on the dress—short or three-quarter length. On the jacket the sleeves may be three-quarter or long.

Pattern 9998 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36, dress, requires 3⅛ yards 39 inch fabric.

WESTCLOX GIRLS CAPTURE LADIES CITY LEAGUE BOWLING TITLE

Camerons Shade Medicals 3-2 In Overseas Tilt

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Mar. 3 — (CP Cable).—Three thousand troops last night watched the Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg take the lead in the best-of-three series for the Canadian overseas forces hockey title with a 3-2 victory over the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps squad.

Corporal Freddie Sutherland of Winnipeg scored the winning goal 12 minutes from the end of a rough game when he slapped in a loose puck out of a scramble.

The Camerons opened the scoring after five minutes of play when Private Scotty Law of Winnipeg got away a hard shot from fifteen feet out. Quartermaster-Sergeant Bill Hogarth tied up the count a few minutes later, beating Goalie Pte. George Macdonald with a low corner shot.

The Medicals went ahead early in the second period when Private Sonny Pratt of Fort William, Ontario, broke away from the hard-checking Camerons to score from close in. Law got his second goal in a rink-long solo dash to tie the score again.

Medicals tried to force the pace throughout, but blocking by the Camerons broke up their attacks.

The teams:

'Y' Gym Team Beaten 19-13

The fast improving C.G.E. Electrics continued their valiant if somewhat belated drive for one of the Ladies' Basketball League Playoff berths on Monday night at the Y.W.C.A. by upsetting Y Gym by a 19-13 score. The winners, who went through the first part of the schedule without a victory, are coming fast and clinging to any slim chance they may have of getting into the playoffs. They held a slim edge over most of the game, particularly on the offence. Their passing was more effective than the losers', but their big edge was in shooting. Whereas the losers passed up a lot of good scoring chances with poor marksmanship. C.G.E. came through with a lot of nice baskets to finish off most of their passing plays. The winners built up a 10-5 lead in the first half and added a single point to their margin in the final half. C.G.E. counted on three of their 11 free throws and Y Gym cashed in three times in 13 chances. M. Hodson, E. Craig, and F. Merritt stood out for the winners and R. Sullivan and R. Hewitt were best for Y Gym.

The teams:

Y Gym 13 — B. Flynn, I. Young, D. Bestard 3. R. Sullivan 4, D. Ackford, I. Stewart, N. Smith 1 R. Hewitt 5.

C.G.E. Electrics 19— B. Stalter, M. Hodson 12, B. Dobbin. E. Craig 2, J. Castle 2, M. McCarthy 1, D. Shultz, F. Merritt 2.

but he could see her hands. He felt that never again would he be able to forget the terrible, unnatural immobility of those wax-white interlaced fingers.

Whatever the mystery might be that lay back of this dark and terrible happened, he felt that Dr. Tower and Cassie belonged to him, and to him alone. For Dr. Tower there was a loyalty—the devotion of a disciple for a brilliant and able master. He owed this man a gratitude that he could not even communicate.

His grandmother, Dr. Tower, Cassie—to lose three people who were a real part of your life, all in one week. Parris felt old, spent. He was thankful for Drake's friendly assurance in the days that followed.

There was a conference with Colonel Skeffington and Patterson Lawes in the same dingy room at the bank where he had settled his grandmother's affairs. They would dispose of the Tower property for him, although perhaps he would like to keep the library. . . .

With the thin strength of the numbed Parris forced himself to return to Dr. Towe's study for his notebooks and the letters from Vienna about his schooling. That night he was about to pack the composition books away when he noticed one, thicker than the others, closely written in Dr. Tower's small, difficult handwriting.

Parris stared at it for a moment. He wondered if he had a right to read it. It was clearly a sort of confidential record. Certainly, Parris thought, he, more than anyone else, had a right to know what led up to the tragic outcome of that mysterious night.

He turned the lamp up a little. Drake had gone to bed. Then he began to read. . . .

He grew heavier of heart as the pages turned. This was another man than the one who sat and taught him clearly and methodically. This was the same brain, but functioning in an altogether different and frightening manner. It was the brain of a brilliant mad man—a man who killed his wife when her mind snapped; who killed his daughter because her mental unbalance was growing worse with the years; who took his own life because he knew that he was coldly, clearly insane.

An arrogant and intrepid intelligence flared through the pages, sometimes wandering, sometimes driven willfully, along dangerous ways. The Gordons, there had been no doubt for Dr. Tower, were to blame because he was refused a post at the asylum. From then on he had fed on the bitterness of his own solitude, consoled himself with the assurances of his own superiority, and noted with icy detachment that his own abnormalcy flowered in Cassandra.

Parris shuddered. Kings Row, he felt vaguely—narrow, spiteful, gossipy, inbred Kings Row—had killed them both, or was at least as much to blame as the hand of Dr. Tower. Somewhere else—in a city—some place where his mind would have been appreciated, his genius welcomed, and his strangeness overlooked for the sake of both, surely Dr. Tower would have found . . .

And Cassie! There might have been a normal girlhood for her in a kinder environment. Here, locked away from everyone—from would-be friends as well as jealous, gossipy Gordons—what chance had she been given for rationality?

He closed the notebook and passed his hand over his eyes in the old gesture.

Parris wakened Drake. "I had to tell you," he said. "Now I've got to destroy this."

"We'll burn it in the kitchen stove."

Parris and Drake stood on the little station platform. They felt stiff and awkward.

A girl came through the station door and stood looking about. She was very pretty in a husky, forthright fashion. She saw Drake and her gray-blue eyes smiled.

"Hello!"

Drake turned. "Why, Randy Monaghan!"

"You going away?"

"Parris is going to Europe."

"Sure enough! Going to stay long?"

"Four years—maybe five."

Drake was looking very steadily at Randy. A slow warmth of color rose under her deep tan. Drake took her by the arm. "Gee, Randy, I bet you're the prettiest girl in the world!"

She laughed—a not very good attempt at her old rough and ready manner. Her color deepened.

"Here she comes!"

There was a bustle and a quite unnecessary hurry about the place as the train of two coaches clanked a standstill. The passengers climbed the steep little steps, the few trunks were thumped into the baggage compartment of the forward coach, and the wheezy conductor called, "All aboard."

Parris stood on the rear platform and looked back through the thick smudge of acrid train smoke as the station slowly receded. He felt a blinding terror at this moment.

Drake gave a deep sigh.

"I hate to see that boy going away. He's the best friend I got."

"He's a nice boy, isn't he?"

"The very best. Well—there he goes. Four years! Gosh!" He turned, and his stiffened features achieved something of his old faunlike grin. "Say, my buggy's down here. How about coming for a ride?"

"All right," she said, "let's."

Egan's Penalties Now 102 Mins.

MONTREAL, March 3 — (CP).—Adding a goal and three assists to his impressive total, last week, starry Bryan Hextall rested securely atop the National Hockey League point column, three marks ahead of his nearest rival, according to statistics issued today.

And pacing at their accustomed place at his heels were his galloping linemates, Lynn Patrick and Phil Watson, with totals of 47 points each.

Hextall's total of 50 points is made up of 22 goals and 28 assists. Patrick leads the goal-getters with a total of 26 and Watson, with 33 assists, is on top of the assist column. Behind this powerful Ranger trio and among the formidable challengers comes Don Grosso of Detroit with a 44 point total; Sid Abel of the same club with a 42 point total; Bill Thoms of Chicago with 42 points, and Gordie Drillon of Toronto, with 39 points.

Scrappy, hard-hitting Pat Egan of Americans retains his questionable "bad man" title. His penalties in minutes total now stands at 102, and includes two misconduct penalties.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Peterborough Soldiers had a lively workout at Brock St. Rink last night, readying themselves for the big test ahead of them on Wednesday when they tackle the much-heralded Collingwood Shipbuilders in the first game of their best two-of-three senior B series, scheduled for Collingwood tomorrow night. The Petes are all in good shape for the crucial round with the Northerners. With the exception of a few cuts and bruises they came through the Whitby series in fine style and are fit and ready for their tussle with Collingwood. With Roach definitely out of the picture there will be no change in the lineup and it is probable that the same twelve men who played through the Whitby series will be sent out to battle the Shipbuilders. The second game of the round is scheduled for Brock St. Rink Friday night but if a cold snap does not come along in time to ensure a good sheet of ice it is likely that the battle may be shifted to Oshawa. That of course depends upon the weather.

* * * * * *

Scoring averages show that Bun Kingdon, centre man of the razzle-dazzle line who led the Petes in scoring during the schedule games was also the pace-maker during the playoff series with Whitby. Kingdon, in the four games with Hap Hamel's crew came through with the big total of 15 points, scoring nine goals and contributing six assists. His teammates Honey Tompkins and Art Heal were tied for second spot, with eleven points each. Heal's total of eight assists was high in that department. The razzle-dazzle line had a total in the four games of 17 goals which is high-class scoring in any company, folks. Here are the averages for the playoff games:

	G	A	P
Kingdon	9	6	15
Tompkins	5	6	11
Heal	3	8	11
Bennett	1	4	5
Nichols	3	1	4
Blewett	1	3	4
Crowe	2	0	2

Brother Acts

With the Kingston and Belleville hockey teams on the shelf Fred Beaudry of the Whig-Standard and Ken Colling have been doing some research work on the subject of brothers in hockey. Beaudry started his article with with Mel and Clare Williamson and Bobby and Jim Neilson and then got back to the old days of the Stewart brothers, Leo, Terry and Rube Milan, who played against the Petes, the famous Cooks, Bill and Bun and the Brouse brothers, Bouncer and Harvey. Mister Colling brings back memories of the Whelan brothers, Daw and Ted of Belleville fame, the three Holways, Bouncer, Toots and Bill, the Alex and Vern Weir combination, Gunner and Reg Arnott and the four Goyers, Frank, "Nap", Freddie and Larry.

* * * * * *

Here in Peterborough we have also had our brother acts in hockey. Years ago there were Lionel and Harry King, Harold and Roy Armstrong and Chris and Ed. Graham. One noted pair consisted of Ray and Lornie Rose. Another was made up of the Thornton brothers, Harry and Pete and a third of the Fort William pair, Al and Pat Flanagan who played for the 247th Battalion team. There was also Maurice and Bernie Park, although they never played together and of recent years Pat and Bill Calladine, Grant and Al Clark and last season Doug Mortimer with the senior Petes and Jack with the Colts. Incidentally the Clark brothers who are playing with Clarkson University this season have played hockey, baseball and rugby together.

Comments George H. Campbell in the Oshawa Times-Gazette: "So it's all over for the Whitby Senior "B" team. The Palm Billiards team went down fighting last night. We were up in Brantford where another team from this district also went down—but there wasn't quite so much fighting, by what we can hear. In capturing the Senior "B" title, all kinds of credit must be given to the Liftlock City "Soldiers." We know the sporting fans from the County Town will not hesitate to admit that Peterborough are worthy standard-bearers to carry on in the O.H.A. senior "B" playdowns. In the first place, Peterborough headed the league race all season long and in winning three games out of four, they took the deciding tilt away from home so there's no doubt about it. Coach "Hap" Hamel had a nice club and they made a very creditable showing, on the ice. Last night's big crowd should enable Jimmie Reid, Berlett and the rest of the Whitby Hockey Club officers to make a creditable showing on the financial books too. The boys gave Whitby and Oshawa puck fans, some interesting hockey and they went down fighting gamely. They were outplayed and well-beaten last night and they admitted it. Penalties in the game proved exceedingly costly, with Bill Bagnell's major sentence for cutting Don Crowe over the head with his stick. The "Petes" rapped in a couple while Bagnell paid the price of sin and that was the camel's back straw or something. Penalties were numerous in the hectic playoff session with Carl Gamble drawing down three to offset his good play. "Ab" Barnes also ran into a flock of penalties too and a couple of the Peterborough boys paid frequent visits to the penalty timekeeper. It was lively and interesting for the fans however and while it was Whitby's "swan song," they went out making a real fight to avoid elimination."

Leadership At Stake

Two games in the National Hockey tonight are of great importance in their effect upon the leadership race. Toronto Maple Leafs invade Boston for a game with the shattered Bruins and New York Rangers clash with the skidding Brooklyn Amerks. With the Rangers a game in front of Hap Day's men the significance of the two battles tonight becomes evident. The indications are that both clubs will win, however, leaving the position unchanged. Thursday night they are both in action again with the odds favoring Toronto who are entertaining the Canadiens at home while Rangers have to tackle Jack Adams' crew in Detroit. Then over the week-end the Young Men of Manhattan and the Leafs tie into each other in two games and when they are over the question of the N.H.L. championship may be pretty well decided.

* * * * * *

The Oshawa Generals and the Brantford Lions look like the greatest home ice hockey teams in history. So far in their playoff series each have won two games on their own ice and by lop-sided scores. Last Friday night for example the Lions trounced the Generals 13 to 6 in Brantford. The teams met again last night in Oshawa and this time the Motor City crowd won the argument in hollow fashion by 14 to 4. Apparently neither of the clubs has a thing on foreign ice. If the series goes on this way Brantford will automatically win as the seventh game will be played in the Telephone City.

Ontario Squad Stays In Tankard Run

QUEBEC, March 3.—(CP)—With the ranks of the undefeated down to three provinces in the Macdonald's Brier Tankard playdowns, considerable interest will be centred on today's third round, when two of these rinks clash for the right to remain at the top of the standing for the Dominion Curling championship.

Manitoba, nine-holder of the coveted Granite award, is again threatening for the honors under the guidance of J. Ken Watson, who won the title back in 1936 under the Strathcona Club colors. Standing in his way, however, is a veteran campaigner, Daniel P. Connolly, representing New Brunswick.

In yesterday's two rounds, these two rinks along with Gordon M. Campbell of Ontario, came through with unblemished records. But it was the scoring ability of the Maritime rink from the Bathurst Club which bolstered the East's hopes of bringing the title from the West, won last year by Howard Palmer's Manitoba entry.

In his first round test, Connolly toppled Quebec's J. A. Ross, Jr., of Huntingdon, 18-6, then returned in the second bracket to set down a seasoned British Columbia foursome skipped by D. A. Campbell, 17-7.

Although given a good battle before beating John I. Hebb's Nova Scotia rink, 11-5, Watson's Manitoba entry gave a brilliant exhibition of its adeptness at the game when it polished off a good Northern Ontario rink under W. A. McMitchell of Sudbury, 19-10.

Campbell Beats Westerners

Another former champion, Gordon M. Campbell, who took the crown in 1935 for Ontario under Hamilton Thistle's banner, is once again back with a strong rink. Campbell had a tougher road to travel than the other two unbeaten teams, as he beat John Franklin's Saskatchewan team, 10-6, in his initial test, and then had to come through with three shots on a thrilling 12th and last end to hand Nova Scotia its second loss of the day, 14-13.

Alberta, Saskatchewan, Northern Ontario and Prince Edward Island still remained in good positions, despite splitting their twin assignments. Quebec joined British Columbia and Nova Scotia as the double losers on opening day.

Both the Western rinks which split seemed to find the going hard for their noted running game. John Slavik's Albertans started off by beating Prince Edward Island, 15-4, but failed to impress in going down before John Franklin's Saskatchewan foursome from Rosetown, 11-6. Franklin showed vast improvement in beating his Western rival.

Northern Ontario went well in turning aside British Columbia's Donald Campbell, 13-10, but Bill McMitchell's Sudbury players were unable to cope with the strong Manitobans in their evening battle.

Prince Edward Island had to come through with a late outburst against Quebec to salvage one of its two games. W. R. Cruickshank's Charlottetown rink scored a 12-9 verdict against J. A. Ross after losing to Alberta.

Ontario meets a strong opponent in its 9.30 a.m. round today in its effort to remain unbeaten when it takes on Northern Ontario. Prince Edward Island is scheduled to play British Columbia, while Quebec meets Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia plays Alberta.

The afternoon draw follows: Northern Ontario vs. Quebec; Prince Edward Island vs. Ontario; British Columbia vs. Nova Scotia; Alberta vs. New Brunswick; Manitoba vs. Saskatchewan.

Murder Mystery

TORONTO, March 3 — (CP). — "Many mysterious angles have to be cleared up," said Deputy Commissioner Herbert McCready of the provincial police, referring to the finding of charred bones in a burned farm house nine miles from Dunnville. The house, vacated several weeks ago, burned to the ground Friday.

While police said they were almost positive the bones were the remains of a woman, they said definite identification was lacking. A woman is missing and did not arrive at her place of employment Friday. Her husband is overseas.

Quaker Team Beats Electrics 57 to 37

Quakers strengthened their hold on first place in the Senior City Basketball League standing, by coming from behind to trounce C.G.E., 57-37 in a fast game at the Y.M.C.A., Saturday. Dominions and P.C.I. are battling for second place and the other playoff berth, while Quakers are all but assured of their place in the finals. The standing to date:

Quakers	5	1
Dominions	4	3
P. C. I.	3	3
C. G. E.	2	4
Soldiers	0	3

Quakers found themselves on the short end of a 22-21 score after a bitterly-fought first half but turned on a torrid scoring drive in the last 20 minute to win going away. All through the first half it was an even-Stephen ball game, with C.G.E. holding a small lead over most of the route, but the final half was all Quakers. The winners took the lead early in the final period and slowly built up their 20-point winning margin, getting better as the game ended. Thorburn with 23 points, and Jakafby with 18, led the winners, and Dundas and Currie were outstanding for the losers. The teams:

C.G.E. (37).—Stewart 5, Barabe 6, Dundas 8, Currie 10, Smith 4, Dublois 4.

Quakers (57). — McPherson 2, Jakafby 18, McArthur 12, Gillespie, Thorburn 23, McIntyre 2.

Referee—Nels Stanger.

No Leafs Signed, 25 On List, Chapman To Go

TORONTO, March 3—With twenty-five players on the roster and none under contract, the Toronto Baseball Club refuses to class any of its chattels as "hold-outs" this early in the negotiation season. Although General Manager Lee MacPhail has received word from all but two of the players as yet none has accepted the opening bait.

What concerns the youthful Toronto club G.M. is the probability that he will have to find a regular shortstopping replacement for rangy Fred Chapman, who appears to be ticketed for the United States Army. Chapman originally was classifed as 1-B. (temporary physical deferment), but has been ordered to take another examination in March. Although married, there doesn't seem to be any doubt that this time Chapman will be placed in 1-A and drafted immediately.

Grimes Bags a Catcher

Oral Hildebrand, Lloyd Brown and Jim Walkup, three veteran mound toilers, are the only players MacPhail figures can't be appeased, and there's slim chance that any of that trio will be on hand when training starts at Camden, South Carolina, two weeks from yesterday.

The two players who haven't replied to MacPhail's initial overtures are Pitcher George Windsor and Outfielder Eddie Morgan. The locals haven't yet located Morgan, but Windsor has maintained a stolid silence since getting his contract.

Burleigh Grimes will take along an extra catcher to Camden. He intends to sign free agent Walter Ringhofer, veteran backstopper, who has seen service in the American Association in recent years. Grimes incidentally doesn't intend to ban players' wives from camps . . . he will insist, however, that all players reside at the hotel headquarters. Grimes left his Des Moines home yesterday for a short visit to Trenton, N.Y. He will head for Camden about March 12, the same date selected by MacPhail to leave Toronto accompanied by Assistant Trainer Bill Smith.

Latshaw an Early Bird

Johnny Gee, six-foot nine-inch southpaw, writes in an optimistic vein, saying he will "strain every resource to recover my pitching skill." The University of Michigan graduate didn't mention anything about a sore arm, but said he was glad to be with Toronto and glad to be back in the International League.

Frank Heath, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce at Camden, informs the Toronto Club that Bob Latshaw has been at training headquarters for a week, and has made a distinct impression on the gentlemen in that section. Latshaw has been royally entertained on the golf courses, at polo matches and other sporting events.

U.S. Sees British Sport Crimp Finger On Wall

(By WHITNEY MARTIN.)

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP).—The announcement by Sir Stafford Cripps to the House of Commons that the British government will clamp down soon on sports events and other diversions can be taken by the American sports world as fair warning that it is skating on thin ice that might crack if over-burdened with too much publicity and synthetic fervor.

The Britons have surveyed their wartime sports program for a couple of years now and apparently have come to the conclusion that any claim that sports is necessary to morale is just so much hoopla, and that they have given some individuals a chance to shirk their responsibilities while having a good, profitable time.

Whether Sir Stafford's statement has an echo in the United States depends a great deal upon those who make sport a business. They can save sports, particularly professional sports, by earnestly co-operating with national defence; they can kill them by bombastic and over-loud claims of morale-building.

For some reason professional sports always have the finger pointed at them in times like these. It undoubtedly is due to the fact that athletes must be robust young men, and the sight of robust young men playing a game for money creates an unfavorable reaction, no matter if the athletes, because of age, dependents or other factors, are as entitled to deferment as a middle-aged clerk with 16 kids.

Too Much Flag Waving.

Sir Stafford's remarks, from the favorable reception they received in press circles, must have climaxed a growing resentment against the conduct of sports in Britain, indicating they were conducted under a false front on flag-waving patriotism which hid a shirking of duty for personal profit or safety.

One of the London newspapers speculated on the number of man-hours of work lost by spectators at a recent boxing match, and this would seem an unfair observation, as if a man worked 12 hours in a defence plant he is entitled to a little time of his own, and whether he spends it at a boxing match or at home twiddling his thumbs should make no difference.

Anyway, the idea is that sports have got themselves in a tough spot over there, and the same thing easily could happen here if those who make their living out of them start stressing their importance.

HAMILTON MAJORS SLAP ST. KITTS 7 TO 3 IN FINALS OPENER

Ankerite Bisons Edge Out Hollinger 3-2

By The Canadian Press

The Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" finals got under way last night as Hamilton Majors defeated St. Catharines Saints 7-3 in the first game of a best-of-five series. In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior finals Buffalo Ankerite Bisons edged out Hollinger Green Shidts 3-2 to gaid the lead in the first of a similar series.

In the O.H.A. Junior "A" semi-finals Guelph Biltmores outscored Toronto Young Rangers 6-3 in the first of a best-of-three series, while Oshawa Generals swamped Brantford Lions 14-4 to tie up their best-of-seven series at two wins apiece.

In the senior game at Hamilton the Majors established a comfortable lead in the first period on goals Runions, Robertson and Conick. Brady went on a scoring spree to net three more goals in the second frame. Mundrick broke the ice for Saints with a goal just before the period ended, and Forgie brought the score to 6-2. The final period was fairly even. Robertson scored for Hamilton and Davey for St. Kitts. Only penalty of the game was handed to Dinning, the Hamilton defenceman.

Wilson Opens It

At Timimns, last year's N.O.H.A. champs won the first game of the finals in a hard fought tussle. The Bisons had to come from behind to defeat the Green Shirts by the odd goal in three.

Roy Wilson put Hollinger into the lead with a goal in the opening minutes of play. McCann tied it up a few minutes later but Wilson made it 2-1 as the period ended. The Ankerites tied it up in the second period on a goal by Carnegie and Morris scored the clincher near the halfway mark in the final period. Only penalty of the game went to Wilson.

At Galt what started out as an evenly matched game ended the other way. The count was 2-2 at the end of the second period, but Guelph outscored Young Rangers four goals to one in the last period. Swales, Reise, Voll and Orlando scored one goal each for the winners while Mayer notched two. For Young Rangers, Leeming, Murray and Smylie were the pointgetters.

Swales was cut across the chin in the second period and had to be taken to hospital.

In the session at Oshawa Wilson ld the parade with five goals for the Generals, Depew tallied three, Davies and Smith got two each while McNaught and Currey executed solo efforts. For the Brantford sextet Hewson scored twice and Fitzpatrick and Linn counted singles.

Derringer Gets $1,000 For Bump

TAMPA, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Paul Derringer, veteran Cincinnati pitcher, Monday was awarded $1,000 by a Circuit Court jury for injuries he claimed he received when he bumped his head against a scaffold in an electrical supplies store here in 1940.

Derringer sued the firm for $65,000, but his attorneys explained that the suit was filed nearly a year ago, and that they sought reinbursement only for a $5,000 salary cut he said he was forced to take this year, plus about $1,000 doctor's fees and "reasonable" compensation for the pain he suffered.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP)—Boston papers report the fans around there aren't exactly pleased with the change in Ted Williams' draft status...They don't care whether Ted or someone else made the appeal: they think a young, healthy athlete belongs in the army...Ted hasn't heard nothin' yet. Just wait until the first time he kicks at an umpire's decision and the bench jockeys start asking why he doesn't appeal that one...Bob Pastor is considering a $10,000 offer from Pierre Gruen of Washington for a return bout with Claudio Villar, the Spanish heavyweight who have him such a tussle...

Spring Training

Apparently baseball still is a young man's game. M. Mel Ott was 33 yesterday and veteran writers in the Giants' camp say he doesn't look much older than when he first strolled in 17 years ago...And the Braves' John Y. Cooney, who will be 41 March 18, indignantly denies that he intends to take things easy this year. He says he feels better than last Spring...Before starting for the Yanks' camp, 42-year-old Coach Earle Combs took a physical test with a bunch of kids from Eastern Kentucky Teachers' College and outscored most of the star athletes.

Whistle Stop

When the Ithaca College freshmen and Rochester Business Institute basketball teams were all ready to start a basketball game the other night, the officials held the usual pre-game conference and discovered that none of them had a whistle..Jap Apperman, RBI coach, called the nearest police station and a radio car brought a couple of tooters to the tutor.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Six of the New York Yankees keymen are still holding out but action is expected shortly as the world champions meet the St. Louis Cardinals in an exhibition contest Friday. The club was so hard up for talent yesterday, Manager Joe McCarthy used left-handed Tommy Henrich at second base.

Two Knockdowns Fracture Boxer's Arm

NEW YORK, March 3—(AP). — The National Boxing Association's world featherweight champion, Pittsburg Jackie Wilson, broke his left arm last night, was floored twice and lost an eight-round decision to Terry Young, a hitherto little-heralded local battler, in the St. Nicholas Palace. Young weighed 134, Wilson 126¾.

The Pittsburg Negro, making his New York debut, battle gamely uphill, relying exclusively on speed and desperation right-hand shots through the last five rounds, but the best he could get was the nod from one of the judges. The other two officials balloted for Young.

The damage was done in the second and third rounds. Two ripping lefts put him down in the second and in the third he fractured his left forearm near the elbow when Young parried a hard left uppercut. Afterward, Dr. Alexander Schiff, New York State Athletic Commission physician, described the injury as "a fracture of the left radius at the juncture of the upper and middle thirds."

Dr. Schiff was summoned to the corner at the end of the fourth round to look at the injury. "I told Wilson I'd stop the fight if he couldn't use the arm," the doctor said, "but he refused and insisted on continuing." It was impossible to tell during that brief examination just what the injury was.

The injury was suffered after Wilson hit the deck twice in the second. A solid left hook dropped him for no-count the first time and another of the same, coming at the end of a barrage of punches, put the Pittsburger down for six. A few moments late Wilson galloped his way out of danger and thereafter relied on speed and unorthodox right-hand leads which did some damage in the fifth and sixth.

Three times in the late going—the fifth, sixth and eighth rounds—Young caught up with the N.B.A. boss and punched him half through the ropes before Referee Pete Partley pulled him off.

American Coup Boon To Leafs

By The Canadian Press

New York Rangers maintain their slim edge on first place in the National Hockey League, but if they are overtaken by any team during the balance of the season it probably will be by Toronto Maple Leafs.

Rangers have a two-point margin on the Leafs, recently the steadiest club in the league. Both play tonight, and both again determined opponents. The sliding Boston Bruins, who meet Leafs in Boston, have been drifting downward for weeks. They may finish the season in fourth place but even without the injured stars—Bill Cowley and Dit Clapper—the Beantowners always have been hard to beat on home ice.

Working from Toronto's performance last weekend, however, Leafs figure to win. Saturday and Sunday they walloped Chicago Black Hawks twice, something seldom done this season.

Rangers will met Brooklyn Americans in New York tonight, and the desperate Brooks face the prospect of starting to win immediately or missing a spot in the playoffs. The Americans are one point behind Montreal Canadiens, but only three weeks of the season are left and one point can be a mighty obstacle for a club like Brooklyn.

Both Rangers and Leafs have been weakened on defence. Loss of Ott Heller leaves the New York defence shaky, while the Toronto defence is rather a question-mark.

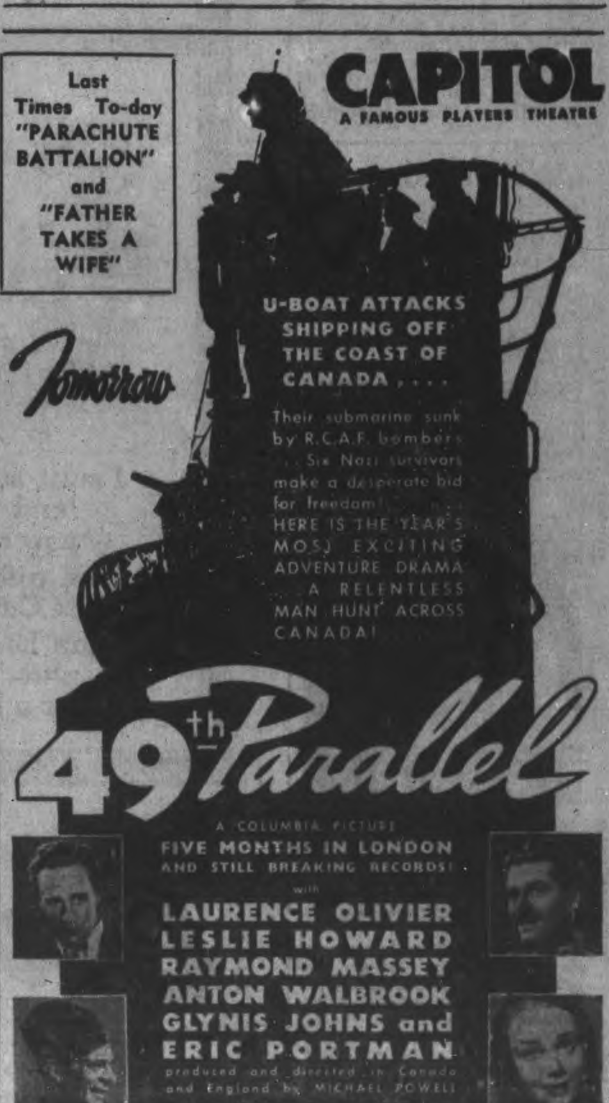
Baseball Training Camp Notes

ANAHEIM, Calif., March 3 (AP)—A broken leg Rookie Outfielder George Donaldson of Philadelphia Athletics suffered Sunday probably will keep him out of the lineup all season and may end his baseball career. "There is some question whether he will ever play again," remarked Manager Connie Mack. "It is a shame."

TAMPA, Fla.—Veteran Outfielder Ival Goodman—with young Eddie Lukon as a rival for the rightfield job—is showing his old time form in the Cincinnati batting drill. Goodman reported last spring with a sore shoulder but is in good health now and is eager for a comeback.

LAKELAND, Fla. — Schoolboy Rowe, Detroit Tiger who once went back to the minors to cure a sore arm, is having his upper teeth extracted in the hope of getting rid of some aches and pains. Six have been pulled and four more are scheduled to go shortly.

HAVANA—Manager Leo Durocher of Brooklyn Dodgers said today that Arky Vaughn, whom the club obtained from Pittsburg to play third base, would hit in the No. 2 slot, and that Billy Herman, former holder of that positon, would be dropped to seventh.



Britons Demand Real Action Of New Cabinet

LONDON, March 3—(C PCable). —Britons, cheered by Cabinet changes, looked to the Government today for the invigorated administration promised to parliament last week in the speech of Sir Stafford Cripps, Lord Privy Seal.

The success of the daring paratroops, commando operation in destroying the German radio locator station at Bruneval, France, and the re-opening of the bombing offensive against Germany, were welcome news to a country recently more accustomed to hear of reverses. Besides, many believed a better home front would be created by eradication of selfish abuses of which the Government has taken cognizance.

"A minority of the people appear to regard their personal interests in a manner not consistent with the totality of effort...Such an attitude cannot persist...It must be dealt with ruthlessly wherever and whenever it occurs."

These words which Sir Stafford spoke to the Commons last Wednesday were like a shot in the army to a weary boxer. Britons have shown many times that they can recover from military blows, but the apparent inertia at home is something which has struck deeper than the losses in Burma, Singapore and Hong Kong.

They Want Action.

The nation has not yet passed judgment on the new administration but it is prepared to give :: a chance to do all the things it feels its predecessors left undone. The machinery for leadership is there and the people are asking now that they be led.

The Sunday Times said editorially: "Among other benefits that may be expected to accrue is the possibility...The Prime Minister, now liberated from two of his manifold functions, will himself take the lead in setting the pace...The nation is not only willing but eager for such a lead. It is not yet, but it wishes to be, at full pace."

The Sunday Chronicle said: "We are fighting for our existence and only utter ruthlessness can save us. ...Give us the lead Mr., Churchill and we will finish the job."

Some of the things the people expect from the Government were outlined in the News of the World in an editorial which asked for "action, action, instead of the formality of endless forms" and for that old policy of "safety first" to be scrapped for speed and vision and that men and women be reminded that they can only expect to hold their jobs by competence and endeavor.

Simultaneously with their editorials, newspapers published news items giving accounts of the incompetency, lethargy and bureaucracy they claim exists and want removed. They continued the campaign against the black m rkets and similar evils which Sir Stafford said are "not consistent with totality of effort and unity."

Start Checking Cards.

They pointed out that despite the warning that sport will be curtailed, 125,000 persons watched football games Saturday and 12,000 spectators attended one dog racing meet in London. At the same time they noted as a good omen that police and army redcaps examined identity cards and leave passes of spectators at another greyhound track and detained some persons for questioning.

A visit to London of shop stewards representing 6,000 aircraft armament workers provided a number of good examples of the faults the Government is being asked to overcome.

The stewards said at a press conference that the main complaint of the workers they represent was that they want to work but cannot because of a lack of materials.

They told of a new aircraft factory in northwest England, open 18 months, but had not produced a single aircraft, of a west Scotland ordnance factory where 50 per cent, or more of expensive machinery was idle, of two factories where for six months the majority of the employees had been working only part time or had been fully idle because a new machine was undergoing a trial assembly.

Otonabee Goes Over Top In Victory Loan

Canvassers for the Second Victory Loan working throughout the county and city must obtain subscriptions amounting to $65,000 each day for the balance of the campaign if the Loan is to be oversubscribed in this district. This forecast is based on the fact the Loan officials have a good idea on how much will come in from industries in the city.

Ordinarily this should not be a formidable task, but considering that many of the city canvassers have already been over their territories and are now just making call backs, the task will undoubtedly call for a tremendous effort on the part of every single salesman and woman. Last week when the canvassers were clicking along in high gear, they averaged $69,000 a day.

Highlight of today's report is the grand piece of work done by J. J. Moore, clerk of Otonabee township, and G. Howson who have sent the Otonabee objective of $60,000 zooming over the 100 per cent mark with a total to date of $63,950 or 106.6 per cent of the objective. These two men had to secure 133 individual subscriptions to reach this total, and this average is far superior to that set up by canvassers in the city. Added to this is the fact that travelling is far from being ideal in the rural areas at the present time, and this adds to the credit deserving these two canvassers. This is the second section of the county to hit the top.

The City of Peterborough objective is set at $1,350,000 and already $728,500 has been turned in. This total include $130,000 from industry and more than $300,000 more is expected from this source. The Special Names objective is set at $1,000,000 and already $941,000 has been subscribed and this objective is expected to go over the top on Wednesday.

Following is the summary to Monday night:

	Objective	Secured to Date	% of Objective Obtained

Ministers Plan North-End Work

The Peterborough Ministerial Association met in the Y.M.C.A. Monday afternoon, Adjutant Norman Buckley was in the chair, and present were Canon W. P. Robertsons, Revs. E. W. Young, secretary; C. C. Boyter, H. J. Mahoney, J. R. Trumpour, H. L. Roberts, W. A. Filer, George S. Easton, H. W. Bracken, F. W. Craik, J. H. Sutcliffe, W. McArthur, M. C. MacLean, J. D. Smart.

Rev. Mr. Bracken reported on investigations regarding community work in the new housing area in Parkhill Road district. No house is as yet available for a Sunday school. The committee was asked to continue its work.

Dr. E. W. Young introduced the subject of Lenten services. It was decided to have two services on Good Friday at 10.30; one in the north of the city; the other in the south. The executive to make arrangements, offering to be given to the Daily Vacation Bible School.

The Nominating committee was appointed as follows: Revs. W. A. Filer, H. L. Roberts, F. W. Craik. The president and Rev. C. C. Boyter were appointed to represent the association at the service in Knox Church to welcome Rev. H. J. Mahoney and Mrs. Mahoney.

Rev. C. C. Boyter introduced the subject of the complaints that are coming in from young people about filthy language in some of the large industrial plants. It was urged that ministers and laymen should put forth every effort to destroy this habit.

Dr. Manson Doyle of Toronto, representing the Ontario Religious Education Council, spoke on the Advance Movement, which is being sponsored by the combined churches in the United States and Canada. Large gatherings of interested laymen have been held in the large cities on this continent, and deep interest has been awakened. There has, he said been a marked decline in Sunday school attendance. Teams are visiting the cities of Windsor, London, Stratford and St. Thomas to speak to congregations on the subject, and Monday night meetings are being organized as a follow up. This is an effort to arouse fresh interest in the work of winning young people for Christ and Christian service.

The following joined in the discussion: Revs. M. C. MacLean, J. D. Smart, J. H. Sutcliffe, H. L. Roberts, E. W. Young, and W. A. Filer. Dr. Doyle was heartily thanked by the president.

SWANK IN MAYFAIR

LONDON—(CP)—First time since the beginning of the war a notice advising "evening dress only" appeared in London. It was for the opening night of an exclusive Mayfair dine-and-dance restaurant.

30-Mill Rate Is Struck By City Council

City taxpayers can look to reduced tax bills this summer following action of the City Council on Monday night when the report of the Finance Committee setting the general tax rate at 30 mills was confirmed, a reduction of two and seven-tenths mills over the rate 1941. The garbage rate of seven-tenths mills is included in the 30-mill rate.

Co-operating with other city spending bodies in a policy of rigid wartime economy, and yet maintaining all services to the peak the Council was able to prune the rate to a figure that is the lowest in years, and will be welcomed by the home owner who is faced with a multitude of new taxes, accruing from present world conditions.

The report of the finance committee hit one snag when Morley E. Shaver, city treasurer, was given permission to speak on the question of ratifying a salary schedule agreed on in committee and affecting salaries of city hall employees. He objected to his deputy, Miss Clemena Long, being placed in what is known as "I" category. He maintained her work, experience and ability warranted placing her in the "H" group on a par with other women employees in responsible positions.

E. A. Outram, city clerk, also asked for permission to comment on the schedule, and in his address to the Council he objected to the classification given Misses Elliott and Perdue, whom he claimed had been in the city's employ since 1934 and 1935 respectively. "These two girls both have honor matriculation and commercial diplomas, and both have been offered attractive positions elsewhere. I believe it will be necessary to pay them more money if the city is to hang on to them." Mr. Outram pointed out that in 1930, the city was paying considerably more to have the work done that these two girls are now taking care of, and he suggested that they be placed in a different category.

Alderman Dutton—"The salaries in the main are comparable to salaries paid in the best offices of the city. We have no desire to deprive employees of the salaries they deserve, but I believe that in the main conditions in the city building are those which exist in similar offices"

Mayor Hamilton — "What do you wish to do with this clause of the report, Alderman Cotton?"

Alderman Cotton—"I believe it should be given further consideration."

Alderman Sullivan—"I believe as a matter of good business we should have consulted the heads of the departmenst in City Building, after all they are the men who know the work, and the capabilities of the various employees. With their assistance I believe we can arrive at a more satisfactory schedule."

Mayor Hamilton—"We have already spent a lot of time on this question, even to discussing it until 11.30 one night."

Alderman Cotton—"I would like to have harmony in the city offices. These employees are experienced and valuable members of our staff, and I feel it is vital that we have satisfied workers."

Alderman Dutton—"I am satisfied to go into the question again, but in view of the time and effort spent on the salary schedule already I hope we don't throw the whole thing out."

Mayor Hamilton—"We certainly won't do that."

Sent Back To Committee.

At this point Alderman Cotton moved that the paragraph dealing with salary schedule be referred back to the finance committee for further attention. It was seconded by Alderman Sullivan and passed without a dissenting vote.

Other highlights of the finance committee report which were ratified included that the cost of living bonus which the city has been payir 3 to the employees be continued for the year 1942.

That Ronald M. MacPherson's salary as sanitary inspector be raised to $1,800.00 a year.

That all city employees being paid a car allowance submit reports each month showing the mileage each day in which the cars are used for city business.

That $9,600 be placed in the estimates and charged as a special rate on public school supporters to pay the demand requested by Nicholls Hospital Trust.

Garbage Collection.

The report of the property committee recommending the tender of $16,700 from H. J. Withers for collecting of garbage from the entire city area be accepted was approved. This includes the removal of cans from the incinerator.

The offer of $150 for two lots on the south side of Euclid Avenue by Herbert Meeks and his wife was accepted, and a by-law passed transferring the property.

Another by-law took care of the transfer of the old powder magazine property in North Monaghan to Hy Woods and E. A. Hanson at a price of $600.

$800 Is Needed To Complete 16th Donation

The sum of £8,100 has been cabled to date to the Lord Mayor of London to relieve the distress of air raid victims, through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund. This sum was made up of fourteen donations each for £500 and one special donation at Christmas for £1,100 and as today there is the sum of $1,437.39 in the bank, leaving about $800 needed to make up the next donation of £500 which will go forward just as soon as it is completed.

It must be a source of satisfaction to all donors that every cent of their contributions have been utilized for the purpose for which it was given, all the management and secretarial duties of the fund being performed as a contribution to the cause, and all incidental expenses met in a like manner.

One personal donor is listed with a gift which came in by mail from Byersville, this coming from one who has supported the fund a number of times.

Brinton Total Now $510

With their 39th donation which is recorded today, per Walter Dyer, for $10, the employees of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. Ltd. have brought their total up to the handsome sum of $510 so that they are getting quite close to the $2 mark per capital for the average contribution in this manner for each employee.

Radio Draw and Dance

Marking their fourth effort on behalf of the fund, the employees of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Department Stores are now selling tickets for a draw on a 1942 model Viking mantel set radio at 10 cents each or three for 25 cents. The draw for this is to be made on March 17 at a St. Patrick's Day dance which they are sponsoring, also in the interests of the fund, at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, for which tickets are now being sold at $1.50 per couple, and music will be supplied by Jimmy Duffus and his eight-piece orchestra. Tickets for both events have been meeting with a good demand, and may be secured from any employee at the store.

On Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. the committee interested in putting on the proposed dog show to be held on April 8 are meeting at the W. J. Welch Barber shop on Hunter street to make more definite plans for the event, and those interested are invited to be on hand for the occasion.

Dish Pan Used As Women Fight

Police were called to a James Street house early to-day when an argument over a locked door was climaxed by a battle in which the owner of the house was cracked over the head with a dish pan and a sweat shirt received rough treatment.

Apparently the trouble was caused when the landlady who sublets the top part of her house to another woman locked the front door, believing that all the occupants were inside. The other woman had not got home, however, and when she did there was an altercation over the episode of the locked door. The argument passed beyond the verbal stage and the landlady sustained a bump on her head when a dish pan was used as a weapon.

A Police Court case will likely be the result of the early morning battle which required a visit from Constables Gordon Trennum and John Morrow.

City Printing To Be Studied

A request from C. E. LaBranche, of the Review Printing Company to the City Council asking that all printing orders from the city departments be placed on a strictly competitive basis, and that no orders be placed with out of town firms unless the work cannot be done here was discussed at Monday night's meeting.

In the interests of economy, the letter also suggested that one department place all orders, and that the printers themselves be given an opportunity of advising on the different grades of paper to be used, to effect further economies. Finally the letter seeks to have published a list showing the various total amounts awarded each local printer during the past three years, and the amounts awarded to outside firms.

"I am going to refer this to the Finance Committee for consideration," said Mayor Hamilton, "and I do not want the idea to get started that we are not being fiar to the printers, nor that we are being extravagant in any city department."

Later on in general business, Alderman Cotton proposed a resolution asking the clerk to prepare a memorandum of all printing orders placed during the past few years.

"Do you think you will need that?" queried the Mayor.

"It is already prepared, Mr. Mayor," E. A. Outram, city clerk, said in reply.

The letter will be discussed in committee and a report brought back to the council at the next meeting.

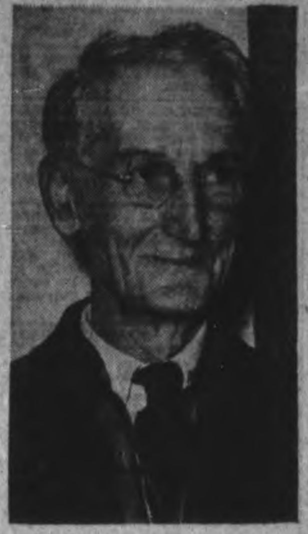
Topped Them All



Rev. C. A. G. Spence, of Apsley, earned the plaudits of Victory Loan canvassers and officials when it was announced he was the first canvasser in the rural section to top the objective set in the Loan. Canvassing in North Burleigh, Chandos and Anstruther and seeking $10,000, he had reached $10,100 by Monday of this week. Snow-blocked roads and sub-zero weather made the task a difficult one.

The Board of Education held a special meeting Monday afternoon to approve of the purchase of school supplies. Contracts were awarded the lowest tenderer to the following: John Hill, Peterborough, work and text books and paper $1,572.56; Deyell's Book Store, Peterborough, pencils and rulers $383.66; Soden's Book Store, Peterborough, art supplies and paper $614.05; Walter Wood Co., paper towels $144.40; Deyell's, toilet paper, $9.90; Grand and Toy, envelopes, staples, etc., $40.70; George M. Hendry and Sons, chalk, no amount given; John Hill, miscellaneous supplies, $362.18; and Trebilcock, miscellaneous, $92.65.

The requisitions were approved on a motion of G. H. Thompson and Dr. C. M. Scott. The matter of purchasing windbreakers for the Collegiate rugby team was left over until the next meeting, owing to the fact that only two firms in the city had quoted prices and furnished samples.

Propose Return To Era Of Horse, Buggy

OTTAWA, March 3—(CP).—A return to the simple life of the "horse-and-buggy" era was suggested yesterday by R. C. Berkinshaw, chairman of the Wartime Industries Control Board and priorities officer for the Munitions and Supply Department.

Advocating that Canadians "turn back the clock" as far as comforts and luxuries are concerned, Mr. Berkinshaw told the Ottawa Rotary Club in a review of Canada's control mechanisms that "our entire sense of economic values must undergo a complete change for the duration of the war."

"I think," he said, "that one of the lessons the developments of recent months have taught us is the extent to which our much-vaunted North American standard of living has been dependent on the maintenance of some sort of world order...

"Unless and until we can overcome the forces of anarchy which threaten us, we cannot hope to regain those living standards which we have, perhaps, valued too lightly hitherto. Meanwhile... we must back the clock and for a time live a simpler life.

"Perhaps it might be well if we could also recapture some of those tougher qualities of mind and spirit that characterised the generations of our fathers. We shall need these qualities along the road which we shall have to travel before final victory is achieved."

Otonabee Goes Over Top In Victory Loan

Canvassers for the Second Victory Loan working throughout the county and city must obtain subscriptions amounting to $65,000 each day for the balance of the campaign if the Loan is to be oversubscribed in this district. This forecast is based on the fact the Loan officials have a good idea on how much will come in from industries in the city.

Ordinarily this should not be a formidable task, but considering that many of the city canvassers have already been over their territories and are now just making call backs, the task will undoubtedly call for a tremendous effort on the part of every single salesman and woman. Last week when the canvassers were clicking along in high gear, they averaged $69,000 a day.

Highlight of today's report is the grand piece of work done by J. J. Moore, clerk of Otonabee township, and G. Howson who have sent the Otonabee objective of $60,000 zooming over the 100 per cent mark with a total to date of $63,950 or 106.6 per cent of the objective. These two men had to secure 133 individual subscriptions to reach this total, and this average is far superior to that set up by canvassers in the city. Added to this is the fact that travelling is far from being ideal in the rural areas at the present time, and this adds to the credit deserving these two canvassers. This is the second section of the county to hit the top.

The City of Peterborough objective is set at $1,350,000 and already $728,500 has been turned in. This total include $130,000 from industry and more than $300,000 more is expected from this source. The Special Names objective is set at $1,000,000 and already $941,000 has been subscribed and this objective is expected to go over the top on Wednesday.

Following is the summary to Monday night:

Ministers Plan North-End Work

The Peterborough Ministerial Association met in the Y.M.C.A. Monday afternoon, Adjutant Norman Buckley was in the chair, and present were Canon W. P. Robertsons, Revs. E. W. Young, secretary; C. C. Boyter, H. J. Mahoney, J. R. Trumpour, H. L. Roberts, W. A. Filer, George S. Easton, H. W. Bracken, F. W. Craik, J. H. Sutcliffe, W. McArthur, M. C. MacLean, J. D. Smart.

Rev. Mr. Bracken reported on investigations regarding community work in the new housing area in Parkhill Road district. No house is as yet available for a Sunday school. The committee was asked to continue its work.

Dr. E. W. Young introduced the subject of Lenten services. It was decided to have two services on Good Friday at 10.30; one in the north of the city; the other in the south. The executive to make arrangements, offering to be given to the Daily Vacation Bible School.

The Nominating committee was appointed as follows: Revs. W. A. Filer, H. L. Roberts, F. W. Craik. The president and Rev. C. C. Boyter were appointed to represent the association at the service in Knox Church to welcome Rev. H. J. Mahoney and Mrs. Mahoney.

Dr. George Easton announced that a conference on Christian Stewardship would be held on April 21, at which Dr. J. E. Simpson of Oakpark, Ill., would be the speaker. The association pledged its support to this effort.

Rev. C. C. Boyter introduced the subject of the complaints that are coming in from young people about filthy language in some of the large industrial plants. It was urged that ministers and laymen should put forth every effort to destroy this habit.

Dr. Manson Doyle of Toronto, representing the Ontario Religious Education Council, spoke on the Advance Movement, which is being sponsored by the combined churches in the United States and Canada. Large gatherings of interested laymen have been held in the large cities on this continent, and deep interest has been awakened. There has, he said been a marked decline in Sunday school attendance. Teams are visiting the cities of Windsor, London, Stratford and St. Thomas to speak to congregations on the subject, and Monday night meetings are being organized as a follow up. This is an effort to arouse fresh interest in the work of winning young people for Christ and Christian service.

The following joined in the discussion: Revs. M. C. MacLean, J. D. Smart, J. H. Sutcliffe, H. L. Roberts, E. W. Young, and W. A. Filer. Dr. Doyle was heartily thanked by the president.

SWANK IN MAYFAIR

LONDON—(CP)—First time since the beginning of the war a notice advising "evening dress only" appeared in London. It was for the opening night of an exclusive Mayfair dine-and-dance restaurant.

30-Mill Rate Is Struck By City Council

City taxpayers can look to reduced tax bills this summer following action of the City Council on Monday night when the report of the Finance Committee setting the general tax rate at 30 mills was confirmed, a reduction of two and seven-tenths mills over the rate 1941. The garbage rate of seven-tenths mills is included in the 30-mill rate.

Co-operating with other city spending bodies in a policy of rigid wartime economy, and yet maintaining all services to the peak the Council was able to prune the rate to a figure that is the lowest in years, and will be welcomed by the home owner who is faced with a multitude of new taxes, accruing from present world conditions.

The report of the finance committee hit one snag when Morley E. Shaver, city treasurer, was given permission to speak on the question of ratifying a salary schedule agreed on in committee and affecting salaries of city hall employees. He objected to his deputy, Miss Clemena Long, being placed in what is known as "I" category. He maintained her work, experience and ability warranted placing her in the "H" group on a par with other women employees in responsible positions.

E. A. Outram, city clerk, also asked for permission to comment on the schedule, and in his address to the Council he objected to the classification given Misses Elliott and Perdue, whom he claimed had been in the city's employ since 1934 and 1935 respectively. "These two girls both have honor matriculation and commercial diplomas, and both have been offered attractive positions elsewhere. I believe it will be necessary to pay them more money if the city is to hang on to them." Mr. Outram pointed out that in 1930, the city was paying considerably more to have the work done that these two girls are now taking care of, and he suggested that they be placed in a different category.

Alderman Dutton—"The salaries in the main are comparable to salaries paid in the best offices of the city. We have no desire to deprive employees of the salaries they deserve, but I believe that in the main conditions in the city building are those which exist in similar offices"

Mayor Hamilton — "What do you wish to do with this clause of the report, Alderman Cotton?"

Alderman Cotton—"I believe it should be given further consideration."

Alderman Sullivan—"I believe as a matter of good business we should have consulted the heads of the departmenst in City Building, after all they are the men who know the work, and the capabilities of the various employees. With their assistance I believe we can arrive at a more satisfactory schedule."

Mayor Hamilton—"We have already spent a lot of time on this question, even to discussing it until 11.30 one night."

Alderman Cotton—"I would like to have harmony in the city offices. These employees are experienced and valuable members of our staff, and I feel it is vital that we have satisfied workers."

Alderman Dutton—"I am satisfied to go into the question again, but in view of the time and effort spent on the salary schedule already I hope we don't throw the whole thing out."

Mayor Hamilton—"We certainly won't do that."

Sent Back To Committee.

At this point Alderman Cotton moved that the paragraph dealing with salary schedule be referred back to the finance committee for further attention. It was seconded by Alderman Sullivan and passed without a dissenting vote.

Other highlights of the finance committee report which were ratified included that the cost of living bonus which the city has been paying to the employees be continued for the year 1942.

That Ronald M. MacPherson's salary as sanitary inspector be raised to $1,800.00 a year.

That all city employees being paid a car allowance submit reports each month showing the mileage each day in which the cars are used for city business.

That $9,600 be placed in the estimates and charged as a special rate on public school supporters to pay the demand requested by Nicholls Hospital Trust.

Garbage Collection.

The report of the property committee recommending the tender of $16,700 from H. J. Withers for collecting of garbage from the entire city area be accepted was approved. This includes the removal of cans from the incinerator.

The offer of $150 for two lots on the south side of Euclid Avenue by Herbert Meeks and his wife was accepted, and a by-law passed transferring the property.

Another by-law took care of the transfer of the old powder magazine property in North Monaghan to Hy Woods and E. A. Hanson at a price of $600.

$800 Is Needed To Complete 16th Donation

The sum of £8,100 has been cabled to date to the Lord Mayor of London to relieve the distress of air raid victims, through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund. This sum was made up of fourteen donations each for £500 and one special donation at Christmas for £1,100 and as today there is the sum of $1,437.39 in the bank, leaving about $800 needed to make up the next donation of £500 which will go forward just as soon as it is completed.

It must be a source of satisfaction to all donors that every cent of their contributions have been utilized for the purpose for which it was given, all the management and secretarial duties of the fund being performed as a contribution to the cause, and all incidental expenses met in a like manner.

One personal donor is listed with a gift which came in by mail from Byersville, this coming from one who has supported the fund a number of times.

Brinton Total Now $510

With their 39th donation which is recorded today, per Walter Dyer, for $10, the employees of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. Ltd. have brought their total up to the handsome sum of $510 so that they are getting quite close to the $2 mark per capital for the average contribution in this manner for each employee.

Radio Draw and Dance

Marking their fourth effort on behalf of the fund, the employees of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Department Stores are now selling tickets for a draw on a 1942 model Viking mantel set radio at 10 cents each or three for 25 cents. The draw for this is to be made on March 17 at a St. Patrick's Day dance which they are sponsoring, also in the interests of the fund, at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, for which tickets are now being sold at $1.50 per couple, and music will be supplied by Jimmy Duffus and his eight-piece orchestra. Tickets for both events have been meeting with a good demand, and may be secured from any employee at the store.

On Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. the committee interested in putting on the proposed dog show to be held on April 8 are meeting at the W. J. Welch Barber shop on Hunter street to make more definite plans for the event, and those interested are invited to be on hand for the occasion.

Dish Pan Used As Women Fight

Police were called to a James Street house early to-day when an argument over a locked door was climaxed by a battle in which the owner of the house was cracked over the head with a dish pan and a sweat shirt received rough treatment.

Apparently the trouble was caused when the landlady who sublets the top part of her house to another woman locked the front door, believing that all the occupants were inside. The other woman had not got home, however, and when she did there was an altercation over the episode of the locked door. The argument passed beyond the verbal stage and the landlady sustained a bump on her head when a dish pan was used as a weapon.

A Police Court case will likely be the result of the early morning battle which required a visit from Constables Gordon Trennum and John Morrow.

City Printing To Be Studied

A request from C. E. LaBranche, of the Review Printing Company to the City Council asking that all printing orders from the city departments be placed on a strictly competitive basis, and that no orders be placed with out of town firms unless the work cannot be done here was discussed at Monday night's meeting.

In the interests of economy, the letter also suggested that one department place all orders, and that the printers themselves be given an opportunity of advising on the different grades of paper to be used, to effect further economies. Finally the letter seeks to have published a list showing the various total amounts awarded each local printer during the past three years, and the amounts awarded to outside firms.

"I am going to refer this to the Finance Committee for consideration," said Mayor Hamilton, "and I do not want the idea to get started that we are not being fiar to the printers, nor that we are being extravagant in any city department."

Later on in general business, Alderman Cotton proposed a resolution asking the clerk to prepare a memorandum of all printing orders placed during the past few years.

"Do you think you will need that?" queried the Mayor.

"It is already prepared, Mr. Mayor," E. A. Outram, city clerk, said in reply.

The letter will be discussed in committee and a report brought back to the council at the next meeting.

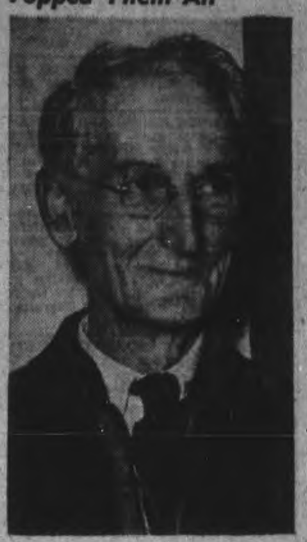
Topped Them All



Rev. C. A. G. Spence, of Apsley, earned the plaudits of Victory Loan canvassers and officials when it was announced he was the first canvasser in the rural section to top the objective set in the Loan. Canvassing in North Burleigh, Chandos and Anstruther and seeking $10,000, he had reached $10,100 by Monday of this week. Snow-blocked roads and sub-zero weather made the task a difficult one.

Order Purchase School Supplies

The Board of Education held a special meeting Monday afternoon to approve of the purchase of school supplies. Contracts were awarded the lowest tenderer to the following: John Hill, Peterborough, work and text books and paper $1,572.56; Deyell's Book Store, Peterborough, pencils and rulers $383.66; Soden's Book Store, Peterborough, art supplies and paper $614.05; Walter Wood Co., paper towels $144.40; Deyell's, toilet paper, $9.90; Grand and Toy, envelopes, staples, etc., $40.70; George M. Hendry and Sons, chalk, no amount given; John Hill, miscellaneous supplies, $352.18; and Trebilcock, miscellaneous, $92.65.

The requisitions were approved on a motion of G. H. Thompson and Dr. C. M. Scott. The matter of purchasing windbreakers for the Collegiate rugby team was left over until the next meeting, owing to the fact that only two firms in the city had quoted prices and furnished samples.

Propose Return To Era Of Horse, Buggy

OTTAWA, March 3—(CP).—A return to the simple life of the "horse-and-buggy" era was suggested yesterday by R. C. Berkinshaw, chairman of the Wartime Industries Control Board and priorities officer for the Munitions and Supply Department.

Advocating that Canadians "turn back the clock" as far as comforts and luxuries are concerned, Mr. Berkinshaw told the Ottawa Rotary Club in a review of Canada's control mechanisms that "our entire sense of economic values must undergo a complete change for the duration of the war."

"I think," he said, "that one of the lessons the developments of recent months have taught us is the extent to which our much-vaunted North American standard of living has been dependent on the maintenance of some sort of world order...

"Unless and until we can overcome the forces of anarchy which threaten us, we cannot hope to regain those living standards which we have, perhaps, valued too lightly hitherto. Meanwhile...we must back the clock and for a time live a simpler life.

"Perhaps it might be well if we could also recapture some of those tougher qualities of mind and spirit that characterized the generations of our fathers. We shall need these qualities along the road which we shall have to travel before final victory is achieved."

CHURCH PARADE BROADCAST.

A transcription of a church service attended in England by the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders was heard over the radio Saturday night. The service was in a South of England church and the music of the pipe band, and the reading of the lesson by the rector were very distinct. Before delivering an appropriate sermon the rector welcomed the Highlanders to his church.

fairs and reflects a great deal of credit on the town officials.

Referring to the question of insurance policies the report continued, "we have encountered considerable difficulty in this and former year in the matter of insurance policies and renewals. Last year we recommended that these policies be recorded in a register for that purpose and that they be filed together in one place in the custody of one named official. This would be a great improvement on the present system."

"We should open a register for the listing of all of these policies," said the Reeve. "As it is now some of these are looked after by the Water and Light Commission, and others by the Board of Education. I think they should all be put in the hands of a committee to be filed." Quickly adopting the suggestion, council tossed the problem over to the Finance committee to organize as suggested.

A $100 item was added to the inventory of office equipment owned by the town just before the close of the meeting. It was revealed the corporation owned neither the two typewriters nor adding machine in the treasurer's and clerk's offices. The clerk had bought the adding machine from his own income and placed it in the town office 11 years ago, stated the reeve. "We shouldn't expect our employees to supply this equipment," he said, claiming the adding machine was indispensable to both the treasurer and collector. Worth approximately $400 when new, council jumped at the bargain price of $100 for the machine, and when a motion was put the amount was added to the pay sheet.

C.W.S.C. Discusses Salvage Work

The seriousness of the rubber situation was stressed on Monday evening at the regular meeting of the C.W.S.C. The drive to salvage all available rubber will not be complete until every scrap of rubber in the country has been collected.

Mrs. R. J. Kearns, president, was in chair. Mrs. Heckman, secretary read a letter from the Victory Club in Omemee, a group of girls who have started their own salvage drive in addition to their other war work. These girls gathered and sent in two truckloads of salvage during February.

February has been an exceptionally good month, in spite of being a short one, and in spite of the fact that the truck was off the road for three days. The salvage committee has shipped 14 tons of papers, 4 tons of metal, 3,000 pounds of rubber and 1,000 pounds rags.

Two more articles have been added to the list of important salvage items, Schick injector brass blade cartridges; and jute bags. Our supply of jute has been cut off and these bags have therefore become very valuable. It is suggested that this be extended to cotton bags in order that as many as possible be saved.

A warning has been issued by the government against salvage racketeers. These people collect salvage in the name of the Red Cross, or some other War Service organization and sell it for their own profit to the nearest junk dealer.

An attempt is being made to organize salvage colection in the farm areas through the churches and schools but it is too early yet to judge of its success. It is expected that the salvage work will expand in the spring and the need of helpers will be greater than ever.

DOROTHY DIX

LOYALTY TO FAMILY ONE OF GIRL'S GREATEST VIRTUES

It Is Touchstone of Character That Should Guide Men in Marriage.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a man in the middle thirties who has tried marriage once and failed. Not my fault, as I was given the unqualifed custody of the children by the courts. I have the usual problems of one who tries to be both mother and father, and I have been thinking about marrying again, but there are certain qualities the woman must have. I want a girl who possesses a deep appreciation of other people, beginning with her own father and mother, sisters and brothers. I doubt that any girl who has not cared a great deal for her father would ever care much for me. I want a girl who believes enough in her own worth not to be in constant mortal terror lest I should meet someone who was her superior. I want a girl who possesses at least a few close friends of both sexes, whom she has known for a long time, whose friendship still means much to her, yet whose friendship she would enjoy sharing with me. I want a girl who finds the friendly grin of any little child irresistible. Any other would inevitably find my boys a terrible burden and would make both them and me unhappy. I want a girl who is sensitive to the deepest needs of all about her and who has habitually found her greatest happiness in helping them to greater happiness; one who would enjoy sharing with me her experiences and her happiness. I want a girl whose love for me is so tempered by her love of truth that she will not hesitate to hold me to my own highest ideals. I believe I could make such a woman happy. Do you think I can ever find her? PHIL.

Hard Bill to Find

ANSWER—I don't know. You have given a big order and I am afraid there are not many modern girls who are endowed so superabundantly with charms and virtues. Searching in the hay stack for the proverbial needle would be an easy job compared to finding such a one, but when you did find her she would be like the wife of the Scriptures whose price was above rubies.

Anyway, I like your ideas and I think you have put your finger on a lot of qualities that most men entirely ignore in judging women. For instance, you stress the importance of a girl's attitude to her family. The great majority of men never consider that, yet it's a touchstone of character. The girl who is loyal and true to her family will be loyal to her husband and stick to him through thick and thin. If she is unselfish to them, she will be unselfish to the man she marries. And I have never known a girl who was friend and pal to her father and brother who was not just and broad-minded and tolerant.

And certainly there is no better preventive of jealousy than for a girl to be so confident of her own attractions she will not get green-eyed whenever her husband looks at another woman. It is an inferiority complex that makes a wife spy on her husband's stenographer.

Judged by Friends

There is nothing truer than the old proverb that we are known by the company we keep, and you may well judge a girl by her friends. They represent her taste and her judgment and her code of conduct. Also, they give you a line on her dispositon. Beware of a girl who cannot make friends, and especially of one who cannot make friends among her own sex.

You show your good sense in also finding out before marriage whether a girl loves children; whether she likes to make people happy or expects them to spend their time making her have a good time, but you make me wonder if you mean it when you say you want your ideal girl to tell you the truth and keep you jacked up when she sees you slipping. Not many men can take that.

Anyway, here's wishing you success in your quest.

DOROTHY DIX.

Gay Rock Garden You Easily Can Make

Flowers Bloom Among Rocks

A charming little rock garden—with its woodsy plants and miniature boulders. Make it in any corner of your yard where the sun shines half a day.

Just set rocks firmly in soil as the diagram shows, tilting them slightly for drainage. If you have no suitable slope, it's easy to build one yourself with alternate layers of rocks and soil.

For an appealing natural effect in your rock garden, plant ground ivy where it will trail over tops of rocks. Let veronicas, forget-me-nots and primroses nestle in the crevices between.

If you have a sunny, dry location, you may create a fascinating desert scene with cacti. And time now to think of making the cool sparkling lily pool you've always meant to have!

Easy with the directions given in our 32-page booklet. Tells how to make simple tub lily pools as well as cement types, gives advice on pool planting. Also has complete instructions for rock gardens and suggests plants for sunny and shady locations.

For your copy of "How to Make Rock Gardens and Lily Pools" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

The best that can be said about that bidding is that there was plenty of it, such as it was. But part of the play was right in tune with it. When West led the heart K, that was okeh. If without thinking he had then laid down the diamond A, he would still have been all right. But he did not act without thinking.

"East supported my diamonds instead of hearts," recalled West. "Hence his 2 on the first trick is very likely a singleton. Furthermore, South might not have doubled the diamonds unless he had a few cards in my other suit, hearts, if I look out to it. If South has three hearts and East only one, my repeating hearts will give us three tricks there, counting his ruff of the third one. Furthermore, I don't like to lay down the diamond A and set up the K. If I wait, I can play the A if South uses the K, or the Q when he plays the J. This way we may set him several tricks."

So West led the heart K to the second trick. Declarer ruffed it, overtook the club Q with dummy's A, led the club J and, when East played low, discarded a diamond. East put his K on the club 10, which was ruffed. The spade A and K were taken, the club 3 covered by the 9 and ruffed, setting up the 8, then the spade J settled the last trump, and the heart Q-10 and club 8 furnished discards of the last diamonds, the spade Q then taking the final trick and making the contract.

Cavan Women Observe Lodge Birthday

MILLBROOK, March 3—(ENS).—The L.O.B.A. "Daughters of Cavan," No. 1066, observed its first birthday anniversary on Thursday, between sixty and seventy members and visitors being in attendance, and the invited guests including the degree team of the Janetville lodge, and the Past Mistresses' Degree team of Peterborough lodge, these having carried out the initiation and installation ritual when the local lodge was organized.

Progressive euchre, and games of bingo followed the opening singsong for the birthday party, prizes in former going to Mrs. Jarvis and Mrs. Campbell of Peterborough, while the consolation went to Norma Gillies. Among Grand Lodge officers who were present for the anniversary occasion were Right Worshipful Grand Secretary, Sister Campbell; Right Worshipful Grand Treasurer, Sister Pilling; and Right Worshipful Auditor, Sister LeLong; Sister Josling, W.M. of the Past Mistresses' degree team, and the Past worthy mistress of Janetville Lodge, Sister Cora Johnston, were also among the guests.

The dainty lunch served at the close of the evening's play was in charge of the refreshment committee which includes Sisters Ethel Olan, Winnifred Richards, and May Allen. A feature of peculiar interest for the hostess table was the handsome birthday cake, with its one lighted candle, signifying the first milestone passed in the history of the Daughters of Cavan Lodge, the Worthy Mistress, Sister Amelia Lunn, having filled office during the twelve months with dignity and a capable fulfillment of its duties.

New Plebiscite Ballot Before Dominion House

(By FRANK FLAHERTY.)

OTTAW, March 3. — (CP).—The House of Commons, seeking the simplest form in which to submit the forthcoming plebiscite to the voters, to-day was to consider an alternative ballot.

The form of ballot embodied in the plebiscite bill, which was the subject of an all-day discussion in Committee of the Whole yesterday, called for printing the plebiscite twice—once with "yes" after it and once with "no," the voters being expected to mark one or the other with an "X."

The form to be studied to-day was to have the question printed only once with space for an "X" under either "yes" or "no." Its preparation resulted from fears expressed by some members that the form first suggested would be confusing and might result in spoiled ballots.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King indicated he favored the alternative form with the question printed only once but at the same time suggested the House was spending too much time in discussing the mechanism of the plebiscite by which the government proposed to seek release from "any obligation arising out of any past commitments restricting the methods of raising men for military service."

Sees Graver Things To Do

"There are graver issues at stake at the moment," said Mr. King, and we may have to consider some of them much more profoundly very soon than we have thus far had to do and I would suggest to honorable members that we try to make all the progress we can in the legislation before us, avoiding unnecessarily long speeches and also unnecessary and sometimes trival objections to what is before the House."

After members suggested the plebiscite question should be printed only once on the ballots, State Secretary McLarty suggested that section of the Bill should stand until today, he promised to have an alternative ballot form printed so members could decide which they preferred.

Conservative House Leader Hanson was one of those who thought the double-question ballot form would be confusing and others were Angus MacInnis (C.C.F. Vancouver East), George White (Con. Hastings-Peterborough), Karl Homuth (Con. Waterloo South) and Douglas Ross (Con. Toronto-St. Paul's).

Mr. McLarty said the repeating of the question on the ballot was favored by Jules Castonguay, chief electoral officer, who had found that method worked well in plebiscites held from time to time in counties under the Canada Temperance Act.

Waste of Time An Insult.

Objections to the plebiscite principle registered earlier in the session were repeated by T. L. Church (Con. Toronto-Broadview) and J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata). Mr. Church said he would not advise his constituents how to vote but would leave it to them to reach their own decisions.

"The voters know more than we do," he said. "They are not going to be humbugged or fooled or consent to be blindfolded by members of Parliament or anybody else. A lot of them will not vote. Many of them think it an insult to the electors that this House should sit here day after day discussing academic matters and that kind of thing when the enemy in the Pacific have got command of the sea and when they may get it in the Atlantic as well."

Mr. Pouliot said he saw no reason for raising the question of conscription for overseas service until the defence of Canada is provided for. If the Government wanted to hold a plebiscite he suggested it ask the people if they were in favor of a gift of $1,000,000,000 to Great Britain or if they were in favor of giving priority to Canadian defence.

Another objection to the form of the plebiscite question was taken by Rev. E. G. Hansell (N.D. MacLeod). He suggested there are no commitments restricting methods of raising men for military service since there are only two ways of raising men, the voluntary method and conscription, and both now are being used.

Suggests A Change

The restriction, if any, was on where the men could be sent after being raised, Mr. Hansell said. He proposed an amendment to the question so it would read:

"Are you in favor of releasing the government from any obligation arising out of any past commitments restricting the methods of raising men for military service in any theatre of war" to the original question.)

Mr. Hansell also suggested addition of a second question to the ballots: "Are you in favor of conscription of the financial institutions of Canada so that the government can fulfil its commitments to issue currency and credit in terms of public need."

He moved amendments to have these changes made in the bill. The amendments have not yet been dealt with.

E. E. Perley (Con. Qu'Appelle) used a new argument when he said the question was all wrong since it referred to "commitments restricting the methods of raising men" and there were no such restrictions. The restriction was regarding where men might be sent to serve.

Mr. Hanson said he thought the suggestion important and charged that the original question was an attempt to fool the people. He withdrew that when the chairman said the remark was out of order.

Prime Minister King said the question as it stood had been included in the bill at Mr. Hanson's request, it had been before the House for weeks and the Conservative House Leader had raised no objection to its form.

Earlier, in answer to a question form Mr. Hansell, Mr. King said he could not imagine a situation in which a direct plebiscite on conscription for overseas service would be necessary.

No Legal Barriers.

There was no legal obstacle to the government imposing unlimited conscription under the War Measures Act, Mr. King said.

But there was a "moral obligation" because of pledges made, Mr. King added, which restricted the government from initiating full conscription. That obligation, he said, would be recognized until removed by the will of the people.

After Mr. McLarty had explained the changes made to the bill in committee, Conservative House Leader Hanson spoke at some length on the revision which, he said, largely met his objections.

But he objected to permitting any person to vote without first displaying his national registration certificate, and expressed fear that large numbers of those in the services would be unable to vote.

Mr. McLarty said there would certainly be some to whom the polls could not be taken but the effort would be to provide an opportunity for as many as possible to cast ballots.

A question from Rev. E. G. Hansell (N.D. MacLeod) brought the statement from Mr. King regarding a straight plebiscite for or against conscription.

Worried About Her Health Now Praises Syntona Tonic

"Brought Blessed Relief From Pains in Arms, Shoulders and Limbs, Also Stomach Troubles, Nervousness and Constipation After Many Other Things Had Failed," Says This Lady.

"It is quite a long time since I first took Syntona, but I am always glad to tell my friends and neighbors how much it helped me, and even now I occasionally use it," said Mrs. Margaret Hempstock, 146 Avondale Avenue, Hamilton, in a recent statement:

"When I first began taking Syntona, I had been in poor health for a long time. My nerves were very bad and my stomach was weak and easily upset. I continually suffered from gas distress, shortness of breath, and a nauseated feeling after meals. I had been troubled with constipation for years, would get frequent headaches and such terrible pains in my arms, shoulders and limbs. In fact, my shoulder hurt so much that I couldn't raise my arm to comb my hair. I often had a feeling of dizziness and couldn't sleep at night.

"I tried various things without results, but when I got Syntona I soon knew it was going to help me. After a little while I could digest my food with no gas or distress after meals, the aches and pains left me and my bowels were moving nicely every day. Since then I haven't been troubled with dizziness or headaches and even now I have a grand, restful sleep at night. But if ever I do feel upset or not just as I should, I take Syntona for a little while and soon everything is all right again. I am glad to endorse Syntotna and recommend that other people suffering like I did try it, too."

MRS. MARGARET HEMPSTOCK

The action of Syntona is often surprising to many people, but there is a good reason for this. Syntona contains 12 herbs, roots and barks and acts on stomach kidneys, liver and bowels. It aids assimilation of food for increased energy and resistance and in ridding the system of excess acid and poisonous waste.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

The bureau's mid-day communique said 12 more fortified and inhabited localities, which were not identified, were captured by units operating on the western and southern fronts.

In the fighting for one village on the western front, 200 enemy men and officers were wiped out while in an action which gained the Russians nine inhabited places on the southern front the Germans left more than 700 dead on the field.

The Russians said that guerillas in the Orel district, 200 miles south of Moscow, had been operating against the Germans, killing 475 of the invaders, blowing up four railway bridges, derailing three military trains, destroying three headquarters, 71 trucks, several tanks and setting one plane on fire.

change in plans for "general co-ordination of strategic policy" but had been taken for tactical considerations.

"After the loss of Malaya," it explained, "and the entry of the Japanese into Sumatra, which separated Burma from the Netherlands East Indies, it was agreed that command of land, sea and air forces of the United Nations in the Netherlands East Indies should pass to the Indies, who are continuing to receive all available assistance from the United Nations."

Dominion Status Offer

There was a hint the transfer might have political as well as military significance, for well-informed sources in London believed it could foreshadow a British offer of dominion status to India.

Gen. Wavell, one of the most respected Allied generals, is regarded as a man who could make the most of the upsurge of national feeling that would result in India and make it a fighting force.

However, while the United Nations still were forced to fight holding actions, except in Russia, there was official assurance that preparations for offensive operations of an important character are being pushed with all possible speed.

Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the U.S. Fleet, and Geo. George C. Marshall, U.S. Army chief of staff, both declared yesterday the armed forces are getting ready to carry the fight to the foe.

King reported that "an all-out effort is being made in the unspectacular but vitally-essential task of establishing the United States sea and air communications.

"Appropriate measures are being taken," he added, "to strengthen the key points of these communications, with a view to developing an offensive, which slowly but surely, will gain scope and power as we gain strength, through the production of aircraft, ships and guns.

An Offensive War

Once communications have been established and assured, it was pointed out, the army can proceed with what Gen. Marshall called "the business of carrying the war to the enemy." This day may be six or 12 months away, experts estimated, but they did not consider such a time lapse excessive, considering the immensity of the work incidental to mounting a world-scale offensive.

Donald M. Nelson, war production chief, told American industry and workmen, in effect, they would have to work like trojans and match the efforts of the armed services by supplying them with the tools of victory.

In a radio address last night, Nelson appealed for a 25-per cent boost in 1942 production, from existing machines alone. He said the industrial front faced "the greatest competition of all time" and called for an unprecedented drive to overtake and overwhelm the Axis war production, now at its peak.

Congress, meanwhile, had poured $32,767,737,900 more into the country's war chest, completing action on a huge military appropriation measure. The bill was sent to President Roosevelt yesterday for his signature.

9 New Members Welcomed To Rotary Club

Nine new members, referred to by President Rev. Dr. George Easton as Rotary's ball club, were formally welcomed into the ranks of the Peterborough Rotary Club at Monday's regular weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel, and listened to an address by Rotarian Dr. H. R. H. Kenner on Rotary privileges responsibilities and ethics.

The nine members who were introduced were Harland Keefer, Canadian Tire Corporation, C. E. Cummer, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, John Hornal, superintendent of Nicholls Hospital, Hubert Eastwood of the Eastwood Construction Company, George H. Roper, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., William J. Hamilton, furrier, Wes Brown, Glenelco, Dr. D. B. Avison, acting Medical Officer of Health, and Grant Miller, manufacturing chemist.

Ian F. McRae, chairman of the Program Committee for March, who presided for the greater part of Monday's program, called upon each of the nine to give a two-minute classification talk, and saw to it that the time limit was strictly followed out. "I am satisfying a life-long ambition," he confided to the members as he cut off several of the speakers.

Dr. Kenner's address in which he told the history of Rotary and of the Peterborough Rotary Club and emphasized the individual responsibility of Rotarians to live up to Rotary principles and its code of ethics followed. The new members would get out of Rotary what they put into it was the keynote of Dr. Kenner's remarks.

Rotarian Fred L. Roy, first president of the Peterborough Rotary Club, expressed the regret of the club at the sudden passing of Billy Doyle, who founded the Peterborough Club 21 years ago. The speaker recalled that the organizing committee was composed of John Crane, Frank Linton, Chris G. Graham, R. M. Glover, and himself.

Rotarian Roy paid an eloquent tribute to the qualities of the late William Doyle and to his services on behalf of Rotary.

MORE ABOUT— Dutch Move

East Indies has been moved from Batavia inland to Bandung, where it joins military headquarters, Dr. W. G. Peekema of the Netherlands Ministry of Colonies announced today.

He declared Java could not hold out much longer unless reinforcements arrive.

"We have suffered terrific losses and the chances of reinforcements are rather slight," said the official of the Netherlands Government in London here.

"No country in such a situation as Java is now can hope to hold out indefintely."

Dr. Peekema declared air reinforcement is "absolutely essential" for prolonged resistance.

Another Armada On Way

BANDUNG, Java, March 3 (AP)—The heavily-engaged defenders of Java lashed out against Japan's invasion hordes today with all the powerful and Allied force at their command.

(But an even greater threat to Java was reported in London where dispatches from Bandung, Netherlands military headquarters, and Batavia, Java's capital, said a huge new invasion armada of about 70 or 89 ships is sailing down upon Java.

(These transports are expected to begin unloading within a few hours, it was reported. Continuing relays of Allied bombers are said to be meeting the Japanese with storms of explosives 50 to 60 miles north of Java.

(Many Japanese warships are reported escorting the transports and a London Daily Express dispatch from Bandung said warships of the United Nations' forces had gone into action.)

Details of the fighting on land are scant though an authoritative source here said yesterday it could be reported that "hard blows have been inflicted on the enemy."

The effective scorched-earth policy, which has sent up in smoke or crashing into debris millions of dollars worth of property since the Japanese began invading the East Indies, is putting its destructive fingers on Batavia itself.

There was no immediate threat to the city, it was stated, but the Netherlands, determined that nothing of value should fall into Japanese hands, has ordered demolition work begun "in order to take no risks."

Dutch Grow Bitter

(Bitter criticism of the Allied command in the Pacific was expressed at a press conference by the Lieutenant Governor of the East Indies, Gen. Hubertus J. Van Mook, a London Daily Mail dispatch from Bandung repoted.

(Van Mook declared "this has been a war of lost chances."

(He was quoted as saying that the Japanese could be checked effectively by naval forces only and added:—

("Speaking frankly, the situation has been allowed to deteriorate not so much through the insufficiency of materials or reinforcement as through a failure to adopt offensive tactics....certainly we Dutch deserve some blame.

("Americans also are partly responsible because repeated suggestions that Japan should be struck even with meagre forces five weeks ago when six unprotected lines of communication had been opened to the south resulted only in inaction.

("The British likewise share responsibility because, following Singapore's fall, the emphasis shifted sharply from British Malaya to British Burma.")

Dutch Switch Rule As Japs Advance

LONDON, March 4 (CP)—Vice-Admiral Conrad Helfrich has been entrusted with a "special mission" and has been succeeded as commander of the Netherlands Indies naval forces by Rear-Admiral J. J. A. Van Staveren, the Netherlands Government announced today.

The statement said that Lt.-Gen. Hein Ter Poorten would command the land forces following the departure of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, former Supreme Commander of the United Nations Southwest Pacific forces.

Governor-General A. W. L. Tjarda van Starkenborgh Stachouwer will continue in full civil authority, the Netherlands Government announced.

It declared that all commanders in the East Indies—even those whose forces may become cut off — have been ordered to "fight on to the last."

Aneta news agency said this was taken as an indication that the Netherlands officers have been directed to carry on guerilla operations, even if cut off from headquarters, to impede the invaders at every step.

Well - informed Netherlands sources here declined to say whether Admiral Helfrich's resignation might have resulted from the loss of two cruisers in the Java Sea fight against the Japanese invasion armada.

Japs Reported Gaining.

BANDUNG, Java., Mar. 4—(AP).—The Japanese were announced today to have made "some headway at some points" on Java, bringing to bear their numerical superiority—especially in planes—against defence forces which had held them in check since Sunday.

The enemy inroads indicated no radical change as yet in the situation in which the Indies and their Allies had shown sufficient power yesterday to press the invaders back in one sector.

Raid Finishes Taffying Of Vichyites

Through Letting Nazis Use Slave Nations As Production Shields

LONDON, March 4—(CP).—The heavy bombing attack by the Royal Air Force last night on the great Renault plant and other industrial installations in the suburbs of Paris may mean the end of Allied attempts to coax the Vichy government away from co-operation with Nazi Germany, informed British sources declared today.

An official spokesman said the bombing represented no change in R.A.F. policy, merely a change in the weather, which other sources earlier had said was particularly clear and thus aided the raiders in finding their targets.

However, it was notable that this was the first time Britain had made a heavy attack on any objective near the German-occupied French capital. In the past targets in France have been around Lille and Douay in the industrial north.

There was no consultation between the British Foreign Office and the State Department in Washington before the R.A.F. launched the raid, it was learned.

Since the U.S. State Department has borne the brunt of representing the Allied cause at Vichy from the time the United States entered the war, this was regarded as significant.

Ready For Nazi Campaign.

It was argued here that an attack on an objective so near Paris would not have been ordered unless the Allies were ready to risk a German propaganda campaign seeking to turn the French against the

Lonely Camper Burns In Cabin

SUDBURY, Ont., March 4.—(CP)—A retired Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, hardware merchant, W. S. Lawrence was burned to death at an isolated spot on Onaping Lake, 80 miles northwest of Sudbury, last week, according to meagre details which reached Sudbury late Tuesday. This morning a plane left Sudbury to carry investigating officials to the scene of the tragedy along with LAC William Lawrence of the R.C.A.F., only son of the dead man.

No details of the fatal fire are known. Lawrence's cabin was located 25 miles from the nearest settlement, on a remote arm of Onaping Lake. A trapper came upon the burned cabin and the charred remains last Saturday.

Lawrence had spent his summers in the area for years past. On retiring a year ago he decided to build a tourist camp there. He had spent the winter building cabins. He is survived his his widow, in Pittsburg, and a daughter besides his son.

See Reds Beating Hitler To Spring Blitz

(By DEWITT MACKENZIE.)

Hitler's spokesmen report that the Muscovites are massing "almost unheard-of forces" along the great and still snow-bound Russo-German front for a big offensive, and already are attacking on an unprecedented scale.

What impels this frankness is best known to the Fuehrer, whose mind travels by devious routes, though obviously propaganda of some sort is involved. However, while we may be doubtful of his purpose, there's no reason to question the statement because despatches from Moscow have substantiated it in general.

The Russians are preparing to cut loose with everything they can muster in an effort to crush Hitler before he can recover from the grievious hurts they have inflicted on him this winter. In short, the Reds appear to be getting set to stage their spring offensive ahead of time, while the snows still blanket the steppes and the expansive rivers are yet frozen.

That isn't surprising, for during their amazing counter-offensive the Bolshevists have demonstrated time and again that one of the fundamentals of their success is to meet opportunity three-quarters of the way. Right now the Nazi chief is in difficulties and the Reds, like good warriors, are following up for a possible kill.

There's a tremendous stake involved in this coming struggle of giants, for the outcome of the battle is likely to tip the war scales definitely one way or the other. Moreover, there is the far-reaching probability that only one of the two regimes will survive.

Yank Units Pour Into Ireland

Thousands Bolster January Convoy Completely Equipped

WITH U.S. TROOPS IN NORTHERN IRELAND, March 4—(AP). — Thousands more cheering, husky United States fighting men have arrived at a Northern Ireland port to augment the force that has been in Ulster more than a month, it was announced today.

Details of the landing of the fleet of transport and supply ships were withheld until the soldiers, their guns and their other fighting equipment had been scattered to the secluded spots throughout the six Northern Ireland counties and the ships had left port.

Compared with the ceremonial landing of the first contingent last month, the latest arrival was a routine job carried out with typical army and navy clockwork precision.

Like the first contingent, most of the latest arrivals are mid-Westerners who had been in training in Southern army camps for a year. But there are some representatives of every part of the country. They came in full field equipment.

Maj.-Gen. Russell Hartle, U.S. Commander in Northern Ireland, greeted the men.

The honor of being first man in the ranks to land was given to Master Sergeant Dorrance Mann, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, who served in the First Great War with the colonel commanding this contingent.

Ilsley War Bill Runs 2 Million

OTTAWA, March 4 —(CP)—Finance Minister Ilsley today gave notice on the commons order paper of a war appropriations bill amountin gto $2,000,000,000 covering the year ending March 31, 1943.

In his budget address in April 1941, he said that 1941-42 war expenditures were placed at $1,450,000,000, nearly double the amount for the previous year.

Inasmuch as Canada has signified her intention of sending a free-will gift of $1,000,000,000 worth of supplies to Britain during the approaching fiscal year, the total estimate of war expenditures in 1942-43 has been placed at $3,000,000,000 by the finance minister.

The Dominion's non-war estimates for 1942-43, tabled in the House of Commons recently, provide for a total of $454,880,365 for general civilian outlays of the Dominion.

Introduction of Mr. Ilsley's resolution on the war appropriations bill is expected to pave the way for a full dress debate on Canada's conduct of the war.

Shah of Persia In Canada, Berlin Reports Ottawa Admits Residence Permit Granted

OTTAWA, March 4—(CP).—The Canadian Government has granted permission for the former Shah of Persia and his family to come to Canada, it was learned today, but so far the External Affairs Department has not been advised that he is on his way to this Dominion.

His name is Reza Khan Paahlavi and he was deposed after British troops entered his country last summer, his son taking his place. Since then the whereabouts of the deposed monarch has been a secret, but Canada was asked if it would be willing to have him moved to Canada. Canada made no objection.

The ex-Shah was offered the choice of several countries, none of which he was enthusiastic about, but thought Canada's climate might be something like the uplands of Persia. The permission was given several weeks ago, and officials here thought the plan had been dropped until the German radio yesterday said he had landed in Canada.

Flaming Plane Crashes In Arctic 2 Pilots Live 9 Days In Snowhouse

EDMONTON, March 4—(CP).—How the courage of two men and their will to live brought them alive out of a blazing plane and nine days and nights of 40-below zero weather, 100 miles south of the Arctic Ocean, was told here last night with the arrival of Pilot Alf. Caywood and Air Mechanic Jack Rennie, surviving members of a Canadian Pacific Airways plane crash in the Far North.

The men were flown out of the north by Pilot North Sawle, who discovered the charred wreck of Caywood's plane Monday on the unmapped, snow-drifted Duman Lake in the Arctic region.

Beside the burned plane lay the body of William Gibson, pioneer Arctic Hudson's Bay Company post inspector, who died as the flaming plane glided to a landing on the tiny lake from an altitude of 8,000 feet.

What caused the fire has not been determined It was discovered when Rennie, sitting in the co-pilot's seat, found the back of his legs getting "uncomfortably" hot. He opened the

Allen Ready To Go Back

Torpedoed 3 Times, War Writer Learns To Swim

MIAMI, Fla. March 4.—(AP).—Larry Allen learned to swim, and to-day he is due in Washington as the first step of his return to duty as the Associated Press war correspondent with the British Mediterranean fleet.

His instructor, pretty Peggie Diehl, 24, professional swimmer and photographic model, called him a "marvellous student."

Allen's determination to learn the art of aquatic locomotion was born of dire necessity. He has had three ships torpedoed under him, experienced 30 dive-bomber attacks, and last December slid feet first from the sinking cruiser Galatea into the night-blackened waters of the Mediterranean with only an underinflated life belt to support him.

For three weeks Miss Diehl shower him how to kick his legs, move his arms and keep above the surface. Allen's announced intention—before he first saw Miss Diehl—was to learn to swim 20 feet. After meeting her he thought 100 feet, the length of the Miami Baltimore pool, a better distance.

"He learned to swim the 20 feet," his instructor said laughingly yesterday. "I hope he'll come back to Miami to see about the other 80 feet."

Without giving details, officials said further raids were being made today in a continuing investigation in Washington. Arrested on a charge under a section of the law on trading with the enemy Mendelssohn pleaded not guilty in Miami and further hearing was set for March 12.

R.A.F. To Hit Hun Industry As Drive Opens

LONDON, March 4.—(CP).— Sir Archibald Sinclair, air secretary, declared to-day that the R.A.F. will synchronize hard blows at German industry and transport with the expected Nazi spring offensive in Russia and, aided by United States' built fighters and dive bombers, will demonstrate the superiority over the German air force "in the not distant future."

At the same time, he served notice that Britain would not allow "German production of tanks and tank engines, aero engines and lorries to go on unhindered merely because it is situated in occupied territory of France."

Last night's attack on industrial targets in the suburbs of Paris in which he said some buildings were blown hundreds of feet into the air represented no change of R.A.F. policy, he said.

For five months R.A.F. bombings has curtailed industrial work "in a wide area" about Lille in Northern France by as much as 50 per cent., the Air Minister told the House of Commons.

Vichy Claims 600 Killed 12 Areas Hit

Big Renault Works On 40-Man Planes For Blow At Britain

LONDON, March 4—(CP).—Reuters reported today in a dispatch from Vichy which quoted the Vichy news agengy that 600 persons were killed and 1,000 wounded in a Royal Air Force bombing of factories in the Paris suburbs last night.

Two hundred houses were reported to have been destroyed at Billancourt, in the Paris area.

The R.A.F. sent big bombers to blast the Renault motor works at Billancourt, authoritative British circles said after the raid was over. British authorities have asserted the Renault factory was working 24 hours each day for Hitler and his army.

According to unofficial reports the Renault factory has been manufacturing 40-man "invasion planes" for the Germans, huge transports destined to be used for the eventual assault on Britain.

The raid was the first attack on factories in the Paris area since France capitulated to Germany.

"Although the attack lasted less than two hours and the force employed was not exceptionally large, the results of the raid are believed to have been good.

"In view of the use to which the Nazis have been putting the Renault factory it is hoped that the raid will be of material assistance to our Russian Allies."

We Cannot Fail No Matter How Great the Sacrifice

EDITORIAL
In Support of Victory Loan

"The knowledge that there are people at home depending on you drives one not only to do his best, but just a little more. It is this spirit that is going to bring a triumphant conclusion to this struggle in which we are engaged. The sacrifice may be great but it is dwarfed by the magnificent end to which we are pointing. No price is really too great."

These are the noble words left as an inspiring legacy to the people of this country by Flight-Sergeant Robb, son of Judge W. T. Robb of Orangeville, Ont., who is reported "killed in action", during one of the exploits of the R.C.A.F. bomber crew against the enemy. At 25 years of age he went forth with that gallant spirit which has ever characterized Britons engaged in valiant cause. He has paid the supreme price but his name will be honored in the chronicles of his generation! Those words are imperishable.

While this young man from a responsible home, and with the promise of successful life ahead of him, was moved as countless other young men have been moved who have given their all, by a consciousness that there were people at home depending on him, are we in Peterborough city and county equally ready to say that there is no sacrifice too great for the magnificent end for which our fellow beings in the battle zones are fighting? If we were as ready to give everything as was he, the Victory Loan quota in this area would have been raised by now. Up to Tuesday night we had reached 76.2 per cent. of our objective.

This standing causes not a little regret. The special names committee of this city has done its work promptly and well. There has been no indifference to the moral obligation in that quarter. County points have some distance to go, as a whole, to make up their allotment but canvassers in rural areas have been struggling against exceptionally bad weather conditions. It is in the city canvass—among the people in their homes, in shops, stores, offices, factories and other places that results have not been up to expectations.

Cannot something be done about it? Peterborough is regarded by outside places as one of the busiest cities in the province because of the large numbers of persons employed here in industries and in other callings. It was expected that when the quota is somewhat less than it was previously, we would have gone over the top by now. Some of the Prairie cities raised their total allotment as early as last week—finished their task and a few even exceeded their objective.

Citizens of Peterborough, we must not let our area down. The three weeks set for the campaign throughout the Dominion to raise the required $600,000,000 will be up at the end of this week. Are we, the men and women of this community, going to be able to join with our fellow Canadians on Saturday night in a proud victory of dollars to back up the courageous lads who are going out, as young Robb went out, to face death for our liberties?

The war situation is grave, very grave. There is no use trying to be complacent and slow. The press of yesterday carried the news that another U.S. destroyer had been blasted to pieces by enemy torpedoes, and also that a Canadian freighter of 3,000 tons has been sunk by torpedoes in the South Atlantic. Word comes from Java that the defenders there are doing the best they can, with their backs to the wall, to hold off the Japanese, but that they cannot stand up long unless air reinforcements arrive.

The bond which is bought by you, your neighbor, your friend; by the person who draw a pay envelope like you do; by the boy who sells papers and saves enough to subscribe—all such money goes toward providing the munitions, equipment and supplies that are sorely needed by the chaps in the army, navy and air forces—chaps who are battling against tremendous odds for US.

Let us all get out with the heroic and worthy heart of young Robb and prove that we, too, think the "sacrifice is not too great" for the end we all have in view!

Reds Destroy 50 Forts At Leningrad

Soviet Paratroops Raid City Wreck, Seize Supplies

MOSCOW, March 4—(AP) — Soviet forces have destroyed "about 50 centres of enemy resistance" and killed 650 officers and men in an offensive on the Leningrad front which still is continuing, the Soviet communique announced today.

Forty Germans were reported killed in one house alone when an infantry platoon tossed hand grenades into the windows. Twenty Germans heeded the call to surrender before the missiles were thrown.

Soviet soldiers killed 3,400 Nazis in two combat zones north of Moscow in 48 hours of action this week and blasted an aerial supply base of the encircled German 16th Army with shellfire, the Russians said today.

"Two thousand German officers and men were killed during the last two days on the Leningrad front," the Soviet information Bureau said. "On the Kalinin front the enemy lost 1,400 officers and men killed."

Between Kalinin and Leningrad lies the Staraya Russa sector, in which dispatches said a Soviet-ring is gradually tightening upon the 96,000 or more men of the invaders' 16th Army.

Therefore as these two greatest land fighting machines of the world manoeuvre into position, it's interesting to hear Britain's new leader of the House of Commons, Sir Stafford Cripps, say that if the Allies are victorious the Soviet Union will emerge the strongest European power and is "likely to end the war sitting in Berlin."

The Soviet Union looks far stronger potentially now than it did before the Russo-Nazi conflict began. The least that can be said is that Moscow will be an outstanding figure in the pattern of the fabric from which peace will be cut.

When Hitler started the second Great War by lashing out at Poland, Russia was mostly paying attention to her own knitting, and not intruding much politically in the rest of Europe. She was busy with Stalin's vast industrial program and the creation of a great army.

But now the position is entirely changed. Russia holds a major place in European industrial production. The tremendous Soviet Empire is far and away ahead of any other continental country in resources. The Red Army is numerically the greatest in existence, and the forthcoming battle with the Nazis will tell us whether it also is the most powerful.

ish Lancaster bombers, "the most powerful in the world," which are coming into service in "increased numbers" and will be loaded soon with bombs of a greatly enlarged size and devastating power.

Straits Almost Closed.

The R.A.F. and Royal Navy have virtually closed Dover Strait to enemy ships which formerly went through at a rate of 25 a month.

Significantly, Sir Archibald said the Germans in recent months had greatly reduced the percentage of dives bombers in their air force because this type is only useful where air superiority already has been established.

Britain now is able to re-equip her tactical reconnaissance squadrons with the best of American fighter planes.

He said also that the United States also is going to send dive bombers to the R.A.F.; that a type "markedly superior to the German Junkers 87 dive bombers will soon be available.

Sir Archibald added that the R.A.F. intends to resume the bomber offensive against Germany "on the largest possible scale at the earliest possible moment."

He disclosed that further new types of British aircraft "some of revolutionary design, are ripening."

He said the armament of the British fighters already is superior to the best of the Germans yet encountered and that further improvements will be made in Hurricanes and Spitfires.

Despite the exceptional inactivity of the last two months, Sir Archibald added, the tonnage of bombs dropped by R.A.F. bombers was 50 per cent greater than in January and February, 1941.

Alluding to criticism that R.A.F. co-operation with the Army has been faulty he said the "R.A.F. has beaten the Germans in every other form of air fighting and means to beat them in Army co-operation."

A "substantial number" of bombers and fighter squadrons are constantly practising Army co-operation, he said.

He said the R.A.F.'s biggest task since last June had been to "give the utmost possible help to our Russian Allies in their gigantic battle against the main German armies."

Helping the Navy.

Speaking of the work of one of the R.A.F.'s branches, Sir Archibald said 40 per cent of the bomber command's total effort in the past year "has been expended upon targets which the Navy asked them to bomb."

In offensive operations from British bases, he added, the R.A.F. destroyed 813 enemy fighter planes against British losses of 537 planes.

With the aid of the Royal Navy, he added, the "coastal command had driven the U-boats right out of the western approaches" to Britain.

East Coast convoys were so well protected between Harwich and New Haven, he said, that "they came through with clock-like regularity."

During six months preceding the British advance in Libya, the R.A.F. and naval aircraft sank 175,000 tons of merchant shipping in the Mediterranean, he said, remarking that to send a ship to the bottom with 50 tanks is a 'big contribution" to the land battle.

Promising further aerial co-operation with the Russians Sir Archibald said:

"Hitler is preparing his spring offensive....Its impact will fall upon Russia. We shall not stand helplessly aloof. The bomber command will strike hard at the vital centres of the German war industry and transport."

Refugees Too

An East Coast Canadian Port, March 4 (CP).

TWENTY persons were lost, including a British refugee family of four, when a freighter was torpedoed in the western Atlantic in January, according to 13 survivors who have arrived here.

Seven other survivors of the same ship are in hospital at St. John's, Nfld., but expected to rejoin their shipmates here soon. All 20 survivors were rescued by a British ship after drifting eight hours in lifeboats and taken to St. John's.

The men arriving here said the British family, father, mother and 2 children who were passengers on the ship were drowned when a torpedo explosion wrecked their lifeboat.

Ottawa Defines ARP Setup For All Canada

OTTAWA, March 4.—(CP). — Model scales of establishment for local air raid precautions organizations have been developed and issued to provincial air raid precautions committees, Pensions Minister Mackenzie said yesterday.

This model establishment indicates the numbers of volunteer workers required to augment the regular municipal organization, according to the population of the municipal area and with regard to the relative degree of risk of the locality.

Designated areas have been classified in three categories of which Category 'A' includes areas designated by military authorities as subject to definite risk and considered to be in the greatest and most imminent danger from hostile attacks.

Category 'A' includes the coastal area of British Columbia west of the Cascade mountains, the entire province of Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, the coastal area of New Brunswick and the coastal area of the St. Lawrence gulf and river as far west as Sorel, Que., to a depth of 50 miles.

Category 'B.' where the risk is considered as definite but not quite so imminent, includes the inland portions of British Columbia lying around the international boundary as far east as the Rock Mountains and the interior of New Brunswick.

Areas of Slight Risk.

Category C includes the areas of slight risk, such as the interior of Quebec, and the whole of Ontario west to and including Sault Ste. Marie.

"It is considered that organization should be greater and more intense in Category A than in Category B, and smallest in Category C," said the minister.

In areas in Category A, the Government considered there should be 12 wardens per 1,000 population in all areas, but the number of auxiliary firemen should be one per 500 population in an area of more than 5,000 population, and one per 300 in an area of less than 5,000 population.

Every air raid worker should receive an identification card, arm band, badge and steel helmet. Every air raid warden should be issued with a flashlight, whistle, and report forms. Every auxiliary fireman should receive a fireman's coat, rubber boots and belt. Overalls are issued only to members of rescue, demolition and bomb squads. Protective clothing is issued only to the members of the decontamination squads.

Particulars of the establishment are being issued by the Hon. R. J. Manion, Director of Civil Air Raid Precautions to each provincial committee for its guidance in dealing with local requisitions.

What Ottawa Will Do.

The Dominion Government's policy has been defined along the following lines:

1. The Dominion will provide reasonable initial organization expenses to the provinces.

2. The Dominion will provide booklets and printed matter and personal equipment to the provinces who will distribute them to the municipalities.

3. Equipment will be issued up to the requirements indicated in the model establishment, to the extent that it is available. Certain types of equipment are still not available in the desired quantities, but steps which have been taken with regard to one or two items in the past few weeks are expected to result in an improvement in this respect.

4. The Dominion will also meet the reasonable costs of installation of such fixtures as sirens.

5. The practice of issuing directly to provinces will be continued and it will be for the provincial committee to distribute to the municipal areas under their jurisdiction.

6. To the extent that unavoidable expenses are incurred by municipalities in A.R.P. organization, the Dominion will be prepared to pay 50 per cent of the cost, under strict conditions namely, that the budget has been approved by the provincial committee and by the Director of Civil Air Raid Precautions. When these approvals have been given, the budget will be submitted to the Government.

Hunted For 2 Weeks

A 52-year-old resident of Montreal and native of Rumania, Mendelssohn was arrested on his return to Miami Sunday night from Nassau, the Bahamas. United States customs officials had been seeking him since Feb. 12 when he went to Nassau by plane.

Miami customs inspectors reported finding on his person a tiny roll of micro-film which became torn and could not be read easily. Officials reported subsequently that it was a reduced copy of 20 pages of typewritten material, described by Commissioner Roger E. Davis as "against the best interest of the United States."

Montreal police also raided the downtown offices of Mendelssohn Brothers and said the homes they visited were those of the arrested man and other company officers whose names were not given out.

Meanwhile officials continued theri examination of the seized material and said some of it might be sent to the F.B.I. to assist their probe. There was no indication of what the documents contained.

General A Hoarder

Kingston, Ont., March 4 (AP).

BRIG.-GEN. A. E. ROSS, alderman for Ontario Ward and former member of parliament for Kingston, was convicted in city police court today on a charge of hoarding sugar contrary to the recently instituted rationing order and was fined $10 and costs.

Magistrate J. B. Garvin, in summing up the case, said that he did not feel it necessary to go into the evidence to decide on the contradictions in testimony. He said that the delivery of sugar on Jan. 27 had not been disputed.

"It seems to me," said the magistrate, "that the sub-section in the Wartime Prices and Trades Board Act means exactly what it says: That no person can receive sugar other than the amount provided for in the regulations without violating the law."

Dutch Switch Rule

The communique declared resistance still was stubborn "and in offensive spirit" but the authorities already had carried out "the principal destruction in Java" to prevent its rich resources from falling into enemy hands.

It gave no indication whether the new Japanese penetrations had been stopped nor any details either of their depth or direction.

50,000 Against 85,000.

About 50,000 Allied troops, among them "a few thousand American and British," are fighting a force of at least 85,000 Japanese in the Battle of Java, Netherlands sources in London declared today.

These sources said the United Nations naval forces protecting the Netherlands East Indies Island had suffered "a crippling blow" in their attempt to halt the Japanese invasion fleet, and that the two Indies cruisers which were lost were attacked by a "line of Japanese submarines."

There was no confirmation from authoritative Allied naval sources of Japanese claims that the British Exeter and a United States cruiser were sunk in the Java Sea fight.

The Indies started the battle for Java with one available cruiser squadron facing "the entire Japanese cruiser, submarine and destroyer strength," it was said.

All Jap Cruisers In Battle

"Japan threw an immense number of vessels into the invasion effort and left Japanese home water unprotected. They were able to do this because their victory at Pearl Harbor removed the danger of immediate United States counter action."

Thus the picture of a "rather gloomy situation" was given by Netherlands sources here. They said Japanese command of the sea in the South Pacific "never was stronger" and that as a result of Japanese submarine victories which reduced Netherlands naval strength, the Allies were unable to undertake a counter-offensive.

In London Exchange Telegraph heard a German broadcast today which claimed the Japanese had advanced to about 20 miles from Batavia and that a battle for the Netherlands East Indies capital is in full swing.

The broadcast did not give the source of its reports.

Jap Drome Naked

The Bandung bulletin reported heavy aerial blows against the enemy's airpower. Serious damage was inflicted on hangars at a Japanese-held airport and "a number of enemy bombers were machine-gunned," it said.

In a Japanese attempt to raid Bandung Monday, the communique said, the enemy lost four bombers and one fighter or bomber and was "so heavily punished that he gave up the attack."

The 1½-hour raid on this city yesterday, however, was acknowledged to have caused military as well as civilian damage and to have set fire to 'some' grounded Indies planes.

Two Japanese bombers were shot down, the communique added.

Java's hopes of repelling the Japanese invasion apparently hung on the ability of its valiantly fighting defenders to whittle down Japan's first landing forces.

This final stronghold of the Indies was concered to be in dire peril. This was attested by a separate communique today disclosing that the flames of "scorched earth" already were consuming vital installations and material in the path of the invaders.

Such sacrifices already had been made in Batavia but this was the first indication that they were being made island-wide on Java as they were in the islands already occupied by the enemy.

"It would seem advisable to stress the fact that no food supplies have been or will be destroyed," the announcement said. "Private persons should not destroy their personal belongings unless emphatically ordered to do so by proper authorities."

Military sources foresaw Japanese attempts to put reinforcements ashore as the probable next test for the defenders of Java, the United Nations' last rampart before Australia.

U.S. Pacific Fleet Down 16 Japs In Far East Raid

WASHINGTON, Mar. 4—(AP).—A task force of the United States Pacific Fleet, driving deep into the hornet's nest of Japanese mandate islands, shot down 16 enemy bombers in a fight that backed up to-day the Navy's promise of aggressive action.

The engagement had a double significance that impressed Washington.

First: Prohibitive losses had been inflicted on the enemy—only two of 18 attacking bombers escaped. The bombers did not score a hit and only two American planes were lost.

Second: Fleet task forces are ranging farther westward, evidently close to the well-fortified Japanese Caroline Islands where lie such important bases at Ponape, Truk, Yap and Pelew.

The Navy communique last night did not indicate how deeply the task force penetrated this general area of the Pacific. It said merely the action had taken place west of the Gilbert Islands—the Japanese mandates which a fleet task force raided with destructive results on January 31. The Carolines are west and slightly north of the Gilberts.

More Swoops Due.

Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the United States Fleet, intimated on Monday that such operations could be expected to increase, for he promised naval forces would "take and make every opportunity to harass and damage the enemy," preliminary to an eventual grand offensive, when the time is ripe.

After the successful U.S. raid on bases in the Gilbert and Marshall Islands, Tokyo sarcastically invited a task force to return to the "hornet's nest" in the mandates.

Whether it was the same task force that paid the return call was not specified in last nights communique, although the squadron was similar in composition. The force presumably operated from Hawaii, more than 2,000 miles distant.

Capture of the Mandate Islands would give the United Nations the stepping-stone string of bases which reaches almost to the Philippines. A successful campaign of this character would deprive Japan of most Pacific outposts and put the Allies in a position to menace Japan itself.

door to the main part of the plane and found the entire main section afire.

Complete lack of radio communications in the north, blacken-out by sun spots, had delayed search for the plane which was reported missing when it failed to arrive at Port Radium, on the northeastern end of Bear Lake, en route to Coppermine, where Gibson was stationed.

Footprints Save Lives.

Footprints in the snow led to its discovery by Pilot Sawle on the isolated lake.

Caywood, a pioneer northern flier, said his plane left a trail of smoke and fire as it glided to a landing. Thousands of rounds of ammunition, part of the cargo, exploded and the plane was literally riddled with bullets.

As the plane skidded to a stop, Caywood and Rennie jumped clear. Caywood returned to the cargo and passenger department and ripped open the door. Gibson's badly burned body fell to the snow. It is thought possible Gibson was hit by one of the bullets.

Rennie and Caywood built two snow houses as the biting winds piled the snow around their shelters and they managed to rescue part of the plane's food supplies. They gathered firewood from the timber along the lake shore.

Both men suffered from snowblindness,, and Caywood had eyelashes of both eyes singed.

Gibson had been an employee of the H.B.C. for more than 20 years and was one of the best known men in the Arctic regions. His body will be flown out today for burial here.

Raid Finishes

Allies with stories of destruction in working class districts.

"Much damage" was done, said an air ministry communique in the first official account of the air assault.

"Last night Royal Air Force bombers attacked the Renault works at Billancourt on the outskirts of Paris which were known to have been engaged in production of war material for Germany.

"The target was clearly seen in bright moonlight and reports indicate much damage done."

Informed sources believed the way was cleared for the raid by last Friday night's attack by British parachute troops on the Nazi radio location station at Bruneval, just north of Le Havre.

They declared demolition of this station had allowed the R.A.F. bombers to cross the French coast and approach Paris undetected, and predicted that bombing of the Renault plant would be duplicated in other attacks of industrial areas in north France

Petain's Stand.

Petain declared that the victims' funeral day would be declared a day of national mourning. A statement issued by Petain's office declared:

"The bloody attack of the night of March 3-4, striking only at the civilian population, will arouse general indignation and taken on the character of a national catastrophe."

The German radio, meanwhile, reported that the British planes had showered large quantities of leaflets over Paris during the attack. The Nazi-controlled Paris radio was off the air during its regular 1 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) news period.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Air Minister, speaking in the House of Commons, said the Commander-in-Chief labelled the operation 'highly successful" and added:

"A large part of the works was on an island in the Seine. A number of our heaviest bombs fell on the island and on other parts of the target, burstin⅛ with shattering effect. Buildings collapsed like packs of cards."

Only 2 Planes Lost.

He said the returning pilots described how some buildings "came up at them hundreds of feet into the air." Only two of the raiding planes were lost and casualties were light, he added.

Sir Archibald said Britain could not allow "German production of tanks, tank engines, airplane engines, and lorries to go unhindered merely because it is situated in the occupied territory of France."

It was noted in London that Admiral Jean Darlan, Vice-Premier of the Vichy Government, who has pro-German inclinations, immediately visited the bombed area, and that the Vichy news agency gave much prominence to civilian casualties and residential damage.

The British Government, on the other hand, expressed through an authorized source its "sincere hope" that many French lives had been saved by BBC warnings broadcast in French that targets in the Paris area might be attacked any time.

That advance warning, which passed without much notice when it was given and last night's attack indicated to some observers that Britain intends to strike at German supply sources in France regardless of the possible political consequences.

One informed source added that "perhaps reports of increased French collaboration with Germany have changed the whole Allied attitude toward Vichy."

Very Few Misses

Elaborating on the communique, the air ministry news service said the R.A.F. bombers took every possible precaution to avoid taking the lives of French civilians or damaging civilian property. It declared the crews were under orders to return with their bomb loads intact if there were any possibility of a mistake.

"By the end of the attack, though, there were many large fires within the area of the Renault works," the news service added. "There were only two small fires outside, and these were just on the verge of the works, along the bank of the river (Seine)."

It declared that "the number and scale of the fires in a target not easily set alight because of a great amount of non-inflammable materials is proof of the effectiveness of the attack."

It said the moon was just past the full and that the bombers therefore had no difficulty in locating the works, which lie on a sharp bend in the Seine.

"Flares added to the light of the moon and of the many fires, and heavy bombs were distributed evenly over buildings on the island and along both banks of the river," the news service declared.

Alberta reported that five divisions are over the top, with 81 out of 123 units up to or over their quotas.

Plebiscite Bill Reaches Final Reading

OTTAWA, March 4—(CP).—Out of a barrage of amendment and suggested amendment, the Government's Plebiscite Bill was to stand for third and final reading in the House of Commons today and the Senate, called especially to deal with it last night, was to meet again in the expectation it would pass.

The Commons spent two full days discussing the bill clause by clause in committee of the whole, and yesterday's discussion resulted in the following amendments:—

A change in the ballot form;

A provision that persons not on the voters' lists must product their national registration cards before being sworn in to vote at urban polling stations.

Among the amendments proposed and rejected was one to add the words "in any theatre of war" to the plebiscite question which asks: "Are you in favor of releasing the Government from any obligation arising out of any past committments restricting the methods of raising men for military service?"

Another rejected amendment would have extended voting privileges to men between the ages of 18 and 21.

During the question period yesterday Prime Minister Mackenzie King expressed agreement in principle with a suggestion from Conservative House Leader Hanson, supported by M. J. Coldwell, acting C.C.F. leader, that report of Government-owned corporations such as the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the Bank of Canada be submitted to a special committee of the House to review each session.

Mr. King also intimated the government contemplates proposing a two-week adjournment of the House at Easter and said he hopes members will use the adjournment to do some campaigning on behalf of an affirmative vote on the plebiscite.

Just before adjourning the House approved trade agreements with Brazil, the Argentine and Chile, negotiated by Trade Minister Mac-

JAPANESE naval units are shelling several ports on three islands of the Philippines, the United States war department reported today, and are landing troops from a convoy of four transports escorted by a cruiser at Zamboanga on the southwest tip of Mindanao.

These ladies in the last six weeks have completed 12 wool tweed suits, beautifully tailored long coat and skirt, three complete layettes, 10 sweaters and skirts to match, 16 quilts, 2 afghans, 5 wool shawls, 3 pairs of small boys' pants, and 33 sweaters, 8 bed jackets, 12 ladies' nightgowns, 34 little girls' dresses, 5 pairs girls' pyjamas, 6 girls' blouses, and in the knitted goods: 7 pairs of seamen's socks, 29 pairs mitts, 9 pairs gloves, 6 turtle-neck sweaters, 17 wash cloths.

Most of the materials for these articles were bought or supplied by this unit from the proceeds of a tea held in October or were donations.

Mrs. George Ward was convener of the tea room for this display, the proceeds from which were most gratifying, $14.01. Tea-room assistants were Mrs. Gordon Bradley, Miss Dorothy Batt, Mrs. R. J. Hodgson, Mrs. Brodie Thompson, Mrs. Howard Hutchings, Mrs. J. R. Giffen, Mrs. Jim Bennett, Mrs. Hack Giddey, and Mrs. Stewart Ellis.

The display and tea received very high comments from the other units and many were the expressions of appreciation to each of the individual conveners and their helpers.

War Engenders Sense Of Values

PORT HOPE, March .—(ENS).—The Young People's Union of the United Church was under the department of Christian Fellowship on Monday evening, with Mrs. J. B. Reynolds as guest speaker.

The meeting opened with the president, Miss Kathleen Thompson, in the chair. Miss Audrey Box sang a most pleasing solo and the speaker of the evening was introduced.

Mrs. Reynolds, in her address, stressed that while in the rush and tear of present day life which so far has been comparatively easy in every way and now that that life is getting just a bit more difficult, we are more and more turning to the more important things of life, namely: Friendship, courage, nobility of purpose, graciousness or kindness, opportunity and influence. Mrs. Reynolds took each of these as a heading and explained each with God's influence running through every one.

Plans were made for a social evening, to be had at the next gathering.

History Is Made

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 4 (ENS)—For the first time in the past seven years the regular session of the Division Court was not convened here this month. Reason for its failure to be held was that there were no cases to be heard, a true indication that people of this district are keeping their debts paid as a result of improved conditions. On Monday the court clerk, R. N. Morrison, notified the presiding judge there was nothing slated for hearing, and His Honor Judge L. V. O'Connor remained in Port Hope.

Ministers Plan Pulpit Exchange

CAMPBELLFORD, March 4.—(ENS). — Arrangements for their pre-Easter services were made by members of the Campbellford and District Ministerial Association at their regular meeting held on Monday afternoon at the home of Lieut. Alex. Turnbull. Following their customary procedure the Protestant clergy will exchange pulpits for these services which will begin on March 30th and reach their climax on the following Friday when Rev. H. Bryant will address the congregation in St. John's United church. The opening service of the series will be held at the Free Methodist church where Lieut. Alex. Turnbull will be the speaker and on Tuesday evening Rev. J. R. Bick will have the pulpit at the Baptist church. Wednesday's service will be in Christ church where Rev. G. N. Maxwell will be the speaker and on Thursday Rev. T. S. Gault will address the gathering at the Salvation Army Citadel.

Rev. T. S. Gault, president of the Ministerial Association, presided for the meeting and the address of the day was given by Rev. G. N. Maxwell of St. John's United church, who spoke on "Mythology, Magic and Religion." The speaker referred to the part played by myths in the religion of the early Greeks, Egyptians and Scandinavians and in doing this classified myths in general under the two headings—Explanatory and Aesthetic. The former, he characterized as an attempt to answer questions about the world such as the reason for light and darkness and so forth while the latter dealt particularly with the tales of adventure such as those associated with the heroes of Ulysses, Lobi and Jupiter. He made reference to the magic powers these peoples attributed to their priests and compared these to them to those exemplified by to-day's uncivilized races. Any magic in religion of the civilized races exists solely in the mind which tends to believe in the power certain ceremonies have but a great deal of good can come from this he admitted. Summarizing he maintained magic (in religion) obscured the fact of God "who is a sovereign personality"; that the depersonalizing of man destroyed his confidence in his own intelligence; that it tended to be individual rather than social. "In place of myths and magic we to-day move into the realm of faith, relying on God as the supreme being."

Victory Club Bingo Aids War Relief

CAMPBELLFORD, March 4.—(ENS).—In a report to members on the proceeds of their most ambitious undertaking since they formed several months ago Miss Pat Poulton revealed to members of the Victory Club that they had raised $47.00 at a bingo held last Saturday evening. This report coupled with the fact members had not previously felt the necessity of having a treasurer, caused them to alter their views on the question and as a result Miss Poulton was named to that office. They have already solved the problem of what is to be done with part of the money since $15.00 was immediately earmarked for the Red Cross and a further $10.00 to the British War Relief Fund. The remaining $22.00 was left in the custody of the treasurer and will be drawn on to furnish the club with supplies of wool for knitting and print material for quilting. A number of items for the Red Cross were completed during the evening and Mrs. Harry Barrons was hostess of the meeting which was held on Monday evening.

Hastings Leads Northumberland In Victory Loan

HASTINGS, March 4—(ENS).—Hastings was the first municipality in Northumberland County to reach its Victory Loan objective, Loan officials revealed Tuesday night.

The two canvassers, L. E. Kelley and John L. Doherty, proudly announced that the village's 750 inhabitants had topped their $25,000 objective late Tuesday afternoon.

Both men were extremely gratified at the result and with four days of the loan still to go, they are gunning for the $30,000 honorary mark.

In the first loan, the village not only topped its nominal mark, but also attained its honorary objective.

"With no big-paying industries situated here, I think that Hastings has set a remarkable record," Reeve Kelley smilingly told The Examiner.

On the 13th day of the drive, the total for the county was 64.17% while the cumulative percentage required for that period is 72.22%. Percentages for the district through the county up to the 13th day are as follows: Cobourg, 69.16; Hamilton Township, 75.87; South Monaghan Township, 32.60; Haldimand Township, 66.16; Alnwick Township, 69.50; Percy Township, 63.94; Cramahe Township, 46.60; Hastings, 68.40; Colborne, 71.38; Brighton Township, 38.18; Brighton, 83.27; Murray Township, 47.91; Campbellford ,53.12, and Seymour Township, 74.30.

Hastings Vital Statistics

Only one death, one birth, and one marriage were recorded at the village clerk's office during February. During the same period in 1941: two births, one death, and two marriages were registered.

How Church Began Is Subject Of Speaker

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 4 (ENS)—Addressing St. John's Young Peoples' Union at their weekly gathering on Monday, M. Shouldice of the High School teaching staff gave an interesting talk on "How the Church Began." His remarks formed the main feature of a program arranged by the fellowship conveners, Mrs. Cecil Stephens and Miss Jessie Gratton, who were responsible for this portion of the meeting. The speaker treated his subject on the basis of the scripture story as found in Matthew XVI, and he contrasted Peter's answer to the question to his subsequent denial of Christ when He appeared before the High Priest. An interesting analogy was drawn between Peter's fall from grace and the present world crisis which Mr. Shouldice felt might well have the same result.

Following the call to worship, which opened the meeting, Mrs. H. Twigg gave a humorous reading that was encored, then Misses Isobel Irwin and Muriel Barnum offered a vocal duet accompanied by Miss Helen Young. Miss Jessie Gratton gave the Scripture reading and Mrs. Stephens followed with prayer. During the business period, which was in charge of the president, Miss Pearl McComb, members elected Miss Ona Mitchell as their new press secretary. It was announced that Dr. O. C. Watson would be the guest speaker at their meeting next week. A period of games conducted by Leo Coveney brought the evening to a close.

Speaker Program Planned By Men

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 4.—(ENS). — The fast growing and active Men's Club of Christ Church is planning a busy program of events for the current month, it was revealed in a report following their regular meeting held on Monday evening. President Sidney Hopping presided and it was he who announced to members the policy of having a speaker for each meeting. In lieu of this the committee had already contacted two well-known men who were slated to address subsequent meetings. Jack Wilimink, a local bird fancier, who has many rare specimens in his aviary and is known to dealers from coast to coast will tell the members something of his hobby on March 9, while two week later they will have as their guest J. Sokota of the Bata Shoe Company. Remainder of the business period was given over to ironing out details of the social planned for March 16. At the close a social hour was enjoyed with members indulging in various games.

COBOURG, March 4—(ENS).—Organized by Mrs. E. MacNachtan of Cobourg and sponsored by the Red Cross, a series of lectures commencing on Thursday evening of next week will be held at the Ontario Hospital here. The lectures are being held in connection with the Emergencies in War Plan, and will be of eight weeks' duration. At a meeting held last night to organize, 75 enrolled for the classes and 25 more are expected. An invitation is extended to all interested to enrol in time for the opening lecture. The lectures are to be given by the doctors of the town and Dr. W. E. Wilkins will give the opening one. The nurses of the town will give the demonstrations. The subjects covered will be mainly in regard to injuries sustained in war time, and will include treatments for burns, haemorrhages, wounds and fractures and there will also be a lecture on A.R.P. work.

Hello Girls Assist

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 4 (ENS)—Girls in the local Bell Telephone office have joined forces to assist the Campbellford and Seymour branch of the Red Cross Society. According to the chief operator, Mrs. J. Heffernan, they are making an afghan, which it is expected will be completed and turned over to the branch this month. Each of the six girls is making a portion of the afghan in her "off" hours and it is expected the Red Cross may use it in connection with a draw at some later date. To raise money for the numerous balls of yarn they put an Afghan Fund box in the office and contributed all of the money for it from their own pay.

Popular Seymour Couple Observe 50th Wedding Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 4 (ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. James G. Shillinglaw of Seymour township, four miles east of here, were feted by friends and neighbors on Monday of this week. The reason for the tribute was that on Sunday the Shillinglaw's had celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary, and being one of the best known and most highly esteemed couples in the district, people came from over a wide area to do them honor. Both Mr. and Mrs. Shillinglaw have spent their entire lives in this district. They were born on the 6th Concession, he, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Shillinglaw, and she, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Little. To say when they first met would be difficult for they had known one an other practically all their lives, however it was not until Jim Shillinglaw was well on the way to success as a cheesemaker that they were married, and then the wedding was not a huge affair, but by the choice of both it took place quietly at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Marcus Scott of Burnbrae church officiated and he was assisted by Rev. John Moore, who was then pastor of the Presbyterian church in Campbellford. Of the nineteen who attended the wedding ceremony only six are still living and four of these, counting the bride and groom, were present for the Golden Anniversary celebration. Janet Donald, now Mrs. R. N. Whitton of Brighton was the bridesmaid, and W. W. Little, of Seymour, who assisted the groom, were both on hand to extend their congratulations, as was Mrs. Shillinglaw's brother Frank of Campbellford. The other living guest at the wedding was Gordon Little, another brother of the bride, who now lives at Lloydminister, Sask.

Mr. Shillinglaw, who had been making cheese for nearly six years prior to his marriage, retired from his life's work in 1930 after spending 44 years at his trade and earning for himself a reputation as one of the best cheesemakers in the province of Ontario. He has nearly a dozen certificates of merit for producing high scoring cheese and cheese which took awards at various exhibitions, but his most prized certificate is one which he earned in 1929 while making at Kimberley factory. This honor certificate was presented to him by the Ontario Department of Agriculture in recog-

STRESSES VALUE OF PROTECTION

The lengthening of daylight at this time of the year is quite noticeable. That means extra hours of Sunlight and, of course, with some quite summerlike days, the effect may be that we may possibly become careless about the necessity of retaining resistance and continuing protection precautions. This is not a new condition, but the result, in many instances, is that with changeable climatic conditions, and being possibly rundown after the stress of Winter months, we are quite unprepared for cold—windy—damp or snowy days, and so we catch cold, get chapped skin, and oh, feel generally uncomfortable. That is a mistake which could be corrected in your Tamblyn Drug Store, for there you will find ample supplies of all your requisites, and so we invite you to pay us a visit—look around to see the numerous items of merchandise we have, and if convenient procure your necessities at such economical prices as prevail in this list of

There Is No Maximum

When the present Victory Loan was initiated a minimum sum of $600,000,000 was fixed for it, and apparently there has been some misunderstanding because of this. The six hundred millions do not represent the "objective" of the Victory Loan; the "objective" is as much money as can be raised. Certainly the loan should reach the sum of $837,000,000, as it did in the first loan, and it would be a very good thing if it approached the billion mark.

A billion dollars is a huge sum in peace time, but in war it does not go far. The public generally has but a dim conception of the astronomical figures in which war costs must be estimated, and even when these figures are made public they have little to say to most of us. There is a strong human tendency to dismiss sums which involve an embarrassing number of noughts as being of no concern to ourselves. But the cost of the war is of the most intimate and personal concern to us, for we are the people who must foot the bill.

In Peterborough the minimum subscription has still to be made. No one doubts that it will be made, but that, in itself, is not enough. It cannot be too strongly emphasized that in the present Victory Loan there is no such thing as a maximum subscription; there is no fixed "objective"; let's make it a billion!

A Great Journalist Retires

J. L. Garvin, editor of the London "Observer," and one of the greatest figures in modern journalism, has retired. It is supposed that his withdrawal from the position which he occupied with distinction and often with greatness for the better part of forty years was brought about by the political upheaval of the past two years in Britain. He cannot be called an "appeaser" for his last desire—as should be the case with any good journalist — was to appease anybody, but he was a strong supporter of Baldwin and later of Neville Chamberlain. Perhaps his feeling for the latter was a continuation of his great admiration for Joseph Chamberlain whom he supported and defended tooth and nail during the whole of his career.

Garvin was a champion of Imperialism, but in his mind that doctrine assumed some peculiar guises. The tenet of the Balance of Power in Europe found little favor with him, and he saw no threat to Britain in Hitler's desire to expand toward the East. He admired Mussolini, and saw no threat to the freedom and dignity of mankind in the way which that dictator sought to impose his will upon Abyssinia. Garvin seemed, in his later years, to be curiously blind to the true nature of dictatorship.

It was not always so. He was one of the first to spy the threat to world peace implicit in the ambitions of Wilhelm I. of Germany. Five years and more before the first Great War he fulminated against the German menace and roared for a larger British Navy. He was laughed at for his pains, but when the war came at last Garvin was vindicated, and his editorials during the period of that conflict contained a large proportion of such good sense as was available to the Allies at that time.

But age sometimes robs a man of his desire for battle, and influences his judgment accordingly. Clare Boothe, the American journalist, gave a saddening picture of the aged Garvin before the war, painfully apprehensive of the coming conflict and agonizingly aware of his country's unpreparedness. Like Petain, the passion for the fight had left him, though the necessity for fighting had not left the world.

His retirement will leave a gap in the ranks of British journalists which will not soon be filled, and those who opposed him most bitterly will not be the least sorry to see him go. He was a doughty fighter, and if he flagged at the last he was not the first, and will not be the last, to do so.

Brilliant Military Action

That daring raid made last week by British parachutists and sea-borne infantry, supported by airplanes and naval units, on a German radio detector post—a raid which led to the destruction of the post—as one of the most speedy and brilliantly co-ordinated incursions made by the British on the northern French coast since the war began. The story of it, when that story comes to be written in full, will read almost like fiction. Some four or five Canadians are said to have participated in the attack.

The occurrence is particularly interesting because of the precision with which everything was timed for commencement and for execution. For months squadrons of airships have been going over the Channel and raining their vicious missiles on strategic points but in this instance Royal Air Force fighters, navy assistance, raiding parties, their faces blackened, even their teeth, to better serve their night movements all joined with devastating results. Then, too, the parachute method of fighting was employed. It has been known for some time that many men have been trained in England for this purpose and a demonstration of their quick action and successful escape from the enemy was given in this spectacular adventure. Now the detector radio station, used to inform the enemy at all times of any British planes coming over the Channel, is no more. It was a great stroke on the part of the foray groups!

Longevity In Toronto

The health officer of the city of Toronto has recently published his report for 1941, and in it he presents statistics which show that people are living longer and dying older in that mighty city. We have all been aware of the gradual lengthening in man's expectation of life, but it is interesting to have the matter set before us in a concrete form and to know that only ninety miles away, men and women are catching up on the mighty record of Methusaleh. Torontonians, instead of dropping off early in life, are now saving themselves for the more dignified ailments of hoary eld. But they still die.

As the Toronto Star wistfully puts it, "After all, there are limits to what medical skill can do. If a man's life is saved in his earlier years, it is certain to be lost when age comes upon him. The ultimate event can be postponed, but not avoided."

These are solemn reflections. But, somehow or other, we have a sneaking feeling of relief. We do not, frankly, feel ourselves worthy of an earthly immortality. We are whole-heartedly in favor of being saved in our earlier years, but we feel that a time will come when death is the only seemly thing left for us. Life is sweet but one can get too much of a good thing.

Just before the war the brilliant English novelist, Aldous Huxley, published a story called "After Many a Summer," which was a fable of man's struggle for an earthy immortality. In it a British nobleman, who yearned to live forever, discovered that the necessary preservative element was to be found in the entrails of carp; and by a judicious diet of this repulsive food he managed to spin out his life for well over two hundred years. Unfortunately, as he lived, he reversed the process of evolution, and was at last found, scarcely distinguishable from a monkey. There is a grim lesson in this, and Torontonians should take warning before it is too late. A hundred years would make a very comfortable life span, but after that a line should be drawn. Let us not overdo this business of living.

In Defence Of The Young

An opinion that should carry unusual weight has been expressed about the young people of the present day by John S. He is known as a leader in the field of scholarship, athletics and a healthy school spirit.

"The lads and the lasses of today are definitely better than those of forty years ago," he stated when asked as to whether he considered they were as good or worse. "I am a defender of the present generation of young people. They have been much maligned by the older generations who shake their heads and say youths of today are not what they used to be. Indeed they are not. They are freer, healthier and more wholesome than were their mothers and fathers of past times. I doubt if any generation has been finer than that of today and this fact is the more remarkable when one remembers what the young have come through. Conceived and born in a war period, reared on jazz, nurtured in unrest and matured in a veritable maelstrom of changing values, yet they have kept themselves, with few exceptions, clean and wholesome."

These remarks are particularly significant coming from a man who is beloved by his students—an army of about 1,500 of them every year, and who has been rarely successful in his charge. More than that, he declares he has never used a strap in all his forty odd years of teaching, though sorely tempted to do so more than once. Still, he feels the privilege of using it should never be taken away from a teacher, but his experience has taught him that there is always some spark of manhood in a boy, and of womanhood in a girl, which will respond to a sympathetic and helping hand.

The disposition on the part of older people to constantly deplore what they regard as the idle, useless, ill-mannered and disrespectful young people of the present time is thus rebuked by Principal Wren because through a firm but kind discipline and the promotion of cultural interests among the students who have been in his charge, he has not only recognized the good qualities in youth but helped them to blossom. Like breeds like, psychologically as well as physically.

A "bear" never gets along with anybody very well and certainly not with vigorous lively young folks who are full of animal spirits and pranks. But any person who has had wide experience with the young in activities such as the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A., in club groups and so on, will agree with Mr. Wren because the best rather than the worst is brought out of the boy or girl by those who have a willingness to understand and encourage innate values.

Many cases have been known of tough gangs of boys in some of the large cities that were beyond the ability of police and citizens to do anything with them and yet the right personality from the Y.M.C.A. or some other similar organization has gone in the neighborhood and converted the entire number into splendid types of lads. This has been done by taking an interest in them, giving them an outlet in the form of sports and games and occupying their minds on healthy, constructive subjects.

The view of a man like Principal Wren who has had almost countless thousands under his eye in more than four decades, should be pondered well by middle-aged men and women who seldom have anything but critical, fault-finding words for the young about them.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Going back to the horse and buggy is the trend these days. Well, with summer coming on lovers are not likely to be brought up in court for violating the speed limit, anyway.

Canada is to train skiing commandos in the snows of Manitoba. The men will fend for themselves, throughout their training period, it is stated, will carry streamlined rations and travel as much as 40 miles on skis with full equipment. This is another example of how the males of this country are fitting into every phase of warfare in all the theatres of combat. Such a type of service as that of skiing commandos would scarcely have been even dreamed about a few years ago.

Franco could very easily make the statement sometime ago that a million Spaniards would fight for Germany should the latter country be in danger of defeat by Russia. But the Russians go on week after week defeating the brutal Huns and Franco hasn't yet brought forth his million men. It takes money to raise and equip armies and Spain not so long ago, was sent large food supplies by Britain to feed the hungry, war-impoverished population now under Franco's domination

FROM HOSPITAL WINDOW

Where are you going, you plane up on high,
Winging your path through the cloudless sky?
Off in the distance, your lights green and red
Slowly draw near me lying in bed.

Now on my ears falls your engines' faint thrum;
Passing the stars, towards my window you come.
At your controls, I fancy is bent
A keen-eyed young lad, alert and intent,
Ready to sacrifice all for the cause
Of freedom, of right, of just Christian laws.
Yet as he sails 'neath the heavenly dome
Is he not thinking of loved ones at home?

Your motors grow loud; my lips move in prayer—
May the Good Father keep safe in His care
This pilot and all who traverse the sky;
Strengthen their brave hearts as onward they fly;
Grant them the courage their duty demands;
Bless those tonight over enemy lands;
Hasten the day when this cruel war will cease,
And nations unite in goodwill and peace.

Farewell, aeroplane you fade in the night,
Now all is still as you vanish from sight.

Opinions, Notes Taken From The British Press

A DECISION that army camp cats may be placed "on the strength," with a small allowance for rations, may call attention to a little-known class of public servants. Nearly all the government offices have their officially recognized cats, which are allowed board and lodging — usually threepence a day—in return for duties in the suppression of rats and mice. Large staffs of cats also are employed in naval and military stores and for the protection of mailbags at the G.P.O. depots.

We do not seem, however, to put the animals through any such special course of training for their job as the French used to do. French naval authorities used to select likely pussies and send them for a few voyages on a warship. If they proved their strength and skill against the large and ferocious rats which haunt the holds of all large ships, they were promoted to shore billets in stores and dockyards, with quite a generous scale of allowances for their keep.

Britain already has apes "on the strength." The Gibraltar monkeys, the only wild apes left in Europe, have been so honored by the war office for many years. A local tradition tells that during a war of the eighteenth century the Gibraltar monkeys one night ran chattering into the barracks, and soldiers going out to investigate were in time to drive back a surprise attack on a lonely part of the Rock. For this service as outposts the monkeys were put "on the strength," and every day since then have been officially fed.

There is a legend that when there are no monkeys left on the Rock there will be no British there. Fortunately for those who are superstitiously inclined, the monkeys, though few, are not yet extinct. In a letter received a few months ago from Gibraltar it was stated: "The monkeys are still going strong. When the weather was cold I saw some of them down in the town, probably on the look-out for extra food. Up the Rock they are always regularly fed, and they are a nuisance when they come down."—From the Manchester Guardian.

ANY HISTORY will tell us that when we were defeated by the American colonists (ancestors of the present U.S.A. troops in Britain) "Europe concluded that Britain was finished forever as a Power."

We had naval humiliations — and worse, mutinies — and nevertheless won in the end. How? Not by any magic formula. Not always by extraordinary skill and staff work. We won finally by the ruthless but prosaic recipe: Hang on!

We ought to have been starved into surrender by the U-boats in 1917, with only a week or two's food supplies in the country (and not very good food, some of us can remember). A faint-hearted Government or people would in fact, have sought a bad compromise "peace" then. A nervy, or a disunited and hypercritical people would have given in. Defeat, within one year of our crushing victory!

It is the gift of never knowing when we are beaten (on paper) that repeatedly saves us. In past wars we have just delivered the knock-out blow to better-prepared enemies when we have been driven back to the ropes.

Obstinacy (to revise the proverb) is the best policy. It is the only policy. To outlast the foe is to beat him utterly. The true slogan, "We can take it," has only to be transferred from the civilians of London and Coventry to the Comonwealth at large and to war news as a whole—and Tojo and Hitler are beaten. Only the date is undetermined.

It is not a very showy formula, this will-of-iron formula. Let us add to it, by all means, all the efficiency, promptitude and war material we can; but the crucial, winning factor is the will-power.

I suggest that if Drake, Cromwell, John Churchill, Nelson, Wellington, Kitchener or Roberts were to return for a week's survey of the war they would find our situation quite promising, and, despite short-date difficulties, would envy us our large advantages.

Wellisgton would add that nearly every war is "a damned near thing," and is won by holding the field a quarter of an hour longer than the enemy.—From the London Telegraph.

YORKSHIRE, of all places, is accused of talking too much. In this county which prides itself on its traditional caution, its famous ability to see and hear everything and give nothing away, people blurted out important military secrets during a recent invasion exercise. Men playing the part of enemy agents mixed with the people in public house bars and places where they talk, or posed as salesmen and adroitly questioned housewives at their doors. Their success is a sharp warning to us to put a closer guard on our tongues.—From the Yorkshire Post.

THERE are several anomalies in wartime London. You can buy copies of the evening newspapers labelled Late Night Final at midday—because the publishing department wants to guarantee delivery in spite of the blackout. If friends overseas write and ask you what kind of hampers of food you would like you must not answer.

Again each of the 83,000 prisoners of war in Germany receives a 10 lb. parcel of food each week, most of which contain a complete pound of butter. In England, as you know, we have recently had our rations cut to two ounces of butter a week. One of these prisoners of war wrote to the Red Cross to say that he was "fat, fit and happy, and without a care in the world." It is certainly a cock-eyed war, isn't it?—From London Calling.

• Philippines Still a Threat

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, March 4 —(AP)— Even before the Battle of Java comes to its crisis, there is evidence that Tokyo is increasingly concerned over possible vulnerability of Japanese communication lines through the South China Sea.

Given American naval and air power to strike now at either of two bottlenecks there a crippling blow to the whole Nipponese conquest scheme could be driven home. Either the northern entrance to the South China Sea above Luzon or the southern approach from the Pacific south of Mindanao exposes the whole Japanese effort against Burma, Java or Australia to a flank attack by sea.

Nor can Tokyo be unaware of intensifying pressure in the United States as well as from Dutch authorities for some bold and aggressive American move in the Pacific theatre to relieve pressure in the south.

The time for that still may be distant. There is little in either the letter from General Marshall, chief of staff, to Senator (Warren) Austin, or the simultaneous statement by Admiral King, United States fleet commander, to suggest early American major offensive action.

PLANNED FOR OFFENSIVE

Both stressed the fact that it is for offensive, not defensive, efforts that American sea, land and air power is being regeared. The sweeping army reorganization ordered by President Roosevelt has the same significance.

There can be little doubt in Tokyo that when the ships and planes are available the China Sea gateways from the Pacific offer the most alluring chances of quick breaching of the Japanese conquest front.

North of Luzon, and now probably supplemented by Nipponese air and submarine bases along the north and northeast coasts of that island, a formidable ring of Japanese sea outposts reaching deep into the Pacific eastward and southward guards that China Sea approach. Similar protection for the southern approach, south of Mindanao via the Celebes Sea and the Sulu Archipelago, is not yet as great.

General MacArthur reports fresh Japanese incursions on Mindanao. The Japs already are planted at Davao on the southeastern extremity of that island. Zamboanga, at the southwest tip, has now been seized. At least two other Philippine ports have been bombarded from the sea, suggesting further landings, but neither was named. Presumably they are in the southern area and mean establishment of other new enemy bases to guard the southern flank of Japanese China Sea-Java Sea communication lines.

WAR-OF-NERVES EFFORT

That is probably the main Japanese objective in expanding the Philippine invasion. It also tends to add, however, to Australian invasion fears, coupled as it was with a far-spreading air attack on northern airfields in Australia. That may be a war-of-nerves effort, primarily designed to hamper Australian help for Java as well as the movement of American reinforcements to the Dutch Indies citadel via Australian waters.

That the new move in the Philippines is of great strategic importance in Japanese eyes is certain. MacArthur has been by-passed to achieve it. Air power and naval and merchant shipping which could be ill spared from the effort to capture Java were assigned to the Mindanao operations. It is a recognition of the potential danger to the whole Japanese conquest concept which the Pacific gateways to the China Sea must always represent.

• India Around the Corner

IN the first year of the war the notion that India might become a battlefield, perhaps a decisive battlefield, would have struck most Englishmen as fantastic. This writer remembers listening to a discussion of the Indian situation in London back in those days in 1940 when we were still thinking of the conflict in terms of Europe. Looking back from here, the mood and outlook of that evening seem strangely remote. The people talking around the fire were troubled Liberals wishing ardently that some safe solution of the complex problem of India could be worked out during the war instead of after it. They were wise and unusually far-sighted, fully aware of the almost insuperable difficulties in the way of settlement, and also of the vital importance of India's whole-hearted co-operation in the struggle.

But it never occurred to them that the war would spread to India. They spoke of the status of India as it would affect the recruitment of troops to fight elsewhere—in Egypt or on the European Continent; of the development of Indian war industries and reserves of supplies as these would figure in the contest of blockades. They were loking at a certain pattern, seeing this war as a repetition of the last, and India and the dominions in the same relation to the fighting as they were twenty-five years ago.

India and Australia took more or less the same view of themselves. The debates on conscription in Canberra and on self-government in Bombay and Calcutta centred on the question of how much help to give or withhold in the defence of Britain. That their own territory should be in danger of physical attack was merely a rhetorical contingency.

The unforeseen has come to pass. Only the Netherlands barrier now stands between Australia and Japanese invasion. The burning of the oil fields at Palembang shows that the Dutch have virtually given up the weakly defended island of Sumatra. Otherwise they would never destroy the main source of the fuel they need to feed the ships and planes and tanks that must defend Java. In every theatre, from the shores of America to the coasts of the Black Sea, we see an intensified fight for oil, the life blood of modern war, and the loss of the Sumatra wells deprives the United Nations as well as the enemy of a handy supply line.

The other vital element in modern war is time—and the Japanese are not wasting any of that golden essence, either. Before the smoke of Singapore clears away, the fight for Java begins. The thrust into Burma deepens. In terms of the distance covered, if not of resistance overcome, the blitz in Asia moved faster than the Nazi drive in Europe. Today the Japanese are not only far advanced on the road to Australia. They are very near the gates of India. The fantasy of 1940 is the overshadowing reality of 1942.

If Singapore had not fallen, Japan's war aims would have been far less grandiose than those proclaimed by General Tojo to the Diet on Monday. The Premier announced Japan's intention to "dispose of" Australia and New Zealand. He declared that he expected India "to restore for herself the status of India for the Indians." When the raid began, it is very doubtful if the invaders dreamed of going beyond the Netherlands Indies. But the appetite for aggression grows by what it feeds upon, and their goals today are unquestionably larger than they were even a month ago. — New York Times.

Germans Bound On Destroying Poles As Nation

OTTAWA, March 4—(CP). — A German concentration camp in western Poland where the deliberate policy of extermination of Poles is forwarded with torture and refined cruelty was described at a Press Conference yesterday by Edward Raczynski, foreign minister of the Polish government.

"The camp has accommodation for 15,000 and it is refilled very often," said Mr. Raczynski. "The guards are of the lowest criminal class.

"For a long time our information was that none left the camp alive. Recently we heard that a few had been released, but they died soon afterwards."

Mr. Raczynski told of the hunger sweeping his homeland, and the typhus which is taking thousands of lives.

"In spite of it all there is a spirit of optimism among our people," he said.

"One thing they have, and that is news. The Germans have been unable to hunt down our short-wave radios. The secret press flourishes—indeed we have a report of one secret newspaper which publishes morning and afternoon editions."

The concentration camp he termed "the most barbaric of all" is located at Oswiecim in Poland, and the Germans destroyed villages around it so that none would come near it.

In it every method is employed "to break and kill." Prisoners in an outer enclosure are harried by the screams of those behind the wall of an inner enclosure who are being tortured.

"It is a place of terror," said Mr. Raczynski.

Nazis the Real Foe

He said Polish people who had experienced Russian occupation earlier in the war might not love the Russians, but they were fully aware that the enemy was Germany. When the time came, and it might come when the Russian armies approached the Polish border, the Polish Government in London could get instructions to the Polish people for a sudden rising which might still be possible in spite of what had been endured.

"Our news from Europe is tragic, there is no comfort in it," said Mr. Raczynski. "The German objective is not to suppress but to destroy all the educated classes of Poland and leave those remaining to be a nation of slaves, the tools of their German overlords."

"That army will have Polish command, the Polish flag and it will be used as a distinctly Polish force," he said.

Word had been received of typhus in South Russia where many Polish refugees were located.

"A letter written by a German doctor in the Baltic area of Poland came into our hands, and he spoke of dreading the work which lay ahead of him," Mr. Raczynski said.

"He said instructions had been received that for the protection of German soldiers, native Poles who suffered from this disease and who were not required by the Germans, were to be destroyed.

"Many thousands would have to be thus destroyed," he said.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Unless the weatherman comes along soon with a decided dip in the temperature there is a strong possibility that the Friday night game with Collingwood, scheduled for Brock St. Rink Friday night will have to be transferred to the Oshawa Arena in order that the teams may be assured of good ice for the all-important fixture. The management of the Oshawa Arena and of the Oshawa Generals hockey club have very helpfully made the switch possible by shifting the Brantford Lions-Oshawa Generals junior A playoff game billed for Oshawa on Friday night over to the next night in order to accommodate the senior teams. If the change to Oshawa has to be made the Petes will be sure of plenty of backing for hundreds of local fans would undoubtedly make the trip to the Motor City for the battle with Collingwood. There was a great following there last week for the group final and this second round fixture would undoubtedly attract still more.

* * * * * *

The Petes left by bus early this afternoon for the north to meet the Collingwood Shipbuilders in the first of a best-of-three game series in the second round of the O.H.A. senior B competition. The team finished its training for this crucial battle Monday, with a layoff ordered last night and the squad is in the best of shape for the hard game the players expect tonight. They came through the group playoffs with a minimum of injuries and the whole outfit is fit and ready. Coach Jim Ellis will depend tonight on the same twelve players who came through so smartly in the final game for the group title. Harding will play goal, Crowe and Jopling and Godfrey and Burton will be the defence pairs, with Kingdon, Tompkins and Heal on one line and Bennett, Nichols, Blewett and Reilly the other forward combination. The Petes are a good road team. They always play well in the face of a hostile crowd and they are confident that they will give Collingwood a real tussle tonight.

The reference in last night's column to brother acts in hockey brought out the remark from a fan that while there have been numerous pairs of brothers in local hockey history there have only been a few cases where the hockey skill of a father has been passed on to a son. That is certainly so in Peterborough. About the only member of the old crowd of Peterborough hockey players who has been succeeded by a son who was also an adept at the game is Jerry Coughlin, old-time star of Peterborough junior and senior teams and a player whose name was as well known around the head of the Great Lakes when he played for Calumet, Michigan Soo and other northern teams as it was in Peterborough. Jerry's son Don, this year with the Toronto Telegram team, was a member of the champion Peterborough intermediate A team of two seasons ago. The only other father-son act is contributed by the Blewetts. Braden Blewett was for years one of the stalwarts of the Lakefield hockey club, a tireless hard-working and good-scoring wing man. He is now represented in hockey by his son Joe, fast-skating left-winger of the Peterborough team.

Good Scoring Anyway

That was quite a story that was carried over the C.P. wires yesterday of the explanation for the high scores that have been made this season in the Kent County Basketball League where the teams all season have been piling up big totals where individual scores of 30 points to the sharp-shooters have been a feature. The climax, was reached Monday night when Mac Morrison, 17-year-old school boy bagged 102 points in a game won by his team by 131-51. All these big scores were made on the court at Blenheim and a little sleuthing produced the explanation that the baskets in use there were 2½ inches wider than the regulation diameter. However Peterborough high scorers declare that the fact that the loops were a little bigger than usual hardly explains a score of 101 by one individual. It is difficult to imagine a game in which one player would get that many shots and to sink half a hundred field goals would be good shooting if the lad were tossing them into a barrel instead of a hoop.

* * * * * *

Winners of the Collingwood-Peterborough senior B series will meet Merritton in the finals for the championship. No, dear reader, that is not a typographical error. The gang from the Niagara Peninsula who were beaten in Windsor 11 to 6 last Friday night and looked to be all washed up and out of the running came back last night with a scoring splurge that saw them ground the Spitfires 11 goals to 4 and take the round by 17 to 15. It was one of the biggest upsets of the year. Apparently those two clubs are as great home ice performers as the Oshawa Generals and the Brantford Lions. Anyway the win of the Merritton team will cut some mileage off the travelling in the final series.

Leafs Lose Chance

Toronto Maple Leafs lost a good chance last night to gain at the expense of the New York Rangers but the shattered Boston Bruins had enough punch left to hurl back Hap Day's men 5 to 3 in a hard-fought game at Boston and as a result Leafs are now three points back of Rangers who picked up half a game by drawing with the Amerks. Leafs took an early lead at Boston, Nick Metz getting the only goal of the first period but the Bruins came to life in the middle stanza to run in three counters in a five minute period and that was the ball game. Eddie Wiseman led the Boston attack with two goals. At New York the Amerks battling desperately to get out of the cellar threatened to run the Rangers off the map scoring the first four tallies. Then the Patrickmen struck back with four on their own account and tied up the issue. The one point garnered by Brooklyn left them tied with Canadiens.

This is surely the year for rookies in the National Hockey League. Newcomers to the cash and carry circuit figured largely in the doings in both games played last night. At New York first year players scored four out of the eight goals hung up during the evening. Ken Mosdell and Harry Watson, both rookies scored two of the Amerks goals while Grant Warwick and Hub Macey, two more freshmen gathered in two for the Rangers. At Boston the newcomers were also strongly in the lineup. Lloyd Gronsdal, one of the three amateurs called in by Art Ross to replace the Kraut line scored Boston's first goal and Gordie Bruce, fresh up from the minors garnered another. Ernie Dickens, one of the Leafs' rookies tallied one of the three Toronto markers to make it a real night for the new hands in hockey.

Film Star Weds

Ensign Bert de Wayne Morris, Jr., 28, known to movie fans as Wayne Morris, and brunette Patricia Ann O'Rourke were married in Los Angeles. The ceremony was naval in character, Lieut. Otto D. F. Herrmann, chaplain of the Long Beach naval air base, joining the couple in marriage.

Vics, Bearcats Loom East's Finalists

HALIFAX, March 4.—(CP)—The giant-killers are at it in down-east hockey, and what they're doing to the favorites is a plain case of murder.

A couple of weeks ago, no one but a rabid home-towner would have given North Sydney Victorias and Truro Bearcats any more than an outside chance to break into the Maritime senior finals. Everything pointed to Glace Bay Miners and Halifax Navy.

Yet today, a series of unexpected doings has landed Vics and Bearcats right on the verge of the finals, with a good likelihood they'll fight it out for the right to represent the three provinces in the Allan Cup playdowns.

The unhappy Miners are still wondering what hit them in the C.B. H.L. playoff. All season they romped through the opposition, and nothing was expected to stop them as they rambled on the tri-province crown.

But a revitalized North Sydney team—bolstered by a couple of experts from the eliminated Sydney Millionaires—began to toss about the astonished Miners in a very disrespectful manner. At present the best-in-seven semi-final series stands 3-2 for Vics, who don't seem to realize they should have bowed out.

Miners rallied last night for a 6-1 win, but they still have to take two straight to get past the stubborn northsiders.

The form chart took as bad a kicking around in the mainland playdowns. Bearcats, runners-up in the A.P.C. League schedule, squeezed past New Glasgow Volcanoes, schedule winners, on the strength of a decision awarded them a tied playoff game after it has been called because of ice conditions.

They weren't given any particular chance against Navy, which hadn't lost a game up their meeting, but they managed to sink the Tars. Last night, they defeated Amherst St. Pats 6-4 in the first game of a home-and-home Maritime semi-final. St. Pats eliminated two New Brunswick contenders.

Truro's snatching of the A.P.C. League title has produced a warm feud between that hub town and New Glasgow. Volcanoes insist the decision of W. A. Dodge, league president, awarding the deciding game to Bearcats had no precedent, and there is talk of their withdrawing from the Maritime Amateur Hockey Associatino.

Junior hockey clubs in the Maritimes are also on the playoff trail, but without the fireworks. Charlottetown Royals, last year's Maritime champions, are preparing to play off this week with Moncton for the New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island title. Sydney Bruins and Halifax Canadiens are meeting to settle the question of the other finalist.

Canada's Hockey Swept Up and Up In Its 77 Years

By SCOTT YOUNG
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, March 2 (CP)—About 77 years ago, on the Dartmouth Lakes in Nova Scotia, ice-hockey was born. There were no rules, no set number of men to a team. Schoolboys played it, and Indians. The sticks had shorter handles, rounded heels, blunt blades and were called hurleys. A ball was used, not a puck. The goalposts were rocks set on the ice.

Today hockey is Canada's National game, with 26,000 registered players and undetermined number—probably about 50,000—unregistered. From Dartmouth it spread to Kingston, Ont., and Montreal, its main exponents in Kingston being a garrison of British troops which had been moved there after service in Nova Scotia. The game followed Canadians to many parts of the world; first to the United States, then to Britain, the mainland of Europe, and Australia.

Crowds mounting into millions watch hockey in North America every year, in professional, senior, junior and minor leagues across the continent. In North American professional team sports, it ranks second in importance only to baseball. Among Canadian professional sports, it is second to none. Hockey is going only one way: up.

Hockey on the River

In 1879 a few students at McGill University drew up crude rules and played a type of hockey on the St. Lawrence river. The next year the game progressed into a loose inter-class league, and within the next couple of years other Montreal clubs were formed. McGill won the first world's first ice-hockey carnival in the winter of 1882-83. In 1888 a Royal Military college team was formed at Kingston and played what has been termed erroniously the first game of organized hockey.

The sport's first controlling body was the Ontario Hockey Association, organized in 1890. As the game became popular in Quebec, the Maritimes and later Western Canada, other provincial associations were formed.

But provincial organizations became unwieldy without a central authority, a position not quite filled by the Amateur Athletic Union. So in 1914 a group of hockey enthusiasts from many parts of Canada met in Ottawa to form the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, with Dr. W. F. Taylor of Winnipeg the first president. The guiding hand of the A.A.U. rested heavily on the game until about 10 years ago, when hockey began to shake loose. Soon the break was complete, and the C.A.H.A. has become one of the most enlightened sports organizations in the world. The A.A.U. is little but a shadow in the background.

Col. Byron A. Weston of Halifax remembers playing hockey's primitive version on the Dartmouth lakes in 1865-66-67. He recalls only one rule, and it was a flexible one and more a matter of conscience: The players were not supposed to raise the hurleys over their shoulders and slash at the opposition. That rule has been maintained in the modern game, although it still is more a matter of conscience—both of the players and referees—than of actual fact.

Skates in Col. Weston's time were fitted to wooden supports and screwed or strapped to the skaters' shoes. Capt. J. T. Sutherland of Hamilton, Ont., also was one of the earliest hockey players. He recalls hockey being played in and around Halifax before Confederation.

Amateur Control

The super organization of the C.A.H.A. controls Canadian finals in senior and junior divisions of the amateur game, but one of the most historic of hockey competitions stems from one of the childhood stamping grounds of the sport, Kingston. The R.M.C. began in 1923 an annual hockey game with West Point Military Academy. Until it was interrupted by the war (it will be resumed this year) R.M.C. won all but two games. In 1935 the game ended in a 4-4 tie, and in 1939 West Point won 3-2. There never has been a penalty in this series.

More important from a spectator standpoint are the annual Dominion competitions. Ottawa Cliffsides won the first playing of the Canadian senior championship in 1908. Eleven years later University of Toronto Schools took the first Canadian junior crown. The Stanley Cup, originally a challenge competition although the National Hockey League has eliminated the challenge aspect was won first in 1894 by the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association.

A. M. Crosby of the Toronto Victoria club was the head of the first hockey organization in the world, the Ontario Hockey Association. He was elected November 27, 1890, when the O.H.A. was formed. His vice-presidents were H. A. Ward of Port Hope and John A. Barron of Stratford.

Pro Co-operation

Most healthy development in the sport since it spread from Dartmouth to Montreal and Kingston has been the increasing collaboration between amateur and professional organizations. The recently-approved subsidy paid by the National and American hockey leagues for amateur players turning professional takes much of the financial burden from men who have been responsible for the development of the game since it was placed first under organization in 1890.

Flyers Defeat Volants By 5-2

OTTAWA, March 4 (CP)—Royal Canadian Air Force Flyers of the Ottawa City Senior Hockey League advanced another step on the road to the Allan Cup tonight by defeating Hull Volants 5-2, to take the second straight game of the best-of-seven series for the league championship.

The former Boston Kraut line of Milt Schmidt, Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer, came through with only one of the goals, Bauer making a first-period tally, assisted by Dumart. Fliers kept on top, scoring two more in the second period and one in the third.

Other air force tallies were scored by Buddy Hellyer, Roy Hawkey, Mike Miller and Al Campbell. Hull's two goals were scored by Aurel Myre and Patsy Guzzo, one in the second period and one in the third.

Fliers — Goal, Pinke; defense, Hawkey, Philbin; centre, MacNichol; wings, Campbell and Hellyer; subs. Schmidt, Dumart, Bauer, Miller, Blade, Haneberry, Acheson, Frenette, Snell.

Volants — Goal, Bordeleau; defense, Matte, Pumple; centre, Mentzel; wings, McIntyre, Seguin; subs. Myre, Renaud, Blondin, Pantalone, Finnigan, Guzzo, Cholette, Legris, Laflamme.

Baseball Training Camp Notes

Training camp notes

TAMPA, Fla., March 4.—(AP).—Outfielder Mike McCormick, leading Cincinnati hitter last season, will be used as a second string infielder during the training season camp games, probably at third base. The Reds have nine outfielders in camp, but only seven infielders.

ST. PETERBURG, Fla.—Joe Gordon, the holdout New York Yankee second baseman, is so eager to play ball that yesterday he picked up a mitt and "caddied" for Manager Joe McCarthy who was batting to Shortstop Phil Rizzuto.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Manager Del Baker of the Detroit Tigers, set a good example for his players. He's the first on the practice field and the last to leave.

PASADENA, Calif. — Although Chicago White Sox ha done of the better pitching staffs last year, Manager Jimmy Dykes is looking for even a better record in the coming campaign. He plans to carry 10 flingers instead of the customary nine.

MIAMI, Fla.— General Manager Bill Terry's ultimatum to Bill Jurges, only holdout of the New York Giants, brought a three-word reply from the shortstop: 'Daughter is ill.' Jurges is in New York managing his Long Island bowling establishment.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—All three principles insist that Bill Terry's visit to the Phils' training camp yesterday was purely a social one. The New York Giant general manager watched the workout from the stands with Phils' president, Gerald Nugent and later conferred with Hans Lobert, the field boss.

SARASOTA, Fla.—In addition to worrying about the unexplained absences of Dom DiMaggio and Johnny Pesky, his shortstop understudy, Manager Joe Cronin of Boston Red Sox has another problem on his hands.

Emerson Dickman is awaiting a call from the Navy and Cronin has ordered him to mark time here.

Quakers Whip Westclox Girls

Quakers strengthened their hold on second place in the Ladies' Basketball League standing by shellacking Westclox 33-12 at the Y.W. C.A. Tuesday night. The winners ran up a 14-5 lead in the first half and had a commanding margin over most of the route, passing and shooting better than the Alarm maidens. Westclox battled hard all the way and had enough of the play to make the score a lot closer but missed a flock of good scoring chances with poor shooting. On the other hand Quakers cashed in on a good percentage of their scoring opportunities, took an early lead and continued to pile up their margin steadily throughout the game. Besides holding the edge from an offensive standpoint played well defensively and held the losers usually strong scoring power well in check over most of the route. Quakers made three of six free throws and the losers scored two of their 11 tries.

P. Ayres was the standout performer of the contest, scoring a total of 22 points and P. Lawless and D. Weese also played well. M. Hawthorne and F. Bestard were best for the losers. The teams:

Westclox 12: M. Hawthornne (5), M. McFadden (2), F. Bestard (4), I. Bullock (1), A. Flynn, J. Hair, M. Goldie.

Quakers 23: P. Lawless (4), D. Weese (4), H. White (1), M. Yondell, P. Ayres (22), M. Duncan (2), G. Allen.

Don Grosso remained in fourth place with 44 points as Detroit Red Wings were idle, with Detroit's Syd Abel and Chicago's Bill Thoms in fifth place with 42 points. Gordie Drillon failed to collect any scoring points in the Toronto-Boston game but kept his hold on the last Big Seven spot.

HOW TO SAVE MORE OUT OF YOUR PAY CHEQUE FOR VICTORY BONDS

EVERY good citizen will buy just as many Victory Bonds as he possibly can. This is the least any of us can do to make victory ours.

Have you given your pledge to lend your country every dollar you can spare? If not, do it today. It is your duty as a partner in the greatest effort yet made by free men to keep their homelands free.

If you have already taken your quota, think about it once more. Surely you can find some way to increase it, if only a few dollars.

Are you planning your expenses, for instance, to get the most out of every pay cheque? Do you compare values when shopping in order to stretch your dollars to the utmost?

When you get your next pay cheque, jot down the expenses you expect to have between then and the following pay day. You will probably find that you have three things to do with your money:

1. Put aside funds for large items, such as insurance, taxes, and Victory Bonds.
2. Take care of bills from the past—debts and instalment payments, for instance.
3. Pay current living expenses.

Making your income cover all these items requires careful planning. But you'll be surprised to see how much a plan can help you. It makes you compare what you propose to spend with your income before you spend it. You have a chance to decide which purchases really are most important to you. You discover which items you can cut down or omit without great sacrifice.

Folks who get the most out of their incomes almost always plan their spending. They may keep no elaborate records of what they do with their money. They may even deny that they "budget." Actually they do plan, if only in their minds, how they are going to spend their income before they spend it.

Careful buying can help you cut expenses, too. In peace time it's important to compare values before you choose. Today it's doubly important to learn what grade or quality will give you the most for your money.

Decide, now, that you are going to stretch each pay cheque to the limit. Planned spending and careful buying will help you do it. What you save will take care of that increase in your Victory Bond pledge. So don't wait. Sign up today.

* * * *

To help you plan your spending, Household Finance has just published The Budget Calendar. This helpful booklet makes budgeting easy and simple. No tedious bookkeeping required. The Calendar contains a supply of "plan sheets" for every pay day in the year. You are invited to write for a free copy of The Budget Calendar without obligation. There will be no solicitation or follow-up.

Planned family spending can help win the war

Soldiers alone don't win wars. They need the help of the folks back home. Every citizen has his war duties. One of these is the duty of keeping his money affairs in order. No family—just as no nation—is strong whose finances are weak.

Thoughtless spending has no place today. This is a time to buy only what one really needs—and to borrow only to consolidate pressing debts or to meet some real emergency. Family debts should be paid up as rapidly as possible—to reduce interest charges and to preserve the borrower's credit for future emergencies. We hope that this message to encourage home money management will contribute to greater family financial strength and a greater war effort.

'NOT-SO-FADED' BRUINS SLAP TITLE-HUNGRY LEAFS DOWN BY 5-3

Rangers' Rally Ties Amerks In 4-4 Fracas

By The Canadian Press

If it's true that the Boston Bruins without the Krauts, Bill Cowley and Dit Clapper are just a lot of boys out for a skate, then perhaps somebody had better tell them about it before they cause some trouble in the National Hockey League championship chase.

The Bruins gave a timely little demonstration of their complete lack of need for pity last night when they hung a 5-3 setback on Toronto's title-hungry Leafs and perhaps killed the Leafs' N.H.L. championship chances for this year.

With New York Rangers staging a garrison finish to gain a 4-4 split of the points with Brooklyn Americans, the loss left the second-place Leafs three points back of the leading Patrickmen and still with only one game in hand. In other words, the surprising defeat by the Bruins leaves the Leafs technically without the edge that a second-place club needs when the race hits the home stretch.

The Bruins really loked like something again as they sailed into the Leafs with all of their old-time gusto. It may be that they've finally got over being sorry for themselves and have settled down to play hockey, but almost for the first time since they lost the Krauts to the air force they looked like a top-notch hockey club.

Metz Fires The Opener

They had to be, because the Leafs took the lead in the first period on Nick Metz's goal and turned in some smart hockey. However, young Lloyd Gronsdal tied it up in the second with his first goal as a professional, and then Eddie Wiseman put the clincher on things by snapping in a pair of counters in the space of 30 seconds, giving the homesters a 3-1 advantage. Ernie Dickens got one for the Leafs in the last minute but it was all over as early as the third minute of the final frame when Wiseman fed Roy Conacher with Boston's fourth counter.

Pete Langelle pulled the Leafs closer again but Gordie Bruce finished things off with the last goal of the game a few seconds from the end. That left the Bruins still in third place, three points back of the Leafs and five up on the idle Chicago Black Hawks.

At New York, Red Dutton's Amazing Amerks pulled up into sixth-place tie with the idle Montreal Canadiens by turning in a surprising display against the league leaders.

For the first half of the game, it was all Americans as they rammed home goal after goal to take a 4-0 lead. But in the last half the Rangers duplicated the effort, tying the score with seven minutes to play. There was no more scoring.

Ken Nosdell started the Amerks off in the first period and Murray Armstrong, Harry Watson and Bill Summerhill all ran in goals in the first nine minutes of the second. However the Patrickmen got going then and Grant Warwick, Lynn Patrick and Hub Macey all counted before the session ended, leaving it at 4-3 going into the last frame.

Neil Colville's goal at the 12-minute market brought the tie.

2 Rinks, Ontario, Manitoba Still Unbeaten

(By HAROLD ATKINS.)

QUEBEC, March 4. — (CP).— Manitoba's J. Ken Watson and Gordon Campbell of Ontario, two of the game's best young skips, hold the whip hand in the battle for the Macdonald's Brier Tankard, emblematic of Dominion curling supremacy.

Both former winners of the event, Watson and Campbell go into the fifth round of the playdowns this afternoon with unmarred records behind them in their last four matches.

The Winnipeggers had a tougher road to travel in yesterday's two rounds than the Hamilton Thistle players. and it took all of Watson's curling artistry to pull him through his second game, when he defeated Saskatchewan's John Franklin, 9-8, as he came through with three shots in a stirring last end.

In his morning test, Watson turned aside New Brunswick's Daniel P. Connolly, 15-7, to spill the Maritimer's unbeaten performance of the previous day.

Ontario had little trouble advancing through its fourth round games. It swept aside the winless Prince Edward Island rink skipped by W. R. Cruikshank, 22-4 in 10 ends.

Northerners Put Up Fight.

In his morning appearance, Campbell had to produce his best to come out with a 13-9 decision against Northern Ontario's W. A. McMitchell.

Alberta's John Slavik of Viking stood as the only other rink at this stage still in the title hunt as he scored two victories yesterday to leave his record at three wins and a loss.

Like Manitoba, the Albertans were pressed to the limit in their second assignment yesterday and a brilliantly played draw by Slavik on the last end gave him the shot which beat New Brunswick 8-7. Earlier in the day Slavik set down Nova Scotia's John I. Hebb of Bridgewater, 12-9.

Northern Ontario, British Columbia and Saskatchewan are bracketed with two wins and as many losses apiece after the four rounds. Saskatchewan's loss to Manitoba spoiled its chances of having a perfect day, as in the morning game, he beat J. R. Ross's Quebec foursome, 14-3.

After losing both its opening day matches, British Columbia's rink under Donald Campbell, brother of Ontario's Gordon, lived up to advance expectations when it won twice yesterday. The coast outfit toppled Nova Scotia 19-9 in its fourth-round game after having taken toll of Cruickshank's P.E.I. entry in the morning, 13-7.

Northern Ontario's rink from Sudbury came back in its second game of the day to gain a split as it swept aside Quebec, 17-4.

Quebec At Bottom.

The Quebec rink, like Prince Edward Island, remains at the bottom of the round robin series, neither having won a game.

Standing in the path of both the unbeaten rinks on today's schedule are the unpredictable British Columbians.

The, morning round brings together the Campbell brothers, who played on the championship Ontario team in 1935, while Ontario's sixth-round match in the evening is with John Slavik's Albertans.

Manitoba makes its stand against the British Columbia quartet in the evening round, with its afternoon game set against Quebec.

Alberta and Northern Ontario play in the 2.30 p.m. round, with the other games in this round bringing together P.E.I. and Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick and Saskatchewan. Other evening games are Quebec against Nova Scotia, Northern Ontario with New Brunswick and Saskatchewan with P.E.I.

Reveal Williams Sought To Skip Draft

ST. PAUL, March 4 — (AP). — Colonel J. E. Nelson, chief of the State draft setup, "just to keep the records straight," yesterday summoned reporters to emphasize, he said, that Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox slugger, had sought draft deferment for the benefit of his recently divorced mother.

Nelson made the announcement after Herbert W. Estrem, Government appeal agent for Minneapolis Draft Board No. 6, had related in a newspaper interview how Williams had not pressed his case and that he (Estrem) had investigated the case on his own initiative.

May Confer With Cochrane

The object of discussion—Williams himself, meanwhile was packing to leave for the Sarasota, Fla., Red Sox training campe, presumably dreaming of plans to pick up his .406 championsnip batting pace where he left off last Fall, rather than of the conflict of opinion prevailing at his winter residence.

Tuesday Ted was reporting motoring to Sarasota, but the ball player appeared unexpectedly at his Minneapolis hotel early last night and left shortly afterward for Princeton, fifty miles north of Minneapolis, where he has been wintering. He said he might "leave by train tonight or by automobile tomorrow" for Sarasota.

Attempts to reach Williams by telephone at his hotel later drew the reply that he "wasn't expected back until Thursday," while at a friend's home it was said "he's left for Minneapolis."

Friends in Minneapolis insisted Williams had left late yesterday by automobile for Sarasota. They hinted that he might stop at Great Lakes, Ill., naval training station, to confer with Mickey Cochrane, former catcher for Philadelphia Athletics and Detroit Tigers, now baseball coach at the station.

Ted Denies It

Earlier in the day, when asked about the appeal, Williams said: "I did not make a personal appeal to the President or anybody else. I went with my attorney to Mr. Estrem and asked for a clarification. I explained my status and that I originally had been in 3A."

Ted's attorney was out of range. He enlisted in the navy. So the post-mortem talk was mostly within the selective service system.

Myers Denies He's Holdout Had Enough Ball

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 4— (AP).—Billy Myers of the Chicago Cubs insisted yesterday he isn't a holdout—he just doesn't want to play baseball any more, vowing "I've had enough."

Refusing to take a salary cut cut from the $12,000 he received last year, the 31-year-old shortstop now is working as an extra fireman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, earning from $6.88 to $8.34 a day—when he works.

"I'm satisfied right where I am. I'm not going to bother about the contract they sent me. I don't expect to play any more. I haven't been at home during one summer since 1928 and I'm going to spend this one right here."

Myers disclosed the National League club wanted to slash his pay "a good bit," adding "I'd take less money, if I signed, than when I broke into the majors." So far as he is concerned "they can do anything they want with me—sell me, trade me or release me — but I'm quitting for good."

Billy got into organized baseball 14 years ago with the Waynesboro' (Pa.) Club of the Blue Ridge League, serving with six other minor outfits before going to the Cincinnati Reds in 1934.

He played on one National League pennant winner and one world championship team—hitting an average of .202 to .281—before being traded to the Cubs late in 1940. That same year he equalled a modern record by going through a 10-inning game against Pittsburg without fielding a chance.

Last year he was farmed most of the season to Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association, and was one of the highest-paid players in the minors.

Progress On AA's Pleases McNaughton

HAMILTON, Ont., March 4. — (CP).—Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton Monday inspected a plant he termed "the most important in Canada," and watched the manufacture of one of the most essential weapons of modern war, the anti-aircraft gun.

He spent the morning in the clean, modern Otis-Fensom Ltd. plant, talking with employees rapidly becoming skilled in an industry unknown to them a few months ago. One of the men he spoke to was Fred Murfet, an English skilled worker from Nottingham, who came to Canada a few weeks ago with a group of British workers who are acting as instructors in new Canadian plants of this type.

Murfet praised Canadian workers during his conversation with Gen. McNaughton.

"I was told I was being sent over here to help green labor," he said. "I was misinformed. Canadian labor cannot be termed green because in the last three months it has learned more—in this plant anyway—than I thought was possible even from skilled men and women."

Murfet carried on animated conversation with the General for about five minutes, when the party moved on the little Englishman turned back to his instruction and said to the man he was teaching: "I say, he's a decent sort, isn't he? He knows what he's talking about."

Most Important Plant.

During a conversation with Max Barrett, a worker who went overseas with the First Canadian Division as a corporal in the supply column and later was discharged, Gen. McNaughton said Barrett probably was doing a better job than he could in the Army because "this is the most important plant in Canada." That reference was the second he had made to the plant's importance.

His interest in the anti-aircraft guns was equal to that he showed in mechanized units during inspection of the General Motors plant in Oshawa last Friday. Once he turned to a man beside him and said he'd like to carry off a few of these guns and take them back with me."

The Canadian Corps Commander visited the Westinghouse plant here after leaving Otis-Fensom. He planned a visit to the Canadian Army Trades School in the afternoon.

Keeping Note of Promises.

An interesting sidelight on the personality which has made Gen. McNaughton one of the most popular officers in Canadian Army history was provided when a bystander commented on the voluminous notes the General's military aide Lt.-Col. N. E. Rodger was taking.

"I have to take notes like this," Col. Rodger said. "Six months from now the General will come to me and say: What did Mr. So-and-So tell us last March the second in the Otis-Felsom plant about how many guns he could give us in three months?' And I'll have to have it written down so I can tell him. He has an amazing memory."

In the Westinghouse plant, where gun barrels and intricate radio machinery are manufactured by veteran male machinists and girls only a few months out of school, Gen. McNaughton spoke at length with M. Herrington, an English technician who came to Canada from the Woolwich Arsenal a few weeks ago.

"I'm very glad to see you fellows out here starting a new art in Canada," he said. "You plant the seed. We will see that it is multiplied."

One time, as the General strode from one division of the plant to another, several employees leaned from a second-storey window and shouted in unison: "Hi, General." Gen. McNaughton smiled, waved, and said in a low voice: "Hi."

War Urgency Beats Time And Tide

Time and tide—those two things wait for no man, we're told, so the Zebulon Pike, a new freighter, was launched at 5 o'clock in the morning at Los Angeles because the next tide would be at 5 p.m. That would have meant a 12-hour delay in laying the keel for the next ship—and in this war time is of the essence. Place: California shipbuilding yard, Los Angeles.

Vichy Claims

from Paris indicated today that probably 400 persons were killed and 1,000 wounded in a heavy British air attack last night at Billancourt and Boulogne-sur-Seine, industrial suburbs of the Nazi-held French capital.

Daylight disclosed the wreckage of a large number of buildings. Rescue squads which had been working throughout the night began to tabulate the damage.

Admiral Jean Darlan, Vice-Premier of the Vichy Government, who was in Paris at the time of the raid, visited the blasted areas during the morning.

The factory regions of Boulogne and Billancourt-sur-Seine were hardest hit.

At least 12 towns in the suburban belt around Paris were blasted during the two-hour attack.

(Authorized sources in London said the Renault motor plant was the objective. They declared that open weather had enabled R.A.F. pilots to spot the target area clearly and that virtually all the bombs had dropped on the factories. Latest information there placed the number of dead at more than 600.)

It was reported unofficially that one air raid shelter where 180 persons had taken refuge and which apparently sustained a direct hit still had not been uncovered.

Germany Also Gets It.

Royal Air Force planes also carried out raids over Germany during the night, it was announced.

Reports from Vichy said a two-hour attack was made upon airdromes and factories in the Paris sector, beginning at 10 p.m. Paris time, but the first authoritative British announcement mentioned only one target— the big Renault motor works which employed approximately 20,00 workers in peace, time.

A brief Vichy communique said there were "victims among the civilian population" but would not permit naming of the suburbs bombed or the extent of the damage.

The British announcement called the Renault works, at Billancourt, south-west of Paris, the "outstanding symbol of collaboration with Germany." It added that the company is a "household word in France," and is known to have been "engaged in the making and repairing of transport vehicles, tanks and air engines for Germany."

(Paris is only about 150 air miles from the closest point of the British coast and it is known that planes have made occasional bombing attacks on military airfields in the German-held city area. German raids on Paris on June 3, 1940, before the German-French armistice, caused more than 1,000 casualties.)

The authoritative Press Association coupled a comment that Paris is only about one hour's flying time from Britain with the assertion that raids would be a "sharp reminder to Vichy that a France thrown too far into collaboration with Britain's Nazi enemy has many legitimate targets within easy striking ranget targets within easy striking range of the R.A.F."

Two months ago a British air officer broadcast to French workers in occupied territory a warning that the R.A.F. would bomb industrial areas known to be working under pressure for the Germans.

The Ministry of Economic Warfare reported the Renault works and other big plants in the Paris industrial belt are working 24 hours daily to supply the Nazi army.

Reds Destroy

Heavy explosions and big fires developed on one of the air-fields the Germans are using in an attempt to ferry supplies to the beleaguered men by planes under pounding by Russian artillery batteries, dispatches from the front said.

New Hun Tanks Coming Up.

Adherence to the Russian theory of close co-operation between infantry and artillery was urged by the army newspaper Red Star upon reserve armies now moving into battle. Red Star warned that the Germans are moving up additional tanks and fighting stubbornly.

The information bureau said Soviet units encircled and annihilated "nests of resistance on several sectors of the front" yesterday and continued their advances.

In addition, dispatches told of a parachute raid behind the German lines in an unidentified zone. Red Army aerial specials killed 111 Germans in one town, wrecked trains and tore down telephone and telegraph wires used by the invaders.

French wine, Norwegian canned goods and Bulgarian cigarettes were among German supplies seized by the parachutists, dispatches said.

Plebiscite Bill

Kinnon on his trip to South America last summer. There was no discussion last night but they were drafted for a day last week. The agreements now go to the Senate for approval of that body.

In the new plebiscite ballot form the question is printed only once with space for a cross under the word "yes" or "no" opposite the question. The form first proposed contained the question twice, once with the word "yes" opposite and once with the word "no," and in each case space for an "X."

The amendment to add the words "in any theatre of war" was proposed by Rev. E. G. Handsell (N.D. MacLeod) and supported by Mr. Hanson. Mr. King objected to it on the ground it would create unwarranted suspicion in the minds of some voters who might think the government proposed sending men not only to Great Britain but to other quarters of the world not yet suggested.

Wants Issue Carried.

"I am anxious to see this plebiscite carried," said Mr. King. "I am not anxious to add to the wording, words that are going to create unwarranted suspicions in the minds of people who may be attracted by certain words and attach to them an entirely different meaning from that which should be attached to them.

"I cannot understand the attitude of honorable gentlemen who say they are anxious to see this plebiscite carried but who at the same time by their words and utterances, particularly the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Hanson) are doing the utmost they can to have the people believe there is some trick in this plebiscite"

In a clash with Hon. W. Earl Rowe (Con., Dufferin-Simcoe) who asked if the Government proposes to take Canada out of the war if the people vote "No," Mr. King said Mr. Rowe identified the whole war effort with conscription for overseas service.

"This is one reason I want to get rid of the commitment that is standing there," he said. "That commitment stands like a barn door at which my friend and those who think like him can keep hammering and making a noise; but once that is taken out of the way they will be striking at an open door when they discuss what the Government will do.

"I can say to my friends with respect to what the Government will do after the plebiscite has been decided one way or another, that it will make its policy known in due course in the light of circumstances as they may be then."

"This whole question is not only a trick on the people but a trick on the boys overseas," Mr. Rowe declared.

He was at once called to order by Chairman Vien, who ruled the word "trick" out of order, and Mr. Rowe withdrew it.

John R. MacNicol (Con., Toronto-Davenport) asked the Prime Minister if, in the event of an affirmative vote in the plebiscite the Government would feel free to send troops to any theatre of war.

Mr. King replied that if the plebiscite result is affirmative the Government would be released from any restrictions. Troops would be sent wherever the Government believed they should be sent.

Raymond Would Bar Women

It was Maxime Raymond (Lib., Beauharnois-Laprairie) who proposed the extension of the vote to men but not to women over 18 years of age. He argued men between 18 and 21 were among those who would be conscripted for overseas service if conscription is adopted, and that they should have the right to express their views. The amendment was defeated without any comment from Government spokesmen.

Mr. Hansell sponsored the amendment to require production of registration cards by all voters, and it was supported by Mr. Hanson, but opposed by Mr. Coldwell. State Secretary McLarty agreed with Mr. Coldwell, that to adopt it might disfranchise many people, particularly in the rural districts, who may have lost or mislaid their cards.

Mr. McLarty, however, agreed to a suggestion advanced later by John Diefenbaker (Con., Lake Centre) that production of the card be required at urban polls when a voter not on the original list asks to be vouched for and sworn and an amendment to that effect was adopted.

Hours, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Mr. McLarty also agreed to suggestions from members that hours of voting be from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., instead of 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. as originally proposed, and promised to see that a change in the regulations is made to that effect.

The minister assured Mrs. Cora Casselman (Lib., Edmonton East), that members of Parliament will be able to vote in Ottawa if they are not in their constituencies on Plebiscite Day.

Several members expressed concern about possible partisan appointments of polling officials and enumerators, and Prime Minister Mackenzie King said the Government does not want any partisanship. He suggested a conference with other party leaders to arrange a method of appointment agreeable to all and said he agreed a suggestion that only ex-servicemen from the First Great War be appointed was a good one.

"I should deplore seeing the plebiscite made in any sense a political patronage affair,' he said. "I shall do all on my part to impress upon those who have to do with it that it be made as largely as possible a matter for voluntary effort, so administered as to ensure as much in the way of co-operation between all parties on the understanding that it is intended to be as fair and square as may be possible."

Mr. King entered the plebiscite debate soon after the House went into committee. He criticized the Opposition Leader's attitude.

Sees No Loopholes.

The plebiscite question was worded in a way which would leave no loophole since it asked for release from "any" commitments restricting the raising of men, Mr. King said.

In reply to a question from Mr. Hanson he said the Government had full authority to raise men and send them anywhere. But it had a "moral obligation" as a result of past commitments, restricting its action in is regard.

"My honorable friend the leader of the Opposition throws back his head when I mention the word 'moral' as though parliament had no moral obligations," he said.

"May I say that I am afraid that those who are taking that particular point of view are being unduly influenced by the Nazi mentality and by the mentality of other nations that have thrown to the winds every obligation that existed between the people and their governments."

"I resent that implication," exclaimed Mr. Hanson, while his followers murmured in protest.

"My honorable friend may resent it but he has laid himself open to it," the Prime Minister said.

He said he could not understand the attitude of those who say they are "anxious to see this plebiscite carried but who, particularly the leader of the Opposition, are doing the utmost they possibly can to have the people of this country believe there is some trick in this plebiscite."

24 Night Raiders Wreck 91 Axis Planes

(By EDWARD KENNEDY.)

WITH THE BRITISH DESERT FORCES IN LIBYA, Mar. 4— (AP) —A daring sortie by 24 picked men penetrating scores of miles behind Axis lines has destroyed 91 German and Italian planes on desert airfields.

The story was told for the first time on Tuesday of the adventure started on Christmas Day and continued until January 10, when the first 16 of the raiders returned safely from their stealthy operation.

Driving in trucks by night, they parked in the wadis some miles from the airports which were their first objectives.

Then they proceed by foot.

Concealing themselves a short distance from the airdromes, they spotted the locations of the planes and sentry posts during the day, and crept forward under cover of night to begin their work.

They carried small bombs which they placed in planes, timed to explode when their work was completed.

"One big Irishman—a lieutenant—was so powerful that he simply tore the planes apart with his hands when he ran out of bombs," one of the party said.

"He had only 11 bombs when he went into one hangar, but he destroyed 24 planes by ripping their vital parts to pieces with his hands. He smashed instruments with his fists.

C.G.E. Employees Skyrocket Loan

MAIN STREET TOPICS

TO ADDRESS CLUB

Mr. W. Barnacal of the C.G.E. will address the Friday night club of the Y.M.C.A. this week, it was announced today.

TO ADDRESS CONSTABULARY

Sgt. Vine of the Belleville Company, qualified instructor in A.R.P., will give a lecture to the Peterborough company of the Ontario Volunteer Constabulary tomorrow evening at 8.15 in the Community Hall in Ashburnham. Local A.R.P. workers are invited to attend.

FAIR AT KINGSTON.

The 16th annual Quinte District Seed Fair will be held this year at Kingston, and entries close on March 7. The fair will be held in the City Hall on March 18, 19 and 20. There will be an auction sale of seed and potatoes at two o'clock on Friday March 20, with Gordon Hancock acting as auctioneer.

CONSIDER PEDESTRIAN

Mild thawing days produce streams and pools of water about the city streets—days when the pedestrian must use caution lest he or she get splashed by passing cars. With a little care and consideration for those walking, motorists can do much to stop the menace of splashing.

FOUR JOIN ACTIVE SERVICE

Four men accepted for active service this week at the recruiting depot, Peterborough armory were: C. W. Fairburn, R.R. 4, Peterborough; Wilbert Dart, Port Hope and Russel Balson, Bowmanville, all with the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps; Wesley Roche with the First Midland Regiment.

FREE-LANCING

All Victory Loan salesmen in the city have now completed their respective districts and are free to canvass anywhere in the city. Some had friends in other sections and they plan to call on these to make sure they have secured bonds, and they are given an added incentive in the recent message from the Minister of Finance, J. L. Isley, who has suggested that the loan be pushed up to $900,000,000.

SOME IMPROVEMENT

A progress report on Eric Howard, George street merchant, who was seriously injured in a skiing accident a week ago, was a little more favorable this morning. Enquiry at the hospital revealed that he had spent a good night.

CAUGHT THE ICEMEN.

The mild spell over the week-end interfered considerably with ice-cutting, as there was almost six inches of water on the ice in some place where ice cutters had been working. Some of the old-timers subscribe to the belief that March ice is poor ice, and they believe the ice harvest was not started early enough this year.

TURNED OVER TO RELATIVES.

The two young Brantford boys who admitted to local police on Monday that they had stolen $530 from a boarder in the home of the lads were turned over to relatives of the pair Tuesday afternoon. The mother of one of the boys and an uncle of the other arrived here to take the lads back to Brantford. What charges will be made in the case is up to the Brantford authorities.

CHIMES SOUND DAILY

It is not just an accident or whim that the People's Chimes in St. John's Anglican Church peal out each day at noon. The bells are sounded by the carilloneur Richard Ford, at the request of the Victory Loan committee, and workers hurrying home can enjoy this beautiful music, while workers in England hearing any bells know it is the warning that the invasion is on.

HEARD ON RADIO

Gnr. B. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Taylor of Cobourg who is serving with an artillery unit in Great Britain was heard on the radio program over the week-end. He was one of the soldiers on the regular week-end feature, "Greetings from the Beaver Club," and he reports he is in good health. He mentioned that he had met his cousin, Eddie Bedding, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Bedding, 178 Hazlitt street, who is also over there.

3639 Subscribe For Bonds From Big Plant

Digging into the Victory Loan drive with an enthusiasm unmatched across the Dominion of Canada, employees at the local plant of the Canadian General Electric Company and the Glenelco section skyrocketed the total in the local loan with subscriptions aggregating $332,600 and more are coming in.

The report to date was released to-day by Thomas H. Glover, works accountant, who is also chairman of the Peterborough Works Victory Loan Committee who admitted that the original objective for the big plant had been set at a quarter of a million dollars. "Members of the committee and employees both agreed that we could beat this objective without much trouble and our faith in the workers has been amply justified by the returns to date."

One hundred and eighty men and women in all the departments of the big plant took on the huge task of canvassing the 4,266 employees in both plants, and they finished their work in record time. The fact that there are approximately 600 employees who have not contributed as yet is due in a large measure to the financial status of many workers from the district and small places who have been out of work for a long time, and have not got back on a sound footing as yet. Regardless of this many men and girls who have been employed just a short time subscribed for bonds under the payroll deduction plan, and the 600 may be reduced materially when the canvass returns are all in at the end of the week.

Pleased With Effort.

"No Victory Loan could be held so successful if the employees were not heart and soul behind it," Mr. Glover said to-day, and he gave full credit for the success to the canvassers and the workers themselves. "We on the shop committee just gave direction to the canvassers and employees and gave them free rein and I am certainly pleased with the magnificent response."

Other members of the shop committee included J. E. Girven, J. W. Hodgson, H. A. Cranfield, R. H. Perks, and Bud Hickey

Employees from every payroll rank in this huge war industry turned in with a will to purchase every bond that they could manage, and thus fought the war with a two-edged weapon turning out the vital tools, and converting their earnings back into bonds to finance the war effort and stave off inflation. These workers, many of them in lucrative jobs for the first time in their lives, are showing good, sound judgment in taking a long range view of the present unsettled world conditions, and preparing for the lean period that is bound to follow in the wake of Victory.

On a per capita basis this is one of the finest efforts in the history of Victory Loan campaigns in the city so far, and Al. Stedham, local stock broker who has worked every week night since the Loan began until after 11 o'clock totalling and checking factory returns, waxed enthusiastic over this fine showing.

Taboo Peninsula

STOCKHOLM, March 4—(AP).—An official announcement in Oslo, German-occupied Norway, said today the coast of the territory of Statlandet had been barred to civilians. Statlandet is a peninsula on the west coast of Central Norway which juts into the Norwegian Sea about 120 miles north of Bergen. Residents of the coastal section were removed, the announcement said, but no other details were given.

Reckless Driving Count Contested

George Miller, elderly Wilberforce sawyer, faced a reckless driving charge in police court today as the result of an accident which occurred on the afternoon of September 19 at Charlotte and Stewart Streets.

The long delay was caused by the fact that eleven-year-old Agnes Hele, who suffered a broken hip when she was knocked off her bicycle after a collision with Miller's car, spent many months in hospital, and her presence in court was not possible until now.

Arnold B. Campbell, the first Crown witness, said that he was in a service station at Charlotte and Stewart Streets on the afternoon of the accident and heard a girl scream. When he ran outside he saw a little girl at the western side of the intersection five or six feet from the curb. "I surmised at once that she had a broken leg," Campbell said, "so I picked her up and carried her to a doctor's office."

Witness said that he did not see the accident but saw Miller on the scene after the crash.

The case is proceeding.

Soldier Guilty Bigamy Count

Corp. Joseph B. McKee of the Military Training Centre, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a charge of bigamy and Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., announced that he would reserve sentence in the case until Tuesday, March 10.

Kenneth Hodgert, agent for the Children's Aid Society in the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, was called by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., to give evidence.

He stated that McKee had been married to a Port Hope girl early last winter. Some time ago the witness had seen a newspaper clipping in reference to the marriage of a Corp. McKee to a girl in Smith township and on investigation found that the accused had gone through a form of marriage with a Smith township woman.

Copies of the two marriage certificates were introduced by the Crown.

Capt. J. Keir, of the Military Training Centre, who looked after McKee's interests in the case, called Major Johnston, who gave character evidence. "McKee's conduct in the army has been exemplary," the witness said.

In reserving judgment Magistrate Langley said that suspended sentence in the case of a bigamy charge would be quite unusual. "There are too many people affected in such cases," he said.

Wins $300 Victory Bond

Mrs. Amelia Darwin, 438 Mark Street, was the proud winner of a $300 Victory Bond this week, and the bond was presented to her by Vincent Eastwood, on behalf of the William Wrigley Company of Toronto, sponsors of the radio feature, "Treasure Trail."

Mrs. Darwin's name was drawn during the program and she was asked by long distance telephone to answer this question, "In the combined continents of North and South America New York is the largest city and Chicago second: What city ranks third?" The answer is Buenos Aires, and Mrs. Darwin answered correctly.

LONDON, March 4—(CP).—Capt. Oliver Lyttlyeton, new Minister of State, arrived in London last night from Cairo, where he had been since last July.

$2,000,000 Mark Is Passed By Victory Loan

Victory Loan officials reported this morning that the Loan in this county had topped the $2,000,000 mark on Tuesday morning and the returns up to Tuesday evening $2,097,700 for 76.2 per cent of the total objective of $2,750,000.

The huge sum of $332,000 subscribed by the C.G.E. employees will appear in the totals tomorrow and this should put the Loan in this district up to within $300,000 of the big objective. Officials and canvassers alike were confident today that the Loan would soar over the top, and it appeared that if canvassers can keep up the good work in private subscriptions, the total might possibly be reached by Friday of this week.

The Special Names section with an objective of $1,000,000 have topped the objective with returns to date amounting to $1,001,000.

Lakefield reported by telephone today that they had topped their objective of $60,000 and this new figure will be available on Thursday. Smith township, Dummer township and Douro are all showing signs of getting on to the home stretch and later reports this week should see them in hall of fame. Rev. C. A. G. Spence showed a total today of $10,250 against the $10,000 objective with a percentage of 102.5. This canvass is in the combined townships of North Burleigh, Chandos and Anstruther. Mrs. C. E. Moore is creeping closer to her total of $15,000, having secured subscriptions amounting to $12,850 or 85.6 per cent to date.

Better Tanks Coming

Washington, March 3 (AP)

A NEW midwestern plant has come into mass production of M-4 medium tanks, the United States war production board disclosed today. It withheld the name and location of the plant. The M-4, which supersedes the familiar M-3, is cast and welded instead of riveted construction, for greater strength and safety; has a lower silhouette, and carries its major weapon, a 75 mm. cannon, mounted in the revolving turret instead of the hull. Other plants now making M-3's shortly will convert to M-4's.

War Stamp Sales At Collegiate Set New High

Children in this city are doing more to boost the Victory Loan than they are given credit for, and they are doing it by making people war conscious, in pushing the sale of War Savings Stamps and Certificates.

This morning the Collegiate report on War Savings Stamps and Certificates hit a new all time high when the grand total for the week was given as $1,603.00. This unusual total was reached when sale of Certificates alone jumped to $1,188.00, made up of some very substantial purchases. The sale of stamps was $415.00, which is also an increase over the previous week.

The Examiner carrier boys who are also doing their bit in promoting the sale of War Savings stamps to their customers are stepping along in high gear, too,; making it easy for the people to purchase the stamps weekly, as the youngsters carry them as they make the rounds delivering papers. The Examiner is co-operating by sending the paper to press a little earlier on Friday afternoons, but even with this the extra volume of work on the part of the carriers makes it impossible for them to get the papers delivered as early as before. However, few complaints are coming on Fridays, and the boys deserve all credit for their patrotic gesture, and one that is appreciated more each week as the people realize just what they are doing to aid the war effort.

St. Paul's Men Hear J. P. Rowe

Men of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church met Tuesday night at a dinner which was held in Sunday School auditorium of the church, at which all were personally introduced to the new minister, the Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart. Out of the meeting, which was attended by over 100, the ground work for a men's association in the church was begun, and a slate of ten names from which the officers will be chosen was presented.

Dr. J. J. Craig was chairman of the dinner. Also at the head table were Dr. R. W. Frank, who introduced the speaker, J. P. Rowe, M.P.; R. M. Glover, and Dr. J. D. Smart.

The dinner was served under the of the meeting. Of the fifteen men Moorehead, and all agreed the ladies had put up a most delicious meal.

Following the dinner, group singing was enjoyed under the leadership of John Anderson. Short two-minute speeches were heard from Alderman Adam Sands, T. H. Taylor, Howard Macdonald, Hurrell Dodds, and R. M. Glover. Subject of their talks dealt with the place a men's association takes in the church. Mr. Glover moved that a men's organization be formed and it met with the unanimous approval of the meeting. Of the fiteen men nominated, ten names were drawn from a hat to form the association executive. A later meeting of this group will result in selection of the officers for the association.

Mr. Rowe took as his subject "The Basis of an Enduring Civilization." He presented to the men some of the most critical problems of human society today, showing the breakdown of the system that had prevailed in the past years. He pointed out the need for adjustment which will enable the abundance of the world's blessing to reach the people needing it. Mr. Rowe emphasized the importance of Christian religion in the Christian Church in preparing the way for the new order of things in which man would co-operate with his fellow man for the common good.

Following Mr. Rowe's talk, a short period of discussion was held and a vote of thanks was extended the speaker by O. M. Steer.

Dr. Smart was called upon. He asserted strongly his delight at the splendid turnout of men. From what he heard in the speeches by the men, they had shown they were anxious to get their shoulders behind the job of a men's association. Dr. Smart likened the church to a sports team in which all are working in unison for the common good.

J. W. Anderson extended a vote of thanks to the ladies for the sumptuous meal of the evening.

Table Cloth Nets $60 To War Victims

Sponsored by members of the Business and Professional Women's Club of this city, an effort on behalf of the City and District British War Victims Fund came to a close on Tuesday when the draw was made for a beautiful hand-made lace tablecloth, made and donated to the fund by Mrs. J. P. Halcrow of Rutherford avenue, this city.

Tickets were sold by the members and they were assisted in this by Mrs. Halcrow. It has been on display in the windows of Barries Ltd. and R. Fair Ltd. for the past few weeks. The draw was made by Charles Noble of the Examiner Office and resulted in ticket number 151 held by Mrs. P. Donaldson, R.R. No. 7, Peterborough, being the winner. The net proceeds amounted close to the $60 mark, and a friend made up the balance so that this amount could actually be credited as coming from this particular effort. The thanks to the members of the club and its president, Miss Sarah Eastwood, is credited in this day's receipts for the fund, marking the second successful effort of a like nature to be sponsored by them for the fund.

There are three personal donations listed today, all of whom are repeat donations, one in particular being a very regular contributor to the fund, of whom we could wish for many more.

Range Pals Club

This is another group who have been, and are still actively working for the fund, this time they are sponsoring the sale of tickets at 15 cents each or two for 25 cents for a draw in which there will be three prizes, the first being a bed spread, made and donated by Mrs. R. Dyer, and the second prize a shaw from India, and the third prize a framed embroidered motto, both of which were donated by Miss Elizabeth Smith of 735 Water street. This draw is to take place in the near future at a social evening of the club members, and those desiring tickets should secure them from the members of the club without delay.

Examiner Carriers Set New Record For War Stamp Sales In February

All previous records of sales by city Examiner carriers went by the board last week when these patriotic salesmen brought in the total of $780.50, making the monthly sales of War Savings Stamps $2,024.50. This last week's sales are ahead of the previous high week by some $237.00 and the month beats the previous month's mark by some $262.00. Such splendid results of the efforts of the boys and girls of the Examiner carrier force are very gratifying, especially during the present Victory Loan drive. They have answered the appeal of the Examiner to put new vigor into their stamp campaign by coming through with this grand total.

The outstanding salesmen for the month of February are some carriers whose names have become familiar to readers interested in this campaign. The winner of the Examiner gold trophy for February is George Clark of 331 Sherbrooke Street. Several times during the last two months George has won the weekly prizes of theatre tickets donated by the War Savings Committee. Now he is to reap the reward of his consistent efforts by becoming the possessor of the gold trophy for one month and the owner of a smaller gold cup, a replica of the large trophy. In addition he wins the gift of a pair of ski boots, kindly donated monthly by the Robert Neill Company to the top salesman. This prize is awarded to the carrier with the highest sales per customer on his route George Clark well qualifies for this honor this past month with an average of $3.68 per customer. His total sales for February were the magnificent sum of $246.50.

In second place, winning the large studio portrait given by Fred Cripps, local photographic expert, is Keith Orde of 249 Reid Street, who has won weekly prizes no less than four times in the last three months and is now entitled to some more substantial reward for his consistent record of sales. The time and place of the awarding of these prizes will be announced in the near future.

Many other boys and girls have merited honorable mention during the last four weeks in this voluntary campaign and among them are the following:

Weldon Fanning, first winner of the Examiner gold trophy last December, comes in third place with a total of $106.75, fine work at any time; Victor Doughty of 150 Hart Avenue shows great promise for a future winner of the gold cup with sales of $92.75. Victor was the winner of last week's theatre tickets also. Last month's top-notcher and winner of the trophy, Don Pagett, is in fifth place this month with another great effort totalling $73.00. Another youngster, perhaps the youngest carrier in the Examiner force, is Ray Douglas of 598 Young Street. Ray and his brother Tom have made exceptionally good showings since carrying a south-end route for the Examiner. The month of February was again a good one for Ray Douglas, who sold $70.00 in War Savings Stamps on his route. The south-end again shows great support of Examiner carriers in buying from Jack Harris, second place holder last month, the amount of $64.75, and following Jack is another south-end salesman, Grant Finnie, coming through with a healthy $54.00. Lansdowne Avenue is the locale of the route of Adrian Langhorne, again in the south-end, whose total for the month was an even $50.00.

It is worthy of note that the south-end of the city contributed no less than a round $650.00 in February alone to the War Savings Stamp campaign through only eight of the carriers in that section. Congratulations and appreciation are extended to those patriotic subscribers for such a splendid contribution, which is over and above all the payments on Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates made, and being made from these homes in the various factories of the south-end industrial area. Cyril Robinson, with another route in the south-end, is well up in the running with $41.75, and Clifford Pirie with $32.50.

The north-end of the city is doing its bit with buying through the boys in that district. Douglas Burrows, whose sales were $37.75 for February and Dan McIsaac makes a good showing with sales of $36.25. Other boys and girls with especially good returns are: Bill Dundas in East City, $30.50; Allan Sage, $29.25; Wilbert Edgar, $29.00; Bob Shadgett, $26.00; Nancy Leith, $22.75; Tom Douglas and Bertha Bradley, both with $22.50. The last-named girl, Bertha Bradley, is worthy of note in that she has the smallest route in the Examiner force, but maintains a steady rate of sales. In February she sold an average of $1.00 per customer.

Lewes Gaskill in the north-end sold $22.00; Lloyd Brooks, $21.25; Bob Sugden, $21.75; Eleanor Whittaker, $20.00, as did John McDonald in the Charlotte Street West area.

Scores of other boys and girls have made great contributions to this campaign week after week and deserve commendation. Their efforts are none the less appreciated because we lack space to mention them individually.

St. Andrew's Y.P.U.

At a fellowship meeting of St. Andrew's Young People's Union on Tuesday night, "Hospitality" was the key-note of the discussion. One opinion given was that to be truly hospitable one should have some idea about the guest and the circumstances. Hospitality can be overdone and the person made most uncomfortable. Conventional and real hospitality are both needed, depending upon the individual and the time or place.

During the business period mention was made of the Sunday evening Fireside service which was held at Mrs. Vass's home, when the young people and their friends had a very good time. It was decided that a few of the Y.P.U. group will help with the salvage next Monday night.

St. David's Society Holds Annual Banquet

Members of St. David's Society did honor to their patron Saint on Monday evening, when they held their 13th annual banquet at the home of Mrs. G. Packenham, the president.

The banquet tables were beautifully decorated in a color scheme of green and yellow, the national colors of Wales. Lighted green and yellow candles and baskets of daffodils alternated each other at the long table and large Welsh flag formed the background for the head table. Small replicas of the Welsh leek were in evidence everywhere.

Folowing a bountiful supper the president, Mrs. Packenham, called on the gathering to honor the toast of the King. In her address the president extended a warm welcome to all present and expressed special pleasure at having present Rev. L. C. Hughes, with Mrs. Hughes and their daughter Aileen, who had motored from Brighton to take part in the celebration. She went on to explain that this year the banquet was less elaborate than in former years, the members feeling that the amount saved could be devoted to war work, which is the main effort of the society in these times.

Mrs. Packenham then called on Mr. Hughes to say a few words. He spoke of the good time he and his family had enjoyed in the fellowship of the society during his stay in Peterborough and cited many little incidents of every day which brought the Welsh Society to mind. He congratulated the society on their efforts and arrangements for this year's banquet and extended his sincere good wishes for the coming year. Mr. Hughes then proposed the toast to "Wales" the gathering sang with fervor their Welsh National Anthem, "Land of My Fathers," in their native tongue. A toast to Canada was followed by the singing of "O Canada."

The tables were then cleared and the musical part of the evening, a tradition of the Welsh race was enjoyed to the full. Old Welsh songs and hymns were sung, many in their native language. Between the numbers community singing was enjoyed. The program was as follows: Vocal solos by Mr. A. Kirkcaldy, Rev. J. L. Hughes, Mrs. J. Cairns, Miss Gladys Mills, Miss Aileen Hughes, Mrs. C. Armstrong, Mr. J. Cairns, and Mr. J. Parry; readings by Mrs. J. Henderson; piano solos by Miss M. Flowers; accompanists, Miss M. Flowers and Mrs. J. L. Hughes; Mr. A. Kirkcaldy was chairman of the musical program.

What Is the Canadian Women's Voluntary Service

The Canadian Women's Voluntary Services (C.W.V.S.) is an organization which acts as a central supply for all kinds of voluntary help in war work. When Mrs. X enrolls in the C.W.V.S., she indicates the kind of service she is willing to give. When there is a need for that particular kind of service, the need is made known to the C.W.V.S., and the C.W.V.S. in turn, gives Mrs. X her chance to do the kind of work she elected to do. The C.W.V.S. aims to have help available whenever help is needed to further a total war effort.

The C.W.V.S. will not set up courses of training which are already being given by other organizations. It will enroll women who wish to take those courses, and then turn them over to the particular organizations which are handling them. If, however, there is need for some kind of training, such as hospital aid, for which there is no course being given, then such a course will be set up by the C.W.V.S. The C.W.V.S. is determined to co-ordinate all women's voluntary war services, not duplicate them or in any way compete with them.

A special appeal is made to all women who are newcomers to Peterborough and have not yet found their niche in the community's war effort.

Is the C.W.V.S. another women's club?—No. There are no meetings to attend. An executive committee, consisting of local volunteers, conducts the business of the C.W.V.S.

What is the objective of the C.W.V.S.?—To fit every woman regardless of her age into her proper war-time work either for full or part-time voluntary service.

Will the C.W.V.S. conflict with any existing organization?—No. It will co-ordinate the work of all women and all women's organizations. It will eliminate unnecessary overlapping.

Must I belong to other organizations first?—No. Every woman's voluntary services are valuable, whether she belong to another organization or not. So that includes your services.

Is the need of women's voluntary services urgent?—Yes. Every day there are fresh demands for volunteer workers. Existing war-time conditions require the attention of Peterborough women.

What is the nature of these demands? — Hospital aids, clerical workers, nurses, civil defence workers, factory workers, playground supervisors, salvage workers, canteen workers, assistants at first aid posts, etc.

How does one become a Civil Defence worker?—Enroll with the C.W.V.S. Instruction courses will be available to equip women to serve in one of the civil defence services, as air raid wardens, transport drivers, first aid volunteers, etc.

Where does the C.W.V.S. function?—Units are being established as quickly as possible throughout the province. Already they are functioning in Toronto, Hamilton, Port Arthur and Fort William. Like organizations are working in Britain, Australia, South Africa and the United States.

How will I become part of the C.W.V.S.?—Enroll at C.W.V.S. office, Bank of Toronto Building, 147 Hunter street west, on or after March 10.

Be sure to see the film, "Britannia Is a Woman," the story of the British Women's Voluntary Services, in the Collegiate Auditorium, Monday, March 9, at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Gordon Conant, a vice-president of the C.W.V.S., and Mrs. Graham-Bryce, formerly of the B.W.V.S. in Manchester, England, will speak on the work of the C.W.V.S.

Millbrook Bride Widely Entertained Following Marriage To Major Stewart

MILLBROOK, Mar. 4—(ENS). — Mrs. L. J. Stewart, formerly Miss Betty Montgomery, whose marriage to Major L. J. Stewart, of the Canadian Army Dental Corps, Kingston, took place quietly at Belleville in January left for her new home on Saturday morning, her husband having motored here the previous evening.

For the past 18 years Mrs. Stewart has been the popular and efficient teacher of the Junior Room in the local Public School, and her resignation from this position was accepted with regret by the School Board. Miss Gladys Williamson, formerly of Zion School, has been engaged in Mrs. Stewart's place, Miss Betty Carveth succeeding Miss Williamson, while her school at the Marsh is now being taught by Mrs. Irene Ferguson.

A number of social events were held in Mrs. Stewart's honor previous to her leaving Millbrook, among these being a tea in the school library last Thursday after the pupils had been dismissed, the combined teaching staff of the Public and Continuation Schools being the host and hostesses for the pleasant occasion. These included Misses Flora E. Morgan, A. Berry, and Mrs. O. Mellon of the M.C.S., Percy Hamilton and Miss Jean Burnham of the Public School. Venerable Archdeacon and Mrs. William Simpson were also present, and former pupils of Miss Montgomery, Betty Thornton and Frances Tickner, helped with the service of the guests.

An informal presentation of a handsome electric reading lamp was made the guest of honor, who voiced her thanks briefly, but with evident appreciation of the kindness and warm personal friendship which had prompted the gift. The following afternoon the last of the bride's connection as a teacher in the local school, the pupils of her own room, together with former pupils from the other rooms of the school, presented her with several lovely pieces of cut crystal and glass ware, included among them being large cake and sandwich plates, salad plates, fruit bowls, etc., for which the recipient made acknowledgment in appreciative terms.

Earlier in the week, Mrs. W. R. Howard entertained at bridge for a few intimate friends of the bride, a shower of Madeira pillow slips, and handsome bath towels with matching face cloths being the gifts which featured the evening at the close of play, and before the dainty lunch was served. On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kennedy were host and hostess for a bridge in Mrs. Stewart's honor at their home south of the village, four tables being in use for play. The prize for high score went to Ivan L. H. Gray, and the consolation to Miss Marguerite Russell of Peterborough, sister of the hostess. Among the personal gifts of which the guest of honor was the recipient was that of Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy, an electric table lamp, and accompanying this as of probably a more utilitarian character was a heavy aluminum frying-pan of generous proportions, and of a kind not likely to be again purchasable for some time to come owing to the demands of the war.

On Friday night Mrs. Donald Tinney was hostess for a dinner bridge at her home in Cavan, with Mrs. Stewart as guest of honor and three tables in use for play. The decorative scheme carried out the shower idea artistically, an enamelled watering-can in pink and white being suspended from the chandelier with fluted streamers in the same shades reaching to the four corners of the tea table. A central lake in crystal container had water lilies floating on its surface, each bearing a tiny lighted candle. As the hostess presented the prize-winners, Mrs. M. E. Hobbs and Mrs. Franklin Bannister, with their awards, she informally included Mrs. Stewart, the gift in this case being a handsomely-bound and indexed recipe book. In this had been placed the signed favorite recipes of the other guests, who had been specially asked to bring these for the shower, which was referred to with keen appreciation and gratitude by the recipient.

A linen shower given Mrs. Stewart by the Public School Teachers' Association of Millbrook and Cavan took place at the home of Miss Jean L. Burnham the week before her departure from the village for her new place of residence at Kingston.

Miss Amy Emmett Is Wed To George Thompson

A quiet wedding took place in St. John's Church on Tuesday, when Amy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Emmett, was married to George H. Thompson, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Thompson. Canon W. P. Robertson performed the ceremony and Mr. Frederick G. Mann, L. Mus. played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a suit of Pacific blue trimmed with silver fox, and black accessories. She wore a corsage of American Beauty roses. Mr. Lambert, who came to Canada in 1939, was formerly editor of th B.B.C. Weekly, "The Listener," and is well-known as an author, lecturer, broadcaster and organizer. His entertaining and instructive radio talks have done much to aid our knowledge and understanding of an important aspect of the war.

Mission Circle Hears Talk On Western Missions

Rev. Dr. A. J. Vining of Toronto was the speaker at an open meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of Murray street Baptist church on Tuesday evening, when he gave an illustrated talk on "Our Great West."

Beginning with pioneer days, Dr. Vining traced the development and advancement of Baptist work in the western province. He paid tribute to the faith and vision of the dauntless people in eastern Canada who saw the great need and opportunity of missionary work in that vast new country and sent out men and money for the task. Churches which began with a mere handful of people meeting in the humblest surroundings have grown to be large congregations and have in their turn contributed many thousands of dollars, as well as highly trained and consecrated missionaries to spread the gospel abroad.

Particularly interesting were the pictures of various European groups who began their work as distinctly national churches that are gradually dropping national names and becoming Canadian Baptist churches.

The work of pioneer missionaries and ministers was warmly praised. Two names stand out. One is that of Rev. Alexander Macdonald, who went out early, as one of the first Baptist missionaries in all the Canadian west. He was known as Pioneer Macdonald. Rev. Dr. C. C. McLaurin was for many years superintendent of western Baptist missions and travelled many thousands of miles, often on foot. He organized over 70 churches and until the end of his long life was filled with enthusiasm for the work. In his later years he wrote a book entitled "Pioneering in the West," and mortgaged his farm to raise funds for its publication in order to spread information and increase interest in Christian missions in the west.

Dr. Vining was himself superintendent of Western missions for some years and in making an impassioned appeal for the support of this work he prophesied that the time would come when the west with its vast resources would dominate the east.

Rev. H. J. Sutcliffe voiced an expression of thanks to Dr. Vining for his inspiring address. The president, Mrs. W. H. Kidd, convened the meeting and Mrs. A. H. Campbell led in the devotional exercises.

WIFE'S VALUE TO HUSBAND NOT MEASURED IN DOLLARS

She May Seem a Financial Liability But More Than Makes Up For It.

RECENTLY a bridegroom was told to pay the marrying magistrate "what you think it's worth." The new husband handed over 25 cents, whereupon the magistrate gave him back 15 cents in change. To the casual observer it would appear that this transaction marks the all-time low price for brides, but it raises the very interesting question of how much a wife is really worth to her husband. Of course, if you put it from the sentimental angle, an ever-loving wife has a price above rubies. You cannot assess in dollars and cents the devotion that never wanes, the tenderness that never fails the loyalty that makes a woman stand by her husband when all the balance of the world has turned against him, that makes her wait for him outside the penitentiary door and try and hide his shame even from his own eyes, the love that endures all things and forgives all things and kisses the hand that strikes her. "She stuck to me like a dog under a wagon," said an old mountaineer when preaching his wife's funeral. There is no price tag on a wife like that. But, leaving out of the discussion the fact that a wife's devotion is soothing to a man's vanity and stimulating to his ego and hence a luxury that is worth all it costs, what is a wife's worth to her husband? Many men will say not even a split dime, and that getting married is an extravagance into which a man is lured by some supersaleswoman and for which he has to pay, and pay, and pay as long as he lives.

False Ideas of Liability

The theme song of these men who regard wives as liabilities instead of assets is: "When I was single my pockets did jingle, and I wish I were single again." And when they add up their monthly bills for hats and frocks and beauty treatments and clubs and entertaining and all the other aids and perquisites to keeping a modern woman a going concern, they feel that a wife is first aid to bankruptcy and that they would be millionaires if they were only bachelors.

Yet it is observable that until a man marries he rarely saves any money or really gets a start in his business or profession. The reason for this is that his wife not only constitutes herself the Watch Dog of the Home Treasury who protects him from parasitic relatives and grafting friends, but also she forces upon him the necessity of putting more energy into his work. Having to hustle to pay an extravagant wife's bills has made many a man a go-getter who amassed a fortune.

Virtually every man desires a home. Few men dream of spending their lives in clubs and hotels, but a wife is as much a part of the necessary equipment of a home as a cooking stove or a vacuum cleaner. But although running a home is a twenty-four-hour-a-day job, with no holidays or time off, even on Saturdays and Sundays, most husbands regard it as a pleasant indoor sport in which their wives enjoy engaging and that their incessant labor is just sort of a hobby, and that they are amply rewarded by being given their clothes and board.

Realizes Value Too Late

It is only after a man's wife dies and he has to hire half a dozen different people to do his cooking and washing and ironing and taking care of the children that he

Millions Spent On British Ration System

LONDON, March 4 (CP Cable).—Millions of dollars of the British taxpayers money is being spent yearly to trim the nation's diet to wartime standards and its clothes to the limits of propriety.

These dollars—or their equivalent in pounds sterling—are what it costs the government to administer the vast wartime organization of rationing essential to a nation whose only outsides sources of supply are separated by submarine-infested oceans.

"Millions" is the only estimate anyone concerned with the rationing system would venture as to its cost.

A week-long search of the records disclosed that there are more than 30,000 full and part-time employees of the food ministry's headquarters and country staffs involving an estimated £3,000,000 ($13,350,000) a year in salaries.

Since two-thirds of the employees were engaged after rationing began in January, 1940, it's reasonable to presume that a majority of them were brought in for that job.

Yearly Books Now

Every civilian in Britain has had six ration books since the war began, one for each of the first three semi-annual issues and three in the latest full-year allotment. That's approximately 300,000,000 books and the ministry estimated that more than 200,000 miles of paper, 8½ inches wide, went into their manufacture. And 8,800 pounds of wire was needed to bind each issue.

It was to reduce the use of some of this material that the ministry decided last July to put rationing on a year basis instead of semi-annually. The result was a saving of 1,000 tons of paper annually.

At the same time it was decided to stamp coupons in stores instead of clipping them. This saved the grocers and butchers the problem of returning to food offices 14,500,000,000 coupons a year and also saved 15,000,000 official envelopes—or 75 tons of paper—in which the clipped coupons were sent back.

As far as the cost is concerned it is estimated that it takes £70,000 to put out on edition of 45,000,000 to 50,000,000 books plus another £90,000 for postal delivery. Add to that £16,000 needed to instal three machines which print the books and you have a rough idea what it costs to keep down the waistline in wartime.

Last month, Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in Canada, said in an interview at Toronto that one of the reasons the government did not favor direct rationing to consumers in Canada is the heavy cost of such a system. He estimated it would cost approximately $15,000,000 to introduce the system.

Kings Row . . . .

By HENRY BELLAMANN

THE STORY: Fortuitous are circumstances that mold personality of sensitive, musical Parris Mitchell, orphan. Tragedies of adolescence are separation, by her cruel father, from his childhood sweetheart Renee; death of adored grandmother Madame von Eln; suicide of recluse Dr. Tower, with whom Parris reads medicine, and murder of Cassandra Tower — Parris' second boyhood love — by her father. Tower, insane, feared insanity in his strange, beautiful child. Narrow, gossipy Kings Row had closed in on him. Parris' acquaintance with demented Lucy Carr and half-wit Benny Singer—kindly, harmless people—decides him on study of mental ailments. Brighter side of Kings Row, for Parris, has been friendship with blithe, rakish Drake McHugh, forbidden by cold Dr. Gordon to see Louise Gordon, Drake's sweetheart. As Parris leaves to study medicine in Vienna, Drake meets gay Randy Monaghan, old schoolmate, at station.

CHAPTER XIX
DRAKE DREAMS

"May I come in, Colonel Skeffington?"

The Colonel looked up from his paper. Tom Carr was standing in the door. His immense shock of white hair and great beard seemed almost to fill the doorway.

"What's up today, Tom?"

"Nothing special, sir. I'm going away."

"What about your job at the nursery?"

"Well, they've let everybody go out there."

"That's too bad. Madame von Eln would be sorry to know you're leaving the place. She thought a heap of you."

"She was a fine woman. Not many like her."

"Well, Tom. Mighty sorry to see you go. Where are you thinking of going?"

"West."

"I wish you luck. How are you fixed for the trip?"

"All right, Colonel, all right. I saved some money. I got me a covered wagon—looks like a horse trader's outfit—hitched right out there on the south side of the square—but it's fixed up all right."

"I guess you've got about the last of the covered wagons, eh, Tom?"

"Maybe, so far as the wagon itself is concerned, but I take it there's always a steady movement west. It's natural, somehow. Whether it goes on in wagons, or by train, or however. Seems to me you're kind of in line with the will of the Lord when you move west. It's against the grain to go back the other direction."

The Colonel laughed. "Maybe you're right. It's history."

"But that's not what I came here for. I wanted to talk to you about Benny Singer."

"Singer? Oh, yes, that boy Madame took on her place. How'd he make out?"

"All right, Colonel—fine. But he ought to have a job somewhere. I'd like to see him in something before I leave. Now, Benny's a little weak in the head. But he's willing, and good-natured. He's got a regular hand with growing things."

"Well, I guess I could use a boy myself. You know I don't like to hoe in my vegetable garden as much as I used to."

"He could take care of your place fine, Colonel. Mow the grass, and the like."

"Tell him to come in to see me."

"I'll do that, and right away. He's waiting in my wagon down there."

"All right, all right. And—the best of luck to you."

A small crowd had gathered around Tom's "covered wagon." There were hearty exchanges, and a good deal of laughter from the men standing around. Everybody knew Tom Carr, and everybody liked him. But no one overly respected him.

"Fine old fellow. Honest, too. But not much force—no, sir, not much force."

"You got to be hard in this world."

"Yeh. Look at Rodney Green. Started as a hand down there in the clay pit. Now he owns it and lives up on Union street."

"They say his boy's a smart one, too."

"Yeh. Fulmer. He's got a job in the tax collector's office now. Says he's going to run for recorder next fall. Studying law on the side."

"It's better for 'em to get out and scratch like their old folks did."

"You bet. Now look at that McHugh boy. Going to have a pile of money when he's 21. He don't do nothing but burn up the roads in that rubber-tired buggy. Out hellin' around ever' night."

"Yeh, I seen him, too. His folks was high-toned, but he sure comes down—"

"That's the way it goes."

"Yep, that's the way it goes."

* * *

Tom Carr drove out Federal street. At this moment he had not a care in the world. With Benny in Colonel Skeffington's employ, he felt that the boy was assured of a certain amount of protection.

A half mile beyond the Macintosh place he met a trim, shiny buggy spinning into town. He recognized Drake McHugh, and held up his arm. Drake pulled up beside the wagon.

"Why, howdy, Mr. Carr. You're going away, I hear."

"Somewhere west." The old man glanced at the good-looking girl sitting beside Drake.

"This is Miss Randy Monaghan, Mr. Carr."

Tom inclined his head politely. "Howdy, Miss Randy. I guess I know your pa."

She smiled. It was a frank, easy smile. "I expect you do. Everybody does. He works on the railroad."

"I'm very pleased to make your acquaintance. Drake, what do you hear from Parris?"

"Well, sir, Mr. Carr, he doesn't write much."

"Getting along all right, is he?"

"Oh, yes."

"Well, when you write to him, give him my best regards. You tell him I sent him my very best."

"I'll do that, Mr. Carr. And good luck to you."

"Thank you. Same to you—both of you."

Drake's restless horse sprang forward at a word. Tom picked up the reins again. "Get up, boys, get on now." The new wagon creaked just a little with its heavy load.

* * *

"Randy, I want to show you something."

"All right. Show ahead."

Drake looked down good-humoredly into the impudent face that returned a half-affectionate, half-jeering grimace. They reached town and Drake took a short cut across some vacant lots north of the public school.

Drake pointed, and the horse started nervously. "You see all that—all this long sweep of hillside?"

"Yes."

"All right. This land—all the way around that bend of the creek, as far as Parris' old place—is for sale. Dirt cheap."

"I'm just holding my breath for the big surprise. Have you bought it?"

"'Tain't mine yet. I won't get my money till late this summer. But Peyton Graves and I want to do this together."

"What for?"

"Can you imagine what it would be like to have a big house built up here right where we are, with pretty green lawns back of the house running all the way to the street, and terraces and rock steps leading down the hill to the creek?"

"Yes. It would be windy."

"Shut up. It's not windy all the time. Look at the view. And how private it would be. Nice, great big lots, big enough for croquet grounds and tennis courts. It's the prettiest land around this town."

"It would be nice," she conceded.

"You bet it would."

"Only rich people could build houses like you're talking about, and have grounds like that."

"Well, that's all right. We'll sell 'em to rich people."

"But how many rich people are there in Kings Row?"

"Not so many, but enough, I guess."

"And all of 'em have already got houses, on Union street, or Federal, or even Walnut."

"Aw, quit throwing cold water on this idea."

"Well, I just think you ought to look into it mighty well before you put all your money in it."

"Peyton Graves thinks just like I do about it, and he's in the real estate office downtown where he hears talk about real estate all the time."

"I don't care."

"We wouldn't expect to sell all of it right away. We'd hold it."

"What would pay the interest on your loan while you hold it?"

Drake stared.

"I'm supposing," she said, "that you wouldn't pay cash for it, all at once?"

"No." He spoke doubtfully. "No, I guess not. It'd be too much."

"Who does it belong to?"

"Thurston and Macmillan St. George have got a mortgage on it."

"Funny they never thought of developing it. They're right smart about land, and money—those two."

Drake looked sideways at Randy. "Gee, you're smart, aren't you?"

"No. But I hear people talk all the time—mostly kind of poor people, Drake. Once you understand how poor people have to scheme and scrimp and plan to get along you begin to understand something about money. Of course, I'm just a kid—and a girl besides."

"You're doggone smart. That's what I say."

"Well, then, you know what I think would be a good idea?"

"What?"

"You know all that bottom land on the other side of the creek, down below where I live?"

"Oh, yes! I know where you mean—southeast of town, down from the asylum?"

"That's the place. I bet it could be fixed up. Could be cleared and drained. I heard Pa say that—I don't know."

"Well, what in heck could you do with it after you had it, and fixed it up?"

"Drake, there's lots and lots of people who work in Kings Row, people in the tobacco factory, and the stocking mill, and the clay pits and the coal mines, who don't own their own homes."

"Well, gee, kid, they haven't got any money!"

"Not much. But couldn't somebody buy that land down there awful cheap and clean it up and sell little lots pretty cheap? It looks to me like a little profit on a lot of little lots is as good as a bigger profit on just a few big lots."

"Yes. Of course. It does sound like chicken feed, though—a whole lot of nickles and dimes—"

"Make dollars."

"I'll talk to Peyton about it. Course we can't do anything until I have some cash. Peyton thinks he could borrow some, and—"

"But for all that land down below town—I bet you could buy it for a mighty little bit."

"Maybe you're right."

Drake clucked to the horse. "Let's go, honey." They bumped and swayed back to the street.

Drake swished the tasseled whip above the horse's ears. "Say, honey. Let's ride down and look at that bottom land."

"No, Drake. Not today."

"Why not?"

"'Cause we'd have to pass right by home, and Pa's at home by this time."

"Well, for goodness' sake—"

"Now, Drake—"

"Well, ain't I good enough, even—?"

"Drake! You were just going to say, even for me!"

Drake turned bright red.

"No. I was going to say, even for them."

"It's not because they think you are not good enough for me, but—" She looked away and set her lips hard.

"But what, Randy?"

She looked back at him. "It's this. They know I'm not good enough for you. You belong up on Union street. Your uncle and your aunt were rich and high-toned. My Pa is a railroad section boss."

"I like you—"

"Yes. I think you do. You know I like you, don't you?"

"I guess so."

Drake flushed.

"Why haven't you ever gone with some of the girls uptown?"

"I was kind of gone on Louise Gordon once, but her old man wouldn't let me come around."

"Why?"

"Thought I was too wild."

"So you came downtown. Anything south of the courthouse!"

"Randy, you know that's not so. You know we met that day Parris went to Europe. I was awful blue and took you riding, and you were so nice, and I just like you."

Britain Jumps Hard On Black Markets

LONDON, March 4 (CP)—Public anger over black market profiteering in the midst of Britain's most critical war period was answered yesterday by a government announcement that stringent new regulations and penalties are to be put into operation.

Castigating food racketeers as "a danger to our cause," an official spokesman declared "we are determined that they shall be stamped out." He said details of the new measures would be disclosed soon, and pointed out that the Ministry of Food already employs 800 inspectors' and has made 40,000 prosecutions.

J. R. Clynes, Labor member for the Platting division of Manchester, appealing for drastic treatment of Black Market operators, said their crimes are "Treason against the State itself," and suggested the racketeer should be "put out of harm's way for a very long time, if not for the whole of his life."

Mr. Clynes, a former Home Secretary, said "I am certain that public indignation and the sense of wrong being endured by the public will support the Ministry (of Food) in any steps which they are taking to inflict heavier penalties than have so far been made known."

Beverly Baxter called Black Marketing "the most sinister form of sabotage."

He said "the fighting soldier pays a terrible penalty for momentary cowardice, but these saboteurs who vilify the country's name should be punished by means other than five months board and lodging at the government's expense."

He added: "There are British-born Jewish people in this to far too great an extent. I don't want to go further than that. I appeal to the great Jewish community to whom we all owe so much and who owe so much to us to bring every pressure to bear rather than bring upon themselves those things which are bad for them and unworthy of this nation."

Mammoth Bazaar Planned By Guild

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 4. —(ENS).—Meeting on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. J. P. Archer, Booth Street, members of Christ Church Parish Guild whose Lenten activities have been practically eliminated, made plans for a gigantic bazaar. It was some of the features of this which formed the chief discussion of the business period or which the president, Mrs. R. A. Linton presided. Among the regular features will, of course be the sale of home cooking and quilts, but at least two innovations are being planned. One of these is a white elephant table to which donations from members who consider them in that class will be sent, and the other new feature will be a "Made in Canada Products" section, and for this Mrs. Archer offered a number of suggestions that made members confident it would be a success.

Heroic Scottie Stays With Wounded Pal

Somewhere in England, March 4 (CP Cable)—Canadian fliers who carried Britain's parachute troops to Bruneval, France, last Saturday, aren't particularly enthused about their part in the hazardous operation.

Pilot Officer E. Smith of Vancouver, for instance, says he got a bigger kick talking to soldiers the following day.

"There wasn't a lot in it for us," he said. "It was more interesting talking to the men the next morning. They had a whale of a time.

"One of the fellows we carried told how he sat on the roof of a German barracks and tossed hand grenades into the window to drive out German troops into the arms—rather Tommy guns—of other parachute troops," he added.

Sgt. R. J Chisholm, also of Vancouver, was rear-gunner of another bomber and he came away from his interview with parachute troops carrying a German button as a souvenir, gift of a Scotsman who removed it from a Nazi's uniform.

Rear-gunners had a "real show" as bombers went in low to drop the troops, Chisholm said. "We all got a bang out of spraying those machine-gun nests and gave them all we had."

PO. G. L. Court of Weston, Ont., was all praise for the parachute troops. "They weren't big fellows at all," he said, "on the contrary they were just medium-sized or on the small side. But believe me the job they did showed they knew their stuff."

The Ontario flier said the troops sang songs all the way to their destination. "We learned of one heroic 'Scottie' who, although wounded in the high, voluntarily stayed behind to remain with his badly-wounded pal. The last their mates heard of them was their Tommy-guns blazing away at the attacking Germans."

R.C.M.P. Discusses Crime Detection

The speaker spoke on crime detection methods of the R.C.M.P. and taking as an example a post office robbery. He told how the various angles of approach towards a solution of the robbery were worked out, leading to an ultimate solution of the robbery and the apprehensoin of those responsible.

The speaker was introduced by Fred Chalk and the vote of thanks was moved by C. P. Jones.

Miss Bedford gave secretary's report and in the absence of the treasurer gave that also. They will hold their next meeting at Mrs. W. D. Woods' home on March 9.

nition of the fact he had produced 100 per cent first grade cheese during the season. The factory turned out well over 125,000 pounds during that summer according to Mr. Shillinglaw and this record of quality made twelve years ago still rates with the best, since comparatively few cheesemakers of today, even with all the advantages of modern equipment such as artificially cooled curing rooms and pasteurization of whey, can touch this achievement. He got his start at Brae factory where he worked for two years as an apprentice with the late Charles Mills. From there he went to Harold and following a third year at Brae he built his own factory which was subsequently named the Prince of Wales. This he operated as owner maker for twenty-one years before he sold it and went as maker to Kimberley. It was while he was at Kimberley in 1926 that he received another of his many awards for high scoring cheese. The production for that year averaged 99.4 per cent, according to the diploma presented to him by the United Dairyman's Co-operative. Busy six days a week for from eight to nine months of the year Mr. Shillinglaw found little time to devote to other interests, however he joined the Orange order at an early date and was made an honorary member of the Sentinel Lodge L.O.L. 2322 at Pethericks in 1937. Since retiring he has continued to enjoy the best of health and not only looks many years younger than his actual age of 78 but he also has the vigor of a much younger man. His time now is devoted principally to gardening in summer and the few chores that go with a country dwelling.

Mrs. Shillinglaw is equally fit and although her church activities have been necessarily trimmed down she was at one time an enthusiastic member of the Burnbrae branch of the Women's Institute and also of various women's organizations at Burnbrae church. "The Institute work was carried on very much the same as it is now only we didn't have any refugee work to do. It was all for the soldiers." She was taken very much by surprise when on Monday neighbors began to arrive at the house with gifts that ranged all the way from a large beautifully decorated cake complete with fifty candles to a silver flower basket filled with yellow daffodils. The neighbors supplied all the refreshments and arranged the entire evening for Mr. and Mrs. Shillinglaw, who received countless messages of congratulation in addition to those tendered by the more than one hundred visitors who came bearing various tokens of their esteem. From her only son Mrs. Shillinglaw received a lovely gold pendant and to his father Leslie gave a pen and pencil set. Mrs. Annie Adams presided at the tea table during the afternoon and Mrs. Robert Little was accorded the honor during the evening.

WorstColdWave In Years Grips UK Seven Weeks

LONDON, March 4 (CP) — A cold spell lasting seven weeks, the longest since the turn of the century, struck Britain during January and February, it was permitted to be revealed yesterday.

The first three weeks of February, when the temperature was 10 degrees below the average for the period, were the coldest since 1895. Canals, ponds and rivers were frozen for weeks in many districts and became gathering places for children and adults who enjoyed the best skating weather in years.

The drop in temperature was accompanied by two great snowstorms which isolated towns and villages and threatened supply routes.

In mid-January a great blizzard swept the country, burying trucks and busses in twenty-foot drifts in the West Highlands and laying a foot-deep blanket of snow in the streets of Glasgow. In Newcastle-on-Tyne it got so cold that water facilities of thousands of homes froze.

Four days later a second great storm blocked railways and highways, delaying delivery of important war materials. The Cotswold Hills country was isolated for days. In some railway stations beer froze in the pumps which force it out of the barrels.

Trains running between Scotland and Southern England were as much as eighteen hours late.

Garbage Collection System Is Being Studied By Cobourg Council

COBOURG, Ont., March 4. —(ENS). — Municipally controlled system of garbage collection, paid for by a tax levy was studied at a joint meeting of the Board of Health and the town council last night.

The garbage collection system was proposed by the Board of Health as a remedy to what the Board termed a menace from uncollected garbage left around by some householders.

Council decided to defer striking the tax rate until the Board had prepared an estimate of the cost of such a proposal.

It was said by the Board of Health that under the present system in vogue here, where a citizen had his own garbage collected, the individual average cost was $10 to $15 a year. This rate would cost the people as a whole, some $4,500 to $6,000 a year. Under municipal control in which the collection would be let by tender under stipulated regulations, the whole system could be paid by a tax levy ranging from ½ to 1 mill. At the present cost it was equivalent in terms of taxation to three mills, the Board members pointed out.

Increase Expected.

Mayor Jack Burnet said, however, that the council faced the uncertainty of getting the provincial subsidy this year and Reeve Roy Dodge added that the public school estimates might be up this year as well as increases in civic salaries.

The joint decision of the meeting was that the council would defer striking the tax rate while the Board of Health obtained an estimate of costs and also learned the cost of running such a system in other towns similar to Cobourg.

Dr. W. E. Wilkins, local M.O.H., told the meeting that Cobourg was behind the times in not having its garbage handled in the manner suggested and reminded that if the present collection system constituted a nuisance from a health standpoint the Board of Health had the power to take measures to make the other system compulsory.

realizes that his marriage license paid him the biggest dividends he ever got on any investment.

A wife is worth her weight in gold as an alibi. The poor bachelor's sins of omission and commission are on his own head, but the married man has a standing excuse for all his failures and blunders in his wife. If he is a drunkard, his wife drove him to drink. If he doesn't get along in the world, it is his wife's extravagance that ruins him.

If he is a philanderer, it is because his wife got fat or didn't understand him. If his children are young hoodlums, it is because their mother didn't bring them up properly. Surely for a man to be able to lay all of his faults and weaknesses on his wife's shoulders is a luxury that is cheap at any price.

Show They Are Useful

Wives are also useful because they furnish an escape valve for their husbands' tempers and nerves. Many a man saves his job, or keeps his clients or patients, by saying to his wife the mean things he dared not say to his boss or his clientele. In this county, at least, wives make and keep their husbands' social positions. They act as the husbands' press agents. They send the flowers, the telegrams of congratulations and the letters of condolence to the right people that their husbands would never bother to do. They buy their husbands' Christmas gifts and wedding presents. They tell all of their husbands' white lies for them. And generally lubricate the wheels of life for them.

So, considering all of the multifarious things that a wife does for her husband, it does seem that she is worth more than a dime to him.

Childless Marriage

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband and I have been married nearly 15 years. Our marriage has been a struggle, but it has been happy except for the disappointment that we have no children. That is such a great grief to my husband that I have decided to leave him and let him get a divorce and marry a widow we know who has two fine children to whom he is devoted. Don't you think that is the best thing I could do? MRS. J. L. M.

ANSWER—No. I think it would be a perfectly idiotic thing for you to do. If your husband is so crazy for children, why don't you adopt some? There are thousands of poor, forlorn, orphan children who need a good home and just such loving and good parents as you and your husband would make.

Your husband has given you no evidence that he is in love with the widow or tired of you, so why break up your happy home and go through all the mess of a divorce You must have been reading some old-fashioned novel to get such a crazy notion in your head. Forget it and do the sane and sensible thing.

DOROTHY DIX.

OBITUARIES

JOSEPHINE TURCOTT

Attended by her dear relatives, friends and neighbors, the funeral of the late Mrs. Josephine Turcott, was held from the J. J. Duffus Funeral Parlors on Tuesday morning to St. Peter's Cathedral where High Mass of Requiem was offered by Reverend Father Gregory Wolff, who also preached the sermon and extended his sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

In addition to those already mentioned, Mrs. Turcott is survived by three sisters, (Margaret) Mrs. John Palmer, Wellington, Ont.; (Sarah) Mrs. William McDonald, Tamworth, Ont.; (Mary) Mrs. Paddock, New York.

Those who attended the funeral from out of town were Mrs. Palmer, son, and daughter Mrs. Baird.

Pall-bearers were Fred Steinkrauss, Hosanah Gordon, Isadore Gordon, Lawrence Gordon, John Palmer and Harry LaFlante.

Interment was conducted in St. Peter's Cemetery by Reverend J. T. Finn.

HENRY TOCHER.

There passed away recently a member of one of Brock township's oldest families, in the person of Henry Tocher, the son of James and Elizabeth Glendenning Tocher.

As a young man he graduated from Pickering and Belleville Colleges. He was married in 1888 to Ann Milner Bewell, who predeceased him in 1924.

In religion he was a life-long member of the Presbyterian church, being a member of the Kirk Session at 30, and in 1912 was a delegate to the General Assembly in Edmonton. He was a staunch Liberal and a member of the Masonic Order.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. F. MacTavish, assisted by Rev. R. M. Patterson and Rev. F. Pooley of Omemee.

He is survived by his widow, Anne Marion Cummings and one daughter, Devena (Mrs. Leslie Hadden), Peterborough.

FREDERICK CHARLES BENNETT

Funeral of the late Frederick Charles Bennett was held Saturday afternoon from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Wallace Shearer, Buckhorn.

Mr. Bennett, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Bennett, was a life-long resident of the district and was connected with the lumbering industry for many years. He and his family have been largely responsible in the building and success of the community.

Besides his sorrowing wife, the former Alma McGarvey, he leaves to mourn his passing one daughter, Mrs. Wallace Shearer, Buckhorn, one brother, Napier Bennett of Peterborough and one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Windover of Toronto.

Pallbearers were Melville McWilliams, William Shearer, Warden Finnie, Rolland Armstrong, Charles Herkimer, Dave Montgomery.

A large number of floral tributes were carried to the graveside by flower bearers made up of neighbors and immediate friends of the deceased.

The Rev. William McDonald, of Peterborough, was the officiating clergyman and interment was made in the family plot in Lakehurst cemetery.

MRS. ARCHIBALD R. MOORE.

Teach Yourself Piano in Short-Cut Way

Music Adds To Friends

"I could listen to you play all evening!" Even if it were a chore to learn to play, it would be worth it to hear nice things like that from new friends.

But you can easily teach yourself to play with the help of a short-cut chart.

This chart pictures the most used part of the piano keyboard. With each key is the note which is its symbol on the music staff.

Place the chart behind the keys as our diagram shows and you see at once which key to strike for each note.

You find, too, that the same keys, five black and seven white, are repeated throughout the keyboard, making it simple to master. Then you learn musical signs, how to read time and key signatures. You soon are playing catchy waltzes, fox-trots.

Our 24-page instruction book gives keyboard chart, explains elements of music, musical signs, short-cut chord method of playing popular music. Includes three favorite airs for practise.

For your copy of "Quick Course in Piano Playing" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of instruction book.

TOP SCORE VS. BOTTOM

WHEN YOU seek to make a clear top score on a deal, better than anybody else in the duplicate is likely to obtain, with the kind of bid or play which almost surely will give you bottom score if it fails, you are usually going against the odds That is, most such efforts are in spots where the chances are your try will not work, as the odds are against it. Once in a while; however, you have what amounts to practically an exactly even chance. Then it will pay you sometimes to make the "shot"—which is really not a "shot" in the truest sense of the term, as the odds are not against you.

When West led the club 7 and the Q came in, South saw he had received there a gift trick which others probably would receive, too. That built him an almost surely marked finesse against the J and also indicated a probable tenace position in spades which not only prevented this West from leading tha suit, but probably would impel the Wests of other tables to do likewise.

So South decided to try for an extra trick, on an even chance. He took the dummy's two heart honors, led to the diamond K and finessed the diamond J. When this worked, he used the diamond A for a discard of the spade 2 and led the heart 5 to the K. The club 10 was finessed and the A laid down, East ruffing with his heart J and cashing the spade A. The spade Q, however, was ruffed, and the last two tricks went to the heart 8 and club 8.

If the diamond J finesse had failed, East could immediately have taken the setting tricks with that one, plus the heart J and two spades. But South was out for top or bottom, on an even chance, and was smiled upon by fortune.

Canadian Units World's Best Mechanized

WINDSOR, Ont., March 4—(CP)—Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Commander of the Canadian Corps Overseas(arrived here Tuesday for the concluding inspections on his five-day tour of Western Ontario war installations.

His plans for today included visits to the Ford and Chrysler plants to watch manufacture of the vehicles of war with which the Canadian army has become identified extensively. Tonight his private car will be connected with a train leaving for Brockville, where he will inspect the Canadian Army Officers' Training School Wednesday before returning to Ottawa.

One of the most important statements to come out of his trip to Canada he made yesterday in Hamilton during an informal address to instructors at the Canadian Army Trades School.

"Mechanization has been carried farther in the Canadian Army than in any other army in the world," he said, and told the instructors that their responsibility was to maintain the supply of good mechanics and engineers necessary to successful use of this mechanized strength.

A "steady flow" of mechanics was needed.

Confidence Boosted

Gen. McNaughton said he would go back to Britain "with a feeling of great confidence in what we have behind us." During his tour of the trades school he made several suggestions for slight changes in instructional methods, most of them concerned with more up-to-date equipment. He said that although the older equipment was useful for most instruction purposes, at least one unit of certain types of new equipment should be on hand so the troops could see what they would be working with in the field.

Once when difficulties in obtaining this equipment were presented to him, he said: "Use my name. You should be able to get it that way. Tell them I said it was very important to have it here."

To one group of instructors—in electrical work—Gen. McNaughton said he had served an apprenticeship in electrical engineering "when I was as old as the youngest of you," in Montreal. That training had been more valuable than any later in his life. The work the instructors are doing was "most important....for the army and for the cause."

Chambly U-Boat Sinking Gets 5 Medals

OTTAWA, March 4 — (CP). — The Navy announced last night the award of decorations to five members of the Royal Canadian Navy in connection with the successful encounter with a Nazi submarine by the Canadian corvette Chambly, announced last November.

The decorations, approved by the King, were:

Distinguished Service Order, Acting Commander J. D. Prentice, Halifax and Victoria;

Distinguished Service Cross, Lieutenant Edward T. Simmons, Victoria, and Lieutenant John A. R. Allen, Winnipeg.

Distinguished Service Medal, Chief Engineroom Artificer W. Spence Sarnia and London, Ont.

Signalman Hugh E. Tobin, Hamilton.

Mentioned in despatches were: Mate A. F. Pickard, Halifax and South Porcupine, Ont., and Able Seaman L. P. Lehtu, Sioux Lookout, Ont.

At the same time the Navy gave out additional details of the sinking of the German submarine U-501, which was forced to the surface by depth charges from the Chambly.

"While engaged in independent manoeuvres with another corvette (the Moose Jaw) Commander Prentice's vessel came upon the German U-501 lying in wait ahead of a heavily attacked convoy, carrying out the well-known wolf pack tactics," said the Navy.

"Depth charges forced the enemy to the surface and a running pursuit developed. Gunfire from the Canadian corvettes and the danger of torpedo discharges from the stern tubes of the fleeing German enlivened the chase.

"After some miles the German captain lost heart and surrendered his vessel to the Canadians, jumping aboard one of them in a most abject manner as she lay alongside.'

Commander Prentice at one time an officer in the Royal Navy, resigned with the rank of lieutenant-commander and came to Canada to raise cattle in British Columbia. At the outbreak of war Commander Prentice received an appointment in the Canadian Navy. In March, 1941, he was appointed to the command of the Chambly as senior officer corvettes afloat.

The Distinguished Service Cross to Lieutenant E. T. Simmons "results partly from his resolute action in leading a boarding party, although the U-501 was known to be sinking,' said the Navy. "The danger was so obvious that only one person could make the perilous descent of the conning tower. Simmons could see below him the water lapping over the deck plates of the submarine's control-room as he climbed on down.

"Very shortly after reaching the ladder's foot, the dim emergency lighting failed entirely as the rising water quenched its supply. At this point there seemed no alternative to retreat and Simmons barely escaped through the hatch above as the sub made its last plunge; one Canadian sailor of the boarding party was dragged under; the rest, including Lieutenant Simmons, were picked up by the ship's boats."

Lieutenant Allan was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in October, 1941, and received his watch-keeping certificate during that year.

Enlisted at London.

Chief Engineroom Artificer W. Spence enlisted at London, Ont. in December, 1903. His home is in Sarnia, where he formerly worked. He was born 36 years ago in Ayr, Scotland.

Signalman Tobin enlisted in January, 1940, as an ordinary seaman. Twenty-two years old and single, he had been a grocery employee. Tobin was conspicuous during the boarding party episode, wielding a machine-gun to control the German crew. He was pulled under in the final plunge, but succeeded in escaping to the ship's boats.

Mate Pickard was commissioned in his rank in October, 1941. In August 1940, he enrolled in the Navy at the age of 28. He worked at South Porcupine.

Ablebodied Seaman Lehtu enrolled in the Navy in December, 1940. He was a member of the boarding party aboard the U-501. Lehtu is 29.

The Black Wolves won the pack six competition, with a total of 33 points.

Cubs are requested to bring in all unused tickets and all ticket monies from the parents' banquet by next Friday night, and give same to Akela.

The Troop. —The troop centred its studies on second class first aid and tenderfoot work. Two or three games help to break up the evening.

Discussion on A.R.P. work and map reading and a quiz game was followed with a brief musical interlude. The crew will not meet this week. The next meeting Thursday, March 12, in the den.

BRITISH SCOUT VISITING CANADA

We note that British scouts are visiting Canada in the near future. We are hoping that Peterborough will have the opportunity of entertaining these lads.

ST. LUKE'S

The Pack.—A good turn out of cubs attended the last jungle meeting, where Bill King led the opening grand howl.

A review of laws and promise was followed by practise of somersault and skipping. A contest of filling in letters to complete animal names was enjoyed. Baloo spoke about the coming craft show and has wood and books for modelling. Cubs are invited to use of both. At Red-Flower, new songs were sung and the story of Mowgli read. George Gough is under the doctor's care. The pack wish him a speedy recovery to good health. Bobby Payne led the closing grand howl.

The Troop.—The meeting opened with flag break and scout promise. Study of first aid, signalling and tenderfoot work was given in patrol corners. Scouter took the troop in morse signalling with flags, following which games of Skin the Snake and Stalking were played.

During the evening Rudolph Pollick and Paul Welsh were joined to the brotherhood of scouting when they were invested as tenderfoot scouts by Scouter Nokes.

On Sunday, February 22, the troop and pack attended church parade in St. Luke's Church. Rev. Mr. Bousfield speaking on the life of our late Chief Scout, Lord Baden Powell of Gilwell.

A NOTE TO LEADERS

Scouting is an essential factor in the life of our country, and it is up to us to do our utmost to give scouting the best we have. The future citizens of Canada are in our hands. Let us therefore see that they get the best that we ourselves can give.

ALL SAINTS

The Pack.—Following a talk on the cub laws by Akela, the pack went under a change through a series of promotions. Hugh Dibbon was made sixer of the Brown six, with Bob Rennals as his assistant. Bud Allbrooke is now seconded of the White Six. Bob Webb was promoted to seconder under Don Spargo of the Red Six. A new six was formed with Jack Rae sixer and Malcolm Cheukely seconder. We wish all these cubs good hunting in the jungle.

SCOUTERS' CLUB

You are reminded that the scouters' club will be held next week. Probably on Wednesday.

Did you get a slip from Stan Leggitt. If so, have you filled it in.

MURRAY STREET

A happy pack met in the jungle and dance the jungle dance of Shere Khan's death. Instruction on first star knotting for the whole pack was given by Akela assisted by Kim (Robert Plety), Jacala and Baloo.

On Saturday, 15 cubs and Akela visited the jungle at Jackson's Park where diligent search was made for items toward twig alphabets.

We are glad to hear that Don Curtis and David Ingram are recovering from their illness.

The pack went over the top in a recent concert held in Murray Street, with the result that B.P.'s Chins Up Fund will benefit by $34, whilst a sum of $5 was turned over to the church.

ST. JAMES'

The annual Parents' Night was held in St. James' basement Monday. A good crowd was present. The place was decorated in style with the scout colors hanging from the ceiling and the tables spread to accommodate a goodly rowd.

Mr. Littlefair was the genial master of ceremonies, giving each speaker a real boost. At the head table was noted several well-known figures. Mr. Crawford proposed the toast to the King.

A toast to the church was led by Mr. Wallace and replied to by Rev. Mr. Boyter of Park Street Church. Skipper Groombridge spoke of toasts to Baden Powell and called all present to stand in one minute's silence as a tribute to our late Chief. Assistant Commissioner Wolfe replied, outlining the work of the past and the work ahead. The scout officers were then introduced to the gathering; Akela Langborne lighting the candle at the head table.

Rev. H. L. Roberts spoke to the boys, taking for his theme, "He sat where they sat."

Cliff Roydhouse gave two monologues, and Mr. Howay and his dog gave a very delightful performance.

Rev. Dr. Stewart, the colored minister who had preached at the services on Sunday, spoke to the boys on scouting into Christianity, taking for his theme, "A Scout is a friend to all and a brother to every other scout, no matter what color or creed he may belong."

The scouts under A.S.M. C. Davis gave a first aid demonstration.

9,000 Ships Carry 55 Million Tons Of Supplies

TORONTO, March 4—(CP). — A comprehensive picture of the wartime shipping problems of the United Nations and of the part the Canadian Navy was playing in getting essential supplies across the Atlantic Ocean to Great Britain, drawn by Hon. Angus L. Macdonald, Dominion Navy Minister, was before the Ontario branch of the Navy League of Canada today.

Since the start of the war, he told the annual dinner of the Ontario branch last night, 9,000 merchant ships have left Canada in convoy carrying some 55,000,000 tons of food and war supplies.

In addition, said Mr. Macdonald, troop convoys have carried to Britain, 150,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen without the loss of a single life.

"We have not yet lost command of the seas," he declared, though he said the immense distances over which ships of the United Nations had to ply gave the enemy a great advantage. Ships of the Allied Powers were constantly moving on the Pacific, the Indian and the Atlantic oceans, he said, over an expanse of perhaps 30,000 miles.

The Navy Minister said Canadians should not be dismayed by enemy attacks in Canadian coastal waters. He warned against being "deceived or inveigled' into trying to guard every foot of the coastline.

"The enemy would like us to split our strength...we shall not, we must not, fall into that trap," he asserted.

All Meal Prices Under Price Peg

LONDON, Ont., March 4—(CP)—Hot dogs, hamburgers and meals sold at summer resorts come under the maximum prices regulations of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and must not be increased in price, according to a ruling made by James Stewart, Toronto, administrator of the board and received by W. Harold McPhillips, London, prices and supply representative.

The public cannot be charged more than they were asked to pay for a similar lunch or meal last season.

Meals in restaurants, cafes and hotels also come under the price ceiling law and must not be increased whether the cafe or hotel is situated at a summer resort or in a city.

U.S. War Taxes To Really Hurt

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP).—A $9,610,000,000 war tax program "to be felt in every American home" was laid before the United States Congress and the country today by Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau.

He told the House of Representatives Ways and Means committee that the additional taxes which he proposed would, by themselves, be greater than ever collected by the Federal Government in a single year prior to 1941.

As a down payment of victory, he asked doubling of most people's individual income tax with rates so stiff that a single man with a $2,000 salary would pay $230 tax and of he made $1,000,000 would only be allowed to keep about $100,000. Part of the tax probably would be deducted from pay cheques.

He also recommended higher taxes on corporations, plugging of so-called loopholes, new and higher excise taxes on 15 items such as soda pop and cigarettes, stiffer estate and gift taxes, plus $2,000,000,000 in additional Social Security taxes to be specified later.

Together with existing Federal taxes, he said, this program would fulfill President Roosevelt's budget request for $27,000,000,000 of taxes in the coming fiscal year, beginning July 1.

Canuck Salmon Pack For Britain

OTTAWA, March 4—(CP).—The entire Canadian 1942 pack of canned salmon and herring will be allocated to the United Kingdom and these canned fish may disappear from Canadian tables entirely, Fisher Minister Michaud said to-day.

The purchases will be made by the Canadian government and turned over to the United Kingdom food authorities.

Mr. Michaud said the value of the shipments would depend on the size of the pack but it might run in the neighborhood of $20,000,000.

"We are going to make available to the United Kingdom all the canned salmon and canned herring that can be put up in 1942," Mr. Michaud said.

"Home supplies will have to be provided from other kinds of fish as soon as the domestic hold-over from previous production is exhausted."

THINK ABOUT THESE HARD FACTS:

Singapore captured . . . Australia bombed . . . The United Nations hard-pressed everywhere in the Pacific . . . the issue still in doubt in Libya . . . powerful units of the Nazi Fleet safe again in German ports . . . Canada menaced on both coasts.

Yes, swift and terrible events have shown us the dire necessity of providing our fighting forces with more weapons, stronger weapons—and, above all, better weapons.

Remember, too, that Canada's fighting forces have still to meet the stern test of big land battles. To win—they must attack. To attack and win—they must have overpowering weapons.

On every far-flung battle-front our fighting men must be supported to the total extent of Canada's resources. Guns, tanks, planes, ships, munitions, must flow from our factories in a never-ending stream to supply Britain and our Allies.

STROKE UPON NEW FRONT POISED TO SAVE JAVA

Slaughter 36,000 of Trapped Hun Army

MOSCOW, March 5 (AP)—Soviet dispatches said today Russian soldiers are "destroying the remnants" of the German 16th Army encircled in the Staraya Russa sector south of Lake Ilmen and had cracked a Nazi defence zone in their drive upon Smolensk.

(The beleaguered 16th Army — while originally made up of at least 96,000 men, "had lost 36,000 killed since the attack began some 18 days ago," said a Stookholm dispatch to The London Chronicle.)

The B.B.C. said Germans about Staraya Russa reported they had gone without food six days and described the plight of their comrades as catastrophic.

"Two enemy JU-52S landed on an airdrome," the Soviet information bureau said in telling of operations against aerial freighters and troop carriers seeking to supply the Germans. "Our artillery opened fire and with the first salvo destroyed both German planes."

A northwestern front unit was said to have reoccupied three villages and killed more than 100 invaders through an action in which they turned captured field guns upon the Germans.

Guerilla detachments fighting in White Russia were lauded for exceptional courage and skill and the information bureau said "already they have accounted for 700 German officers and men."

Smolensk Line Breaks.

Red Army troops striking toward Smolensk, on the central front 230 miles west of Moscow, have broken into a Nazi defence zone and inflicted heavy losses on the German 17th Infantry Division, a special government announcement declared.

"Two regimental headquarters of this division were smashed," the announcement said. "Prisoners and rich spoils were taken."

Site of the action was not identified, but Russia recently announced the recapture of Dorogobuzh, 50 miles east of Smolensk.

(A Stockholm dispatch to the London Daily Mail said Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian, German tank expert, and his command of 24,000 men had been isolated in Orel, 200 miles south of Moscow, but refused a Soviet demand for surrender.

Japs Cross Sittang As Defenders Retreat On Rangoon

MANDALAY, Burma, March 5—(AP) — Japanese invasion forces streamed across the lower reaches of the Sittang river and headed down the west coast of the Gulf of Martaban today, putting behind them the last natural barrier on the route to Rangoon.

A terse communique, issued here last night, announced that the invaders had cracked British defences along the Sittang and had reached Waw, 15 miles northeast of Pegu, way station on the railway linking Rangoon with the Burma Road to China.

From Waw a paved two-lane highway traverses flat rice lands to Rangoon, less than 6 miles to the southwest.

The communique announcing the Japanese had crossed the Sittang gave no details, but is was assumed here that the Japanese, employing numerically superior forces, had outflanked British troops holding positions near the mouth of the river.

Reports from the front several days ago said the Japanese were massing large numbers of troops 50 miles north of Waw in apparent preparation for such a manoeuvre.

Tire Lack To See 21 Million US Cars Off Road

WASHINGTON, Mar. 5—(AP).—Leon Henderson told the Senate Defence Investigating Committee today that "not a single pound of crude rubber" would be available for new tires or retreads on the upwards of 30,000,000 passenger cars now owned by the ordinary citizen in the United States.

The Director of Civilian Supplies, who is a War Production Board member, testified that this was the "most significant single statistic" among a maze of details on the rubber situation which he would affer the investigating group.

Henderson estimated that United Nations rubber requirements for the next two years would be about 2,000,000, whereas "the most optimistic estimate" of the supply from all sources was from 1,400,000 tons to 1,500,000 tons.

He told the committee that drastic new reductions were in store for the civilian uses of rubber, as some is still going into such things as hose, jar rings and rubber shoes, although non-tire uses have already been reduced from an average of 17,400 tons per month to 5,500 tons.

"We have got to cut 2,650 tons out of the March list," he said, "and we've got to do it beginning in April."

The Price Administrator at one point in his prepared statement said that 'at best" it was believed that only about 7,500,000 automobiles out of the present 30,000,000 could be kept in operation over the next three years due to wearing out of tires.

Alaska Road Approved By US, Canada

American Surveyors Already On Way Stimson Announces

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — The long-projected Alaska highway to provide a protected overland route from the United States through to Alaska, War Secretary Henry Stimson said today, has been approved by the joint American-Canadian defence board. He indicated construction would be started soon.

"The Engineer troops who have been assigned to make the surveys and lay out the pioneer road are on their way," Stimson said at a press conference.

He did not announce the route the road would take, or other details.

OTTAWA, March 5 (CP)—Formal Canadian announcement of approval of the projected Alaska highway by the joint American-Canadian Defence Board was expected to be made in the House of Commons today by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

This was the information given here after War Secretary Henry Stimson announced in Washington that approval of the long-projected overland route from the United States through Canada to Alaska had been given by the Defence Board.

Cost of constructing the road has variously been placed at from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000.

The British Columbia, Yukon, Alaska Highway Commission in its report on two years' examination of possible routes for the road, said it favored, of three possible routes, a road running north and west from Prince George, B.C., to MacLeod Lake, Finlay Forks, Sifton Pass, the Liard River and Frances Lake and down the Pelly River and then northwestward to Dawson, Y.T.

Thousands Of Jap Fill 'Davey Jones Locker' As MacArthur's Aces Scuttle 3 Troopships

WASHINGTON, March 5—(AP).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported to the United States War Department today his belief that thousands of Japanese soldiers were drowned in the surprise raid of his little air force on Subic Bay north of the Bataan Peninsula fighting front in the Philippines.

Three large vessels which were sunk were identified later, a War Department communique said, as transports loaded with enemy troops. Those killed met death by drowning or as a result of explosion of ammunition aboard.

Meeting no aerial opposition for the first time since the Pacific war started, none of the American planes was damaged.

The communique reported also a raid by a single enemy plane on Hawaii, believed to have come from a Japanese vessel west of Hawaii. Although American planes immediately gave chase, unfavorable weather conditions with poor visibility hampered the search.

Australia Sees Jap Coast Raids Feelers For Immediate Invasion

MELBOURNE, March 5 (AAP)—The Australian Government is weighing seriously the possibility that yesterday's raid on the north coast port of Darwin by Japanese fighter planes was a "feeler" attack preliminary to direct invasion, the Canberra correspondent of the Melbourne Herald reported today.

Such a raid, he said, might have been intended to test out the strength of the ground defences of Darwin, potentially an important base for the United Nations in the southwest Pacific.

However, the correspondent pointed out that the Japanese also might have planned a bombing raid—familiar prelude to invasion elsewhere—only to have the carrier-based fighter planes miss connections with the land-based bombers.

The attacks on Darwin and on Wyndham and Broome, small north coast towns to the southwest of Darwin, were seen as likely indications that the Japanese soon may attempt to land troops at more than one point in Australia's vast, thinly-populated northern reaches.

The Herald correspondent stressed the fact that Wyndham, while small, has a magnificent natural harbor which, lying directly south of the enemy-invaded island of Timor, makes it of considerable strategic importance in defence against invasion. Wyndham could be reached easily from Timor, some 500 miles away, by the long-range, four-en-

Britain Widens Call

LONDON, March 5—(CP).—Britain accelerated her mobilization of manpower and womanpower for total war today by extending service registrations for both men and women.

Men 41 to 45, inclusive, were made liable to military service while registration of women was broadened to take in girls of 16 and 17, who will be listed for training.

Under the present Conscription Act, men from 18½ to 50 may be called for service, but heretofore only those up to 41 have been drafted.

The extension today, it was explained, is intended primarily to obtain doctors and dentists for the armed services.

Death For Failure

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Mar. 5—(AP).—The death sentence for failure to fulfil obligations to the State has been imposed on V. M. Vlasov, chairman of a "comintern" collective farm, it was announced today.

He is the third head of such a farm to be given the extreme penalty recently by the Kuibyshev provincial court.

The charges stated that Vlasov, described as a participant in the 1919 Kulak uprising, "delivered only 530 tons of bread grain to the State instead of 730; left 90 hectares (about 222 acres) unharvested; let 70 tons of grain rot, and left his cattle unfed, causing a plague which killed 12 per cent. of his cattle and 19 per cent. of his sheep."

More US Planes Already Sent Hard-Put Java

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(AP).—War Secretary Henry Stimson said to-day that "material" air reinforcements had been sent to Java in the last week.

He told his press conference that the shift of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell from the Southwest Pacific command had not altered in any way the American or British attitude of "intense support to the Dutch in the present battle."

"Not only has that support not been diminished by withdrawals, but in the past week we have increased our air support materially," he said.

Stimson withheld details of the reinforcements, and also was guarded in comment on the air force which Gen. Douglas MacArthur employed to inflict heavy losses on the Japanese in a surprise raid on Subic Bay in the Philippines.

Stimson, smiling over the unexpected coup, told reporters the news from MacArthur was merely that the attack was made "by air."

"I won't say whether he had a large new air force, but he has enough to sink five ships," Stimson said.

(Yesterday's communique telling of the raid credited "MacArthur's small air force" with sinking three ships).

The secretary declined in response to a question to say whether the Philippine commander was in a position to use aerial reinforcements if they were available.

The war secretary said he had no further information on the air raid alarm at Los Angeles last week. He stressed that the theory that enemy agents may have flown commercial planes over the city came from an official report and did not necessarily represent his own views.

He made the plea in an address last night before the People's Council.

Speaking at a historic session of the council, Dr. Hubertus Van Mook told the population to emulate Gen. Douglas MacArthur's stand in the Philippines and concentrate on the defence of "certain areas where nature gives us the opportunity to resist the superior forces."

The fall of Singapore, he said, left the Indies to face the superior Japanese strength almost alone. But, he continued:

Dust Explosion Injures Seven

A dust explosion in the feed department of the Quaker Oats Company sent three men to the hospital today for treatment of burns suffered at the time of the minor explosion and flash of flames.

The explosion took place in a wooden elevator leg, and the intense heat immediately set off the sprinklers, dousing the blaze. The men injured were on several different floors, and happened to be standing close to the shaft. The sprinklers extinguished the blaze before pyrene guns and fire extinguishers could be brought to bear.

Tom Galvin, James Stothart, and Hillier Davis were burned about the hands, and were taken to the hospital more as precautionary measure than anything else, as the first aid facilities at the plant were taxed caring for five or six others who suffered superficial burns.

None of the men are seriously burned, and prompt action by first aid workers and plant firemen had the situation in hand in a very few minutes.

Britain Checks On Officers

Air Force To Be Hit Too By Purge Among 45 and Up

LONDON, March 5.—(CP).—The Army Council has ordered a review of the qualifications of all officers aged 45 years or over up to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

The action, announced yesterday, came less than ten days after the appointment of Sir James Grigg as war secretary. It was acclaimed by the London press as "a great purge" which would step up the efficiency of the army and eliminate inept and over-age officers.

Reliable sources said a similar purge was planned by the Air Ministry and that both the Army and Royal Air Force henceforth would aim at "promoting younger men of proved ability to higher ranks, despite seniority."

The Army Council order declared bluntly that "it has become evident there are now a number of officers who for a variety of reasons, are not able to discharge their present duties."

The investigation will ensure, the Council said, that those holding commands at home and abroad "possess the qualities essential for the strain and speed of present day warfare."

All officers affected by the order are put into one of three groups after the investigation: (1) Those recommended for continued service with their units; (2) Those recommended for less active duty, and (3) Those recommended for discharge.

See Cripps Premier Inside Three Months

NEW YORK, March 5—(CP). — Drew Middleton, Associated Press Staff writer in London, today quoted "an extremely reliable and well-informed political source" as saying there was every likelihood that Sir Stafford Cripps would replace Winston Churchill as Prime Minister.

Middleton's cabled story continued:

"This source went so far as to predict that the doughty Churchill, whose speeches pulled Britain together in the bitter summer of 1940 and made him one of the modern world's greatest figures, would be unseated within three months.

"After bitter parliamentary debates it must be emphasized, this source said, that while Mr. Churchill is vastly popular in the United States he has steadily lost the strength of his hold on the British masses since the fall of Crete last June.

"Sir Stafford, on the other hand, has grown in stature as a result of his work as ambassador to Russia, a fact recognized by his recent appointment to the cabinet post of Lord Privy Seal.

"The steady growth of an opposition group in parliament, as described by the source of this speculation, is 'all the more important since its transcends party lines.'

"He said the opposition to Mr. Churchill was dissatisfied primarily on these points:

"1. Sending the Prince of Wales and Repulse to Malaya after asserted warnings that the big warships would find indifferent air support in those waters.

"2. Placing Lord Beaverbrook in positions in which he allegedly alienated the fighting services and heavy industry.

"3. The Prime Minister's exercise of his own judgment in conduct of the war.

"Britons, this source asserted, remember the Churchill-suggested Gallipoli campaign in the first Great War and are not very strong for civilians over-riding the opinions of military men who have studied war problems for a lifetime.

"Lord Beaverbrook is admitted by the Opposition to have made 'a fine superficial showing' in his Cabinet jobs pertaining to war production and supply, but they say forces in the Middle East have been fighting without tank replacements or aircraft parts.

"The Opposition was described as somewhat concerned by Lord Beaverbrook's decision to remain in Britain rather than accept a job in the United States. This was based on a feeling that in taking full control of his Daily Express and Evening Standard he would be able to bolster Mr. Churchill, who is the main target of criticism. Just how strong this newspaper support may be is unknown, however.

"Recently the Express commented that 'taking the long view' of war results in early defeats. It went on to score 'planning for future campaigns.'

"In addition to desiring Mr. Churchill's downfall, the Opposition was declared by the political observer to be eager for the finish of Admiral Sir Dudley Pound as First Sea Lord.

"The contention is that Sir Dudley has been untagonistic toward the

2 Nurses Heroes As Japs Pound Shanghai Craft

MELBOURNE, March 5.—(CP).—A British freighter with accommodation for only 12 passengers, has arrived in an Australian port bearing 2,500 soldiers, women and children from Singapore after weathering a prolonged series of attacks by 90 Japanese planes, during which she was thrice hit by bombs.

Twelve persons were killed and 25 wounded by the Japanese assaults on the ship, the last vessel to clear Singapore before the island fortress surrendered.

Heroines of the perilous voyage were two Australian nurses, Sisters Tourney and Anderson, who risked their lives in an attempt to save a wounded member of an anti-aircraft crew. Fellow refugees said the nurses braved the machine guns of Japanese planes to drag the gunner to shelter after he fell in an exposed position.

The man died later of his wounds, but other members of the gun crew sent a letter to Australian authorities urging that the nurses be decorated for gallantry.

Loan officials said they regarded yesterday's total as indicating no slackening of interest on the part of the country as a whole. They indicated that certain substantial conversion transactions are still pending and on the verge of being closed with the possibility of some announcement concerning them tomorrow.

Ontario Victory Loan headquarters today reported subscriptions for the 13th day of the campaign, Wednesday, totalling $21,115,000, bringing the Province's 15-day total to $314,290,550.

Toronto's subscriptions Wednesday were $11,418,000 bringing the city's total to $156,129,000 of the city's increased objective of $200,000,000.

Some Big Ones

Major subscriptions reported through national headquarters today were those of Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, $2,540,000; Crown Life Insurance Co., Toronto, $2,000,000; North American Cyanamid Ltd., Niagara Falls, $1,500,000; Toronto General Trusts Corp., Toronto, $1,250,000. Also there was a direct subscription for $100,000 from the Firemen's Fund group of San Francisco, with Canadian head office in Toronto and an investment of $160,000 by the City of Fort William.

Chalking up subscriptions yesterday totaling 56 per cent of its original objective, Glace, Bay N.S., went well into the lead among larger municipalities reporting to National heaquarters. It now has accounted for 197 per cent of quota.

Moose Jaw and Regina added 10 per cent and nine per cent respectively to their totals, bringing cumulative figures to 168 per cent and 161 per cent. Other centres reported the following percentages of quota subscribed: Sydney, N.S., 135 per cent; Edmonton, 138 per cent; Saskatoon, 128 per cent; Moncton, 126; Saint John, N.B., 125; Halifax, 120; Charlottetown and Summerside, P.E.I., 116 per cent; Calgary 101 per cent; Vancouver, 97 per cent; and Brandon, Man., 81 per cent.

Loan headquarters said a striking feature of the employee canvass was the increase in number of applications for bonds from employees in plants where workers subcribed on the instalment basis in the last loan. From Winnipeg it was reported applications from executives, supervisors and employees of the T. Eaton Co., establishment there have increased to 4,700 compared with 1,653 last June.

"The Dutch will fight to the end and the airmen will fly their obsolete planes until they are unable to take them off the ground," wrote the correspondent, Tom Fairhill.

"With Java almost gone I think the Japanese will attack Australia's east coast, probably in North Queensland, as they are probably preparing a base at Rabaul."

Of the Malayan campaign Fairhill reported: "We were outfought because of our red tape, blundering, scarcity of airpower, lack of offensive spirit, and the native fifth column, and, unlike the Japanese, we showed litle imagination.

don last night indicated heavy fighting along the lower Sittang, where a full division of troops, supported by tanks, was reported entrenched.)

All Supplies Destroyed.

Before falling back toward Pegu, the defenders were reported officially to have destroyed everything of value to the enemy at Waw. This apparently was a reference to military stores, since Waw itself is a small hamlet of frame buildings and native huts.

It was believed here the Japanese would fan out from Waw, with one column striking southward toward Rangoon and another heading west in an effort to cut the rail line running northwest from the capital through Tharrawaddy to cholera-plagued Prome and the Irrawaddy oil fields.

Such a manoeuvre might compel the British forces in Southern Burma to withdraw northward to avoid being cut off, abandoning Rangoon and the surrounding territory.

There was no indication that veteran Chinese troops, who have been guarding the Burma-Thai frontier in the north, have yet seen action in the main battle for Rangoon.

Rangoon, once-teeming entry port for war supplies headed for China by the Burma road but now virtually deserted, was reported quiet, but army headquarters said, "there has been some lawlessness, especially against defenceless Indians."

Unofficial reports said racial violence in the Rangoon delta region had been widespread since the withdrawal of most of the police, and many Indian homes were said to have been burned.

and naval base of Eastern Java.

The enemy was within 10 miles of Batavia on the west of that former capital and 25 miles from Bandung, present seat of the Government, at three points to the north which included a good airfield to base his fighters and dive bombers.

There was an increasing threat that the 662-mile long island would be bisected by the invaders, who are already more than half way across in the Surakarta area of Eastern Java, between the defence centres, Bandung and Batavia, in the west, and Surabaya in the east.

Moreover, enemy airmen have started bombing the one good southern port through which this isle could draw reinforcements.

These and other dire acknowledgments were made or implied today by the Indies command of the United troops fighting for Java's life.

The main elements of the Batavia move appeared to be the advance from the Indromajoe landing zone westward along a railway to Krawang, 30 miles from Batavia, coupled with an advance from the western (Bantam) invasion area which had carried at least to Tnagerang, 10 miles west of the city.

The Bandung pincers appeared to be pointed by Japanese troops at Purwakarta, 25 miles north and slightly west of the main objective, and Subang, equidistant north and slightly east. Loss of Subang was acknowledged last Sunday, within 24 hours of the start of the invasion. Loss of the other places was announced today.

(A London military commentator said that fresh Japanese landings had been affected on the west coast in the teeth of counter attacks by Netherlands, British and United States troops.

Think More Troops Landed.

(A Netherlands government source in London, however, said there was no confirmation of this, although "it is entirely likely that a few fresh troops have been added. On the other hand, we have nothing to show that there has been another assault from a big invasion armada.")

The defenders evidently were fighting a losing battle although they were striking the foe when and wherever numerical superiority in the air and aground was not overwhelming.

The communique admitted the Japanese held the airdrome at Kalidjati, 25 miles north of Bandung, headquarters of the military command and temporary seat of the colonial government.

In Western Java, the Indies announced enemy occupation of Krawang, 20 miles east of Batavia; Purkakarta, 25 miles north and slightly west of Bandung; and Tangerang, 10 miles west of Batavia, capital of the N.E.I. which the government has abandoned.

In Eastern Java, the same communique admitted the fall of Surakarta (Solo), 70 miles inland from the eastern most, or Rembang, landing point of the invader. It is a railway junction more than halfway across the island.

Battle All Over Island.

Also lost in Eastern Java was Bodjansgara, 50 miles west of Surabaya and on a main railway leading to that north shore naval base. Other places, too, were in Japanese hands in that region but the communique did not specify them.

Across Middle Java on the further (southern) shore from the Japanese infiltraiton assault, the principal port of Tjilatjap was bombed yesterday, the High Command said, but the damage was slight.

Tjilatjap now is of "great strategic importance as the last possible harbor at which reinforcements might be disembarked in comparative safety," said Unsta, the Author Naitbe Indies news agency.

"All over Java the battle against the Japanese invasion troops is now raging," said the communique.

"Because of the peculiar character of infiltration warfare, as a result of which establishment of a regular front is completely impossible, it is difficult to give a clear review of the state of affairs.

"On the whole, however, the Japanese have numerical superiority and are advancing continually.

"In this way they succeeded, in spite of the heroic and courageous resistance of our troops, in occupying several places. Definite air superiority contributed to the success of the enemy."

Then followed the names of places in Japanese hands.

The loss of the airdromes at Kulidjati was announced through a report that defending Hurricane fighters had attacked the field, losing two of their number in a strafing of grounded Japanese zero planes—navy fighters. Several of the grounded planes were bullet-riddled. One was shot down in combat and another damaged.

MacNicol Urges Post War Work Program

(By FRANK FLAHERTY.)

OTTAWA, March 5.—(CP)—John R. MacNicol (Con. Toronto-Davenport) has expressed opinion in the House of Commons that provision of employment for ex-servicemen and others during the post-war rehabilitation period will require the expenditure of large sums of money.

Mr. MacNicol urged the immediate inauguration of plans for the provision of jobs and the setting aside of sums of money to finance them as he spoke yesterday on a bill which would make compulsory the reinstatement of ex-servicemen in pre-war jobs.

The House turned to the reinstatement measure, sponsored by Labor Minister Mitchell, after it gave a stormy final passage to the Government's plebiscite bill.

The latter measure went to the senate at once, and received first reading immediately. During the evening the the Upper House gave it second reading and sent it to the banking and commerce committee for considerations and amendments to form. The only speakers on sec-

R.A.F. and the fleet air arm, to Britain's cost.

"It is even asserted that somewhere in this reported untagonism lies the answer to the escape of the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the cruiser Prince Eugen through the Straits of Dover.

"A five-minute talk with the average soldier, taxicab driver or dock workers, the Opposition also asserts, will indivate that three classes are fed up with a policy of 'preparing for future offensive,' that they would prefer a dangerous effort which might help end the war this year.

"This feeling is said to find an echo not so much among the middle class, but among peers and members of parliament, Conservative, Liberal and Labor, who have protested for months against pedestrian progress of the war effort.

"Besides The Times of London, which is said always to have evidenced a certain distrust of Mr. Churchill, and Leslie Hore-Belisha, former War Secretary whose public following is large, great numbers of young army, navy and R.A.F. officers are listed among the elements out of tune with the Prime Minister.

"The younger officers are portrayed as resentful of Mr. Churchill's presence at some staff meetings and his ability to exert pressure on the highest military councils.

"Although Sir Stafford Cripps is not quite the man the Conservatives would have chosen, he has come to the front in a hurry and they believe the people would accept him and that once in power he would fight the war as they and the other Opposition elements want it fought:

"A war hinged on campaigns in 1942—not 1943 or 1944."

Nation Uneasy

LONDON, March 5 (CP) — The British nation is keeping its new government under closest scrutiny.

The changes Prime Minister Churchill made to meet the insistent demands of public opinion brought temporary satisfaction to most critics, who were willing to test the new blood, but evidence is growing that the administration must produce results or face a fresh storm, which might unseat even the Prime Minister himself.

Sir Stafford Cripps' promise of vigorous prosecution of the war on the home front was welcomed in all quarters and it is predicted in more extreme circles that if Mr. Churchill does not give evidence of a similar policy in war strategy he may find himself replaced by the popular leader of the House of Commons within three months.

Demands for the removal of Bureaucrats and "Blimps" who, it is claimed, are stifling the war drive, is gaining momentum daily. The nation is calling for more action and fewer words and promises.

"Whitehall, where so many battles have been lost in this war, needs drastic purge," the Evening News said today. "There is still a bumbling lack of awareness and alertness throughout the whole cumbrous mass of government services."

The Daily Mail declared that "we will not win this war until the men at the top give confidence to all at home and abroad that their direction of the war is forceful, efficient and up-to-date."

No Real Reform

The National Review summed up the feelings of a big portion of the critics when it said that while Mr. Churchill met some demands by changing the cabinet there still has been "no reform of method."

"The prime minister will hardly be able to continue to resist reform in his war system," the monthly magazine said in noting that "there may be some people who would rather lose the war than part with Mr. Churchill, but they are not in the majority."

A threat to the foundations of the empire is seen by the National Review as the most serious effect of present British policy.

The empire is in peril, the Review said, and, after quoting Viscount Bennett's statement in the House of Lords Feb. 16 that "unless we are prepared for what comes after the war we might as well not win it because a war won without ability to carry on afterwards is equivalent to a war lost," added:

"The whole fabric of the British Empire will be affected by the decisions of the next few months and if the structure of that great bulwark of sanity crumbles as a result of wrong decisions taken here, then the whole world will be poorer. Thus the maintenance of the empire is our first duty. But only second to it and bound up with it and vital to it is the necessary military victory. In that new minds are needed as a new deal in the cabinet."

Rangers 15 Goals Short Of New Record

By The Canadian Press.

Increasingly wide-open play of National Hockey League teams this season is reflected in the scoring figures, which will set one and possibly two all-time N.H.L. records.

The previous all-time high for goals scored in the league during a single season was set last year, with a total of 900. This season, with three weeks of the season and 18 games of the schedule left, the teams have scored a total of 923 goals.

The previous standard was cracked Sunday night and the league started along the trail to 1,000 goals with 16 in two games Tuesday night.

New York Rangers are 15 goals short of a new record for team scoring in one season, with five games to go. Rangers have counted 165 goals in 43 games, for an average of 3.83 goals a game.

The New Yorkers have slipped slightly off the hot scoring pace they set in climbing to first place in mid-season, but have a better than even chance to crack the record set by Boston Bruins at 179 in the 1929-30 season.

Rangers meet Detroit Red Wings in Detroit to-night in one of three N.HH.L. games, and in their other four games this season Rangers play Toronto twice and Boston and Chicago once each.

Chicago Black Hawks travel to New York to-night for a joust with the determined Brooklyn Americans, with Montreal Canadiens at Toronto.

Only possibility of a shake-up in the standings lies at the bottom of the league, where Americans and Canadiens are tied for sixth place.

Preparing The Way

Los Angeles, March 5 (AP)

DISTRICT ATTORNEY John Dockweiler's office today exhibited a map showing that Japanese hold leases on land in or adjoining nearly every strategic region hereabouts.

Japanese, alien as well as American-born, leased all of the strategic shoreline of the Palos Verdes Hills. Some outposts of the harbor defence setup are in that area. Land under lease includes beaches which could be used for military landings, largely concealed by cliffs.

Other Japanese leases include land in or adjoining these vital resources: Every railway line in Los Angeles county; Owens Valley Aqueduct, which furnishes water to Los Angeles and many other cities in the county; every major highway; virtually every major refinery and oil tank farm in the harbor area.

Inboard motor boats used for pleasure will be allowed from 2 units to 16 units. In both cases the amount of gasoline varies with the horse-power of the motor.

All Industries Top Loan Objective

COBOURG, March 5 — (ENS) — Cobourg industries and factories in Brighton, Campbellford and Hastings have been the bright spots in the Victory Loan canvass in Northumberland county, all going well over their objective. The Employees Committee of the Victory Loan campaign have expressed their gratification with the response from industry and announced that several plants expect to keep on increasing their subscriptions until campaign ends. Following are the percentages reached by the various factories throughout Northumberland county:

Douglas-Pectin Ltd., Cobourg, 133%; Edwards and Edwards, Cobourg, 164%; Cobourg Matting and Carpet Co., 159%; Campbellford Cloth Co., 138%; Cooey Machine and Arms, Cobourg, 136%; Cobourg Dye Co., 130%; Dominion Wheel and Foundaries, Cobourg, 130%; Cooey Metal Products, Brighton, 126%; Breithaupt Leather Co., Ltd., Hastings, 104%, or an average of 142%.

In other respects however, the canvass in the county could be better and the following comment was issued from headquarters yesterday by W. S. Edwards, county chairman:

"The County of Northumberland has raised $700,000 and requires over $375,000 in this, the final week of the loan, to make its objective. In every possible way you have been informed of Canada's pressing need to equip and maintain its fighting forces. There surely can be only two reasons why you haven't subscribed, either you have not been called on yet by the canvassers, or that you are unresponsive to the country's need, and by making excuses to yourself, or through lack of information, you will not lend your money by investing in Victory Bonds.

"If our canvasser has not called on you, it is because of many blocked roads and it has taken a longer time to cover the territory than was planned. Do not delay any further. You can telephone the canvasser in your district and he will call for your subscription or telephone Victory Loan headquarters, No. 115, and place your subscription. You can also place your subscription at your local bank or come to the Victory Loan office in Cobourg and place it directly. If you are in the second class and have been delaying your subscription because of some doubts or self-mindedness, give this matter your serious consideration, for I am reluctant to believe that there are citizens in Northumberland County whose souls are so dead that they will ignore the call of their native land at this time.

"In conclusion let it never be said that the citizens of Northumberland County failed those who have offered to sacrifice their lives to protect and guard our homes."

War Priorities Skyrocket Auction Prices

CAMPBELLFORD, March 5 — (ENS)—What is believed to have been the largest sale of farm stock, implements, and grain ever held in this district attracted more than two thousand bidders and spectators and yielded nearly $9,400.00 on Wednesday. The sale took place on the premises of the retiring owner, Wess Wilson, in Percy township, six miles west of here, and it began at ten o'clock in the morning, lasting till well past seven in the evening. Although the principal interest centred in the offering of twenty-six registered, accredited and listed Holstein cattle which attracted buyers from a radius of well over fifty miles, farmers were also enthusiastic in their bidding on horses and machinery. Prices reached in all three of these categories were considered well above the average, but this was logical since the offerings themselves were well over average as anyone who ever visited the Wilson farm knew

It took Auctioneers J. R. Battisby and Rae Williams three hours and a half to dispose of the cattle, and E. Lindsay Anderson, secretary-treasurer of the Northumberland County Holstein-Fresian Club, who acted as sales manager, characterized it as "the most successful dispersion sale ever held in this locality." The twenty-six Holstein cows brought a total of $4,100.00. A five-year-old cow brought the highest price, $275, and the lowest was for a 5-month heifer, $75. It was all big money and farmers in overalls and rat-catcher caps rubbed elbows with those in snap brims and burberry coats. Most of those who were buying paid with cash and there was enough of it there to put Northumberland's Victory Loan quota over the top. The average price of calves under 1 year was $85; 6 heifers, 1½ years, averaged $153; 16 cows, 2-11 years, averaged $177. William J. Wilson of Percy township paid top money, $275, for a 6-year-old of outstanding quality. Heaviest purchaser was Wm. J. Murphy, Lindsay, who took 9 head, ranging from 1 to 7 years, and priced from $125 to $210 each. They averaged him $169 each. Second largest buyer was W. J. T. Hicks, Campbellford, who got 4 heifers and 2 ten-month-old calves that ranged from $85 to $180, and averaged him $132.50. George Fry and Son, Campbellford, paid $170 for a cow and $180 for a heifer; Allan B. McComb and Sons, Bonarlaw, paid $165 for an 8-year-old and $85 for a 10-month heifer calf; Thomas W. Johnston and Son of Grafton paid $180 and $190 for two cows; J. S. Macklin, Cobourg, $165 for a fall freshing cow; Earl Godden, Campbellford, $145 for an aged brood cow; R. J. Coughlin, Norwood, $150 for a 3-year-old R.O.P. heifer (consigned by H. J. Petty); R. J. Petty, $75 for a 5-months-old heifer calf.

Horses Sell High.

Prices for horses ranged from $120 for a brown mare, 3 years, to $167 to a similarly described but better horse rising 7. A brood sow and 10 pigs was knocked down for $71, and another with 10 brought $75, while 9 shoats sold at $12.25 each. Hens ranged from 80 cents each to 96 cents for 60 leghorn pullets. Prices for machinery reflected the upward trend and were dictated as much by the present difficulties of obtaining new equipment as by the quality of the offerings. A binder listed new at around $310 was bid up to $270, and a mower worth approximately $135 according to manufacturer's list, was knocked down for $120. One farmer went home with a seed drill at $149, and could have a new one for only $26 more if war priorities had not intervened. A milking machine that was practically new sold for $300, while forty-gallon milk cans went at from $3 to $17 each. Four separate buyers got a portion of the 400 bushels of Banner seed oats and paid all the way from 69 to 75 cents a bushel for it. [illegible], O.A.C. No. 21, brought 74 cents, and Erban seed oats also went away above the market price, yielding from 71 to 76 cents, while hay sold at $14 per ton.

The farm itself was sold by Mr. Wilson in a private transaction prior to the sale. It includes 100 acres of land, large L-shaped barn, 2-storey frame dwelling and drive shed, and is reputed to have brought $6,200.

Pick Punctures Worker's Boot

COBOURG, March 5 — (ENS) — Eight-year-old Charlie Greer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Greer, Front Road East, is recovering from concussion suffered earlier in the week when struck by a car said to have been driven by Don Mott of Cobourg. The accident occurred near the Kingston Crossing public school and at the time the lad was walking to school along the highway with some companions. When Mott's car approached, the group split into two groups. The driver pulled over to the ditch to avoid an accident but in some manner the boy was apparently brushed by the car, but there were no marks on the automobile. Dr. W. E. Wilkins of Cobourg attended him.

William Blackler suffered an injured foot while working at a local factory. He was using a pick when he lost his balance, the pick jabbed through his boot, injuring two of his toes. He was treated by Dr. Wilkins.

Colorful Pageant Staged By Port Hope School Pupils

PORT HOPE, Mar. 5— (ENS). — Some seven hundred Public School children took part in a most successful pageant "Cavalcade of Canada" on Wednesday night in the Port Hope United Church under the direction of T. W. Stanley, assisted by the Public School teachers.

Two children, a boy and a girl, chosen from each of the rooms of all the Public Schools were dressed in costumes to represent the countries of Europe from which the Dominion of Canada has been built.

"Cavalcade of Canada" opened with the singing in chorus of "O Canada" by the children, who were arranged in their classes around the balcony of the church, while in the choir loft was seated the Public School choir.

Three narrators, Jacqueline Clarke, Catherine Coulter, and Alexander Kellough took their places and told the story of each country, as the children of these countries came forward in their native costume. These costumes were very realistic and colorful, and while these representatives stood to the fore the choristers sang a national song of their represented countries.

Allon Ballett and Norma Harwood were the first to come up representing the Indians of early Canada. These children sang a duet, "Indian Lullaby." The French regime was the next represented by Marilene White and Peter McGillis, while the members of the chorus sang "Virala Canadienne."

England was represented by Mildred Hodgert dressed as Britannia and Jackie Finnegan as John Bull, while the chorus sang "White Cliffs of Dover."

In Highland Garb

Scotland, the land of the heather, was represented by the chorus with "The Bluebells of Scotland," while June Cartwright and Raymond Hutchings were the Scottish lad and lassie.

For Ireland, Eleanor Roach was the colleen and Philip Callinan the boy, while the school choir sang "Bendemeer's Stream."

Wales was represented by Lois Eastman and Douglas Drinkwater, while the chorus was "Men of Harlech."

"Hymn of Thanksgiving" was sung by the choristers for Holland, while Nancy Harness and Ross Porteous wore the Dutch costumes.

A recitation beautifully given by Elizabeth Warburton, "In Flanders Fields," represented Belgium, with Marie Harwood and Leo Black in costume.

A trio represented Scandinavia, "On Land and Sea," by Dorothy Cartwright, Adrian Paxton and Nancy Hutchings.

For Poland, the choir sang "The Fringed Gentian September" and the costume was represented by Betty Lou Talyor.

Russia was represented in costume by Audrey Cole and Bobbie Trawin, and the "Volga Boat Song" was sung by the chorus.

The choir sang "The Hunter's Horn" for Czechoslovakia, while the costume was displayed by Patsy Thompson.

A duet, "There Is My Home," by Jean McCarthy and Buddy Brooks represented Greece.

Hungary was represented by six girls singing "Betty Pringles Pig," Barbara Russell, Marie Abrams, Helen Jean O'Niel, Lillian Sherry, Mary McDerment and Janet Dayman.

"On Wings of Song," a solo, was sung by Betty Thompson, while Rosemary Oliver and Stuffy Datsko represented Hebrews.

The United States was represented by Anita Pochon as Martha Washington and Alon McGillis as Uncle Sam, while "The Star-Spangled Banner" was sung in chorus.

The unity of all these countries was further displayed when Jimmy Reeve, wearing a red coat representing a Canadian Mountie, led a march around the auditorium, collecting en masse on the platform and everyone joining in "My Pledge to Canada," "You Can Fight for Canada," "There'll Always Be an England," and "God Save the King."

No Complacency Here

In the news columns on Wednesday readers found accounts of the splendid work which is being done by young people in Peterborough who are selling War Savings Certificates and Stamps. The total for sales in the Collegiate last week was the considerable sum of $1,603. The Examiner is also proud of the fact that, in the month of February, its carriers sold well over two thousand dollars' worth of stamps, in spite of the fact that the Victory Loan sale was going on at the same time. The public schools, also, have done excellent work in this direction, collecting $1,236 during February. These are fine records, and the citizens of this city may be proud of their young people.

So many accusations of complacency are directed against the Canadian public these days by speakers and writers that many people are beginning to develop a hangdog attitude about our whole war effort. Undoubtedly complacency exists, just as it exists still in some quarters in Britain, but we venture the guess that it is considerably less widespread than many of its attackers imagine. These gentlemen, once they get the scourge in their hands, never know when to stop. Diatribes against complacency are valuable up to a certain point, but beyond that point they serve merely to inhibit further effort.

We are glad, therefore, to have this chance to draw attention to an aspect of our local war effort where complacency certainly does not exist. We think that this enthusiastic, wide awake, victorious spirit is characteristic of Canadian youth and that the Jeremiahs who groan about complacency should know about it. Admittedly, the sale of two thousand dollars' worth of savings stamps in a month, or the sale of sixteen hundred dollars' worth in a week, is not gigantic when it is related to Canada's war effort as a whole, but we think that it is a brilliant achievement on the part of the young people of a Canadian city of modest size; it is certainly anything but complacent. It is an evidence of what can be done and what is being done in this country by some of its citizens who refuse to waste time listening to speeches telling them how complacent they are.

No Wrenches, By Request

Reverses in the Pacific have had a depressing effect on public opinion, and when people are depressed, recriminations fly. Governments, being closely in touch with affairs and being less mercurial in temperament than citizens whose responsibilities are lighter, do not sling mud when things are going badly for their friends; but private citizens sometimes talk far too much, without realizing the damage which they may cause by doing so.

Everyone knows that, when the war is won, it will be of highest importance to maintain friendly relations between the United Nations, and that it will be especially important and especially difficult to maintain the close bond which now exists between the countries of the British Commonwealth and the United States. Because they share a language and certain basic characteristics, Britishers and Americans are apt to expect a greater unity in small matters than actually exists, and their disappointment when they find that they differ over trifles is apt to be exaggerated. But it is absolutely necessary that both make an effort to keep in close touch; the apple cart must not be upset over trifles.

Lord Halifax made this clear in his address to the Academy of Political Science recently. Britain and America, he said, must forego their popular game of slapping at one another. He was at special pains to destroy the idea that Britain let her friends do her fighting for her. He pointed out that, up to the moment, 70 per cent. of British casualties on land have been borne by the British Isles, and that the percentage has been even higher at sea and in the air.

He also produced these significant facts:

"In 1941 we got 2,000 aircraft from the United States, but we sent more than 9,000 overseas. We imported 200 tanks but we sent abroad 3,000 some of which played their part in the historic defence of Moscow. We have had to take appalling risks with the safety of Britain by sending vital war materials at critical times to other theatres of war."

The British Ambassador made a definite request that people on both sides of the water refrain from throwing monkey-wrenches into the Anglo-American works. An admirable idea which we endorse heartily; this is no time for recrimination, and after the war British and Americans must be a little more generous in their estimation of one another.

The Sugar Situation

Strange though it may seem, sugar is a commodity which is always affected in a large way by war. That is the reason, of course, why it has had had to be rationed. But the explanation? This granular substance always is plentiful in ordinary times and does not appear to enter into fighting equipment and munitions, so why should it become so scarce when an international conflict is going on?

One of the fundamental causes of shortage is that when nations are at war vast numbers of people cease to raise the normal supply of sugar cane in the producing areas of the world. Second, sugar is an energy-giving food for war workers and fighters. This particular demand is heavy. Third, it is a source of industrial alcohol needed for making explosives. North America is today feeling all three of these abnormal conditions.

Authorities state that large aerial bombs, submarine torpedoes and artillery shells consume a great deal of sugar. Some idea of the consumption may be obtained when it is realized that enough powder to fill five 16-inch shells will require the alcohol from as much sugar as an acre will produce of splendid Cuban land.

The sugar beet is a rival of the cane and is grown considerably in Ontario but it will have to be produced in a greatly increased way to have much influence in the manufacturing and marketing field. The obvious need may, however, stimulate beet growing in this country. In the meantime we find it easier to cut down on the use of this common every-day food element when it is known what the circumstances are that lead to its shortage.

Cheers For The Film Board

Hollywood has to take Canada into account these days. Last week the critics who decide such matters made the award for the best short documentary film of 1941 to the Canadian National Film Board for "Churchill's Island." This should be a matter for pride all over the Dominion, and the nation's congratulations are due to the Canadian Film Commissioner, Mr. John Grierson, and the able men who work under him, particularly Stuart Legg, who made the film in question.

The Film Board has done excellent work during its comparatively short life. It is handicapped by lack of money and elaborate equipment but is has minimized its disabilities to a very great extent by using ingenuity and the talent which Mr. Grierson has unearthed here. Perhaps it is not a bad thing for an organization of this kind to work on short rations in its early years; art needs money, but in the long run brains are more genuinely useful, and artists who have learned to depend upon slight resources are less likely to be demoralized by money and elaborate equipment when they get it.

The prize film has already been seen in Canada, and it will be shown in the U.S. during the next few months as one in a series called "The World In Action," which is being released by United Artists. It shows how Britain kept up her lines of supply with this continent during the arduous days of the Blitz, and it is a brilliant record of the valor of civilians and the merchant services in those terrible times.

Cheers for the Film Board! Hollywood has recognized its abilities, and will doubtless try to induce some of Mr. Grierson's young men to go to that fabulous city where (we are informed by an unimpeachable source) the streets are paved with gold. Let us hope that they will not go. We need them here. We cannot give them large salaries, as salaries are reckoned in movie circles, and Canada's highest achievements in paving have never risen above concrete. But we can give them praise. So again we say, Cheers for the Film Board!

Country Correspondence

One of the most interesting features of a newspaper in a good-sized town or average-sized city is found in sections that too many urban dwellers never think of reading, namely, what is known as the "country correspondence" — the news which comes in from small settlements and rural communities. Practically every phase of life is there chronicled in simple, terse lines. Births, marriages, deaths, accomplishments, failures, social, economic and political activities—all given, but they are merely indices into the dramas, adventures, tragedies, comedies and epics of a generation.

The late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, one of the famous authors of England and whose Sherlock Holmes detective and mystery stories have been read by unnumbered millions, once revealed that he got most of his ideas for the brilliant Holmes fiction out of the classified columns of the London, Eng., dailies. Little, innocent looking "Ads," which would be utterly foreign to the eye of the ordinary reader, would give him a plot germ from which he would develop, or perhaps re-create, what years of experience had taught him was behind that apparently trivial advertisement. While other authors sought the skies and the wide earth and everywhere else for something to let the imagination work on, Doyle went to the place where he knew realities existed.

All of this is equally true of the happenings so briefly recorded in the little budget of news coming from this or the other town, village, hamlet. The writer of this comment goes over this kind of correspondence every day when it appears in the Examiner because he knows that on the expansive rural stage are enacted the same scenes of human existence as are common in cities, with few exceptions. The loves and joys, the laughter and sorrow, the aspirations and defeats, the pettiness and greatness of human kind—all are embodies in the short, unpretentious words that go to reveal the heart beats of busy but unseen people.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A Production Board claims that garden hose can be made from reclaimed rubber. Or better still, if your neighbor still has it, reclaim your own hose.

Hairdressers are recommending the "feather bob" for wartime, as it needs no metal curlers. Yes, but does it encourage light-headedness?

The Government has forbidden the manufacture of writing-paper boxes with false bottoms. We have long advocated similar action in the case of strawberry boxes.

Donald M. Nelson, the U.S. War Production Chief, says that the next ten months are vital. But as far as the Victory Loan is concerned, the next two days are even more vital.

"Strike now, strike silently," Sir Stafford Cripps urges Nazi victims in overrun countries. That is, of course, good advice, but unfortunately the millions affected have practically nothing to strike with which would be effective against armed terrorism.

"The law ain't got no brains," a workman was heard to say one afternoon. Seems as though he wasn't far wrong when one considers that in Montreal the police "subversive squad" arrested Miss Preston because she was speaking in Phillips Square in a crusade to get people out of their apathy and complacency with regard to the war. She didn't have a licence to speak there. Question may be asked: If a few enemy airplanes were to come over the same spot and drop some bombs would citizens be required to get a licence before saying anything about the incident?

TODAY, 1942

Today we all must do our part—
Men and women you must start,
Buy our new bonds right away,
Buy a bond from weekly pay.

Yes, we all must do our part,
Boys and girls you, too, must start
Collecting salvage every day;
The more we get, the more they'll pay.

Today we all must do our part,
All you people, you must start!
Show those Japs of our old bravery,
Tell them we're not going to slavery!

Today we all must do our part,
Everybody—you must start
Making planes and guns and ships,
Listen to Sir Stafford Cripps.

Today we all must work and strive,
And help along the Victory Drive,
To build more tanks and planes and guns
To fight those world-power crazy Huns.

We've got to stop those dirty Japs,
They are such cruel little chaps.
Protect our own dear rocky coast,
Of which we all can proudly boast.

So come, Canucks, Anzacs and Yanks!
Bring on your guns and ships and tanks;
And work, and fight, and win the war,
And pray that peace will come once more!

What Do We Owe To Poland?

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SHORTLY before the outbreak of the present war, when the question as to whether or not Hitler would invade Poland was in everyone's mind and on everyone's tongue the query was often heard. Why should we worry about Poland? What concern have we with the Poles? Of course those questions reflected a stupid attitude of mind, but we were most of us being very stupid at that time. We now know that it is necessary for us to worry whenever any small country is attacked, and that there is no people on the face of the earth with whom we are not concerned. But many of us, in those far-off days of the summer of 1939, wondered what the Poles had to do with us.

The Poles are a great and ancient people, and in their history there are many pages which should teach us that we owe them a debt that we will not soon discharge; their passionate search for freedom is an inspiration to anyone who is interested in history. Alas, too few people, and particularly too few politicians, are interested in any history beyond a few scandals and a few pretty tales about Columbus and his egg or King Alfred and his exploits in the bakery line. But apart from its mighty example as a nation which will not be crushed by any tyranny, however brutal, or discouraged by any adversity, however, long-enduring, Poland has given to the whole world men and women who have brought honor to their native land.

Who are these great Poles? They are to be found in every century and in every walk of life. Everyone knows the name of Fryderyk Chopin, the greatest of all composers for the piano, and most of us recognize the name of Nicholas Copernicus, whose discoveries in astronomy revolutionized that science and, incidentally, discreted those astrologers who sought to read the future in the stars. Again, in the world of music, Poland has given us Ignace Jan Paderewski, a giant among pianists, a great patriot and a great statesman. Nor do we need to be reminded of the name of Maria Sklodowska Curie, who gave us radium, and a noble example of unselfishness in the persuit of science.

LESS generally familiar, but still known to great numbers of people, are the names of Tadeusz Kosciuszko, a lover of freedom who served brilliantly in the American Revolutionary War, and Prince Jozef Poniatowski, who strove to give his people freedom. Lovers of the stage will recollect the name of Helena Modjeska who, almost until her death in 1909 was one of the most admired actresses in Europe and America. And lovers of literature will think at once of two men; one, 'the English genius' was Konrad Korzeniowski, known to the world as Joseph Conrad; the other was Henryk Sienkiewicz, the author of the immensely popular novel, "Quo Vadis."

Conrad's novels are familiar to most people who read at all, unless they happen (like the present writer) to find anything about the sea intensely boring. But Conrad can make even readers who detest the sea wade through the salty vastnesses of his novels, for the stories he has to tell are of the best. "Lord Jim." "Aylmer's Folly," and "The Nigger of the Narcissus," to name but three, are great novels, not soon to be forgotten. But the wonder of Conrad's work is that it is written in English which only a handful of British and American authors can rival in command and breadth of vocabulary, and in perfect purity of style, whether seriously literary or coloquial. Conrad never spoke English perfectly, but he wrote it as few men have done.

Sienkiewicz wrote the first Polish novel to achieve a world-wide success. "Quo Vadis" is not so popular now as it was once, but it is till very widely read. It suffers from certain characteristic faults of the nineteenth century; its piety is of the weepy variety, and the purity of some its characters is suspiciously like priggishness. The two apostles who appear in it are very dull fellows; one doubts if our Lord would have found them congenial associates. But the book has great moments. The description of the burning of Rome is magnificent, and there is a Roman orgy in it which might serve as a model for all orgies in novels. Indeed, the writer has heard many strictly brought up young people say that the orgy in "Quo Vadis" gave them ideas about the great world which the pious author certainly never intended. It is interesting that the heroine of the novel comes from Sarmatia, the old name for Poland.

Thus, in a very brief survey, it is possible to recall several names of Poles who have had their influence upon our modern world. What has Poland to do with us? Shall we ever be able to ask that question again? Shall we ever forget the Mayor of Warsaw, a hero if ever there was one? Poland has a very great deal to do with us, and her debt is one which we shall see settled, so far as such a debt can be settled, when the war is won.

Truthful

"Did you notice any suspicious characters in the neighborhood?" the magistrate inquired.

"Sure," replied the new Irish policeman. "I saw but one man, and I asked him what he was doing there at that time o' night. Sez he: 'I have no business here just now, but I expect to open a bank in the vicinity later on.'"

"Yes," replied the magistrate, "and he did open a bank in the vicinity later on and stole £20,000."

"Begorra!" answered the policeman. "The man may have been a thafe, but he was no liar."

THE JAPANESE SANDMAN

—Milwaukee Journal.

• A Tip to U.S. Power

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, March 5 —(AP)— Sharp blows struck at the Japanese by American forces in the Pacific theatre ashore and afloat, do little immediately to relieve the gathering gloom as to Java's fate; but they definitely serve notice on Tokyo of what the future holds.

The operations were offensive in nature. They further whittled at enemy resources in shipping and air power already heavily strained to maintain a vast battle front.

In Luzon General Douglas MacArthur's pint-size air force lashed out of its Bataan refuge to send three big enemy cargo craft to the bottom in Subic Bay. Somewhere "west of the Gilberts" a naval task force blasted sixteen of eighteen attacking Japanese bombers from the sky. The loss of two naval fighter planes and one pilot were the only American casualties.

The achievement of MacArthur's few planes furnished a thrilling counterpart for the gallant stand of his American-Filipino troops on Bataan. Aside from the fact that it knocked out two more enemy surface ships, however, it is only a minor incident of the struggle.

"STATIONARY PLANE CARRIERS"

The sea action has another significance. "West of the Gilberts" covers a vast sweep of sea. To the northwest lie the stepping-stone islands of Japan's mandate outposts, the "stationary plane carriers" around which her offensive strategy is built. The planes brought down by American naval guns and air fighters, probably came from there.

This ocean area is deeper in enemy country than the Marshall and Gilbert Island bases so recently blasted by American sea and air attack. Appearance of an American naval task force in that region means carrying the fight to the foe.

There is no word as to its mission. Presumably it was to knock out other Japanese island bases which menace Pacific supply lines. With Java defense in dire straits, the security of those routes is increasingly vital if the United Nations front is compelled to fall back on Australia.

That also was the purpose of the American attacks in the Marshall and Gilbert groups. The protective counter-attacks has now been pushed a further stride westward. And with the destruction of sixteen of eighteen enemy bombers at least one more Japanese Pacific outpost base, that from which they came, has been nullified.

Word of naval bombardment of that or other island bases to destroy air installations and fuel stores is to be expected. The action at sea cleared the way for that.

EARLY MOVE EXPECTED

The Gilbert Islands straddle the equator. Westward the line runs north of New Guinea and Japanese seized bases off that big island in New Britain. North of the line, however, lies the wide entrance from the Pacific into the Celebes Sea and thence, south of Mindanao through the Sulu Archipelago into the China Sea.

There is still little to indicate that a major American flanking thrust into the China Sea at the jugular vein of the Japanese conquest drive is impending. Japanese efforts to bolster defense of that flank were obvious, however, in new attacks at Zamboanga on the southwest tip of Mindanao

The lotation of other new enemy operations in the Southern Philippines, on the islands of Cebu and Negros, have the same meaning. They live north of Mindanao on the north side of the inside passage from the Pacific to the China Sea.

Tokyo apparently expects an early American move to re-establish air and submarine base sites in the Lower Philippines from which to press flanking attacks on Japanese communication lines in the China Sea. The appearance of a naval task force west of the Gilberts and its striking success in beating off and destroying a land-based bomber attack must heighten that expectation.

Letters To The Editor

CIVIC SALARIES

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Two articles appeared in your issue of today, February 28, dealing with salary raises in the Department of Health which, I feel should have been enlarged in order to give your readers a correct estimate of their import.

The first referred to the salary increase of $200 for our Sanitary Inspector. It was stated that to get a new man would cost the city at least that much. It should have been also stated that Mr. MacPherson had a genuine offer of $2,400 plus car allowance and that he was willing and glad to stay in Peterborough for $1,800 plus car allowance.

The second was called a $124 raise for Miss Wright, Nurse Superintendent of the Isolation Hospital. Your readers would understand better if they were told that Miss Wright will actually receive not a penny more than she received last year. Last year she received a cost of living bonus and it was felt that since she received her food and room at the hospital she was not entitled to receive this bonus. We all recognize that increased cost of living is not confined to food and room. At any rate to take this from her after she had been receiving it would have amounted to a cut. She had a clear call to take charge of the Infectious Department at the Hamilton General Hospital, at what would have been a financial advantage to her if she got this cut. All the Finance Committee did was to grant her what she had been receiving last year in order to hold her. The only difference is that now it will be called salary and not cost of living bonus.

In conclusion may I state that both of these people are not only qualified and doing excellent work but that they could not be replaced by others as good at the salaries that they are receiving. Let's forget the matter of raises and ask ourselves is $1,800 too much to pay for a man of Mr. MacPherson's abilities or $1,204 too much to pay for a capable nursing superintendent?

DOUGLAS B. AVISON, M.D. D.P.H.,
Acting Medical Officer of Health.

GET READY TO DEFEND CANADA

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—What would happen should Canada be invaded tomorrow? is a question that might well be asked by all men over 30 years of age. You ask why? I'll tell you why. The men of Canada around that age are nearly all family men and they realize what would become of their families should the enemy invade this fair land of ours. All they ask for is a chance to get some training in order that they may have at at least a 50-50 chance of protecting their loved ones.

Canada, let us really wake up to the fact that there really is a war going on and that any day we may have to fight for our lives and freedom. Never mind talking about conscripting men for overseas. Let's get down to business and prepare ourselves for that day should it ever come. We pray to God that it never will but should it come tomorrow what should we do? Hide in cellars and wait for a stab in the back and see our loved ones tortured and shot like dogs? I know it sounds terrible but it has already happened in other lands and can happen here.

Yours for more and better training for self-defence. Long live Canada and the Union Jack.

A Bible Message For Today . . .

The Lord God hath given me the tongue of the learned, that I should know how to speak a word in season to him that is weary: he wakeneth morning by morning, he wakeneth mine ear to hear as the learned.—Isa. 1, 4.

Counsel in the heart of man is like deep water; but a man of understanding will draw it out.... The hearing ear, and the seeing eye, the Lord hath made even both of them.—Prov. xx, 5, 12.

The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to nought: he maketh the devices of the people of none effect. The counsel of the Lord standeth for ever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations.—Ps. xxxiii, 10, 11.

Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter? Can the fig tree, my brethren, bear olive berries? either a vine, figs? so can no fountain both yield salt water and fresh.

Who is a wise man and endued with knowledge among you? let him shew out of a good conversation his works with meekness of wisdom.—James iii, 11-13.

LEND WITH A SMILE

LET people make the Loan the subject of bright conversation in trains, buses and street cars! Let them unloosen their girdles of reserve at public meetings or in the movie shows and let out some hearty cheers! Let them go out of their way to praise and applaud the hundreds of men and women who are giving up their own time to put the Loan over! If all these things were done, we should almost certainly be surprised at the astonishing effect it would be bound to have on the final returns announced at Ottawa at the end of the campaign.—Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

MANITOBA RINK TAKES LEAD IN CANADIAN CURLING TANKARD

Vancouver Rink Comes Up Fast For Final Round

QUEBEC, March 5(CP).—Manitoba's Ken Watson took over the top spot in the Macdonald's Brier Tankard standing today, defeating the Ontario rink skipped by Gordon Campbell 11-8 in a seventh round match for his sixth victory against one defeat. Ontario, New Brunswick, British Columbia and Alberta are tied for second, with five victories against two losses apiece.

Watson's Manitobians took a 3-0 lead on the first end over the Ontario team. The leads and seconds were short for both sides and Manitoba's third, Grant Watson, got the first rock in the house on a draw. Skip Campbell of Ontario was short on his attempted draw and Ken Watson kicked in two rocks to count three. Campbell failed to alter the layout with his last rock.

Manitoba picked up another two shots on the seventh and eighth ends. The first three players on each rink matched rocks but on both ends Ken Watson made shots that gave Manitoba single points, putting down good guards to protect counting rocks.

Manitoba held a comfortable 11-5 lead over Ontario after 10 ends. Watson's rink scored seven shots from the fifth to the ninth ends, inclusive, blanking the Ontario team through those frames.

QUEBEC March 5—(CP).—Ontario's Gordon Campbell and J. Ken Watson of Manitoba clung today to the top of the heap in the Macdonald's Brier Tankard playdowns but followers of the "roarin' game" here were of the opinion that the team to watch in today's closing rounds was British Columbia under the guidance of youthful Don Campbell.

The Vancouver rink pulled off as neat a piece of double giant killing as has been seen in this Dominion championship bonspiel in handing Manitoba and Ontario their first losses of the event yesterday. The two wins placed the coast rink on even terms with Alberta and New Brunswick at four wins and two losses apiece.

Having overcome their indifferent showing of the early rounds the British Columbians curled splendidly in moving into a contending position for the title award. The first of the unbeaten rinks to feel the strength of the coast entry was Don Campbell's own brother, who lost 14-6 in the fifth round.

Then as a fitting climax to the day, the Vancouver entry set aside Watson's foursome by a narrow 13-11 score in a thrilling battle.

Connelly Going Hot.

New Brunswick's Dan P. Connolly, rated in the pre-season books as one of the best skips in the bonspiel, displayed some of his skill with the rocks when he pulled out both his games for the day. In his fifth-round assignment he polished off John Franklin's Saskatchewan representatives, 13-7, then followed with a 10-8 decision against W. A. McMitchell's Sudbury quartet.

Although still in the hunt for the crown John Slavik's Albertans missed a golden opportunity of moving into a leading spot when they lost 14-13 to Ontario in the sixth round, as Gordon Campbell came through with three shots in the last end for the Ontarians. Earlier in the day, the Viking four had disposed of Northern Ontario 10-8.

Prince Edward Island was still definitely in the running after enjoying a perfect day to give it three wins and as many losses to date.

The seasoned rink of the Charlottetown club under W. R. Cruikshank, made its first bid to move back into the show when it turned aside a rival Maritimer, John I. Hebb, of Nova Scotia, 15-7, then added Saskatchewan to its list of victims, beating the western team 10-7.

Both Northern Ontario and Saskatchewan have only two victories to show for their six rounds, and unless something of the unusual happens, their title chances have definitely gone as have Nova Scotia's and Quebec's.

Quebec, under J. Gordon Ross, Jr., of Huntingdon, is still in search of its first victory, although in yesterday's defeats it put up splendid displays, losing out by one shot margins on the final ends. Manitoba set the Huntingdon foursome down 8-7 in the morning, and Nova Scotia gained its first triumph of the event at Quebec's expense, 7-6.

The first of to-day's three rounds, which wind up the four-day event, is scheduled to get underway at 9.30 a.m., with the other rounds set to start at 2.30 p.m., and 7.30 pm

Generals Bowed 12-8 By Lions Saints Wins 6-3

By The Canadian Press

St. Catharine Saints are back on even terms in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" finals today as a result of their 6-3 win over Hamilton Majors last night. The victory evened up the best-of-five series at one game each.

In the Junior "A" O.H.A. semi-finals, Brantford Lions bested Oshawa Generals 12-8, thus taking a commanding lead on the best-of-seven playdowns. The Lions lead three games to two. In the other half of the Junior semi-finals, Toronto Young Rangers beat Guelph Biltmores 6-4 to tie up their best-of-five arrangement at one game apiece.

Familiarity with their home ice may have had something to do with these teams' wins, as all victories last night were scored on home rinks.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior playdowns, Buffalo Ankerite Bisons captured the second of a best-of-five final series by defeating Hollinger Greenshirts 3-2 in an overtime game at Timmins. Buffalo also won the first.

Saints Win in Third.

At St. Catharines the first two periods of play were evenly contested. The first was scoreless. In the middle session the score at the end read 3-3. Davey, Goble and Mundrick were the goal-getters for the Saints, while Allan, Laurent and Conick tallied for Hamilton. In the final period tallies by Davey, Goble and Adamson brought the final count to 6-3 for the St. Catharines team.

In the O.H.A. Junior "A" games high scoring also featured. At Toronto Hill was high scored for the winners with three tallies, while McKeown got two and Smylie one. Voll led point-getters for Guelph with two goals, while Orlando and Cressman each netted once.

At Brantford, Fitzpatrick made his goal-getting efforts four times, Wiest scored three times and Simpson, Simon, Hewson, Quackenbush and Giesebrecht each scored once. For Oshawa Smith and Wilson scored three apiece. Davies and Mortimer counted the other two.

At Timmins Morris scored twice for the Ankerites, while Clouthier scored the other tally. Wilson and Williams counted for the Hollinger sextet.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

With no cold weather in sight last night the management of the Peterborough Soldiers' hockey club decided that their home game in the Collingwood series, billed for Brock St. Rink Friday night would have to be transferred to Oshawa in order to be sure of good ice conditions. The Petes refused to take a chance on another game in the slush against the belting Shipbuilders and no one who saw Collingwood in action last night would think of blaming them. It is a matter of regret that the game has to be switched for the Petes, both for the sake of the home fans and the rink management, would have preferred to play at home. However their chances of pulling off the round in two straight games are improved materially by meeting Collingwood on fast ice and on the big surface at Oshawa and under the circumstances the decision to play the second game in the Motor City is entirely justified. And so it is on to Oshawa tomorrow night.

* * * * * *

There will be plenty of Peterborough support even if the game is to be played out of town. Arrangements have been made for another special C.N.R. train, leaving here at 6.30 o'clock and returning after the game and hundreds of fans will welcome that opportunity. In addition hundreds more will travel to Oshawa by car and bus. It will undoubtedly be the biggest hockey exodus from Peterborough in several seasons for the Petes, by coming through the Whitby series like champions to take the group honors and then by outscoring Collingwood in a gruelling battle on soft ice last night, have caught the imagination of local fans. They are solidly behind the Soldiers in their determined drive for the Senior B championship. Everybody and his wife will hit the trail for the Oshawa Arena tomorrow night and they should be rewarded by seeing a fighting game between the hard-hitting Northerners and the speedy Petes.

* * * * * *

Although beaten at home last night the Shipbuilders cannot be counted out by any means. They claim they were handicapped as much as the Petes by the ice conditions and that on decent footing they look like a different team. There is plenty of hockey talent on the Collingwood lineup. The starting forward line is a formidable trio with a lot of foot and savvy. Scott, formerly of Atlantic City is outstanding and Ab Kirby, centre ice player who led the team all season in scoring is another standout. The right-winger is Matt Kelly, formerly of Hershey and last season with the Glace Bay Miners. Brophy, the veteran coach who played in the N.H.L. with the Detroit Red Wings and the Canadiens is on the defence and still can turn it on while another rearguard is big Bus Portland, brother of the Canadien defence star and a former member of the New York Rovers.

* * * * * *

A Fighting Team

The Petes were a fighting team last night. Starting a game on the kind of ice most of the outfit detest and then running into a rough reception right off the reel, with no protection from the referee, was enough to dishearten most clubs but the Soldiers ignored the bad ice and refused to allow the berserk tactics of the Shipbuilders get them down. Every man on the squad gave his last ounce to bring home a victory and they were a happy, although tired crowd when they climbed out of their bus at 4 o'clock this morning. There is a lot of fighting spirit and a lot of team spirit in this 1942 edition of the Petes and it helps to explain their fine record so far this season. They pull together like a porous plaster and there is no jealousy anywhere in the lineup. They play as a team and battle as a team rather than a collection of individuals and an outfit like that is hard to stop. Ask Belleville or Whitby or for that matter Collingwood. The Shipbuilders had romped through a group made up of three intermediate clubs, Midland, Sutton and Gravenhurst and they found the opposition decidedly tougher last night.

* * * * * *

Writes George Campbell in the Oshawa Times-Gazette: "Come to think of it—it mightn't be a bad idea just to "dream" for a paragraph and think how the Oshawa Senior hockey team (if it had existed) might have done this season. As most fans know, a senior team in this city would have been welcome but hockey club officials couldn't see their way clear, due to several angles concerning work, etc. Harry McQueston tended goal for Kingston and made another good showing. "Ab" Barnes, Jerry Cooper, Roy Covert and "Regina" Tisdall are all with Peoples, who have headed the T.H.L. Major League all the way. "Regina" is the league's champion scorer, set a new record for goals and assists. "Barney" and "Jerry" have both enjoyed grand seasons and Covert has kept his end up too, and these three have also played a big part in the success of the Whitby team. Tommy Durling headed the scoring race in Toronto's other mercantile league while Carl Gamble and Jimmy Chappell also finished well up with the scorers. They played for the "Campbells" team, which finished in first place in that loop. These two mercantile leagues are considered good company, not equal to Senior O.H.A. of course, but almost. Two Oshawa players took down the scoring championships in the two loops. When you think of it—it wouldn't have taken much more additional strength to have given Oshawa a Senior team capable of making an excellent showing and finishing at least in the playoff brackets."

The Real Thing

The Outboard Marines, Peterborough's representative in the intermediate A series of the O.A.B.A. who have been staging exhibition games all season with some of the best clubs in Eastern Ontario will be playing for keeps Saturday night when they tackle the fast Kingston Combines in the first of a home-and-home O.A.B.A. series at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium. The second game will be played in Kingston a week from Saturday and points on the round will settle the argument. The Kingston team is made up of high-class cage stars, with plenty of ball-handling ability and shooting prowess but they cannot be any tougher than the opposition the Outboard Marines have been facing all season. The Peterborough team has beaten such teams as Shag Park's Navy team and has played close battles with the crack R.C.A.F. squads, losing to the American-packed Eglington outfit by a single point. Saturday's game should be a honey and draw the biggest crowd of the year.

* * * * * *

All the proceeds of the Ladies' Basketball League card scheduled for the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium on Friday night will be turned over to the Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund for British Women in Service, a most worthy cause and the largest crowd of the winter should fill the gallery to help a splendid organization and at the same time enjoy a lively basketball card. The playoff season is near and every game counts so that Friday's twin bill should be packed to the brim with excitement. With the finals almost at hand the teams are keyed up and playing their smartest basketball. The games on the card find St. John's and the Y Gym batling it out in the first fixture. Both outfits need a win and they will turn on the heat from the first whistle. The battling Normalites will do their utmost to stop the powerful Generals in the second game on the menu. Remember the cause to be helped and patronize a real sporting event.

PETERBOROUGH SOLDIERS WIN FIRST GAME IN COLLINGWOOD 6-4

Petes Defeat Shipbuilders After Rough Passage To Get Jump In Big Series

(By FRED D. CRAIG)

Riding out a storm of hooking, high-sticking, slashing and boarding the Peterborough Soldiers got the jump on Collingwood Shipbuilders in the first game of the Senior B second round series in the Collingwood Arena Wednesday night, taking the verdict on very soft ice 6 goals to 4.

It was the roughest game the Peterborough team has experienced since the memorable series with Niagara Falls three years ago. Coached by the veteran pro, Bern. Brophy, who donned a uniform himself last night, the Collingwood gang evidently went out with the intention of giving the Petes the works.

The visitors were greeted with a barrage of charging, holding and high-sticking, with every man who crossed the Collingwood blue line tagged and Referee D. A. Houston let nearly everything go. However the rough stuff failed to stop the Petes who kept tearing in at top speed all night.

They had a big edge in the territorial play and even in the slush pulled off passing attacks that had the Collingwood crew all at sea. On fast ice their margin of victory would have undoubtedly been larger for many dangerous attacks were spoiled by a rolling puck or a pass lost in the slush. But as it was they were in the driver's seat so far as scoring opportunities were concerned.

Come Through Like Champs

The Petes, in a word , came through like champions. They set up an early lead of two goals, saw it wiped out and the Shipbuilders set up a one-goal margin early in the second period and then came on again to build up another lead and hold it against repeated Collingwood ganging attacks during the last ten minutes.

Coach Ellis' team led 2 to 1 at the end of the first period and 4 to 3 at the close of the second and in the final 20 minutes they put on the pressure to outscore the Collingwood gang 2 to 1.

There were no particular stars on the winning team or they were all stars. The two right-wingers, Honey Tompkins and Perce Nichols, paced the attack by firing two goals each, with Bun Kingdon and Don Crowe responsible for the other two. Art Heal did not get a counter himself but he was in on four of his team's six markers, a fine night's work for the 127-pound left-winger who was a special target for the badmen on the Collingwood team throughout the engagement. Both lines worked nicely while back of the blue line Godfrey, Burton, Crowe and Joplign played airtight hockey. Harding did not have a busy night in the nets, although when he was called upon most of the shots were at close range.

Collingwood's Star

By long odds the best performer for the Collingwood team and incidentally the cleanest was Dint Scott the former Barrie Colt, who played left wing for the Shipbuilders' starting line. Scott, who played for Atlantic City last season and was one of the high scorers in the United States Eastern League, scored three of his team's four goals and was dangerous everytime he got the rubber in Peterborough territory. Kirby, another former Barrie junior, teamed up nicely with Scott and the two were Collingwood's chief scoring threat.

The Collingwood defence was crude in its checking and with efficient refereeing the guards would have spent half their time in the penalty vox.

The ice was watery to start with and soon became little more than a cushion of slush. The conditions did not suit the Petes but they played the only kind of hockey that brings results on that sort of going. They kept on the attack and carried the battle to the losers all the way.

Petes Score First

Peterborough outscored the Shipbuilders 2 to 1 in a hard-hitting first period in which the Petes had a big edge on the play, despite a lot of holding and high-sticking by the Collingwood defence. Heal and Tompkins were in early for shots that Beatty stopped and when the second line came out the Petes continued to carry the play. Bennett drew a penalty for an accidental trip and while he was off Nichols and Blewett forechecked so successfully the Shipbuilders did not get a shot. When Portland was chased for tripping, the Petes roared in and were finally rewarded when Kingdon passed back to Heal from a face-off in Collingwood territory and Heal centred to Don Crowe who drilled a beauty past Beatty. A little more than a minute later Joe Blewett dashed in and passed to Nichols, whose backhander found the net to put the Petes in front 2 to 0.

Jopling and G. Butters were chased for mixing it but nothing happened while they were off. With the side even the Petes came close half a dozen times but failed to score and finally with the Petes ganging Collingwood scored on a breakaway, Brophy carrying the rubber down and passing from the corner to Burns who slapped the disc in. The goal came at the 16:00 minute mark. Jopling and Kelly got the gate for mixing it and the Petes pressed but could not add to their score.

Two Quick Goals

The Shipbuilders struck back quickly at the beginning of the second period and in a little over two minutes had run in two fast goals and taken the lead. The first was the result of a momentary lapse of the Petes behind their own blue line when Kelly picked up a loose puck in the corner and whipped it out to Scott, left unchecked in front of the net. Harding had no chance on that one.

The second marker was one of the nicest of the night. Scott got it too on a passing play with Kirby and Kelly that took him right inside for a smart score. Then the Petes came back and did everything but score. They missed half a dozen chances close in because of a rolling puck but finally got their opportunity when Sandell and C. Butters were penalized in quick succession, the latter for cross-checking Blewett. With a two-man advantage the soldiers swarmed in and Tompkins evened the count on a pass from Heal who beat the Shipbuilders to the puck after Jopling had drilled one into the corner of the rink.

It was heavy going for the next few minutes with the Petes on the attack most of the time. Collingwood missed one great chance when Scott and Kirby both had swipes at the puck with Harding down but they couldn't bat it in. Finally at the 16:15 mark the Petes took the lead, Honey Tompkins doing the trick again on a pass from Heal. He pulled Beatty out on the play and slipped the disc into the empty net, shooting as he tripped over the prostrate goalie.

Score in Ten Seconds

The razzle-dazzle line opened the final period with a lightning goal. From the face-off Kingdon passed to Heal who dashed over the Collingwood blue line and blazed a shot that missed by inches but Tompkins tore in, recovered the puck and whipped it out in front to Kingdon who scored at close range to put the Petes two goals in front.

The Petes continued to press, keeping play well in Collingwood territory most of the time but there was no further scoring until the eight-minute mark when Bennett passed from the side to Nichols who back-handed a shot into the corner of the net. Beatty flopped too late to block the low drive. That made it 6 to 3.

A minute later on one of their few dangerous rushes of the early part of the period Collingwood broke over the Peterborough blue line and Scott's quick shot on a pass from Kirby was responsible for the last score of the game.

Half the period remained and the Shipbuilders ganged up in an effort to pull the game out of the fire, but the Petes' steady and persistent checking never gave them a chance. Art Heal received a cut over the eye and retired for repairs and got back with only six minutes left to play. Collingwood threw everybody up on the attack but the Petes gave them few opportunities to score. Reilly drew a penalty with a minute to go but the odd-man advantage did not mean a thing in view of the steady defensive work of the winners.

Combines Defeat Midgets In First Game

CAMPBELLFORD, March 5 — (ENS). — Marmora-Deloro Combines defeated Campbellford Midgets by a close 4 to 3 score in the opening game of their home and home total goal series here last night. The two teams, handicapped by a soft sheet of ice that slowed playing, worked hard before the final decision that came in the third frame. Though the visitors stepped into the lead early in the first period and were never headed headed, it was ,anybody's game from the start with both sides giving a good exhibition of hockey. From the winners' standpoint it was very much of a one-man show, since their speedy right winger, K. Trumble took all of the scoring honors of the evening. He paved the way for his teammates' victory early in the first when he made his way down through the local's defence and eased one past McComb. He encored five minutes later, while Campbellford was down the ice striving hard for the equalizer. Jacobs finally notched the homesters first tally and the period ended 2 to 1 for the visitors. Free's second inning sol evened up the game, but as the homesters turned on the pressure to get in the front position Trumble, who was buzzing all over the ice, landed another stinger that was too hot for McComb to handle. A pool of water that covered the ice at the visitors' end during the last stanza hampered playing in this inning and for a while it looked like a splashing contest, as the puck and sticks skidded through water which made its way into sweaters and shorts. Swimming suits would have been more appropriate. L. Ferrill evened up the score once again for the locals, but the visitors sent Trumble out to snatch the lead for the final whistle. Winners of the return game, to be played in Madoc on Friday, will meet Kingston.

Marmora-Deloro.—Goal. W. McInroy; defence, R. Cheeseman, R. Hegadoran; centre, E. Cousins; wings, K. Trumble, R. Goodchild; alternates, M. Burke, E. McInroy, G. Lavender.

Campbellford. — Goal, McComb; defence, R. Osborne, K. Sutton; centre, D. Free; wings, L. Dunk, L. Ferrill; alternates, A. Shillinglaw, B. Oliver, G. Jacobs, George Beeee, A. Hay, J. O'Rourke.

Referee—Thomas Cousins, Deloro.

Wood Just Grins As He Shoots 76 In Opener

ST. PETERSBURG, March 5 — (AP).—You wouldn't expect the National Open champion to blow himself to a four-over-par 76 in the first round of a golf tournament and some off the course smiling.

But Craig Wood, the blonde bomber from Mamaroneck, N.Y., who is likely to remain the National Open champion for a long time because the tournament has been abandoned for the duration of the war, wasn't the least bit concerned that he shot a 39-37—76 yesterday at the start of the 72-hole $5,000 St. Petersburg Open.

Byron Nelson of Toledo had weighed in with a spectacular 34-34—68, Billy Burke and Al Brosch had checked in cards of 69. Three other players had finished with 70's, and 10 more had played even par before Wood strode off the Lakewood Country Club course with his lustreless score.

Instead of beefing, he grinned and said: "This is just a warmup. I knew when I entered that I didn't have a chance of doing anything here. But golfers need some Spring training just like baseball players.

"I don't mean they have to get into physical condition, but they have to get back their concentration. They have to get tournament tough.

"I've laid out of tournament golf this Winter, but I'm going to make the rest of the circuit and defend my Master's championship. I'm counting on this tournament to get me in shape for the ones to come."

Wood and Gene Sarazen, who also joined the touring pros here and shot a 76, and Lawson Little, who splurged a 77, were definitely out of the running in the St. Petersburg test.

Badminton Honors Go To Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, March 5. — (ENS).— For the second time in their comparatively short career, the Campbellford Badminton Club has finished the season by heading the Kawartha Trent group and had they not consented to play what some regard as superfluous home and home series with the second ranking Marmora outfit they would already have the Kawartha Trent cup safely tucked away for the second consecutive season. The locals won every game during the season with the single exception of a tie game with Hastings, who finished up in third place. However, they compensated for this close contest by taking a somewhat weakened representation from Hastings by 8 to 4 in the final event of the regular schedule here last Thursday evening.

The first contest in their home and home total game series is scheduled for next Thursday evening when the homesters will journey to Marmora at which time the date for the return game will be decided. The final standing of the league was as follows:

	P	W	L	T	Pts.
Campbellford	6	5	0	1	11
Marmora	6	4	2	0	8
Hastings	6	2	3	1	5
Deloro	6	0	6	0	0

Hornets Wallop Bears 9-8 In American League Game

(By The Canadian Press)

Indianapolis Capitols can thank the last-place Pittsburgh Hornets today for permitting them to remain in a second-place tie with Hershey Bears in the Western Division of the American Hockey League.

Last night the Hornets, who are already eliminated from the A.H.L. playoffs, went to town against the Bears in the first two periods of their encounter and held off a third-period Hershey rally to cop the free-scoring, wide-open affair, 9-8.

The Bears rammed in four goals within four minutes near the middle of the last period but their sudden burst of power apparently wilted after that attempt and left them the losers.

The loss didn't drop the Bears any farther away from the leading Cleveland Barons than they were because the Barons also went down to defeat. New Haven Eagles, holders of second place in the Eastern Division, stopped the Barons, 5-4, on a goal by Jack Cain in the overtime period.

The Barons blew a two-goal lead in the last six minutes of the third period when goals by Mike Dzuira and Earl Roche beat Goalie Bill Beveridge.

Despite their victory, the Eagles failed to gain on the first-place Springfield Indians, who edged out Philadelphia Rockets 5-4.

The Indians scored three goals within 29 seconds, breaking a 2-2 tie late in the middle period. Pete Kelly, the league's leading scorer, counted two goals in the last minute of the second frame and Norm Larson banged in the winning goal after 12 seconds of play in the final session. Bill Summerhill scored the Indians' first two tallies.

In the only other scheduled game last night, Washington Lions and Buffalo Bisons fought to a 4-4 overtime tie. The draw moved Bisons, who are already eliminated from the playoffs, out of a last-place tie with Pittsburg in the Eastern Division, and let the Lions in third spot in the Western Section.

Joe Says Little But Wants Raise

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 5 —(AP)—Joe DiMaggio, baseball's highest salaried player and No. 1 holdout, broke the silence surrounding his salary negotiations with the world champion New York Yankees today to tell why he has not signed for the 1942 season.

"I don't like to have to wrangle for my salary," he said, "but the only contract the club has offered me was for $37,000, exactly the same as I got last year.

"All I have told Ed Barrow (president of the Yanks) is that I think I deserve a raise."

The record, it might be mentioned, showed that DiMaggio had an incomparable batting streak of 56 consecutive games last season, had an average of .357, hit 30 homers, led the circuit in runs batted in with 125 and was voted the most valuable player in the American League for his part in leading the Bombers to their fifth world championship in six years.

Ottawa To Pay Soldiers' Wives Fare From U.K.

OTTAWA, March 5 — (CP). — Free transportation to Canada for the wives, widows and young children of men in the Canadian overseas armed services will be provided by the Dominion Government, it was announced yesterday by the Immigration Branch.

The Government will pay minimum cost transportation, ocean and rail, to destination in Canada for wives, and children under 18, of personnel returning to this country for discharge or for some other more or less permanent pupose. The same povision is made for widows, and children under 18, where Canadian personnel die abroad.

The arrangement is retroactive to the beginning of the war and applications for refund will be received in cases where repatriation has already been accomplished privately.

Repatriation may take place at any time where dependents have been previously resident in Canada and a home awaits them here. Where dependents, other than widows, have not previously resided in this country, it has been thought advisable to delay their coming until the return of family heads, the Immigration Branch said.

Work of repatriation will be conducted by the Immigration Branch in Ottawa.

Applications arising in the British Isles could be addressed to the Commissioner of Emigration, Sackville House, 40 Piccadilly, London. Those arising in Canada, including applications for refund, should be addressed to the Director of Immigration, Ottawa.

Italians Off U.S.

Rome, (From Italian Broadcasts), March 5 (AP).

THE Italian high command claimed today that Italian submarines operating off the United States coast had sunk merchant shipping totalling 27,204 tons.

This was Rome's first official claim that its submarines are operating off the U.S. coast. While a large number of undersea raiders have been in the Western Atlantic, they were believed to have been German U-boats. Nazi communiques of U-boat operations in the Atlantic have made no mention of Italian submarines.

Resources To Win States Cripps

LONDON, March 5—(CP).—Sir Stafford Cripps, leader of the House of Commons, appealed to the United Nations to follow the "all-out" example of Russia in the world fight against Nazism and Fascism in a broadcast speech to the United States Wednesday.

"We now are all Allies together to drive aggression and Fascism from the world," Sir Stafford declared.

"After the victory let us remain in the same gallant company to rebuild a stricken world upon the foundations of justice and equality that will secure for us, for them and for all people of the world a happier, saner and more peaceful future."

He warned repeatedly that the recent heavy Allied setbacks would be followed by further reverses, but insisted that "modern war, on the gigantic and farflung scale upon which it now is being waged, is not finally won or lost as the result of territorial gains here or there."

"It eventually will be won by the resources in manpower and material that can be mobilized behind one side or the other," the former Ambassador to Russian and new Lord Privy Seal in the War Cabinet declared.

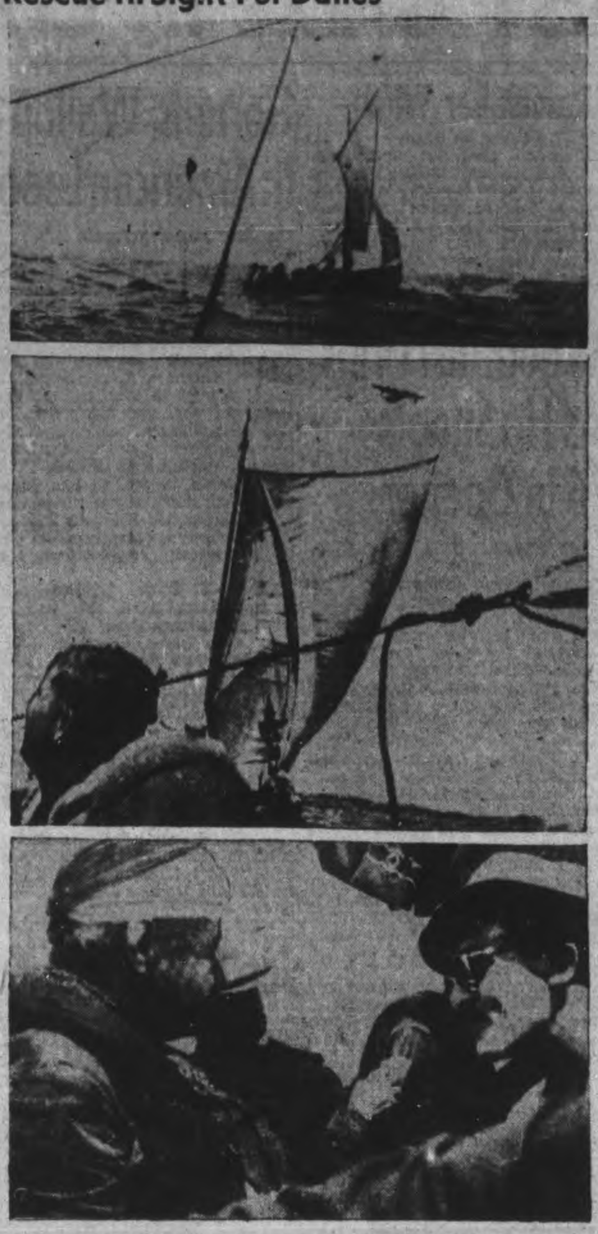
In these, he said, the Allies have overwhelming superiority and hence the present United Nations' outlook is not disheartening.

Sir Stafford praised the Russian people for their war effort, but added:

"The fight on the Russian front is by no means over. They still have long months of stubborn and desperate fighting before them. But in all their trial they will be borne up by the knowledge which their own valor has taught them—that they can and will defeat an enemy which is our enemy, too.

"The myth of Hitler's invincibility was smashed by Marshal Semeon Timoshenko at Rostov and by the gallant troops on the Moscow front."

Rescue In Sight For Danes



This photo, officially released in Britain, shows how a Sunderland flying boat of the British Royal Air Force coastal command, located 50 survivors of a free Danish ship torpedoed and sunk by a U-boat. At TOP, the jolly boat from the sunken ship, containing five men, shown under sail. The photo was obviously made from the accompanying lifeboat in which were the remaining 46 survivors. CENTRE, the Sunderland flying boat circles over the boat to fix the position and signal to the castaways that help will soon be on the way. BELOW, the men in the boat are now at ease. They know that soon a destroyer will be here to pick them up. They weren't disappointed.

Victory Clothes To See Changes In Public Wear

WASHINGTON, March 5—(AP).—Men of the United States are going to be tailored to the times in "victory suits."

No longer will the well-dressed man have cuffs to keep his trousers from whipping about his ankles. Neither will he have comfortable pleats, sporty patch pockets, nor a vest with his double-breasted suit.

These are out for the duration, effective for manufacturers as of March 30, the War Production Board announced Tuesday. At the same time, the board said it had been promised the wholehearted cooperation of the clothing industry in fitting out men in view of war needs.

The order, issued to conserve upward of 40,000,000 pounds of wool, hits the white tie-and-tails trade especially hard. The full dress coat, the cutaway and the double-breasted tuxedo won't be manufactured after the deadline, leaving only the single-breasted dinner jacket for night wear.

(Ottawa and London also indicated that considerable change in clothing is in the offing.

(In London, Sir Thomas Barlow, director-general of civilion clothing, listed these projected changes: shorter skirts for women, fewer styles, restricted choice of colors; for men, the end of trousers cuffs, sleeve buttons and double-breasted coats.

(In Ottawa it was stated new restrictions on clothing would be at least as drastic as those of the United States. Regulations were being drawn up, to apply to Fall styles, with the general plan tending toward plainer clothes for men and boys, and less frills for the women.)

The order covers boys as well as men's suits, and the total savings are expected to permit the manufacture of 26 per cent more suits in 1942 than otherwise would be possible, and 10 per cent more overcoats.

Suit coats will be three-quarters of an inch shorter, a return to the mode of a few years ago. Fancy back coats were ruled out, eliminating pleats, vents, belts and bellows. The width of trousers at knee and bottom is restricted to 22 and 18½ inches respectively, which are the present normal measurement. Suits will have only one pair of trousers.

"Continuous" (overlapping) waistbands on trousers were prohibited, along with woollen trouser belts.

Both single and double-breasted overcoats will be two to four inches shorter than at present. The "sweep" (width at the bottom) of overcoats also is curtailed slightly.

Costly Business

Los Angeles, March 5 (AP)

SO you'd like to earn a million, eh? Better not do it in California, in one year, or you'll be borrowing $20,410 to pay your taxes, according to experts who figure that a Californian, single, no dependents, with a $1,000,000 income would pay $879,610 federal tax and $140,800 state tax—total, $1,020,410.

NotDoingEnough Yet For Victory Says Columnist

TORONTO, March 5 — (CP). — The moment a nation allows itself, in a world dominated by force, to be put into a position where it can only wage a defensive war while its enemies can attack it at will, that country "is finished as an independent power," said Dorothy Thompson, internationally known columnist, last night at a silver jubilee banquet of the Toronto Hadassah organization.

She warned her audience that "we cannot defeat Hitler and Japan at the rate we are going with half-measures all taken belatedly," and asserted that the United States ought to demand now the institution of universal service for all youths of military age, putting those not needed in the army at other work.

Miss Thompson told of the German plans for an industrial feudalism dominating the entire world, and declared: "This is what is going to happen unless it is stopped, and nothing we are doing so far is adequate to stop it."

Continuing, she said that "We shall not be able to defeat Hitler the way we are doing and acting and being; we shall go on suffering disastrous defeats at the hands of the Japanese; we shall be riven by internal strife; we shall suffer terrible collapse in our standard of living."

Need Great Aim.

Some great and real aim must be found by the United Nations to make the present war worth fighting, Miss Thompson said.

"Unless we find a great aim to which we are prepared to use every scrap of energy, resources and man-power, only unless we can see what we will do with victory, is it worth while to defeat Hitler," she declared.

"For unless we see it, we shall merely substitute chaos for Hitler's horrible order of slavery, and between chaos and slavery there is little to choose."

Miss Thompson outlined at length the German plans for the world in event of a Nazi victory and a dictated peace. There would be no place for the Jew as the Jew would not be permitted to even fill the role of slave, but would be systematically exterminated, she said.

She told her audience to reject any optimistic idea that the Nazi order could be overthrown by revolt from within.

"To say that under the new Nazi world order 80,000,000 Germans cannot control 1,000,000,000 or more people is to deny the experience of modern industrial capitalism," she said. "A mere 100,000 Germans could control them. Uneducated masses do not revolt and masses without leaders do not revolt. The masses of the future, should the Nazis win, would have no leaders and no education."

A Pimple Covered Face Kills Many a Romance

The lives of many young people are made miserable by the breaking out of pimples, and you probably know of cases where a promising romance has been spoiled by those red, white, festering and pus filled sores on the face.

The trouble is not so much physical pain, but the mental suffering caused by the embarrassing disfigurement which very often makes the sufferer ashamed to go out in company.

The quickest way to get rid of pimples is to improve the general health by a thorough cleansing of the blood.

Burdock Blood Bitters helps to cleanse the blood and with the blood cleansed the complexion should clear up.

Welles Upholds Blast at Paris

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP).—The R.A.F. bombing of factories in the suburbs of Paris was a legitimate measure of war, the Acting United States Secretary of State, Sumner Welles told a press conference Wednesday.

Welles was asked for comment on a London report that the bombing might mean the end of Allied attempts to coax the Vichy government away from collaboration with Nazi Germany.

He replied that it was entirely clear that the bombing of factories in occupied France making war materials for Germany was a legitimate measure of war.

As to the political repercussions of such bombings, Welles had no comment.

He noted, however, that the United States policy toward the Vichy government had been outlined last week and that this policy was not likely to be affected by the British use of a legitimate measure of war.

In reply to a question, Welles said that numerous reports of the use of western hemisphere bases by Axis submarines had been investigated but that no evidence had been found to support the allegation that foreign possessions in the western hemisphere were involved in the Axis operations.

He mentioned particularly a report that Axis submarines operating in the Caribbean had been using secret bases in French Guiana, which adjoins Dutch Guiana where American troops are garrisoned. He said the United States has not only a consul in French Guiana but also other observers, and that these observers had found no confirmation whatsoever of the secret base reports.

In general connection with the war, Welles indicated the state department might have an important statement to make on aid to India before the end of this week.

The strength of this contingent as in the case of the first troops which arrived in Northern Ireland Jan. 26, was not disclosed.

In a special communique, the department said no information would be made public as to designation of units, their composition and strength, the ports of embarkation, sailing dates or other details of the movement.

Ontario Boosts Fishing Prizes Plans More Tourist Ads As Easing In Travel Foreseen

TORONTO, March 5.—In addition to the $100 cash prizes offered for the best fish in each of six different classes, caught in Ontario waters, the Ontario Government in the 1942 fishing season will pay $400 additional to the angler landing the fish deemed the best among the six $100 prize winners.

Announcement of this $500 tag being placed upon some finny beauty now nosing bottom in some lake or stream was made to the Northern Ontario Tourist Association membership at their annual dinner in the Royal York Hotel last night by Douglas R. Oliver, director of the Province's Travel and Publicity Bureau

With Provincial Secretary Hon. Harry Nixon and Lands and Forests Minister Hon. Peter Heenan as their special guests at the head table and Game and Fish Department officials ranged around them, the tourist body entered upon their evening with typical northern gayety and informality, listening alternately to two or three minute speeches and items of entertainment, and winding up with addresses by the two Cabinet Ministers.

Their livelihoods dependent upon the tourist business, the question uppermost in membership minds was about 1942 business conditions under new travel-regulations. Deputy Minister of Fish and Game D. J. Taylor gave it as his considered opinion that they would enjoy normal business in the fishing and hunting tourist trade, but that the casual tourist trade, undoubtedly would lessen greatly. Warning them that it was not to be taken as a criterion of summer business, the Deputy Minister announced almost 100 per cent increase in the non-resident fishing license sale for January and February over the corresponding period last year.

Mr. Oliver declared that the matter of the appropriation for tourist traffic promotion was not yet a settled item, but said that if no other advertising were to be done than that which has already appeared and that to which the department was committed, Ontario in 1942 would spend at least four times as much money as was spent on tourist promotion in the year 1940.

Hon. Mr. Heenan paid tribute to the splendid work of the organization and declared himself the pioneer in the movement which got good roads into Northern Ontario so that tourists might reach the playground area. Anything the association was able to do in the way of increasing tourist influx could not help but work in the interests of the Province as a whole. In the matter of removing commercial fishermen from the lakes, he said he was with the membership in principle but believed that if such men were moved out they ought to be compensated.

Hon. Harry Nixon asked the association to continue sending in its suggestions and resolutions. He believed the best advertisement for Ontario's playgrounds was the satisfied customer going back home and telling his friends and neighbors about Ontario hunting and fishing facilities.

Gen. Guderian were borne by tanks to a rendezvous between the lines under a temporary truce, the Stockholm correspondent wrote. During their 20-minute conference Red Army fliers showered safe-conduct passes upon German positions and Soviet loudspeakers declared the German situation was hopeless.

Fighting Resumed

(Guderian was quoted as saying: "I refuse to surrender." The tanks of truce returned to their lines and fighting was resumed.)

Dispatches from the Staraya Russa front declared reserve transport planes from Denmark and Yugoslavia had been thrown into the German effort to fly supplies and reinforcement to the 16th Army. (London accounts said the Russians had destroyed 200 planes in the sector within one three-day period.)

(Ironically, the Staraya Russa action was across terrain where Germany claimed last September 16 to have "completely annihilated" nine Soviet divisions and crushed nine other divisions through encirclement of three field armies. The sector offensive at that time was directed by Col. General Busch, who now is on the defensive against the same encirclement tactics at the hands of the Russians.)

ond reading were Government Leader Raoul Dandurand and Senator C. C. Ballantyne, acting Conservative Senate leader.

Passage of the Plebiscite bill in the House brought to an end weeks of debate there on the measure by which the government will submit this question to the people: "Are you in favor of releasing the Government from any obligation arising out of any past commitments restricting the methods of raising men for military service?"

2 Divisions on Final Reading.

Two full-dress divisions were required in the Commons yesterday before the Bill received its third reading. On the first, an amendment sponsored by J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) to give it the traditional "six months' hoist" the Government was sustained by a vote of 172 to 13.

The second a motion sponsored by Robert Fair (N.D. Battle River) to send it back ot committee for insertion of an amendment to give the vote to some inmates of institutions for the poor who would otherwise not be entitled to cast ballots, was defeated by 125 to 37.

The Pouliot motion gained the support of two Conservatives, T. L. Church of Toronto-Broadview and Robert McGregor of York East, as well as Liberal and Independent members from Quebec who have consistently opposed the plebiscite because of their opposition to oberseas conscription.

The Fair motion related to a clause in the Bill which provides that where inmates of institutions are barred from voting by provincial law they can not vote on the plebiscite. All the New Democracy and C.C.F. members supported it along with a majority of Conservatives, Mrs. Dorise Nielsen (Unity, North Battleford), Ligouri Lacombe (Con. Laval-Two Mountains), and J. S. Roy (Ind. Gaspe).

The Liberal group voted solidly against it along with Conservative House Leader Hanson Hon. Grote Stirling (Con. Yale), George Black (Con. Yukon), and A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni).

Mr. Hanson who said he had opposed the principle of the Bill on the ground it was not necessary, spoke briefly to explain his vote against the amendment. The Bill had passed all stages, but third reading and was bound to become law, he said.

"I accept the will of the majority," he added. "Let us get this plebiscite over as quickly as possible and, in the meantime, let us get on with the war effort."

Mr. Church said he had "great respect for my leader" but he could not accept any measure that "shifts responsibility for acquisition of troops." That was his reason for voting for the amendment—"not because I am in sympathy with any one who voted for that amendment."

Mr. Fair, in moving his amendment on behalf of inmates of poorhouses, suggested this move might be accepted by the prime minister as an indication of "his good faith in the new order he proposes." To disfranchise such persons was "unfair, unjust and undemocratic."

A. W. Neill, Independent-Comox-Alberni, M. J. Coldwell, Acting C.C.F. House Leader, New Democracy Leader Blackmore, Angus MacInnis, C.C.F.-Vancouver East, and Liguori Lacombe, Canadian - Laval - Two Mountains, spoke in support of the amendment.

Debate on the reinstatement bill started off harmoniously in contrast to the sharp controversy which accompanied the long discussion of the plebiscite measure.

Mr. MacNicol drew on his experience as a Toronto industrialist to urge careful and extensive planning for the post-war period. Among his suggestions was the creation of a committee of the House to direct research into means of keeping industrial plants open after the war. He undertook to serve on such a committee without remuneration.

Two other Toronto Conservatives, Douglas Ross of St. Paul's and Mr. Church, also discussed the bill and said they found its provisions inadequate to meet the problem. Like Mr. MacNicol they urged much wider measures.

Mr. Ross said there should be a gradual demobilization in both the armed forces and war industry after the war. Men should not be released until civilian jobs are available. It might be necessary to keep on manufacturing munitions after the need passed, just to provide work.

Mr. Church said the government should decide now what its policy towards industry and business is to be. At the moment business men did not know what they could do because of the restrictions and handicaps being imposed upon them by bureaucrats. Stable employment could not be provided under such conditions.

"Some of these dollar-a-year-men have had no training in any competitive business," he said, "and yet they are imposing barriers and burdens on businessmen on the main streets of Toronto and forcing them out of business."

More Power Dams

Mr. MacNicol said the United States department of labor is setting aside $550,000,000 this year for post-war rehabilitation in one line, the building of power dams in the western States, and many individual states are making preparations.

"I suggest to the Minister (Mr. Mitchell) that he double up his good strong hand and come out boldly for full after war rehabilitation," said Mr. MacNicol.

Mr. MacNicol said he believed when the Bennett Government set aside $20,000,000 to provide employment in 1930 it might have prevented the depression had it spent $100,000,000. He suggested the government might stay in power for years if it asked for and spent large sums o fmoney to create employment.

outboard motor boat to run for approximately 16 hours, and an inboard motor boat for approximately ten hours," a Munitions and Supply Department statement said.

"The allowance to inboard motors is designed to permit owners of non-commercial marine engines in the 90-horse-power classification approximately the same quantity of gasoline in the three summer months as they could purchase for a car of equivalent horse-power in the same period.

"The other allowances (for motors of different horse-power) were calculated from this basis to give approximately the same running time for all inboard non-commercial marine engines."

The rationing plan provides that commercial water craft will require a licence, but the operaters will not pay a licence fee, nor will they use coupons. They will buy the colored gasoline to be sold for farm tractors and stationary engines.

"A man who owns a car will not be able to buy gasoline for his motor boat with his car coupon book," said G. R. Cottrelle, oil controllers. "Likewise, he will not be allowed to buy gasoline for his car with his motor boat coupon book.

"Furthermore, it will be illegal to transfer gasoline from a boat to a car or from a car to a boat, or from one boat to another."

All non-commercial water craft will be placed in one of two categories. Non-commercial marine Category A will take in nothing but pleasure craft. Non-commercial marine Category B will cover the essential transportation of seasonal residents who have no other means result of the Japanese infiltration tactics.

Licences issued within both these categories will be good only between April 1 and December 31.

The communique acknowledged loss of Surakarta (Solo), Bodjanegara, and other places in Eastern Java and of Krawang, Purwakarta and Tangerang in Western Java. The last is 10 miles west of Batavia, capital of the N.E.I., which the government has left.

Bandung, seat of the United Nations command and the temporary capital, is 25 miles from the nearest Six Japanese bombers delivered a surprise assault on Bandung this morning, driving in through an overcast sky. Two of the raiders were downed by anti-aircraft fire and two others damaged.

This was a follow-up to an attack yesterday morning by 16 bombers against an airdrome near here.

In reporting a raid by Hurricane fighters on an airdrome at Kalidjati, 25 miles noth of Bandung, the Indies officially announced the field there was in Japanese hands.

Shifting Wealth to West Indies

LONDON, March 5—(CP). — The ominous situation on embattled Java was reflected today by steps to strip the island of such moveable wealth as commercial offices and foreign assets which might fall to the invading Japanese.

In a variation of the "scorched earth" policy to which the Netherlands willingly have put Java and the other East Indies Islands as they became exposed to the enemy, the Netherlands Government in London has approved a mass transfer of such possessions to the greater security of the Netherlands West Indies.

There they will be under the wing of the United States' defences of the Caribbean, in a region which Axis submarines already have visited in raids but which is relatively unassailable for invasion.

The decision was announced last night after news from Java said the enemy had deepened his inroads on the last stronghold of the eastern archipelago under the weights of numerically-stronger land, sea and air forces.

Netherlands circles emphasized, however, that the measure were dictated by a desire to sweep the island bare of anything which might benefit the Japanese and that they indicated no urgent emergency.

Ship Companies Move

Among great enterprises whose main offices in the East Indies will be shifted to the West Indies are shipping companies operating in the Pacific.

Also involved are foreign assets held by the Netherlands East Indies and comercial undertakings in the islands.

Three reasons underlie what amounts virtually to the voluntary abandonment of all Netherlands' principal colonial possessions, at least for commercial purposes, except those in the American defence orbit, Aneta News Agency said in its announcement of the development last night:—

1. It has made it impossible for the Japanese, if they should win control of offices of agencies owning American accounts, to block or otherwise molest these assets;

2. It forestalls the economic waste which might result were control of these assets not continued in the normal way or were the right to dispose of such investments lost;

3. It facilitates the problem for American institutions concerning authority for instructions about them.

As a temporary precaution, Aneta said, East Indies assets in the United States—involving many millions of dollars—have been transferred to the Netherlands Indies purchasing commission in New York.

Thus, anticipating difficulties which might arise if communications between Java and the United States were broken and acting with the consent of those affected, authorities have averted any possible use of this wealth contrary to the national interest, it was stated. The Netherlands purchasing commission assumes full control of all cash balances, securities and claims in American banks held by individuals and corporations in the N.E.I.

Madeleine Carroll On Air Tonight

In the midst of a well-earned vacation in the East after completion of a hectic Hollywood session making "My Favorite Blonde" opposite the fast-moving Bob Hope, Madeleine Carroll, popular British-born movie star, made last-minute arrangements with her studio whereby she could journey to Toronto to take part in tonight's final Victory Loan broadcast. The show goes on the air over the entire CBC national network at 10 o'clock.

Co-starring with Miss Carrol on the Victory Loan Variety Show will be Stella Andreva, Metropolitan Opera star who is also British by birth, Adolphe Menjou, one of moviedom's favorite characters both on and off the screen, and Felix Knight, one of America's leading young tenors.

Like Miss Carroll, Adolphe Menjou has come to Canada fresh from a new screen triumph. Menjou has just completed "Roxie Hart," a farcical melodrama of Chicago in the 20s, in which he plays a glib, tear-jerking lawyer—the kind that has made him famous round the world.

With two well-known screen characters and two of the world's finest singing voices, tonight's program should be a fitting close to a series that has featured such headliners as Janet Gaynor, Thomas L. Thomas, Gracie Fields, Donald Duck, Brian Aherne Jimmy Melton, Greer Garson and Sir Cedric Hardwicke. All these entertainers have taken part in Canada's second Victory Loan Campaign without pay of any kind. Their only reward has been the kind reception given them by the people of Canada, and the knowledge that they were furthering a great cause.

TRANSIENT KILLED.

A transient, thought to be Patrick Murphy, about 60, was killed Wednesday when he stepped in front of a Canadian National Railways freight train at Bowmanville.

HIGHWAY WORKERS

More than 60 men are working steadily on the connecting highway which joins highway 28 at Apsley with the upper end of highway 28 south from Bancroft along Paudash Lake. The men are billeted and fed in a big road camp, and the work should be well advanced by Spring.

ANNUAL MEETING

More than 100 farmers are expected to attend the annual meeting of the Federation of Agriculture to be held on Saturday afternoon in the Co-operative Hall. R. J. Scott, president of the United Farmers' Co-op. Co. in Toronto will be the chief speaker and his topic will be "Financing the Federation." Officers will be elected for the year.

NO MORE BUS TRIPS.

The Peterborough hockey club has been travelling all season via a Denure bus but will have to dig up a new means of transportation for the balance of the season. Under the new regulations buses may not be used on charter trips or for sightseeing tours, and the trip to Collingwood Wednesday night was the last time on which the hockey party could travel by bus.

TAXI, TRUCK COLLIDE.

A taxi cab and an express truck collided at the intersection of Dalhousie and Stewart streets this morning and both vehicles were damaged. J. J. Hodson, 130 Perry strtet, was driving a C.P.R. express truck west on Dalhousie street and Harold Lavery, 416 Sheridan street, was driving a taxi south on Stewart street, when the collision took place Neither driver was injured.

OVER THE TOP AT NOON.

Indications are that the Victory Loan in this city will go over the top on Friday morning, and committee officials have made plans to push the Lift Lock indicator to the top at 12.15 noon on Friday. Members of the Victory Loan committee, Mayor Hamilton and other city officials will be at the corner of Charlotte and George street to take part in the ceremony, and later the pledge flag will be placed on the flag pole on Confederation Squire.

WORKING LONG HOURS

Doug Hammond and Al Stedham, both of this city who are working in the Victory Loan office will be glad when the curtain is rung down on the campaign. Both have worked until 11 o'clock every night since the loan started, and quit just in time to catch the last bus home. Mr. Stedham, operates the local stock broker's office here for Biggar and Crawford, and during the Victory Loan Mrs. Stedham has taken over the brokerage work.

GOOD NEIGHBORS.

While Eric Howard. local merchant, has been seriously ill in the hospital from injuries in a skiing accident, his wife has been looking after the store. To-day it was learned that Bill Saunders of Tip-Top Tailors, and George Hildebrand of Fashion-Craft, both came to the rescue of Mrs. Howard, and measured up customers for suits, looking after the orders from start to finish. Little acts of goodwill such as these make the world a better place. Reports indicate other merchants have been into the store offering their assistance also.

GASOLINE STOLEN

Shortage of gasoline is indicated by the fact that some one has climbed a high board fence and siphoned five gallons of gas from a truck parked in the yard of the Petersiel Scrap Iron Company, 385 Bethune street.

CIGARET MONEY.

The cigaret fund of the Women's Auxiliary of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders was boosted by $33.60 at the Whitby-Peterborough hockey game here last week. The women are most appreciative of the fine response of the rink patrons and take this means of thanking all who contributed.

SKIDS ON ICY ROAD

As Robert Cranfield, 511 King street was driving east on Charlotte street, a car in front of him driven by W. A. Murphy slowed down and pulled into the right curb. When Cranfield applied his brakes, his vehicle slid on the icy road into the rear of the other car putting a dent in the trunk at the back. The front bumper and grill of Cranfield's car were damaged.

CONDITION IMPROVING

Signalman Arthur Houghton, formerly of 545 Murray street, is still confined to the 15th Canadian General Hospital in England where he has been quite ill since last November, but is now reported improving. Arthur, in a letter to Peterborough, stated he had a pleasant surprise in the nature of a visit from Sergt. Phil Whitnall of the R.C.A.F. another Peterborough boy who has been in England since last Fall.

DO IT CORRECTLY

A few motorists are failing to answer all of the questions asked on the form for obtaining a gasoline ration card. This has resulted in the form being returned and to extra work and delay at the Regional offices. The mileage for last year and the estimated mileage for this year must be given, and husbands in business who have the cars in their wives' names cannot obtain the ration card until there is a transfer of ownership. If the car is registered in the woman's name, it is a Class A category car.

PARKED CARS BLAMED.

Parked cars are blamed for an accident at George and Dalhousie street this morning. G. C. Pickell, 276 Thomas street, was driving his car south on George street, following another car driven by W. R. McIntosh. The latter slowed to make a left turn into Dalhousie street and the other vehicle collided with the rear end of his machine. Police say that parked cars on each side of George street with two cases of double-parking contributed to the accident.

THREE CARS INVOLVED

Three vehicles were involved in a traffic accident near the intersection of Hunter and Water streets Wednesday. F. H. Earle, 374½ George street, was driving his car south on Water street and just south of the intersection, it came into collision with another car pulling out from the curb and driven by J. Heffernan, 640 Reid street. A fender and hub on Earle's car were damaged. At about the same time Earle's car is said to have clicked a northbound car driven by Charles Heard, R.R. 4, Peterborough, without doing any damage.

Americans Sweep Fishing Contest

Kawartha Lakes Take Twelve Awards

For the second year in succession American fishermen dominated the win column in the Peterborough Examiner Lucky Strike Fishing Contest, winning 7 of the 18 prizes. The contest attracted the greatest number of entries since it was started three years ago.

Larger fish in every one of the six categories was the satisfying summary of entries for the year 1941, and many of the fish were larger than those which took top laurels in some of the larger fishing competitions on other parts of the continent. Resort owners all through the wide area served by the Examiner Vacation Edition showed a greater degree of interest than before and Americans from all parts of the States who visited the fishing waters of Eastern Ontario vowed they would click for top awards in 1942 in spite of gasoline and tire rationing.

It is hoped this year to send entry forms to every resort in the areas covered by the Vacation Edition and this will facilitate the submitting of entries, and in all cases the resort owner may sign as to the correctness of the information contained in the entry.

Hazel Manning, 1423 Teall Avenue, Syracuse, N.Y., amazed the veterans when she captured a dynamite-laden battler in the shape of a small-mouth black bass down at Long Lake, north of Kaladar, which tipped the scales at 6 pounds 14 ounces. She was vacationing at Fernleigh Lodge, owned by John Ahr, when she caught the prize-winning fish, and was using a helgramite as bait. Another woman staying at the same lodge came through to take top honors in the lake trout division. She is Mrs. J. R. Tyler, 216 Gibson Street, Canandaigua, New York. The fish weighed 15 pounds and was taken on a fly rod, using a home-made trout spoon. This trout came out of Long Lake also, a lake that is roughly 22 miles long and not more than a mile in width at the widest spot.

Crowe Lake Tops.

Mrs. Maude Dennis of Campbellford kept the Belmont Lake section in the running when she hauled a pickerel (walleye) weighting 11½ pounds out of Crowe Lake on July 25. She was using a Lucky Strike submarine plug. The second largest pickerel also came from the Belmont Lake area with an American, Mrs. Fred MacKay of Columbus, Ohio, taking the award. The fish weighed 11 pounds even. Mrs MacKay was staying at the Nannetta Lodge on Oak Lake. Stony Lake, which took the pickerel honors in 1941, squeezed into the third place bracket with W. G. Austin of London, Ontario, caught one weighing 10 pounds 2 ounces, trolling on June 30.

The largest maskinonge caught in the Kawartha district in several years was caught last July 11 by Walter W. Brown of Floral Park, N.Y. It weighed 39¾ pounds and took second prize in the Morley E. Mackenzie contest, winning first in the Peterborough competition. Eric Cuthbert, local hairdresser, battled a 30-pound muskie to a finish right in the heart of Peterborough city, fishing near the C.P.R. Bridge in the Otonabee River, and his fish took second money. Another American Jesse Jones of Newark, Ohio, took the third award with a 24-pounder caught in the Trent River near Hastings. He was a guest at Max Humphries.

Toronto fishermen took four of the eighteen prizes, J. Roaf Evans taking second in the small mouth bass with a 6-pound beauty caught near Chateau Woodland in Kashogawigamog Lake in Haliburton. Alan J. Gracie won second in the large mouth bass weighing 6 pounds, and C. G. Hawley, also of Toronto, took the third prize for large mouth bass with a fish weighing 5 pounds 13 ounces.

Largest Ever Caught.

Adam Sands, who won the brown trout first place award last year, came back in the last contest to enter a German brown trout weighing 6¼ pounds, the largest ever announced as being caught in Eastern Ontario waters. It was taken at Shanty Lake, near Bancroft, on a live minnow. For some weeks during the summer it looked as if Hugh Cameron of Bowmanville had this prize salted away for he caught a brown trout in the Cavan Pond that was 23 inches long and weighed 5¼ pounds. William McIvor, 27 New Chamberlain Street took third with a 3 pound 9 ounce brown trout.

A feature of the competition is that three of the prizes went to the Frontenac County lakes north of Kaladar where bass, pike, and lake trout fishing is ideal. Douglas Gunnell of the Globe and Mail, Toronto, hooked an 8-pound lake trout at Buckshot Lake, while staying at Bev Woolnough's Birch Lodge to take third money in the lake trout class.

V. L. Baier of Rochester, amazed even the Indian guides at Lovesick Lake when he whammed a large mouth green bass into the bottom of his boat while casting off Forest Hill Lodge. It weighed 7 pounds 5 ounces. This fish was a cinch for first prize in that section. Frank N. Zanders, who has been spending his holidays at Hastings for several years, caught some lovely small mouth black bass near the mouth of the Trent River, and he entered the largest, one weighing 5 pounds 12 ounces, and it took third prize. His home is in Canton, Ohio.

Judges in the contest were Charles Kingan, president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association, Alex. L. Elliott, K.C., M.P.P., W. C. Hughes, manager of Grafton's, Ltd. Pete McGillen, fishing contest editor of the Examiner, and Frank Edgar, manager of the Lucky Strike Bait Company.

The winners in each division are as follows:

Fewer P.C.V. Licences

Advance In Libya

CAIRO, March 5 (AP)—A British column has "successfully engaged" German forces south of Tmimi in the Libyan battle zone, a headquarters communique announced today.

It said the Royal Air Force supported the advance force's action and reported that artillery fire had forced the withdrawal of several Axis outposts and patrols.

Shorter Tresses

CHICAGO, March 5—(AP).—American women's tresses won't have much chance of getting tangled in epaulets or defence machine gears if the owners copy new coiffures awarded prizes at the 19th annual Midwest Beauty Trade Show. All award winners were developed around a style short and shaped to the head. Joseph W. Kertesz of Detroit called his first prize winner "Victory." It featured soft, rolling waves.

Victory Loan Is Nearing Its Objective

The Victory Loan wheeled into high gear during the past two days and the total swept up to 93.3 per cent of the $2,750,000 objective set for Peterborough county with every indication that it would be over-subscribed on Friday morning. However in the face of the Hon. T. L. Ilsley's request that the National Loan be boosted to $900,000,000 instead of the original $600,000,000 it is likely that Peterborough city and county subscribers will see to it that more than $3,000,000 will be tossed into the Victory Loan campaign.

Lakefield village climbed over the top with the compilation of returns on Wednesday and the total for the village is now $76,950 or 128.2 per cent of the $60,000 objective. In Otonabee township the story is the same, with the objective oversubscribed by $7,600 and the original sum set by the Victory Loan headquarters was $60,000. This means that the township has now purchased 112.6 per cent of the required total, and more subscriptions are pouring in.

Norwood village is at the bottom of the ladder with just $16,700 of the $35,000 objective, and North Monaghan township is also well down the scale having obtained just 55.3 per cent or $19,350 of the $35,000 amount. It is believed however that the bulk of the wage-earners in suburban Monaghan are employed in the C.G.E., the Brinton Carpet Company, and the Johnson Motors and these three factories have done a wonderful job in this particular loan.

The spirit of sacrifice and true Canadian patriotism was exemplified in a conversation which a reporter overheard on Wednesday evening. An elderly man engaged as a sweeper and caretaker in one of the downtown buildings, hasnot had a new overcoat for five years. In recent months he has been able to save up $25.00 which he had hoped to use for a new overcoat. He has a son overseas and with the Minister of Finance appealing for every Canadian dollar the man has decided the coat can wait. "I am going to pay the $25.00 down on a fifty dollar bond and see if I can't spare a dollar a pay to take care of the balance. I got along without a new overcoat for five years so another year won't matter." If every Canadian thought along these lines the National appeal for $900,000,000 would be doubled in a short time.

The summary is as follows:

	Objective	Secured to Date	% of Objective Obtained

High School At Lakefield Aids War Victims

Once again the young people of Lakefield have been the means through which money has been raised to help along the objective of the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund.

Last Friday night, the commencement exercises of the high school were held in the Memorial Hall there, when awards for success gained by students in their academic work, and on the field in athletics were presented to the winners by Miss Emma Kennedy, G. W. Smith, Mrs. H. Stabler, J. Aymes, Mr. Ridpath and the principal, J. F. Harvey.

These awards took the form of War Savings Stamps, thus making this annual event an assist in the war service, besides providing the students with an incentive for thrift, and further endeavour on behalf of the war effort. An excellent entertainment was provided by the students, to which no admission had been asked, and a silver collection was taken on behalf of this fund. This amounted to $19.40 and is credited to them in this days receipts, having been received from the Fund's representative, J. McKerchar, manager of the Royal Bank at Lakefield, in conjunction with a penny box collection amounting to seventy-seven cents at the bank. Congratulations are extended to the winners in their various classes, coupled with thanks for this help to the fund.

The penny boxes at the Bank of Montreal were also collected on Wednesday, and the amount they contained which was a little short of $2.50 was made up to that amount by one of the staff, and appears to their credit today.

Dance At Cavan

This Friday night, the Cavan Community rink committee is sponsoring a dance in the Community Hall at Cavan on behalf of the fund, when music will be provided by the popular Galloway's Orchestra for the event, affording an opportunity to the people of this district to have a good night's entertainment with the knowledge that the money they pay will be used to good advantage in helping the distress of air raid victims in Britain. Mr. Mervin Kinsmen is the Fund's representative in Cavan.

Pet Dog Show

The committee of dog fanciers of the city met last night to further make arrangements for this event which it is proposed to hold on April 8.

Owing to a taboo being placed on the use of the market hall for this event by the Sanitary Inspector and the Medical Officer of Health, other means are being sought to carry this project on behalf of the fund to a sucessful conclusion, and an announcement will shortly be made in respect of same.

Five Generations Used Same Christening Bowl

LAKEFIELD, March 5—(ENS).—Over one hundred and fifty years old, and used for five generations as a christening vessel, a glass bowl owned by Mrs. William Ruttle was once again put into use on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ruttle, when Rev. C. F. Kelly christened a great-granddaughter and five grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Ruttle.

Baby Diana Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Buchanan, is the great-granddaughter. Her father and grandfather, Lance-Corp. C. A. Ruttle, are both overseas. The other children christened were the children of Lance-Corp. and Mrs. C. A. Ruttle, Ernest Arthur, Marion Grace and Evelyn Merle, and the two tiny daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mason, Donna Elizabeth and Kathleen Marie.

Mrs. Ruttle is the proud owner of several rare pieces of china and glassware, including a glass cake plate, bearing the date 1837 and with the imprint of Queen Victoria and coat of arms. Also a hand-painted china tea set given to Mrs. Ruttle's parents on their golden wedding anniversary.

Wilberforce Man Is Acquitted

After a hearing that lasted most of the day Magistrate Langley found George Miller, of Wilberforce, not guilty Wednesday afternoon on a charge of reckless driving.

Miller had been charged following a bicycle-automobile accident at Charlotte and Stewart streets on September 19 last in which eleven-year-old Arlis Hele was knocked from her wheel and sustained a fractured hip that kept her in hospital for many months.

Evidence of the defence was that the girl had ridden her wheel out from behind a parked car and that on that account Miller did not see her until it was too late to avert an accident. Magistrate Langley in giving judgment said that on the evidence he could not find the Wilberforce sawyer guilty of reckless driving under the code.

The accused was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., and Crowney Attorney V. J. McElderry prosecuted.

NOT OPERATING A HOTEL

At his own request a local resident was charged with vagrancy in police court this morning and pleaded guilty to the charge.

"This unfortunate man" Inspector Jas. F. Reid told the court, "has no home and he has a bad leg that he wants treated."

"He has been here a good many times," commented the magistrate as he sentenced the accused to twenty days in jail.

"I think he wants a month," remarked Inspector Reid.

"I have given him 20 days," replied the magistrate. "It is not what he wants for after all we are not running a hotel here."

A.R.P. Workers Seen In Action

Interesting films showing air raid precaution workers in action will be shown to the local corps of air raid workers next Sunday afternoon in St. Alphonsus Lyceum on Simcoe street, by Mr. Carl Caskey, Deputy Fire Marshal for the Province of Ontario.

Mr. Caskey was in the city and addressed the wartime organization two weeks ago. His meaty address was enjoyed and the A.R.P. workers are looking forward to his next visit.

The program for Sunday afternoon will consist of three parts, and it will get underway sharp at 2.15. The first part of the program will be devoted to a study of transportation, and the class will be conducted by R. H. Parsons, City engineer, who is also controller of transportation in the local A.R.P. set-up. The second part of the meeting will consist of a lecture on public utilities services in a blackout or during an air raid, and this section will be in charge of Ross Dobbin, managing engineer for the Peterborough Utilities, who has charge of this vital part of A.R.P. work.

More than 450 air raid wardens and workers jammed into the Lyceum last Sunday, and at least an equal number is expected this week. It was announced by Lt. Col. M. R. Sloan, that more courses in basic training are to be given, as many men have come into the organization late and therefore have missed much of the essential elementary training. More about this suggestion will be given on Sunday afternoon.

The local A.R.P. organization is functioning smoothly and interest is growing weekly as the men of the city in age groups which do not allocate them to active service take advantage of the training, so that they may take a definite and essential part in the precaution work should the need arise.

Plenty Of Toys Santa Is Far From Dead

Santa Claus is far from dead, C. H. Saunders, manager of the Richard Hall store reports.

"As a matter of fact Santa is a very busy individual right now and there will be plenty of toys for next Christmas" states Mr. Saunders, who is just back from a four-day buying trip during which he visited the big toy fair in Toronto.

"It is surprising and most creditable to the resourcefulness and enterprise of Canadian industry" continued the store manager, "that it has grappled with this situation most successfully, with the importation of foreign toys out of the question and restrictions on the use of material, great ingenuity has been shown in the manufacture of new kinds of toys. One field that is being utilized is the use of wood in the making of toys, all-wooden wagons and other similar toys being turned out. As for dolls, the showing made at Toronto is really remarkable."

Mr. Saunders said that while metal toys will not be as plentiful as in pre-war days they will still be available next Christmas.

"No, Santa Claus is far from dead" he concluded. "As a matter of fact we expect to have as big a Toyland next Christmas as we had last Yuletide and the youngsters can rest assured that there will be toys for everyone."

Battery Inspected By Lt.-Col. Grant

Lieut.-Col. L. F. Grant of the General Staff, Military District No. 3, Kingston, inspected the 4th Field Battery RCA (RF) at the Armouries last night. He is at present on a tour of inspection of artillery units and is now looking over the five Batteries of the 4th Field Brigade. Lt.-Col. Grant will be in Lindsay to-day where the 45th and 56th Field Batteries are located.

A good turnout of local artillerymen evidently made a good impression last night on the Headquarters' Staff officer, who was conducted on his inspection by Lt.-Col. D. J. Lawrie, commanding officer of the 4th Field Brigade.

KINGS ROW

By HENRY BELLAMANN

THE CIRCLE NARROWS
CHAPTER XX

"Drake, we might as well have this out right now. Pa doesn't like me to go with you. I guess Ma wouldn't either if she was still living. But I'm going with you anyhow, whenever you ask me."

"Gee, Randy—"

"Wait now. I know what people are going to say. Maybe they're already saying it."

"I'd like to hear 'em."

"But, Drake—it's so. How can we expect them not to talk about us?"

"Well, what's got to be cleared up?"

"Only why Pa doesn't want me to go with you. I'm going with you as long as you want me to, but don't get mad when I tell you how things are."

"Well, if I married you—"

Randy shrank away. Instantly her face went blank and cold.

"I wouldn't marry you, Drake."

"Well, why not?"

"Let's don't talk about it, ever again. Will you remember that?"

He did not answer at once. His face, too, was as cold and hard as Randy's.

"Where do you want me to let you out?"

"Right here, Drake."

Drake took a long way around so that he would not have to pass the Monaghan house. He drove back of the asylum and to a deadend road that overlooked the bottoms Randy had mentioned.

The wind had fallen now, and a subtle intoxicating warmth came up from the ground. Drake sat for a long time staring dreamily at the scene. His face softened, and a look of boyish gentleness replaced the fighting look Randy's talk had brought out.

He shrugged his shoulders in a gesture he had taken from Parris, and tightened the reins which had fallen slack across the dashboard. He drove as fast as he could back the way he had come. In a few minutes he stopped at the Monaghan house, and hitched his horse to the whitewashed paling fence.

He walked up the short boardwalk to the front door, and knocked.

Benny Singer made industrious transformation in the Skeffington vegetables garden. He stood about in a kind of bewildered waiting while the Colonel and Mrs. Skeffington fought at bitter length over the location of the bean patch, or the best place to sow radishes this year. Occasionally they referred the question to Benny, who nearly burst with importance.

Benny liked making the Skeffington garden. He worked in sight of the street with people passing all day. Neighbors stopped to ask what the Colonel was about this time.

Benny felt that he was a citizen of the town in full and honorable standing.

One day a small boy threw a clod at him, and he playfully threw one back. The boy backed off and looked scared, and presently ran away.

Another day Fulmer Green passed. Fulmer was looking very fine, Benny thought, all dressed up as if it were Sunday.

"Well, if it ain't old crazy Benny!"

Benny grinned, and nodded. He hardly noticed the old nickname.

"Well, well, old Benny working for the Colonel. Good idea, Benny. The Colonel might come in handy keeping you out of jail." Fulmer laughed, and Benny laughed, too. But later in the day when he thought of it, he didn't like Fulmer saying anything about jail. It was Fulmer Green's fault that he got put in jail one time, and it was Colonel Skeffington who got him out. Vaguely he felt a troubling sense of old, old injuries and slights. He had almost forgotten the feeling. Everything had been so pleasant out at the von Eln place. Tom Carr never did anything to make him feel awkward or ashamed. Fulmer, somehow or another, made him feel a little ashamed.

Often Drake McHugh drove out of town—sometimes out Federal street, sometimes out the asylum road, sometimes by a less frequented way—always with Randy Monaghan beside him.

The town talked. Drake McHugh, after all, came from "nice people." He belonged to the best.

Everyone saw how the Gordons handled the question when Drake looked in the direction of Louise. That little slap in the face should have taught Drake McHugh something of a lesson. For a while it looked as though it really had. But now it was this Monaghan girl from the lower end of town. Railroad people. The menfolks said old Mr. Monaghan was a straight, honest, self-respecting man. He'd probably take a shotgun to anyone who fooled around his girl.

One afternoon Drake and Randy flashed out Federal street at a conspicuous clip.

Mrs. Henry Gordon, sitting in her south bay window, busy with her crocheting, saw them. Drake's back was turned her way as he talked, but she caught a glimpse of Randy's face as she made some laughing response. Mrs. Gordon frowned. The girl was really pretty—probably common-looking if you saw her close, but at that distance she was decidedly pretty.

Randy Monaghan certainly looked frank and—happy. And she was certainly out in the open with whatever it was she was about. The girl surely couldn't be setting her cap for Drake McHugh. That kind of a girl to marry into the Union street crowd—for, no matter how you looked at it, Drake McHugh belonged to that crowd and, moreover, he'd have money. She had to admit she rather liked Drake. But it had been necessary to teach him a lesson. He must know he couldn't come around Louise and be seen with trashy people at the same time.

There was another person who had noticed Drake and Randy. That was Louise herself. She had been standing at the open window directly above her mother's sitting room. She drew back a little when the buggy passed, but she, too, had seen the look on Randy Monaghan's face, and had heard the soft, contented laugh that floated back.

Louise, like all of Kings Row, felt that this affair with Randy was different. It was quite possible that Drake might want to marry Randy. And, of course, Randy Monaghan would jump at the chance to marry Drake. Who wouldn't? Heaven knows she wanted him herself. More than ever now. If only she had some way of calling him back. She's pocket a lot of her pride; she'd go more than halfway, but she didn't even have that chance now. He never even looked her way any more. She had written to him, but he had not answered.

She thought of Parris Mitchell. If Parris were here, she believed she'd try to get him to help straighten things out. Parris could do anything with Drake, it seemed.

She sat down on the edge of the bed and hunched her thin shoulders as she braced herself against tears.

Downstairs Mrs. Gordon had a sudden intuition. She went quietly to Louise's room and opened the door. Louise was crying now.

"Louise!"

Louise did not turn. She dropped her head, and was silent.

"What are you crying about?"

"Does it make any difference?"

Mrs. Gordon's face hardened. She was angry at Drake, and still angrier at Randy Monaghan. Her narrow, fierce devotion to her own child took a strange turn in her mind. All the harsh violence of her feeling turned on Louise as if she were to blame.

"Don't answer me like that!"

"Why can't you let me alone?"

"Oh, I know what you're crying about. I saw Drake McHugh going by with that little—nobody from downtown. Aren't you ashamed of yourself?"

"For what? For letting her take him away from me?"

"Louise! You know what I mean. Haven't you any self-respect?"

"No."

"Well, I almost believe you. If he wants to run around with that kind of trash—"

Louise stood up. Her eyes were dry now, and she was trembling. "I wish it was me!"

Mrs. Gordon dropped her crocheting and struck Louise across the mouth with all her strength.

Louise stood perfectly still. A little streak of blood showed on her lips. Mechanically she wiped it away with the back of her hand. "Mother, don't you ever do that again! Don't you ever touch me again as long as you live!"

Mrs. Gordon was shaken and somewhat abashed by the suddenness of her own rage. But she felt she must keep face.

"And what will you do about it, Miss?"

"I'll kill you," Louise said calmly. Then, shouting, she pushed Mrs. Gordon toward the door.

"Get out of her! Get out of here, do you hear? Get out of here."

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have a little problem—maybe you can solve it. I have two boarders and two children; six in all in the family, and the cost per week in food is $17 which I think is too much.

I have two separate dinners, one at 3 o'clock and one at six o'clock. The one at 3 o'clock works midnight all the time, and the rest of the family has supper together at six o'clock. It is usually two separate meals, which puts the cost up much higher.

I would like very much if you would send me your savory recipes. —Mrs. M. G.

ANSWER: Thanks for the recipe you gave us for oatmeal cookies which you have doubtless seen on this page since we printed it two weeks ago.

You doubtless have many schemes of making your work for both dinners dovetail as often as possible. But I do think that the meal for the "3 o'clocker" should be prepared with the regular meal of the night before, except once a week. Once a week you could have a roast and do not finish roasting it. Cut him the welldone outside slices, and keep the roast out of the oven until about 1 hour or ¾ hour before 6 o'clock meal, and finishing roasting it then for your next dinners. This works very well for I have done this in past years for my doctor-husband whose meals are irregular at all times.

As far as vegetables are concerned if you always save your vegetable waters and serve soup at least every other day, it does not hurt to serve canned vegetables plus a fresh salad to the "3 o'clocker" much of the time. Vegetables reheat very well with a very little bit of hot water (or milk and butter) in top of double boiler. To mashed potatoes add a little cream and beat all the time they are heating.

Desserts need never be a problem. If you are making pie make an extra large tart in a pie pan you buy especially for him at the five-and-ten-cent store.

If you are making pudding, pour an individual serving into a large custard cup and bake it with the large pudding. Many such devices will come to you when you think of making individual portions—when he is served them he is unconsciously flattered because you have gone to this trouble to make his portions for him alone.

Try to avoid a "steamy" taste or appearance in the things you reheat. Many things you might think had to be reheated on top of the stove can be given a nice quick heating and golden crust under the broiler. If reheated food tends to be dry provide sauces and gravies which can be made ahead of time, and kept covered in the refrigerator.

As requested I have sent the "savory meats."

QUESTION: As I came from England where we never have zero weather, would you please let me know the best and easiest method to thaw frozen fish They have so much of it here in the winter.

When I came here I used just boiling water on it, but I haven't used it in so long...I used to buy the filleted fish.

Also how to make a bread pudding with raisins. Mrs. White.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter. Frozen fish may be cooked at once or after it has been defrosted. Frozen fish as purchased should be thawed out at room temperature, or the thawing may be hastened by soaking the fish in cold water just long enough to melt the ice (it should never be soaked in hot water). Use as soon as possible after thawing, since fish deteriorates rapidly. Do not begin to thaw fish until one hour before you are ready to use it—unless it is an unusually thick piece.

Bread Pudding With Raisins

One and one-half cups cubed stale bread, 3 cups hot milk, 2 eggs beaten, ½ cup sugar (or ¼ cup sugar and ¼ cup corn syrup), ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ to ¾ cup raisins. Soak bread in milk in buttered baking dish. Combine eggs, sugar, salt and cinnamon; stir into bread mixture; add raisins and stand in pan of hot water. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. (rather slowly) for 50 minutes or until knife comes out clean when inserted in custard. Serve with Hard Sauce or cream. Write again whenever we can be of help.

Bigger and Better Hats

By ALICE ALDEN

IF YOU ARE partial to large hats then get ready for some super-specials in the way of oversized headgear. John Frederic firmly believes that a big hat is both becoming and smart and they have designed a whopper. Black Milan straw is used for this big poke bonnet made with the brim rolled up slightly in back. The poke brim is emphasized by a V-creased effect in front topped by looped fringe.

Thomas Ll. Thomas Is Heard In Final Recital of Season

The final recital in the 1941-42 season sponsored by the Peterborough Concert Association was given on Wednesday evening by the Welsh baritone, Thomas Ll. Thomas in the Collegiate Auditorium. The singer quickly put himself on excellent terms [illegible] large audience and the event was a decided success.

Mr. Thomas has dramatic ability to a degree unusual in a concert singer, and at times he is inclined to sacrifice musical to histrionic effect. In songs where his talents as an actor have plenty of scope he is entirely happy, and perhaps his best number were "Largo al Factotum," the famous buffo aria from Rossini's "Barber of Seville," and Moussorgsky's "Song of the Flea," which he sang as an encore. In these two songs his breadth of style was appropriate to the matter in hand and his large and pleasing voice and entirely adequate to the exacting music. He has also a fine vein of lyric expression, which was best shown in two songs in his first group, "Tu Lo Sai" by Torelli, and Pergolesi's ever fresh and enchanting "Tre Giorno." This same quality was present in his singing of Dunhill's lovely and appropriate setting of Yeats' poem "Aedh Wishes For the Cloths of Heaven."

Particularly effective also were two Welsh folk songs which Mr. Thomas sang in his native tongue. The first was a tale of the death of the great bard, and the second, a shepherd's song; both had the purity of line and the freshness of sentiment characteristic of Welsh music, which is, on the whole, unfamiliar to Canadian listeners.

Mr. Marino Nardelli played a group of three modern piano pieces interestingly, and revealed in them a technical ability which was often absent in his accompaniments to Mr. Thomas. In the interval Dr. J. J. Craig spoke briefly of the Association's plans for next season, and stressed the need for the inspiration which music can give in time of war.

CUTICURA SOAP AND TALCUM

He Never Took Her Out Until . . .

He was a fine husband in most ways—but for months now she hadn't been able to stir him out of his chair in the evening. They never went any place—they were losing their friends. All the fun and comradeship was going out of their marriage.

His excuse was always that he was "too tired"—until she got sick of hearing it. Then . . . one day when talking to her druggist about George, he suggested Dr. Williams Pink Pills. George said he'd try them but didn't believe they could help him. To his surprise and her delight, soon he began to notice that his work did not tire him as it had . . . he slept more soundly—ate better and his nerves felt calmer. You'd never know George today—he's going ahead in his business—he comes home full of vigor and in high good humor; is always ready for an evening's fun.

Many a man like George can blame his feeling of weakness—of nervous exhaustion on a run-down condition of the blood. Don't wait—try Dr. Williams Pink Pills now fortified with Vitamin B_1. They are wonderfully effective in building rich, red blood so necessary to vigor and strength and have helped thousands to get back "in the pink". Ask your druggist today for Dr. Williams Pink Pills.

Mr. Thomas Ll. Thomas, distinguished baritone who sang in the Collegiate auditorium on Wednesday evening, and his accompanist, Mr. Marino Nardello, were guests of Mr. John Bradshaw, Bethune street. Mr. Thomas said that he had enjoyed singing in Peterborough very much as he found the audience friendly and warmly responsive.

Trinity Baby Band

An enjoyable and profitable meeting of the Trinity church Baby Band was held at the home of Mrs. M. White, Gilmour street, on Wednesday evening. The devotional period was opened with the members repeating the Baby Band prayer, followed by the singing of a verse from a hymn. Mrs. M. Perry read the scripture lesson. Mrs. W. E. Miller, a popular war guest, gave an inspiring talk. She thanked Canadians for their hospitality and for their generosity in sending comforts to England in such a gracious manner that those who heard her felt challenged to make even greater efforts. Mrs. H. Corner thanked Mrs. Miller and after the work period, when members sewed on the layettes, refreshments were served by the committee. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. N. Elliott, Boswell avenue.

BRIGHT AND CHEERFUL

By ALICE ALDEN

RED IS a color of cheer and so it isn't surprising to find many collections stressing red for frocks as well as for accessories. Jane Wyman asked Milo Anderson to design a red frock for her and here it is. Red crepe is cut on simple wearable lines with red bandana cloth used for the pointed collar and for the diamond-shaped red panel. A fluffy apron of red organdie provides a softening and amusing note, and is detachable.

Knox Church Welcomes New Minister

A large representation of the congregation and friends of Knox Church gathered at the church on Wednesday evening to do honor to their new pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Mahoney.

A fine spirit of fun and fellowship prevailed throughout the evening as representatives of the various church organizations voiced their welcome to the new minister and hoped that his stay with them would be long and happy. Little Marilyn Wedlock and Marion Bond, a war-guest, presented Mrs. Mahoney with a beautiful bouquet on behalf of the congregation.

Those present at the reception were introduced to Mr. and Mrs. Mahoney by Mrs. R. Hansame and Mr. H. J. McCannan. Rev. F. W. Craik was chairman of the evening.

The program of speeches and addresses of welcome was agreeably varied by Master Clifford Roydhouse, who gave a very good reading; the Harmony Trio, composed of Messrs. H. McCannan, B. Arnott and W. Potter; Mr. Howay and his clever dog, Pat, who gave an exhibition of tricks; and Messrs. Hendry and Smith.

Mayor James Hamilton was present and voiced the welcome of the city to Mr. and Mrs. Mahoney. The welcome of the Ministerial Association was spoken by Adjutant Norman Buckley, president, and Rev. C. C. Boyter and Rev. William McDonald. Addresses of welcome by the church organization were as follows: The session, J. A. Sargent; W.M.S., Mrs. Gerard; the Sunday School, Mr. H. Lewis; the Junior Church, Patsy McLachlan; the Board of Managers, Mr. J. Lancashire; the Women's Association, Mrs. Londerville; the choir, Miss M. Morton; Y.P.U., Warren Trotter; the Ladies' Bowling Club, Mrs. Beatty; Men's Club, Mr. R. Ralson.

Rev. Mr. Mahoney replied to all these addresses in a brief, suitable speech, expressing his pleasure at being so honored by his new congregation.

To Speak Here

Mr. R. S. Lambert, conductor of the popular radio program, "Old Country Mail," will speak at the Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday, March 11, on "Daily Life in War-Time Britain." Mr. Lambert comes to Peterborough under the auspices of the Music Teachers' Association.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, March 6.

Conflicting and contradictory astral influences make this a difficult day to manipulate to successful and gratifying goals. This had best be attempted by compromise and diplomacy rather than by argument, persuasion or other forceful rather than tactful measures. This especially where superiors, employers, or those in authority are involved. The public reactions or group approbation may be difficult to enlist, unless by particular shrewdness.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a successful and prosperous year by methods of tact, diplomacy, amiability and graciousness rather than dispute, argument or running counter to those in influential positions. Particular tact and regard for policy may be needful to break down opposition and want of co-operation from the public or to gain any sort of collective approval. Be modest in claims, thrifty, conservative and prudent for best results.

A child born on this day should be shrewd and talented and should attain success through subtlety, intrigue or secret strategies.

By ALICE ALDEN

THE TALL girl has to be up to all the tricks for dressing her type and height. Peg Newton is a designed who devotes her entire energies to designing clothes for her tall sisters. She likes to get away from the plain, severe clothes that tend to make tall girls look like beanpoles and she goes in for contrast of color and fabric and soft hats to make a pleasing silhouette and effect. This model is of beige surface crepe with a simple black jacket marked by a fitted waistline to match that of the dress.

Honor System Is Working With Canadian Housewives

By MARY MOORE

The "honor system" works with Canadian Rationees.

I heard a representative from the Food Board in Ottawa say that not only will your grocers' sugar shelves speak eloquently for themselves but Government statistics show that the great majority are cutting their sugar to rhree-quarter pound weekly.

Of course, that is the spirit we all expected.

There are very few like the one worst hoarder I heard of. She jubilantly told her neighbor that her husband was able (through his wholesale grocer associates) to order five 100-lb. bags of sugar in five different towns, and she had them safely stored in her dry basement raised on boxes and covered with canvas to keep them dry.

The next news we heard of this grotesquely selfish one was three lines in the daily paper: "Mrs. P. W. D. of —— street was convicted of sugar hoarding and fined $50 and costs and the sugar was confiscated." She had boasted of her "cleverness" to one too many unsympathetic neighbors.

May I add with pardonable pride that she was not a Canadian, nor does she live in our town.

Another heartening story our speaker told was of the bacon we are shipping "across."

What we ship are known as "Wiltshire sides." They are almost the whole carcass; only the heads and tails, organs and tenderloins are removed. That is why you often see a bargain window of pork tenderloins at your butcher's selling for around 30 cents per pound.

That is why I have been stressing the use of pork liver, hearts, kidneys, etc. I have a good method of keeping baked stuffed pork tenderloin moist and will give it to you here.

Baked Stuffed Pork Tenderloin

(Notable for its moistness).

Two large pork tenderloin (each weighing 1 pound if possible); 1 recipe Bread Stuffing (see below). Split tenderloins cutting through to about ¾ inch above under side. Lay open and cover one tenderloin with dressing, laying it on about 1 inch thick. Cover with other tenderloin and tie together. Bake at 500 deg. Fahr. to sear for 15 minutes, then quickly reduce heat to 300 deg. Fahr. and bake uncovered for about 45 minutes. Serve with Cream Gravy (see below).

Moist Bread Suffing for Pork Tenderloin.—Two cups soft bread crumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon each of thyme and sage, and 1 slice onion very finely chopped or 1 tablespoon onion grated, 2 tablespoons melted butter, ½ cup milk, scalded. Soak the crumbs in the hot milk and butter for 15 minutes, then add remaining ingredients. You will see that there is very little seasoning used—we think the taste of herbs should be elusive in this stuffing. Place in tenderlin as suggested above. It will be evident to many readers that the reason Pork tenderloin requires a moist dressing is because it contains so little fat and will dry out readily if not baked properly.

Cream Gravy to serve with Baked Pork Tenderloin:

There should be at least 3 tablespoons drippings in pan in which tenderloin was baked—if not make it up with bacon drippings. To this fat in pan add 3 tablespoons flour and stir until blended, then add 1 cup top milk and ½ cup milk and stir until thickened. Taste to see how much salt it needs, and add salt and pepper. Then strain into hot gravy boat just before serving.

We promised Lenten Recipes for every week, and here is this week's offering.

BAKED STUFFED FILLETS WITH PICKLE DRESSING.

Place a large fillet, which has been wiped with damp cloth and dried with dry cloth, in greased baking dish, season with salt, pepper and lemon juice and cover with stuffing (see below); place second fillet over stuffing and brush with melted butter, or cover with very fine crumbs, and pour over melted butter. Bake at 500 degrees Fahr. for 15 minutes, reducing heat to 350 to finish for about 10 more minutes (do not overcook the fish or it will dry out). The crumb and butter treatment gives it a characteristic flavor of fish dried in deep fat but all the cooking odor of fish is eliminated.

Pickle Stuffing for Fish.

Two cups soft crumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup chopped dill pickles (or sweet pickles), 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon grated onion, 3 tablespoons melted butter. Add the crumbs to the melted butter and stir well, then add all remaining ingredients.

This is turning out to be one long fulfilment of promises for here is a Corn Syrup recipe for you to save your sugar with:

SUPERIOR BREAD PUDDING.

Two cups dry bread crumbs or its equivalent in small pieces of stale bread, 1-3 cup corn syrup, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 eggs slightly beaten, ½ teaspoon salt 3 cups hot milk, nutmeg. Add crumbs to hot milk. Let cool to lukewarm. Add all remaining ingredients. Pour into buttered casserole or baking dish. Bake in slow oven 1 hour standing baking dish in larger dish containing hot water. Serve with Golden Orange Sauce.

One-half cup water, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, grated rind of 1 orange, juice of ½ lemon, salt, spice (mace preferable), ½ cup corn syrup. Mix together the water, cornstarch, grated rind, salt, and cook until thickened stirring, then cook over boiling water until there is no taste of raw starch—about 20 minutes. Then add corn syrup and spice. Serve hot or cold. This sauce is an excellent all-purpose sauce and economical, and can be made and kept covered in the refrigerator. We will often recommend it in our menus in the future, so please clip it now and put it in your files.

Watch for future announcements about corn syrup and maple syrup recipes.

DOROTHY DIX

MEN OFTEN PAY DEARLY FOR THE FOLLIES OF PASSION

You Cannot Tramp a Flower Into the Mud and Keep a Clean Conscience.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am one of the boys who persuaded a girl to prove her love by giving herself to him. Now I see how wrong I was and am burdened with remorse. Marriage is impossible as she is in early high school and I have further educational plans and, anyway, I do not think we could be happy together. Yet she loves me and clings to me and worries about losing me and is always asking if I am tired of her, and she knows that I am fickle. I am too fond of her to continue to take advantage of the way she proved her love for me, but I can't bear to think of letting her go because I feel that in breaking down her resistance I will be responsible if she yields to future temptations. What can I do

A HEAVY HEART.

ANSWER—You cannot undo the wrong that you have done to yourself and the girl, but you can at least salvage this good out of your mistake and your remorse. You can make it a buckler and shield against temptation when you meet it again. I think nothing is more unfortunate than that men are taught from their youth up that in affairs with women that they can kiss and ride away and that it is only the woman who has to pay, and pay, and pay. It is true that both God and man have laid the heaviest penalty for breaking the moral law on woman. She pays the highest price, but the man who sins does not go scot-free either. He also must pay the piper.

Sometimes, as in your case, he does it with his conscience, and that is blood-money. As long as you live you will be haunted by the memory of something cruel and mean that you have done. Of a young girl's trust that you betrayed. Of a love you smirched. Of a gay life across which you laid a shadow that you cannot lift. You will never think of it without feeling as if you had trodden a white flower into the mud, or murdered some little helpless animal that groveled at your feet.

Man Doesn't Always Escape

Some men pay for their follies by getting in entanglements with women that wreck their lives. When they try to break the bonds that some Lady Love has woven about them, they find that they cannot do it. They are held fast by tears, by entreaties, by threats of suicide, by the fear of scandal.

In one of his brilliant and ironic novels James Branch Cabell says that any husband of real ingenuity and tolerable patience can induce his wife to divorce him, but there is no known way of a man getting rid of a woman who has given him "the best years of her life." She sticks like a leach. And often she impoverishes him by blackmail, or drags him through the humiliation of a breach of promise suit.

And millions of men pay for their by disease and death.

But none of the penalties for a life of deliberate wrong-doing can be assessed against you. You have merely stumbled off the straight and narrow path and through your tears of repentance have climbed back on it again. So do not let your misadventure make you morbid by dwelling on it too much.

Do not think you can atone to the girl by marrying her. That would only make a bad matter worse. You do not love her. You are both too young to marry. You have no way of supporting her. And it would blight both of your lives.

It is hard enough for a man to be a good husband when he loves his wife. When he doesn't love her and marries her only from a sense of duty, it is an impossibility. So the best and kindest thing you can do for her is just to part and go your separate ways. At her age she will soon forget.

Start Life in Your Own Home

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Here is the setup. I am engaged to a young man who is 28 years old. We are very congenial. He does not drink or smoke and his morals are good. He is usually thoughtful and kind. But he has a high temper and at times is not reasonable. He cannot learn to take the consequences of his mistakes and becomes angry and mean when he is thwarted. Now this is the problem: He is buying a six room house, which is at present occupied by his sister, a young married couple, a girl boarder, a young man boarder and my fiancee. These six people live as one family. All work except the young married woman who keeps house under the detailed instruction of his sister. My fiancee wants me to live in this house when we marry without changing the setup at all. That would make seven in the six room house. He wishes me to continue working. I make $30 a week and he makes $60. After we have saved for a few years (very vague), then go to ourselves. He wants me to give up my comfortable apartment, where I have a peaceful happy life with my mother who caters to me, and share his room in this overcrowded house, where because of my status as his wife I would be expected to do much of the work under his sister's direction. We could amply afford a home of our own and I dread the thought of going into all this confusion. Also, I believe that if possible a young married couple should spend their first year or two alone. What do you think about it? Do you agree with me that it would be foolish to go into this with my eyes open, or do you think I am very lucky to be offered so much by such a fine man?

A READER.

ANSWER—Perhaps your fiance is one of the men who likes to live in crowds and to whom confusion and noise and disorder mean nothing and to whom a desire for privacy is just a curious fad that some cranks have. Otherwise it is impossible to imagine him taking his bride to live in a place that is already overcrowded, in which they would not have room to change their minds, to say nothing of having space in which to change their clothes, and in which everything they did and thought and said would be overheard and commented on.

Whatever other good qualities the young man has, delicacy of perception and consideration for you are lacking. And you must be overwhelmingly in love with him to even consider marrying him.

made scarcely a sound. The buggy top was down and the late sun glistened on Randy's thick shining hair.

"I've got to go home," she said.

"Aw—what for?"

"It's getting late. Pa'll be getting home, and he likes me to be there for supper."

"Well, if you want to—"

"Why don't you come home and have supper with us?"

"You want me to?"

"Of course. I think Pa likes you, ever since that time you walked in and asked him right out if you could take me out buggy-riding."

"Never says anything against me?"

"Never. Not a word. He always says you're all right."

"Gee. That's nice."

"What's new from Parris?" Randy asked as they neared town.

"Just short notes. Seems to be getting along."

"I think people talk more about Parris now than they did when he was here."

"Yeh. He's somebody you don't forget, somehow. But I think this old town's proud of having him over in Europe studying medicine."

"Yes, I think so, too. Like Vera Lichinsky."

"What about her?"

"She's gone to Europe, too."

"You don't say!"

"About two months ago. There was a long piece in the paper about her. She's going to be a concert violinist."

Randy laughed shortly. "Aren't we the old stick-in-the-muds?"

Drake's glance was deeply serious. "It's good for me that you're here."

Money Buys More When You Budget

"How Did You Spend All That?"

Unpaid bills! What bad spending habits caused this scene?

Careless ordering. "... green peas for two and a can of peaches." Naturally the grocer sends extra measure of peas, his choicest brand of peaches.

Buying on impulse. That black dress you couldn't resist looked dingy with your brown hat and bag. You had to get special matching accessories for this one costume.

Keeping up with "the Joneses." Monthly payments on a chaise longue you didn't need eat up all surplus for entertaining, little splurges.

If you budgetted ahead? You'd take advantage of food specials, choose a soft green or gay plaid frock to go with the accessories you already have.

You'd save enough that way to cover payments on the chaise longue. Or you might refurbish old furniture with slip covers.

Planned spending cuts out waste, helps you afford what you want most. Our 32-page booklet tells how to set up a budget; how to divide your income for rent, food, clothes and other expenses. Has ruled pages for one year's entries.

For your copy of "How to Budget and Buy for Better Living" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

NOBODY can say arbitrarily that one language is definitely better than another. It is the same with bidding systems, which are practically nothing but languages whereby you can tell your partner what you hold, and he can tell you. The most important thing is for you to know what language he is speaking, and to understand it, and for him to do likewise. Otherwise you will have some funny disasters—that is, funny to the enemy

There was the bidding at four tables of a five-table duplicate game At the fifth table, the bidding was merely 1-No Trump by North, then 2-Spades by South—period. North passed, and four-odd got made, for a bad bottom score, since the side did not bid game.

Perhaps the lesson of the deal is this—if you are with a new partner and don't know how he handles No Trump bids, open with 1-Club as North did at Table 4. You are less likely to get into trouble then, as there is not so much difference in the ways responses are handled to suit bids as those to No Trumpers.

At Table No 5, the No Trump bid was by a man used to making them only on very big hands. If the partner's hand is worth anything at all, he must show it by jumping to three in a major. If he goes only to two, it is to say the hand is worthless, so the original bidder passes. South didn't know that, or would have bid 3-Spades.

Note how differently the other tables handled it—no two exactly alike. Of course, those who bid the game in either spades or No Trumps made it easily, by playing the spade suit correctly, leading the Q toward the A when both 10 and 9 are held.

Toronto Visitor To Build New Cottages

HASTINGS, March 5—(ENS).—Hastings' Victory Loan objective of $25,000 was aided over the top when the local Hydro Commission subscribed for $1,000 in bonds.

Dr. W. E. Wilson, the chairman, suggested the purchase of a $500 bond, stating that: "Our debentures will soon be due and added expenses such as an unexpected storm might cut the present surplus to a minimum."

To offset this possibility Commissioner H. G. Fairman suggested that two bonds of $500 denomination each be purchased and one of these could be sold at par if the need should arise. Reeve L. E. Kelley heartily endorsed this suggestion. "If we lose this war we won't need to worry about Hydro," commented the Reeve.

A letter was read from T. H. Lain of Toronto requesting that the Hydro extend its service to Railway street so as to connect with several cottages he is contemplating building this summer. E. M. Hess, Hastings' service man, explained such a job would require considerable vital material and expense.

In this regard a letter was read from the Department of Munitions and Supply stating that non-ferrous materials would only be supplied for essential jobs. Commissioners felt that Mr. Lain's request did not fall under this latter category but it was decided to contact the supply controller regarding the proposition.

E. M. Hess also informed the Commission that under the existing rationing system no extra provision is made for him as a service man. The secretary was instructed to write the Dominion gas controller and the rubber controller, Department of Munitions and Supply, requesting that sufficient tires and gas be allotted to Mr. Hess so that he may maintain a satisfactory service throughout Hastings and district.

A request from E. Humpage, Peterborough auditor, asking the local commission to send him blank samples of Hydro forms to aid him in preparing a system for another municipality was granted.

The following accounts were ordered paid: H. C. Oliver, truck, $1.25; Hydro Electric Power Commission, January power, $373.45; Royal Bank collections, $4.30; Bell Telephone, $2.83; Dept. of Excise Tax, January, January, $52.47; H. G. Fairman, Hydro convention expenses $19; E. M. Hess, salary and postage, $63.59.

Chalk Up Another For The United Nations

Canadians Laud Red Fliers, Will Stand Test

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, March 5—(CP Cable).—Two Canadians who have been together since they joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1940 returned from Russia with the R.A.F. wing which fought on the Eastern front and reported today that flying in the Murmansk area is much the same as winter flying in Canada—except there is more action.

PO. David L. Ramsay, Calgary, and PO. James E. Walker, Edmonton, were the only Canadians with the wing, which was comprised of Englishmen, Scotsmen, Australians, New Zealanders, South Africans, and a Malayan.

"From general appearances it might have been the Gatineau country back of Ottawa we were flying over," said Walker, who did his service training at Uplands, Ottawa.

The pair, who are rejoining fighter squadrons in this country after leave, bubbled with praise of Russian airmen and Russian machines."

"Individually the Russians are very good fighter pilots," Ramsay said. "Their main fighters are something of a cross between the Spitfire and the Messerschmitt 109. Their dive bomber with an unpronounceable name is really a lively plane. As far as the German planes operating in Russia are concerned, we are encountering the same types we had to contend with in Western Europe. We had a scrap nearly every time we took off and frequently served as bomber escort.

They Act Fast

"When they want a new hangar they don't fool about it," Ramsay added. "They can put up a building in a day, sending a big gang of men onto the job and rushing it right up."

The Russians treated members of the wing like princes, "plying us with all sorts of food, even to cavair, and that for breakfast, too."

Walker and Ramsay have been together since they were posted to the Manning Pool in Toronto in May, 1940. They completed elementary training at London, Ont.

The R.A.F. Russian wing returned to Britain after having completed its two fold task of instruction in the use of Hurricanes and helping check the German drive on Murmansk. No further explanation of the homecoming was given in the Air Ministry's announcement last night, but it was suggested that the Russians now are self-sufficient in air fighting personnel.

The chief of the R.A.F. Russian contingent, Wing-Cmdr. H. G. N. Ramsbotham-Isherwood, predicted that the Soviet Air Force would hold up against whatever Spring offensive Germany's air squadrons might muster.

ROSENEATH

Burnley School Is Awarded Dewan Trophy

ROSENEATH, March 5—(ENS)—Burnley School, S.S. No. 21, Haldimand township, Northumberland county, was presented with the Hon. P. M. Dewan trophy at the 36th annual convention of the Ontario Horticultural Association. At the annual banquet of the Association held in Toronto, James C. Potter, teacher, of Burnley school was presented with the trophy by the Minister himself, for Rural School Beautification. The contest is sponsored by the Horticultural Association of Ontario. Until this year only one trophy had been presented, that of J. E. Carter of Guelph. This year Mr. Dewan donated a handsome trophy to be given also for Rural School beautification. The Minister of Agriculture also presented the school with a certificate issued for outstanding work in Horticulture for Ontario.

Outlining the plans followed Mr. Potter said, through suggestions offered by Ian McCloud, Agricultural Representative for Northumberland county, and John T. Clarke, lecturer in Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, the school set about improving the surroundings. The lawn was levelled, a new fence erected along the front of the grounds, and foundation planting on both sides of the school was accomplished. The school was painted white, trimmed with green, the lawn kept mown, the trees trimmed, the weeds cut out, and lawn chairs and lawn ornaments placed about the grounds. These were the major improvements.'

Mr. Dewan at the presentation complimented the teacher, pupils and trustees for the fine piece of work accomplished. Mr. Potter modestly stated that he deserved little of the credit as the majority of the work was done by the pupils, including the painting of the school.

Khaki Closeups In Armored Units

(By ROSS MUNRO.)

Somewhere in England, March 5 (CP)—They list Cpl. W. Bell, Hampton, N.B., as one of the crack tank drivers of the 8th Princess Louise's New Brunswick Hussars, and this is one of the stories about him:—

Bell was in a tank that another driver stuck in a huge crater. After a couple of hours work the crew gave up trying to get it out and went back to the camp to order a crane. Bell was left on guard.

The rest of the crew hadn't been in camp more than five minutes when their tank breezed in with Bell at the controls. He got it out of the hole by himself.

Family combinations keep cropping up in the army, and the latest concerns the Kellars of North Bay, Ont., with four sons overseas. Tr. Roy drives the new Lieutentant-Colonel of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, Pte. Murney is with the Royal Regiment of Canada, Pte. Clarence with the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, and L. Cpl. Norman with the Royal Canadian Engineers.

The only Japanese-Canadian with the overseas army is L. Cpl. Charlie Akazi of St. Andrews N.B. His pals in the 8th Hussars call him "Charlie Motorcycle" for he is always tinkering with engines.

The corporal, born in Canada, can't speak Japanese. His father served with the Canadian army in the first Great War.

Best map reader in the Prince Edward Island Light Horse here is Sgt. A. M. Szizygielski of Windsor, Ont., formerly with the Essex Tank Regiment. He was a cadet in the Polish army at the start of the First Great War, and later joined the Allied Forces to battle the Germans. In civil life he was a bookkeeper with a cement company.

Perhaps the most embarrassed man overseas is the regimental sergeant-major of a Highland Regiment who was shot in the leg by a .22 bullet from a rifle in the hands of a Home Guard.

Credit Jap Gains To Simple Attack Tactics

SYDNEY, Australia, Mar. 5—(CP Cable). — Maj-Gen. Gordon Bennett Australian Commander in the Malayan campaign, said yesterday that the Japanese successes were largely due to the simplicity of their tactics.

"Our difficulty was the complicated system we have evolved for our army, which prevented rapid co-operation." Gen. Bennett added.

"For instance, the Japanese knew nearly every Malay had a Japanese-made bicycle, and they found these seized bicycles more useful in the jungle country than our motor trucks and motorcycles.

"They similarly seized local fishermen's boats for further landings. A feature of their tactics was the speed with which they could call up air support to aid the troops. Their aircraft arrived to strafe us within minutes."

The Japanese, he said, found mortars more serviceable than artillery as they were easier to transport. He expressed the opinion the Japanese based their whole campaign on Nazi methods in Holland, Belgium and Norway, relying chiefly on transport seized on the spot. However, he said Malaya's fifth column had been much exaggerated.

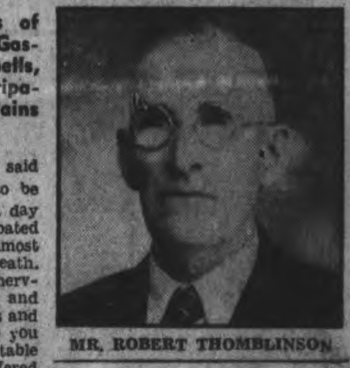
Stomach And Kidney Troubles Gone; Praises Syntona Tonic

This Grateful Man Tells of Grand Relief From Gastritis, Cramps, Dizzy Spells, Headaches and Constipation. Had Rheumatic Pains in Shoulders and Joints.



MR. ROBERT THOMBLINSON

How many times have you said you would give ANYTHING to be able to eat three good meals a day without getting that heavy, bloated feeling in your stomach that almost makes you gasp for your breath. These cramps, dizzy spells, or nervous headaches, pains in back and limbs are caused by excess acids and impurities in the system. Do you know that EVERY DAY reputable men and women who have suffered with one or more of these distressing ailments tell how Syntona has relieved them after everything else they tried had failed? Here, for example, is the experience of Mr. Robert Thomblinson, well known Burlington man residing at 5 Caroline Street, West, reported only recently.

"I suffered with a gassy, upset stomach and cramps after every meal and I had to take strong laxatives for constipation. When I would stoop over or get up quickly I would get dizzy spells, and I was subject to frequent severe headaches. At night I had to get up at all hours to relieve my kidneys, so I felt tired out and weakened right from the beginning of each day. Then rheumatic pains set into my shoulders and joints.

"I had tried every treatment I ever heard of, but I couldn't get any satisfactory results and I often wondered if I would ever feel any better. It was my son who first got em started taking Syntona. He brought some home one day and suggested I try it. Well, I could tell it was helping me right from the first bottle. I liked the way it acted on my stomach and bowels so I took a full treatment and it fixed me up fine. I soon got so I could eat regular meals and my food digested well. Then, the kidney trouble and pains left me. It surely was a great relief and I would take Syntona any time my system gets upset again."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

Making 3 Times Arms For Germany As They Did For France

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP) — British bombers in their devastating raid on Paris blasted at factories turning out war material for Germany at possibly three times the rate they had worked for the French, informed American industrialists said to-day.

They based their estimates on the hours operated. Many French factories, they said, worked only 40 to 45 hours a week up to a few weeks before France fell.

Guy La Chambre, former French Air Minister, testified in the Riom "War Guilt" trial this week that extension of the work week from 40 to 45 hours was used by some managements to cut down personnel instead of to increase production.

American production men said, however, that during the final desperate effort to save France, the men "went to work like insane people," working 24 hours a day and until they dropped—but it was too late."

German managers, they asserted, unquestionably have stepped French factories up to as near 24 hours a day and seven days a week as passible, while expansion started by the

No Confiscating Of Tires Likely

OTTAWA, March 6—(CP).—Confiscation of tires on passenger cars used for pleasure driving, mentioned as a possibility at a Senate committee meeting in Washington yesterday, has been thought of by Canadian authorities but is considered a remote possibility, official sources said today.

Leon Henderson, member of the United States War Production Board, told the Washington committee it might be necessary to ration gasoline in the United States as a measure to conserve rubber on existing tires. A further step would be to force non-essential users to make their tires available for drivers in the preferred classes, he suggested.

Canada now is launching a campaign to salvage 25,000 tons of tires and other rubber articles from garages and private homes. This will yield some 18,000 tons of reclaimed rubber and meet immediate essential demands, officials say.

Hun Chute Division Of Belgian, Crete Fame Dwindles Afoot In Leningrad Snows To 15 p.c

MOSCOW, March 6—(AP).—A German parachute division famed for successes in Belgium, Holland and Crete has been forced to function as infantry on the Leningrad front and has lost 85 per cent of its men in winter trench warfare, Russian dispatches reported today.

The Leningrad account, identifying the troops as the "7th Air Descent Division," said they had planned to alight in Leningrad when they arrived at the front last October, but were unable to do so.

Instead, still clad in summer uniforms, they were caught in the bitter winter and thrown into the front lines, losing half their strength in a month.

On the central front Red Army accounts said the German 260th and 263rd Divisions and remnants of the 131st were being chased westward from recaptured Yukhnov, 120 miles southwest of Moscow.

Hun Desert Push Crimped For Time 100,000 Tons Munitions To Replace

LONDON, March 6—(CP).—The German threat to Egypt has been lessened by the British campaign in Cirenaica, Oliver Lyttelton declared today on his return from his post as Minister of State in the Eastern Mediterranean area.

He said 50,000 to 100,000 tons of German ammunition had been captured, and added that this, plus the desert barrier over which the Axis forces would have to attack, put the British army in "far better position for the defence of Egypt than before."

Capt. Lyttelton said the base established by the United States in Eritrea "is going to be a whacker."

Returning to bec. ne chief of production, Capt. Lyttelton declined to discuss the possibility of another British offensive in North Africa. He gave the impression, however, it would be almost impossible for the Germans to develop another real drive toward Egypt in the near future.

The German air force sent a whole air fleet to support Field-Marshal Erwin Rommel's planned offensive, he said.

He said supply difficulties had hampered both armies and recalled the comment of a captured German general that "desert war is a tactician's paradise and an administrative staff officer's hell.

The prime task, Capt. Lyttelton said, is to guard the supply lanes through the Red Sea and into the Persian Gulf through which help from "the United States and Great Britain is moving continually."

He saic Britain is supplying Cyprus, Palestine, Syria, and Iraq with wheat, but that plans are afoot to make this entire area self-supporting.

The minister said Britain is aware of the threat of a possible thrust from the north-west against northern Syria, Iraq and Iran.

Loan 739 Million With 2 Days to Go

OTTAWA, March 6.—(CP).— The dollar total subscribed yesterday to Canada's Second Victory Loan was $40,177,800 along with conversions of $43,145,000 in Dominion of Canada bonds maturing May 15 and June 1, 1942, loan headquarters announced to-day.

Yesterday's operations brought the cumulative total for the three-week's campaign which ends Saturday night to $739,964,750. Loan headquarters have expressed the hope that $900,000,000 will be subscribed by the time the books close.

Original minimum objective was $600,000,000, the same as for the First Victory Loan last year.

With 91,299 individual orders as at the close of business last night Canada's Second Victory Loan came within 6,960 of equalling the record of Victory Loan 1941 when 968,259 people subscribed.

"It now is assured that further substantial conversion subscriptions will be obtained from holders of thee maturing bonds during the course of the next couple of days," said G. W. Spinney, loan committee chairman.

These conversions are not in any way related to provincial totals or provincial objectives, the chairman made clear.

There was a boom yesterday in the number of employee subscriptions when 53,149 men and women workers in offices, stores and factories bought bonds to a total of $4,506,900. The total number of Thursday's subscribers — 95,807 — constituted a record day for the campaign period.

In the cumulative total of subscribers to date there are included 632,000 individual subscriptions averaging $322 each.

Several Sections Of County Are Down But Slack Has Been Taken Up By Industrial Workers In The City

A wave of subscriptions from industries, private subscriptions and banks with a fair quota from the rural districts sent the Peterborough County Second Victory Loan zooming over the top at noon today, one day ahead of the time set for the gaining of the objective, and Loan officials were confident that many people who had not subscribed as yet would get busy at once and do their part in setting a new high in subscriptions.

Several sections of the county are still down on their quotas but the slack has been taken up in the city proper where industrial workers, from the lowest paid sweeper and girl employees, up to shop foremen, have not only paid cash for bonds, but have subscribed heavily under the payroll deduction plan.

George N. Brown stated that up to Thursday afternoon, the total stood at a little more than $2,658,000, and the $92,000 worth of bonds required to put it over came in late afternoon and this morning. He paid tribute to the city canvassers who had put on a spurt during the last few days making repeat calls to induce people to raise their original subscriptions and in many cases they have been successful.

People who saw the show at the Capitol, this week, the "49th Parallel," gritted their teeth in anger as the fine portrayal of the Nazi viewpoint and doctrine was given, and it is believed that this production was all that was needed to convince some people that this was no time for lying back letting their neighbors shoulder the load of financing the war.

Top $3,000,000 Mark.

If the people in the city, particularly those who live on incomes derived from bonds, investments or rentals will dig into their bank accounts and invest at least half of the deposits in the Second Victory Loan, the amount subscribed in this city and county should top the $3,000,000, the same as was done during the first loan last June.

Wheat Price Of Ninety Cents Said New Ottawa Figure

WINNIPEG, March 6 —(CP) — Trading in wheat futures was not permitted to open to-day on Winnipeg Grain Exchange although the cash grain and coarse grains markets operated as usual. It was understood here that wheat futures trading was stopped pending an important announcement from Ottawa.

The Grain Exchange released a statement received from George H. McIvor, chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board, at Ottawa, stating the Federal Government's intention to increase the initial price of wheat from its present level of 70 cents a bushel for No. 1 Northern, basis Lakehead and Vancouver.

"This is official notification of our intention that all open wheat futures will be adjusted to the new level of wheat prices on or before July 31, 1942 and all open wheat futures will be cleared on or before this date at the closing prices of Thursday, March 5 1,942. May future at 79½ and or July wheat future at 80⅝," The McIvor statement said.

LONDON, March 6—(CP) —An Air Ministry spokesman told today the story of the heroism of an R.A.F. bomber pilot who sacrificed himself to save four members of his crew.

When forced down into the sea the crew piled into a dinghy. They knew they could not reach land in short of seven days but there was food enough to keep only four alive for that time.

On the second night the captain slipped overboard unnoticed. The four survivors reached land on the seventh day.

India Stalling, Demands Full Liberty

ALLAHABAD, India, March 5—(Delayed)—(AP).—With new overtures to India expected in an effort to gain greater aid for the Empire's war effort, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru declared today that "the Indian problem can only be approached on a basis of Indian freedom."

Nahru, one of the foremost leaders of India's nationalists, spoke plainly in an interview.

"Nothing else," he told me, "will make a vital difference or move our millions to effective action.

"Until they realize that they have achieved freedom and are fighting to defend and preserve it, all else is unimportant."

(Informed sources said in London last night—the same day as Nehru's interview—that announcement of a plan to grant India more independence had been postponed because Conservative opinion in London and New Delhi considered it too advanced.

(These proposals, which had been expected by members of the House of Commons yesterday, were said to recommend curtailment of the powers of the Viceroy, who serves in the Indian Government as both Minister of Defence and of Foreign Affairs.)

Asked what should be Britain's immediate step, Nehru answered: "In the immediate present a provisional National government should be formed responsible to the Indian

Main Battle Rages Around Army Headquarters City; Batavia Given Up As Lost

Japs Swarm Over All Northwest Java All But Cut Island In The East, Rain Of Bombs Telling In Allied Troops

LONDON, March 6—(CP).—Netherlands forces, in a terrific frontal attack, drove the Japanese from a section of the plains of Bandung which the invaders occupied yesterday, Reuters reported from Bandung today.

(Other dispatches from Bandung reported Allied recapture of one unidentified point).

The Japanese have withdrawn to the north, Reuters said.

Heavy artillery fire in mountain defences to the north could be heard in Bandung.

In Eastern Java, the Japanese have been pushed back in some sectors, Reuters continued. Indications are that the main battle will be fought around Bandung.

Official military sources said United Nations' forces were fighting a stiff up-hill battle against the advancing Japanese who, they estimated, "outnumber us in men and material about five to one."

Capital in Jap Hands.

BANDUNG, Java, March 6. — (AP)—Netherlands and Allied Defence Forces have evacuated Batavia, once the proud capital of the Netherlands East Indies Empire, it was announced to-day, while the Japanese invaders occupied all of Northwestern Java and all but cut the island in half by capturing Jokyakarta far to the East.

The outnumbered and weary defenders were withdrawn from Batavia, a delayed communique from the High Command reported, so that they could consolidate their thinning ranks in more favorable positons for the battle of Western Java, presumably in the High Plateau around military headquarters at Bandung.

"As a result of the enemy's great superiority and mastership of the air," said the High Command, "our troops are exposed continuously to such violent bombardment that they have been unable to rest for many days and now are gradually becoming overtired.

"This makes the situation serious, but not hopeless," it added.

Jokyakarta, with a population of about 130,000 Indonesians and 6,000 Europeans, lies in Middle Eastern Java less than 15 miles from the island's south coast.

These were but two of the places which the communique conceded lost to the foe.

On the credit side of the defenders, however, was a report that a point previously lost to the Japanese had been regained by a Netherlands attack to-day. Evidently this town —not at once identified—was on the arc of invasion 25 miles north of Bandung.

City Hears Guns.

Bandung, now the focus of defence, heard artillery fire to-day, perhaps from one of the three regions of penetration to its north;

See Plebiscite Being Set For May 11th

OTTAWA, March 6.—(CP).— It was understood on good authority to-day that May 11 is the most likely date for balloting in the manpower plebiscite although it was said the cabinet is anxious to make the date as early as possible and has been urging May 4 for the vote-taking.

Also on good authority it was learned the cabinet has yet to make a final decision on the date.

State Secretary McLarty, asked when an announcement would be made of the date, said it would not be until Monday and declined even to speculate on a likely date.

No doubt the date was one of the things being considered by the cabinet before the week-end.

The bill providing for the taking of a plebiscite in which the government will seek release from past commitments as to the methods of raising manpower for the services received royal assent only last night.

It was expected, on the basis of Mr. McLarty's statement as to an-

TORONTO, Mar. 6 — (CP). — One man suffered fatal burns, two women were slightly burned, and about 20 people were forced into the street when fire swept through a rooming-house on Charles Street West in midtown Toronto early today.

Norman Mayhew, 29, died in hospital three hours after being taken out of the burning house with his clothes in flames. Police said Mayhew had been developing pictures when he dropped a match into the developing fluid and started a fire that spread swiftly through the second floor of the three-storey house.

War Writers Even Open University In Nazi Camp

BERNE, March 6 — (AP) —United States newspaper correspondents waiting at Bad Nauheim, Germany, to be exchanged for Axis journalists in the United States have started the only American newspaper in Europe: the Bad Nauheim Pudding.

The first issue, edited by 19 correspondents who stayed at their posts in Berlin and Paris until interned, reported that their colony is enjoying normal health, conducting its own university, reading—mainly detective stories— and is seeking a place to play baseball with equipment recently received.

The paper said the Bad Nauheim University-in-Exile has an enrollment of 208 students with 14 instructors teaching 17 subjects ranging from modern languages to tap dancing.

Most popular course is Russian history, taught by George Kennan, former first secretary of the United States Embassy in Berlin. Louis P. Lochner, former chief of the Associated Press Berlin Bureau, is teaching civics.

Other A. P. men at Bad Nauheim are Alvin J. Steinkoff, Edwin Shanke, Ernest Fischer and Agus Thuermer.

As for exchange permitting a return home, the paper cautioned "keep your shirts on."

Tankers Take Torpedoes Still Make Port

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, March 6.—(CP). — Their hulls holed by torpedo explosions, two tankers of the Allied merchant fleets have made their way to this harbor with their crews intact and under their own steam, and with one of them still carrying the bulk of the gasoline cargo she had aboard when a submarine struck.

Neither of the ships lost a man, thought the blast ripped a gash in the side of one spacious enough, literally, for a submarine to sail right into her hold. But both will be repaired, eventually to go to sea again as a living proof that tankers can take it.

Both were attacked somewhere in the western Atlantic, though it widely separated sectors.

The captain of one of the tough ships said a torpedo smashed against her port side, carried through two bulkheads and exploded against her starboard plates. Tons of water followed in its wake, causing the craft to list until the port rail was level with the water.

No one was killed when the torpedo struck, though the shock of the explosion broke every mirror on board. The oil tanks were empty, and the unharmed compartments were filled to counteract the vessel's cant, and the battered tanker's nose was pointed for port.

Other ships offered assistance, but the captain warned them away, telling them the submarine was still around and might loose more torpedoes at any ships that stopped.

Two Canadians — Wallace Block and Jean Bulduc, both of Ontario —were aboard the ship and helped bring her safely to this port.

Weather conditions were blamed for the mishap to the second tanker, a big trim craft. "We must have looked like a ghost ship," the captain said, telling how the superstructure and rigging of his ship were sheated in ice, catching and reflecting the light of an "unfortunately bright" moon.

The submarine was sighted about an hour before it actually struck. As it manoeuvred into position, the tankers gun crew opened fire and drove the marauder into hiding beneath the surface.

"We lost track of it," the captain said. "When it did get us with a torpedo. God only know why the gas we were carrying didn't ignite."

The concussions bulged the laden vessel's deck plates into humps two feet high, pushing out rivets like buttons from a vest. Great sheets of high-test gasoline spurted high out of the cracks, cascading down on the bridge in showers.

With the danger of fire hanging over them, the crew stayed aboard and headed for port. And not only did they bring their vessel in, but they came into port with three-quarters of the original cargo safe.

Not a man on the ship was so much as scratched, despite the terrific jolt of the explosion, which crumpled furniture in the men's mess into wreckage.

Special Attack Flotilla

Hit Pearl Harbor Night Of Dec. 7—None Returned

TOKYO, (From Japanese Broadcasts), March 6. —(AP)— Imperial Headquarters declared to-day that a "special attack flotilla" of the Japanese fleet delivered the sea-borne attack on Pearl Harbor on the night of December 7, more than 13 hours after the original assault by air, sinking a battleship of the Arizona class.

This assertion came in after-death citation and promotion for nine officers of the flotilla which never came back—presumably blown up by its own hands or sunk by the defenders.

(All official United States accounts of the Pearl Harbor episode have indicated that all damage, both afloat and ashore, was done in one swift co-ordinated attack by planes and two-man submarines).

The announcement said that the flotilla, "after secretly leaving a Japanese base, slipped into Pearl Harbor after passing through the enemy's guardlines and complicated channels and took up a pre-assigned position whereafter the vessels attacked with destructive effect."

"Vessels of the special attack flotilla had been instructed to return after the attack but no vessels returned.

RUSSIAN FORCES TAKE YUKHNOV, CENTRAL FRONT STRONGHOLD

MOSCOW, March 6 (AP)—Soviet troops who fought through heavy shellfire have tightened the drawstring on the Rzhev-Vyazma pocket with recapture of Yukhnov, a fortified Ugra River town 120 miles southwest of Moscow, the Russians said today.

Smashing blows upon the Central front came as Red Army tanks and artillery continued to pound the encircled German 16th Army in the Staraya Russa sector to the north.

About 1,000 Germans were said to have been killed in four engagements—570 in the repulse of two Nazi counter attacks, 400 in a day's fighting on a central front sector and "several dozen" trapped by an automatic rifle detachment which "dislodged the enemy from the village of 'N'."

German planes raided Moscow during the night after a long lay-off, dropping bombs "at random and inflicting insignificant damage" and some casualties, the Russian radio said. The Soviet information bureau said four raiders were shot down yesterday in the vinicity of the capital, where the last alert had sounded December 23.

During the night attack, the sky over Moscow blazed like a fourth of July night from the bursting of Soviet anti-aircraft shells.

More than 500 Germans were reported killed along a one-mile stretch at Yukhnov by the Red Army drive into territor; by-passed in the original thrusts westward toward Nazi-held Smolensk.

Russian units smashed the German 55th Infantry Regiment and the First Battalion of the 21st Infantry Regiment, the information bureau said. The Nazi garrison was declared to have been newly reinforced by troop-carrying planes.

German wounded were abandoned and the retreat was so precipitate that even ammunition dumps in Yukhnov were captured intact, the information bureau reported.

Fifty miles northwest of Yukhnov lies Vyazma, a German-held city on the Moscow-Smolensk highway. Eighty miles north of Vyazma is Rzhev, a Volga River strong point still manned by Hitler's troops. Russian spearheads veer toward the highway from both north and south 50 or 60 miles to the west.

Making 25 Per Cent of Hun Trucks.

One Frenchman, whose plant at Paris turned out planes for more than a decade up to June, 1940, said German now was getting more than 25 per cent of her trucks from France, and comparable amounts of planes, tanks, and guns.

'Many French places are repairing aircraft for the Germans, too," he added.

"The big French outfits like Renault were still expanding when I left France," one American said. "The job of conversion to war was just started. The Germans probably hurried up the changes necessary, and have the thing going full blast now."

(Daylight reconnaissance photographs published to-day in London showed in detail the vast extent of damage the R.A.F. did to the Renault works in Paris which authoritative London sources said was only one of nine huge plants producing Nazi war material.

(The pictures also proved the plant was contributing worthwhile help to the Nazi army for rows of tanks were seen among the broken buildings.)

A French source said the Renault factory hired more than 24,000 workers and turned out daily—before the war—$16,000,000 worth of trucks and Allied products.

The Citroen plant — trucks and tanks — had 15,000 to 20,000 employees.

All of France's aviation engine industry was in the Paris region, he said. The war materials plants in and around Paris were likewise a major part of France's total.

Canvassers in the rural district who had to buck snow-blocked roads for the past ten days now have to worry about water-filled ruts and slush that impede travel almost as much as did the snow. They are appealing to the people who have not subscribed as yet to bring their subscriptions to the canvasser or to communicate with the man or woman who canvassed them and advise if they can purchase even a $50 bond

This week, Chris Hughes, Ross Dobbin, Gordon Shier and Gordon Monkman drove up to the Nepheline Mines, where 40 men are employed, and they obtained 15 subscriptions as a start on the canvass of the workers.

The men report they signed up the men, using the back of trucks, running boards of car, and ledges of rock as writing desks, and talked bonds to husky workmen wielding noisy air hammers and other mining machinery. One old fellow said he couldn't sign without his glasses, so Mr. Hughes obligingly handed over his own. The miner said they were fine and proceeded to sign his name to a subscription. Ross Dobbin and Gordon Shier climbed a mountain, but were afraid to climb back down the same way so had to plow through snow to their hips for almost a mile to get down again. The quartet were given a warm welcome by the men and the foreman, Melville Kidd, and they enjoyed the visit despite the rough going. They are confident this group of men will purchase bonds almost to a man, although some of them have heavy obligations.

See Price 90 Cents

OTTAWA, March 6—(CP).—Best indications pointed today to the setting of an initial wheat price of 90 cents a bushel basis No. 1 Northern at Fort William for the crop years 1942-43, as announcement of wheat policy was awaited.

One high official, when asked the direct question of whether 90 cents was the figure, declined to absolutely confirm, but did comment, "That is very close."

Although a surplus burdens the Canadian wheat farmer at the moment, the Government was understood to have accepted the producers' argument that all the existing wheat and large production in future years will be required for home consumption and for export.

For the crop year 1921-32, the Government decided it would pay 70 cent s bushel on only 230,000,-000 bushels of wheat. This year the prospect was that the increased price would be payable on from 280,000,000 to 300,000,000 bushels.

The Dominion Government has worked out a method to prevent any possible profiteering in wheat transactions due to the increased intial wheat price to be announced today, S. A. Searle, Winnipeg Grain Exchange president, said in a statement.

Mr. Searle said the market would continue to operate normally.

Think Honolulu Bombing Job Cruiser Plane's

HONOLULU, March 6.—(AP).—Four aerial bombs, the first to fall on the Hawaiian islands since the Japanese sneak attack of last Dec. 7, struck the outskirts of Honolulu early yesterday without causing casualties or damage, the army announced. Two of the bombs apparently exploded simultaneously.

The three explosions awakened Honoluluans about 2.15 a.m.

"What was believed to be an enemy plane," the army announcement said, "flew over Oahu Island early today (Wednesday) and dropped three medium-sized bombs on the outskirts of Honolulu. The plane was flying at a high altitude. Where it came from is not known. There were no casualties and no damage except a few broken windows."

The bombs landed in a forested terrain about two miles from the heart of the city. They dug craters 25 to 40 feet across and about 600 yards apart. The concussion ripped foliage from trees for a considerable distance. Windows blown out included some in the home of Navy Lieut. Harrison R. Cooke.

Searchlights flecked the sky briefly seeking out the plane which apparently was travelling due south across the island toward Diamond Head.

It was believed possible the plane was from a cruiser or other enemy vessel at sea.

The explosions sent many awakened residents hurrying to bomb shelters. Some residents reported hearing many planes. Some reported even seeing several. None of these reports were confirmd.

Although it was the first instance of aerial bombing since Dec. 7, islands of the Hawaiian group have had several shellings by submarines, with little or no damage to shore property.

Not The Problem

Questioned on the fear of the Moslem League that an independent India might be the same thing as a Hindu India, he gave this answer:

"The question of minorities does not really arise in the present crisis and in any event all reasonable and possible protection will be given them.

"When, sometime later, an assembly representative of the people meets to frame India's constitution without outside interference it will be open to minorities to make any proposals.

"There will either be agreement or the matter may be referred to an international tribunal—or, ultimately, the problem will be solved by conflict. The risk has to be taken, there's no other way."

"Gen . Chiang Kai-Shek was great and foreseeing enough to break through diplomatic precedents during his recent visit to India and went down to fundamentals," he concluded.

"That visit was an historic one presaging new alignments in Asia. This war abviously is much more than a war. It is a vast revolution ending an epoch of history and ushering in an order which will be entirely different."

Purkakarta to the north and west, Kalidjati to the north and Subang to the north and east. It may be one of these places which the Indies regained.

Aneta, authoritative Indies news agency, said it was reliably learned to-night, that all N. E. I. forces—and, presumably, any of their British, Australian and American Allies that were with them — had withdrawn from a great section of Western Java. leaving it to the invader.

It was believed, Aneta said, that Batavia either had been occupied or shortly would be taken. But the Japanese will find it somewhat a hollow prize. All important installations there had been destroyed in advance, it was said, and many persons moved to the interior.

(Tokyo's Imperial Headquarters reported to-day that the invaders completed occupation of Batavia at 9.30 p.m., yesterday, at the end of the fifth day of the Java campaign.)

Bandung, 60 airline miles southeast of Batavia, in the fastness of the Preanger Plateau with its towering volcanic peaks, was seen as the centre of the next phase of the war. It is the temporary capital of the N.E.I., headquarters of the army and site of Java's young war industries.

Java's situation is "serious but not hopeless," said the official communique, adding that, as yesterday, the battle rages generally over the 622-mile-long island, with the defenders putting up a courgeous, delaying fight.

Junction Loss a Hard Blow

The backbone of Java's communications from west (Bandung) to east (the Surabaya naval base) was broken yesterday when the Indies announced loss of Surakarta, seat of a native principality and junction point on the Surabaya-Bandung-Batavia railway.

The loss of Jokyakarta, acknowledged today, marked an advance of 37 miles along the southern branch of the East-West railway system. Jokakarta and Surakarta are sister principalities, centres of Javanese cultural life which flourished under the paternal Netherlands colonists.

"Several places in East Java, including Jokyakarta, are new held by the Japanese as a result of Japanese air mastery and continuous bombardment," the communique said. "Our troops are tiring."

Among other points believed to be in Japanese hands is Buitenzorg, about 25 miles due south of Batavia, summer residence of the governor general. The two was said to have been taken after a fierce delaying action by Netherlands and British troops.

Official sources stressed that the Allies were fighting offensively as well as defensively.

In East Java, it was said, the defenders in some cases even managed to push back the foe.

"Our troops retain their spirit and are determined to make a stand to the last," one authoritative source said.

Continuous Japanese air activity in the daytime has largely paralyzed all but defensive operations, it was said, but with nightfall the defenders thrus out to recover lost ground without chance of air attack.

The heavy rains brought by the seasonal monsoon have turned many parts of coastal plains into bogs, but give no appreciable advantage either to attack or defence.

Aussies Call All Men Up To 60

U.S. Experts Predict Japs Forced To Hit Australia

SYDNEY, Australia, March 6—CP).—Prime Minister John Curtin today submitted to Parliament a proclamation making all Australian men up to 60 years of age liable for military service.

See Blow Coming

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP). —A powerful drive against Australia, designed to knock out the Darwin naval base and envelop the whole north coast of the continent, was predicted here today as Japan's next move in her lightning campaign to dominate the entire southwest Pacific before the United Nations can hope to take the offensive.

At the same time military and naval experts said it is probable the drive into Burma will be intensified in line with the apparent Japanese strategy of trying to close the Burma Road to China permanently and also place strong forces in position for an invasion of India.

Thus as the third month of the war ended, qualified observers here found scant excuse of any optimism in the vast theatre of Pacific-Asiatic operations, and the general belief is that barring some surprise action by the Allies the disastrous sequence of events which started at Pearl Harbor December 7 must be expected to continue in the immediate future.

It is noted, however, that the pattern of the war is not one of unrelieved gloom. In the British Isles, in Washington and even in embattled Java indications are that some sort of Allied counter action is in the making. Where and how far in the future it might be undertaken remained subjects of merest conjecture.

But the Russian offensive against the once-undefeated German army continues to press slowly westward in the greatest achievement of allied arms to date, and it is believed here to switch from Burma to India as a gateway for supplies to China will not materially hamper the Chinese forces, at least for the time being.

Lines Unchanged On Burma Front

LONDON, March 6. —(CP) — The situation in Burma has not worsened in the past three days and both Rangoon and Pegu, strategic rail junction, 40 miles to the North, still are in British hands a military commentator declared to-day.

He admitted the position of the defenders was serious but insisted "it is no worse to-day than it was yesterday, or the day before or the day before that."

The commentator declared that the British, Indian and Chinese were putting up "a magnificent scrap," although outnumbered by the Japanese columns which forced passages of the lower Sittang River earlier this week.

Yesterday's Burma command communique reported heavy fighting at Waw, 15 miles northeast of Pegu. Japanese troops at this point were in a position to drive Southwest along the Western shores of the Gulf of Martaban along a two-lane highway traversing level rice country to Rangoon.

Dutch Fight To Hold Mountains

Third Jap Force Nears Surabaya Great Naval Base

LONDON, March 6 —(CP)—The Japanese claimed today the Rising Sun flag flew over Batavia, capital of the Netherlands East Indies, and that Bandung, headquarters of the Netherlands Army, apparently was in imminent peril as offshoots of three main invasion forces spread deeper through the island.

Loss of Batavia, not confirmed by the Netherlands, has been expected. The Indies communique yesterday had placed the invaders only about 10 miles from the city.

The Japanese flag may be hoisted over the capital, Bandung and Surabaya, the United Nations' endangered naval base, and the resolved Netherlands still will fight from the mountainous inner island to keep the Japanese from exploiting their successes.

Before the Japanese invasion armies swarmed up the beaches of Java last Saturday night, some government functions had been transferred from Batavia to Bandung, and early in the invasion—now in its sixth full day—the Netherlands announced that the rule of "scorched earth" had been applied to the capital.

An Imperial headquarters communique in Tokyo claimed that Japanese forces had taken Batavia last night.

Batavia, in the northwest corner of Java, was threatened by the Japanese from two landings at that end of the island — eastward from Bantam province and westward from Indramajoe Bay.

The threat to Bandung, 75 miles southeast of Batavia, came primarily from another branch of the thrust from Indramajoe Bay. At the closest, the Netherlands communique yesterday put the Japanese at Kalidjati, 25 miles to the

Fourteen Girls Register Early To Ease Farm Labor Shortage

CAMPBELLFORD, March 6 — (ENS) — Fourteen girls from the Rylstone district registered for additional farm work on Wednesday afternoon. They gave their names to members of the Rylstone Women's Institute who are assisting with the nation wide effort to cope with the impending labor shortage of the coming season. They were all farm girls and have pledged themselves to do some extra work around their own home either by looking after the vegetable garden, the strawberries or lending additional help with the milking. The Institute meeting at which the registration took place was held at Mrs. Lillian Anderson's, and the topic of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Thomas Reid who delivered a factual talk on "Health" and revealed some rather startling figures which served to emphasise the value of keeping the national doctor bill down particularly in war time. She said sickness cost Canadians annualy a quarter of a million dollars which presently could be put to many vital uses. Illness and its probable effects played a large part in lowering the amount of available man power in this and every other country the speaker averred. Health is in reality the first time of defense whether it be in the battle field or on the home front.

Mrs. Reid felt there was room for a greater amount of health teaching in the schools and suggested that preventative measures should be emphasised considerbly more both in the school and the community as a whole. Turning to the factors which contribute to the general health the speaker pointed out Ontario was the only Province in the entire Dominion with a compulsory pasteurization law which is now generally regarded by health authorities as a "must." Other factors contributing to ill health and disease she listed were flies, (cleanliness); natural habits; toxins and even the age old drinking cup problem came in for attention. She warned against the too frequent tendency to treat lightly the 'common cold' which so often was forerunner of more serious complications and struck a new note by advocating pre-marriage blood tests.

Returning to the schools, which in pre-war days formed one of the Institute's primary interests, Mrs. Reid spoke of the value of hot lunches (now served in most rural schools in winter) and then she touched on the question of providing both medical and dental inspection for the children in all districts. "I hope the time is not too far away when we will have both medical and dental service in all our schools," said the speaker who followed this by urging parents to keep in constant touch with what is going on so that they see what changes were needed and themselves would be in a position to make suggestions.

At the conclusion of her remarks members voted a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Reid for her interesting address. Mrs. L. Anderson gave a reading which was the concluding item on the program and following this it was announced the next meeting would be held at Mrs. Clarence Barnum's on April 1st.

35,000 More Weekly

London, March 6 (CP)

BRITAIN is putting 35,000 women to work every week in the broadened national war effort, an official spokesman declared today. He said this increased employment of women is exclusive of service and civil defence appointments.

He said there would be a great extension of part-time work for those whose family responsibilities kept them from full-time work and that women who ignored the law and did not register would be punished.

Periodic registrations by age groups will continue, he said, until women of 40 are enrolled about the end of June. Girls aged 16 and 17 soon will be registered also.

Thus far, 5,000,000 women have been registered and 1,500,000 have been interviewed for placement in industry of the services.

Choir Entertains At Old People's Home

PORT HOPE, March 6—(ENS).— Some fifty members of the United Church choir journeyed to Cobourg on Thursday evening to entertain the elderly folk at the County Home there.

The choir put on an evening's entertainment of a short comedy in one act, entitled "A Big Day in Bulger," by H. Elliott McBride. For the enjoyment of their audience, the choir changed the title to "A Big Day in Cobourg."

The cast was as follows: Mrs. Annie McGilickerty, an Irish widow, with Mrs. Reeve taking the part; Bridget McGilickerty, her daughter, Miss Netta Brownlee; Bridget's lover Barney O'Toozle, taken by Gillard Darling; Jamie McClanahhan, Peggy's lover, Keith Staples; Mr. Thomas O'Toozle's part was taken by Mr. H. Trott; Peggy O'Rasserty was represented by Betty O'Neil, Jamie's fancy.

This comedy was much enjoyed by the old folk, who then made request for different numbers from the choir, consisting of duets, male quartettes, mixed quartettes and a community sing-song was then enjoyed by all.

The choir also supplied candy to the ladies and smokes for the gentlemen.

Over The Top

Peterborough's Victory Loan campaign went over the top today; the $2,750,000 which was expected of this city and its district is now safely in the bag. That was the minimum subscription and it has been secured. But, as was pointed out in these columns two days ago, there is no maximum subscription, and the government has asked for $900,000,000. There is still a day in which to raise our $2,750,000 to three millions. Will Peterborough rest upon the laurels of a minimum subscription?

The advantages of subscribing to the Victory Loan have been pointed out and harped upon during the past three weeks until there can scarcely be a soul who could not repeat them. But a good thing can bear repetition: the Victory Loan provides a golden opportunity for every citizen of this country to put his savings in the best of investments. The government needs the money, and is prepared to pay generously for the use of it. If we should lose this war—which is possible, though we have not the slightest intention of allowing it to happen—our money would be useless; in the meanwhile it is safer with the government than anywhere else.

Two million, seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars is a large sum, but there is still money in this district which could be put in a better pasture. Is Peterborough going to do only what it is asked to do, or is it going to do everything that lies in its power?

Peterboro Concert Association

During the past five years the Peterborough Concert Association has done much to maintain the cultural level of this city. In spite of the many difficulties which beset a venture of this nature, it has continued its work, has raised the standard of its concerts, and has enjoyed increasing support from the citizens of this city and the surrounding district.

On Wednesday, at the last concert of the present season, Dr. J. J. Craig spoke of the future plans of the Association, and expressed the hope that it might continue its work in the autumn with the assistance of its present members and of new ones. Music, he said, was almost a necessity in wartime, and urged his listeners not to give up the good things of democracy entirely in the stress of the war.

We are in agreement with this view. A distinction must be made between "escapism" and honest refreshment of the spirit at this time. No Canadian wants to escape from his responsibilities in the present struggle, but it is necessary that some time be spent in recuperating energy already expended in order that future work may be of a high quality. Some people find this recuperation in sport, others in the arts, and of these latter music has perhaps the widest power to strengthen and calm the spirit. Let us not desert it in a mistaken belief that a reasonable amount of time spent in listening is time frivolously wasted. The Nazis, let us remember, are men without art, and we must not become like them in our effort to defeat them.

New Jap Directions

The situation at Java is serious for the United Nations, and, without anticipating disaster or giving up that island while brave men are still fighting for it, we should be prepared to hear of its loss. If Java is lost, the Japanese will be in virtual command of the East Indies and the question is, Where will they strike next?

The two obvious points for a Japanese offensive are India and Australia. Without expert knowledge it would be impossible to say which of these places the Japanese might attack first, but several things combine to make India the next logical battleground. First of all, there is the Axis "world-girdling" plan, which would involve a race across India by the Japanese to join hands with the Germans, who might attempt to strike southward through Turkey and Persia. Such a move would be dictated by no extreme affection on either side; the Japs and the Germans are useful to each other and their union in northwestern India would give them a great advantage. It is by no means certain, however, with the situation as it is in Russia, that the Germans could successfully make such a move, in which case the Japs would find themselves stranded in India, foiled and far from home.

But the Japs must make a risky choice in any case. Although they have had great successes in the East they are by no means secure, and their conquests could be upset in a comparatively short time. Their choice of India as their next objective might be dictated by the fact that in that huge and sprawling country they could probably make rapid overland progress. The native populations, once they were terrorized by the methods which Germany used in the Low Countries—indiscriminate bombing and slaughter of civilians—would present no obstacle to the attackers and would impede the defenders. The Japanese undoubtedly reckon on their power to rouse the Indians against the British, in which they might easily be successful. But even if they were lucky (and we have no reason to assume that they would be, for there are excellent arguments on our side, too) their Indian journey would end in disaster if they missed connections with the Germans.

What then, about attacking Australia? In some respects this would be a much more difficult task than an invasion of India, for Australia is a continent, and it has something like 500,000 men under arms. There are wastes in Australia which Japan could perhaps seize and hold, but there would be little advantage in that. Japan has been bombing Darwin because that is the point chosen many months ago as the most important base of supply and concentration in the Southern Pacific, and Japan has a shrewder notion than we of the trouble which will eventually come to her from that point. The fame of the Australians as improvisers and guerilla fighters is as well known to the Japs as to the rest of the world. Australia would be a hard nut to crack; harder, they may decide, than India. And, of course, if they could gain India, Australia would be in a position of greater isolation and so, possibly, easier to take.

The Australians, understandably, are expecting an invasion and are making every preparation for it. It is quite likely that the Japanese will bomb many parts of the continent in order to fan the flame of Australian apprehension; Sydney Harbor may soon come in for attention from Japanese bombers. But will Japan attack Australia first. We doubt it.

Let us repeat, the Japanese know how hard it will be to consolidate their successes, and they must grab what they can, while they can, depending upon their fellow-brigands to make things easier for them. India might be grabbed, but Australia, unimbarrassed by a native population, would put up a terrific resistance.

Proposed Assessment Changes

There is solid ground for strong differences of opinion on the proposal made by A. J. B. Gray, Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, to the York Council for radical changes in the Assessment Act of Ontario. According to press reports of what he submitted, the present municipal assessors would be replaced by a county assessment commission. All tax collections would be made by the County Treasurer and the cost of collecting would be distributed among the various municipalities concerned.

* * *

Whether this plan is intended to apply to those municipalities represented by county and district local governments, or whether it would embrace towns and cities, is not made clear, but in any case the result of such a measure, if it is brought down in the Legislature, will be to remove from the individual municipality some of its local autonomy and vest it back in the province where it was vested a century ago.

* * *

Those who are familiar with what led to the report of Lord Durham and to the original Municipal Act, which came into operation in 1841—just a hundred and one years ago, will recall that under the old system prevailing before the report was made, the then province through its legislative set-up had so much control over the different areas of what is now Ontario that there was constant irritation and discontent. Centralized authority and advancements of money to this place and that became almost iniquitous. Durham quickly recognized that wrong and proposed measures to decentralize, in order to give taxpayers in each community or municipal section, the power to handle their own local business, under authority vested in them by the Province.

Perhaps the method which Mr. Gray has in mind is not yet fully revealed to the public in the brief newspaper reports which have been given, but if the idea embodied in the plan leads to a return to too much provincial administration and control, one may have grave doubts as to whether it will not be objectionable to the municipalities.

There is logic in the statement of Mr. Gray that a fair and uniform assessment should be made over the entire province, because it is on the basis of assessment that the Provincial Treasury parcels out sums to the municipalities. One is curious, however, to know why such a "fair and uniform" assessment could not be made by municipal assessors if terms and conditions were laid down to which they must adhere?

What should be watched by mayors, aldermen, wardens, reeves and others who are following the matter, is that the tendency toward centralization does not grow. It has caused trouble in the past and may again, not only in the municipal field but in the relationships between the provinces and the Federal powers, among States in Republics, and among integral parts of an empire. However, it remains to be seen just what the facts and implications of the proposal are.

Tailor's Field-Day

From a variety of sources we hear alarming rumors of what is to happen to men's clothing in the near future. Lapels, trouser cuffs, sleeve buttons, pleats, patch pockets, and a few other ornaments are to go; coats are to be slightly shorter; there are to be no waistcoats with double-breasted suits. It is all very dreadful. As we understand it, men's clothes are to be much as they are now, but stripped of their few vestiges of ornament. It sounds terrible.

But there is a silver lining. This is a golden opportunity for tailors to do what they have been wanting to do for years. This is their chance to produce something new and startling for men to wear. Before the war we heard rumors every year from conventions of tailors in the U.S. and Britain that new departures in clothes for men had been discussed, and had finally been rejected because it was certain that men — the most conventional of animals—would not wear them. Now it looks as though men would have to wear what they can get and the dress-reformers should have a field-day.

FOR VICTORY

I cannot join in the battle—God has not willed it so—
I cannot fight in the heavens or march against the foe;
But, speaking a word in season for God
and for the Right,
I can strengthen the feet that falter,
uphold the hands that fight!

I can speak some word of comfort to others in their pain,
And, stifling my own heart's terrors, bid
the fearful hope again!
I can trust, and pray for Victory, casting out useless fears;
Give, labor, lend for Victory, and the hope of future years!

This is no time for repining, idly imputing
the blame!
None of our hands are spotless! All have a share in the shame!
But all too share in the Victory, if all share in the fight,
Give, labor, lend for Victory — for God
and for the Right!

Australia Honors Its Mighty Dead Of Two Wars

AUSTALIA'S National War Memorial, which is built in the shape of a great cross on the foothills of Mount Ainslie, at Canberra, was officially opened by His Excellency Lord Gowrie, V.C. Fifteen other V.C.'s led the ceremonial march.

The scope of the memorial, which was conceived as a monument to the dead of World War I, has been extended, by decision of the Commonwealth Government, to include World War II. Its dedication, therefore, will be delayed until the end of the present war.

Symbolizing as it will the sacrifice of the heroes of two great conflicts, the memorial seems destined, because of the nobility and grandeur of its conception, to become a place of national pilgrimage in the years to come.

THE memorial, which is in fact a combined museum, art gallery, and library, consists of the building and the collection of inestimable value which it houses.

The cross-like building, which is faced with white sandstone from the Hawkesbury district of New South Wales, has maximum measurements of 400 feet by 200 feet. It has a copper-covered dome 100 feet high. Ultimately, it will stand in fine gardens which will be planted with cedars from Lebanon and pines from Gallipoli. Poppies from Flanders fields will be planted in profusion in the garden beds.

Inside the bronze gates of the memorial there is a magnificent vista in which a garden court rises in tiers from a Pool of Reflection towards the crowning feature of the memorial—the domed and exquisitely-proportioned Hall of Memory.

Arcaded cloisters flank the garden court. On the walls of these will be inscribed on bronze tablets the names of the 80,000 dead of the Great War and of the men who fall in the present war. Gargoyles cut from the solid stone ornament the walls of the court. These depict the heads of an aborigine and his gin and of Australian animals and birds.

From the court and away into the depths of the building stretch a succession of 16 galleries containing the memorial collection. They are so grouped as to give the visitor a progressive picture in paintings, sculptures and exhibits of the four years of the Great War and of the campaigns in which the Australian forces fought on the sea, on land, and in the air.

The collection is of inestimable worth. It has been added to as the years have passed. Valuable gifts have come from the Governments of the United Kingdom, of the sister Dominions, and of the Allies. Wives and parents and relatives of soldiers have also given to the collection records and relics of great personal value.

THERE are precious exhibits in many of the galleries. In a deep recess lit by a dim, religious light is Will Longstaff's symbolic painting, "Menin Gate at Midnight," and in the lower galleries where larger relics are housed are some of the boats that were used to ferry the Australian troops to the historic rendezvous with the enemy on the shores of Gallipoli.

One of the treasures of the collection is the famous Shellal Mosaic which was unearthed by an officer of the Australian Light Horse during the Palestine campaign. It formed part of the floor of an early Christian Church, and was lifted with great care from the soil of centuries and transported to Australia at the end of the war. It has been relaid against the wall of a special vertical chamber.

Special galleries are devoted to the activities of the Royal Australian Navy and to the campaigns in Palestine, Flanders and France. Naval and military artists have picture the highlights of the campaign in a series of vivid paintings. There are notable portraits of Australia's war leaders, and numerous sculptures of soldiers in action and war incidents by some of the nation's leading artists and sculptors.

ALL the galleries are rich in mementoes of the Great War. Personal relics which tell of individual tales of heroism are scattered among major exhibits such as tanks, field-guns, mortars, shells, torpedoes and mines. In the spacious Aeroplane Hall, beside a series of fighting 'planes, is housed the Vickers Vimy machine in which the late Sir Ross Smith made the first flight from England to Australia.

The library of the memorial has a collection of more than 15,000 books on the Great War It contains also millions of war documents, 100,000 photographs, and 60 miles of war films. It is a storehouse of information for students and historians. Many of the documents were used by Dr. Bean in compiling his official history of the Great War.

It is hard to understand how the head of the Eire Government can be indifferent to appeals being made to him by those of Irish birth in the United States. The last one is from Prof. Francis E. • In Web, Japs Must Go On

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)—Although isolated Netherlands and Allied garrisons on Java may prolong the fight indefinitely, that battle also seems certainly lost and already written off the strategy books.

The cost of this fresh disaster to the United Nations either in men and ships or in strategic footholds in the Far Pacific from which eventually to strike back at the invaders is yet to be counted. There can be no doubt, however, that the Nipponese campaign of conquest, driven home with stunning speed and efficiency down the China Sea, has reached a supremely critical point for Tokyo as well as for United Nations leadership.

Once the Java corner is turned, Japanese strategists must quickly reveal their larger war design. They dare not halt to consolidate ground already won. They must march on. That is the fate of aggressors. They cannot stop.

That necessity drove Hitler, even with all the rest of the Continent of Europe in his grip, to attack Russia. It may be driving him to widening the war front in Europe in a desperate spring effort to retrieve the initiative wrested from him by the Russians.

ALTERNATIVES LIMITED

With Java virtually lost by the Allies, Tokyo must choose, has already chosen, no doubt, its next objective. The alternatives are limited, the expansion of front and extension of communications lines great, whichever course is followed.

To many observers, India, and the complete isolation of China for eventual strangulation, seems already indicated in the Burma campaign. On the other hand, many Australians believe that the next Japanese thrust may be aimed at their country.

One thing must be clear to any observer. Simultaneous Japanese campaigns of major proportions at such great and increasing distances from Japan and from each other seem beyond possibility. There is a limit somewhere to Japanese manpower, shipping and other war resources. Nipponese troops are spread thin in China, the Philippines, Malaya, the Indies, Burma, Thailand, French Indo-China. A substantial part of Japanese army, air and naval power must always be retained, also, on guard against a potential Russian enemy only 600 miles from Tokyo.

EASTERN FLANK THREATENED

Nor can Tokyo warmakers overlook the fact that the greatest danger to the empire they are seeking to build is from the east, from the United States and the Pacific, not from the west. It is the eastern sea flank of their grandiose conception that must be increasingly menaced as American striking power afloat, ashore and in the air grows hour by hour.

There have been recent obvious indications that the Japanese realize this. Efforts to bolster Japanese guardposts in the Southern Philippines against American use of the southern approaches to the China Sea from the Pacific reflect that. A Japanese report, otherwise unconfirmed, of a heavy bombing attack on Marcus Island in the Bonin group by unidentified planes further indicates Japanese sensitiveness about the sea flanks in the Pacific.

If there was such an attack on Marcus Island, in the Mid-North Pacific, it could only have been by American planes, although where they came from is a mystery. The Japanese account of the bombing may be merely a feeler to smoke out some intimations of where American forces actually are disposed.

If it proves true that American planes have struck so far north and west, another long step toward American flanking attack on Japan's China Sea communications lines has been taken.

A Bit of Nonsense

"I've got a crazy desire to kiss every woman I know."
"Well go home and kiss your wife."
"Blimey, I'm not that crazy!"

Outside a night club a taximan was hailed by the doorman, who packed four very "jolly" guests into the cab.

"That one on the left goes to Park Lane," he explained; "the one next to him to Jermyn Street. The one on the left front seat goes to Piccadilly, and the fourth to Knights-bridge."

With an understanding nod, the taximan drove off. In a few minutes he returned and hailed the doorman.

"Would you mind sorting out these blokes again?" he asked. "I hit a bump in Trafalgar Square."

The old sailor had retired from the sea. Each morning a grubby youngster knocked at his door, went in and came out again. After this had gone on for some weeks the curiosity of the villagers was aroused.

"Tell me," said one of the youngsters, "why do you visit that old sailor every morning?"

"Well, sir, he gives me a dime if I say to him, 'The captain wants you immediately.'"

"And what does he say to that?"

"He says, 'Tell the captain to go to blazes.'"

SHORT OF FUEL

"SHORT of fuel for his war machine," states a phrase in a military summary regarding Hitler.

We have become more than slightly sick of this chant about Hitler being short of oil.

It is the most glaring example of the wish being father of the thought that we have ever seen in the world's history.

Hitler may run short of oil sometime and we pray that he will — but until there is more evidence of a dearth of oil behind the Nazi lines than we have found yet, we had better put our faith in something other than a German oil shortage.

And if we don't stop the German drive on tankers, it may not be the Germans who run short of oil.—Thomas Richard Henry, in Toronto Telegram.

ONCE A DAY

ONE of the United States soldiers arrived in Northern Ireland is credited with an interesting contribution to the saluting problem: "We only salute officers once a day, and I take it that passes over here."

It may pass with the troops of our great ally but it is to be feared that not even Mr. Churchill could persuade our War Office mandarins to sanction such a distintegrating procedure for our own army.

Even with the Americans one may wonder how the method works out in practice; how does an officer become aware in all circumstances that he has received the single daily salute to which he is apparently entitled, and how can a private make quite sure that he is not sometimes saluting the same officer twice over?

There is an analogous method in British messes whereby all officers present rise at breakfast-time when the C.O. enters for the first time in the day, but that compliment is easily conferred and restricted. One salute a day to any officer sounds much more difficult to arrange.—Manchester Guardian.

The English are in danger of losing their long-held championship honors as masters of understatement. HASTINGS, March 6.—(ENS).—A near tragedy was narrowly averted here on Wednesday morning when George Peck, a tannery employee, discovered his house filled with deadly carbon monoxide fumes.

Talking to the Examiner at his home Wednesday night, Mr. Peck said that a blocked draft was the cause of the mishap.

"I went to bed about 11.30 and left the fire pretty red and all the drafts shut off," he said. About 4.30 my wife awoke and she aroused me. I went to get up and was so dizzy I could hardly stand. I managed to fling open all the windows and doors and gulped in some fresh air till my head cleared."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Peck and their daughter Shirley, aged 9, were sleeping on the ground floor and two boarders who were in bed upstairs were not affected.

Although Mr. Peck and his daughter are completely recovered, Mrs. Peck is still confined to her bed. Dr W. N. Campbell attended her and said that she would be around again in a couple of days.

"If my wife hadn't awakened when she did, I think it would have been disastrous," grimly remarked Mr. Peck.

Seymour Taxes Come In Fast

CAMPBELLFORD, March 6.—(ENS).—Taxes in the Township of Seymour are coming in slightly better than they did a year ago, according to Collector William Fisher. He told members of Seymour Council at their regular meeting on Monday, that $870.48 had been paid over to him during February and this is a few dollars better than for the same period last year. The report tabled by School Attendance Officer G. W. Anderson was equally good. He said there was some sickness but nothing of epidemic proportions in the township. Reeve W. J. Ross presided for the meeting. Other business included a $12 claim by Floyd Findlay for damage done to his car on a township road, and this was referred to the insurance company.

A motion was passed authorizing the reeve and clerk to sign the petition for a percentage grant from the Department of Highways on the basis of the 1941 road improvements. The suggestion that council should immediately take inventory of their anticipated needs for culverts and wire cable was made by a representative of the Canada Ingot and Iron Company. He stressed the importance of early ordering in view of the scarcity of these materials. On motion, the resignation of J. H. Kelly, was accepted. An agreement covering the upkeep of the Rawdon-Seymour boundary road was considered by the council, and on motion was signed by the reeve and clerk. According to the draft submitted by the District Municipal Engineer the township of Seymour will keep up that portion of the boundary road lying between the 6th and 7th concessions of Rawdon, while the Rawdon council will be responsible for the upkeep of the portion south of this line. Each council will reimburse the other for one-half of the money spent.

The following pay-sheet was passed: Hydro Electric Power Commission, $21.60; William Cross, labor, $37.50; Alfred Grills, labor, $37.50; D. T. Petherick, superintendent, express and book-keeping, $62; Counties Treasurer, charity, $5.25; W. W. Clark and Son, relief account, $2.90.

PORT HOPE RASCALS ELIMINATE COBOURG IN QUINTE BASKETBALL

Top Teams Win Handily In City League

Four 3 to 1 decisions and one tie in points were the results of the Men's City League bowling card at Duffus Alleys last night. Although there was nothing of the sensational nature to any of the scores some good efforts were turned in just the same. Capitols and Dunn's teams reeled off 3447 and 3425 totals. Bud White led the high three specialists with 794 while Jack Playford nailed the best of the three lone 300 singles. His big game of 342 was followed by Bill Harris' 310 and George Walton's 304.

The league leading Jay's outfit who enjoy a 14-point lead over the next team appear to have first place cinched again. The battle now is for second place where Capitols, Freeman's, Dunn's and Outlaws are only 4 points apart. Old Timers Royal Yorks and Big Five could squeeze in if they stretch themselves during the remaining six weeks of the schedule.

Huffman's in ninth place and Quakers in last are the teams to watch from now on. Both squads can do a lot of damage to any team's chances. Huffman's have headed into hot opposition almost every night this year while the Quaker shift with a little luck will win a lot of games yet.

The standing: Jay's 63, Capitols 49, Freeman's 46, Dunn's 46, Outlaws 45, Old Timers 42, Royal Yorks 41, Big Five 40, Huffman's 29 and Quakers 19.

Stirling Juveniles Here Saturday

Peterborough's juvenile entry, the Churchills, managed by G. Harris have been ordered by the Ontario Minor Hockey Association to play the second game of their Ontario juvenile series with Tweed here tomorrow, Saturday night at Brock Street Rink. The Peterborough kids won the first game in Tweed Wednesday night by 6 to 2 on terrible ice and they are hopeful that it will tighten up enough tonight to make a better sheet possible for the battle scheduled for Saturday night. At all events the game has to go on and the Churchills hope to have a good crowd in attendance when they tackle the Easterners. The winners of this series will be stacked up against the Port Hope juveniles. The Churchill lineup includes: R. Leether, J. White, F. Lawson, F. Garvey, K. Anderson, E. Close, G. Harris, subs, B. Dorrell, B. Milne, J. Ainslie, J. Carpenter.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

All roads will lead to Oshawa tonight for the second game of the O.H.A. Senior B semi-final series between Collingwood Shipbuilders and the Peterborough Soldiers. The Petes are one game up on the round as the result of their 6 to 4 victory in Collingwood Wednesday night and a win for them will wind up the series and send Collingwood into the discard in straight games, neither of them staged on Peterborough ice. Peterborough fans are going down in droves to the Motor City hopeful to see their favorites polish off the hard-hitting Shipbuilders and sail into the final round for the Senior B title. Incidentally the Petes, while not underestimating the prowess of the Collingwood team are supremely confident that they will wind up the series tonight. They had to battle against adverse conditions Wednesday night and yet came home with a convincing win and they figure that on good ice at Oshawa they can skate the northerners into the ground and make every post a winning one. They feel that they have a decided edge on the Shipbuilders, not only in speed but in team play, and that on the big cushion their task should be easier than in the first gruelling game. Outside of the odd bruise and Art Heal's cut eye the Petes came through that grim tussle in good shape and they are all rarin' to go tonight.

* * * * * *

It is expected that there will be a huge crowd of supporters on the special C.N.R. train which leaves here at 6.30 o'clock and on the return trip leaves Oshawa at 11.30. Restrictions in regard to chartering buses will help to swell the patronage for the special train. Special coaches are being provided for lady fans and it is hoped that the excursion will be the most successful in years, in view of the importance of tonight's game and the interest that it is creating among local fans. They are solidly behind the Petes and hope to root them home to an Ontario championship this season, following in the footsteps of last year's group winners, the Kingston Combines who carried off the Senior B title, with some help from a member of the Petes, Honey Tompkins.

* * * * * *

Collingwood have not given up the fight by any means. They expect to do much better on good ice than they were able to show in the slushy going on which the first game was played and they say that the Petes are in for a surprise in tonight's battle. We have an idea that the Shipbuilders' first line of Scott, Kirby and Kelly will show to big advantage on the big Oshawa surface. That trio represents the bulk of Collingwood's attacking strength and they work well together, with Scott the star. They would be an even better line if the temperamental Mister Kelly who patrols the right boards were a two-way player. He showed no inclination to back-check in Wednesday's game. Kelly by the way has been the bad man of the Collingwood club all season, leading the team in penalties. Brophy, veteran of the squad will undoubtedly show flashes of his old-time speed on the wide open spaces of the Oshawa Arena. He always could carry the mail.

* * * * * *

The winner of the Collingwood-Peterborough series will meet Merritton, conquerors of the Windsor Spitfires in the final series for the Ontario championship. Arrangements have not been made for the playoffs yet but it is certain that the setup will be a best-of-five series with games to count. Merritton came through a strong group to qualify for the playdowns and knocked off a powerful club, after being five goals down on the home-and-home series with Windsor. A club that can come through with a performance like that against an outfit as formidable as the Spitfires must have something more than flashy uniforms and a bunch of hockey sticks.

* * * * * *

A prophet may be without honor in his own country but there is nothing in that theory when Bert McLeod's case is considered. The popular Bert who was a member of the Peterborough Ontario senior champion team of 1926 and has been a local resident ever since was born in Collingwood and learned his hockey there and is still remembered most favorably by fans in the ship-building centre. As soon as the Collingwood folk learned Wednesday night that your scribe came from Peterborough their first inquiry was about how Bert McLeod was doing, and they were unanimous in their statements that the local druggist was a great hockey player and a "great guy." The only difference of opinion this column overheard was whether Bert began his hockey career in the arena now being used or in the old Collingwood rink and the proponents of the latter contention seemed to have the numerical support. At any event McLeod still stands ace high in his native town and that is a tribute most folk can appreciate.

* * * * * *

A pleasing feature of the Petes' recent victories has been the scoring punch being displayed by Soldier "Nick" Nichols, the Bobcaygeon boy who is patrolling right wing on the local second line, after playing last season with the RiverVale Skeeters. In the last two victories scored by the Petes Nichols has registered five goals, driving in three against Whitby Palm Billiards a week ago and following up that achievement by punching in two more markers in Wednesday's game at Collingwood. A right-hand shot with plenty of zip on his drives, Nichols nevertheless seems to prefer to backhand his shots and is registering nearly all his goals in that way. Apparently they are puzzling to the goalies who are not having much luck in handling them.

Toronto Maple Leafs did a lot to injure their chances of winning the N.H.L. championship last night when they dropped a 5 to 2 decision to the Montreal Canadiens who had not won a game on Toronto ice for more than three years. The old law of averages must have caught up to the Leafs. At any rate they missed a royal chance as the New York Rangers were dropping a game to Detroit by 5 to 2, and a win for the Toronto gang would have put them only a point behind the leaders. As it is they are still three points back and the leadership hinges on the two games to be played between Rangers and Leafs over the week-end. The Leafs will about have to take both of those battles to pick off first place and the series promises to be a real tussle and a good warm-up for the Stanley Cup round between the two clubs that is coming up shortly. Amerks managed to stay even with Canadiens by beating Chicago but the Montrealers have a game in hand.

Visit of the Kingston Combines here tomorrow night for the first game of the O.A.B.A. playdown series with the local Outboard Marines is a big event of the basketball season and should attract a real crowd to the Y.M.C.A. gym. The Marines have been staging a lot of star cage attractions during the present season but tomorrow night's game is an O.A.B.A. fixture and there is always a bigger kick, of course, in a championship battle. The Peterborough team will play back in Kingston a week from tomorrow night with total points on the round deciding the issue so that it will be up to Jimmy Thorburn, Joe Stewart and other Marine sharp-shooters to get their sights trimmed early in tomorrow night's game and toss in baskets from the initial whistle. The game will be staged at 8 o'clock and a lively preliminary will be provided by the two C.G.E. Ladies' League teams, Generals and Electrics who will clash in a battle starting at 7 o'clock.

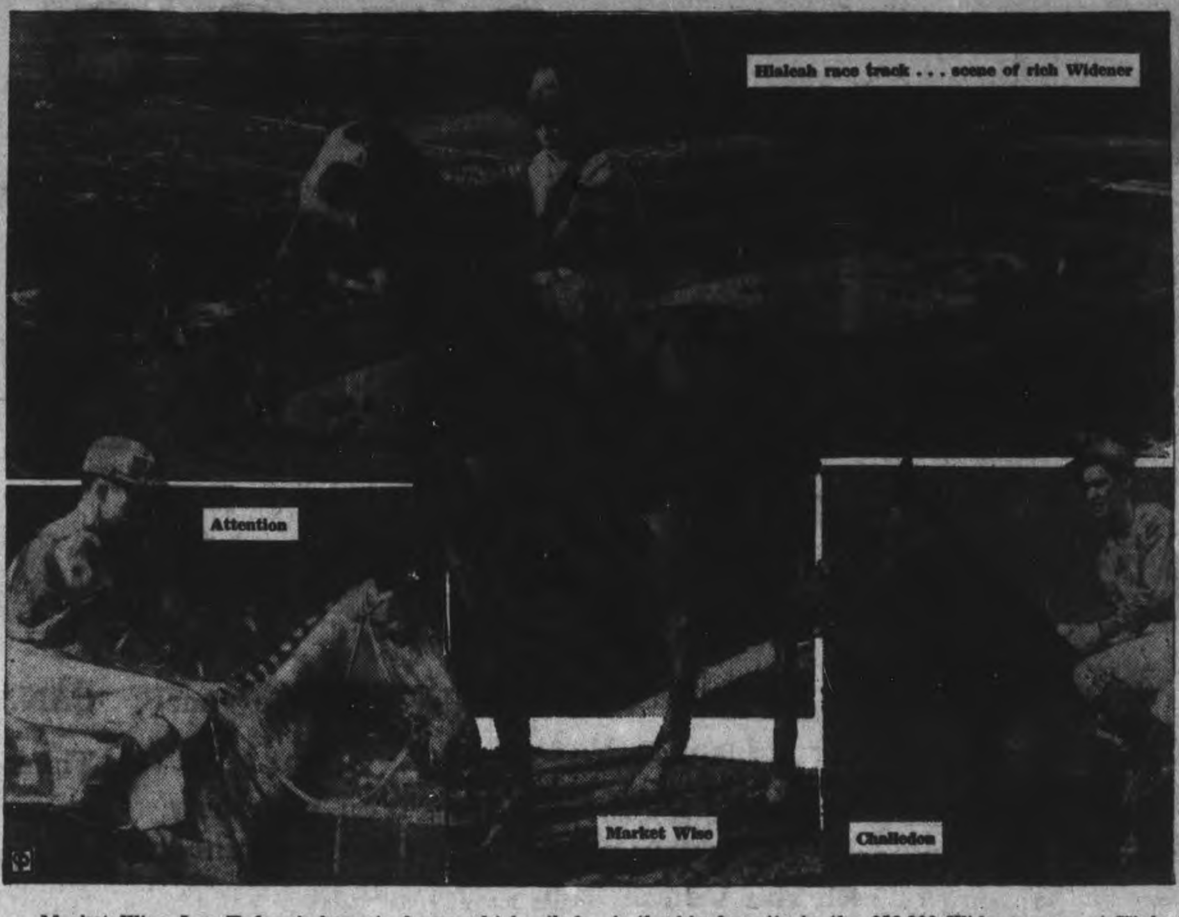
Market Wise Is Favorite In $50,000 Widener Handicap



Market Wise, Lou Tufano's bargain horse which piled up a great record as a three-year-old last year, and which has won two important races in a row in Florida this season, is the big favorite in the $50,000 Widener race at Hialeah, Saturday, March 7. Marketwise will match his speed and endurance with such well-known horses as Attention, Mioland and Challedon and several others.

Baseball Briefs From Training Camps

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Lloyd Waner, who played 77 games with Pittsburg, Boston and Cincinati last season is ready to play 125 games for Philadelphia this year. Waner said that when he signed with the Phils last winter, he asked that he be used regularly.

"I would rather be out of baseball than ride the bench," said Lloyd.

HAVANA—Catcher Mickey Owen of the Brooklyn Dodgers got a lot of satisfaction, as well as a $25 prize, out of winning the 1½ mile race which Manager Leo Durocher prescribed for his squad yesterday. "By winning the race I convinced myself that I'm in better shape than ever," Mickey said.

ORLANDO, Fla.—Manager Bucky Harris of Washington seems confident he has found a solution to the Nats' second base problem in Frank Croucher, reformed shortstop obtained from Detroit. "I saw Croucher play shortstop for the Tigers for three years and I always felt he was a better second baseman," Harris said.

LAKELANE, Fla.—Unsigned Rudy York, Tiger first sacker, took over the first-base job in yesterday's workout and appeared to be in much better playing condition than when he reported a year ago. York was given a uniform because other holdouts have been accorded the same treatment.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Joe Gordon, brilliant second baseman of the New York Yankees, and one of the club's six holdouts, conferred with officials again yesterday but did not reach an agreement.

MIAMI, Fla.—With the exception of two games with the Dodgers, New York Giants have limited their workouts to long hours of batting practice and hard running. Not in 20 years have they reached this stage of spring practice without any intrasquad contests.

TAMPA, Fla.—Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds let it be known that his hopes for a good season depend largely on a new pitcher. He is 35-year-old Ray Star, who came up from Indianapolis. He probably will start the exhibition opener against the Indians Sunday.

HAVANA, March 5.— (AP). — Brooklyn Dodgers, who whipped New York Giants in two exhibition games, were taken to task yesterday by a Giant-flavored team of Cuban all-stars which nosed out the National League champions 2-1.

The Cubans were managed by Jose Rodriguez, who played with the Giants in the days of John McGraw. Tomas De La Cruz, a right hander who went the distance and limited the Dodgers to seven hits, played during the recent Havana season with the champion Almendares team, managed by Adolfo Luque, Giants coach.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Detroit Tigers staged a long batting practice and infield and outfield drills yesterday in preparation for the squad's first game Friday between teams coached by Merv Shea and Charley Gehringer.

Manager Del Baker said pitchers would work three or four innings in view of their fine progress.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.— The biggest mystery in the New York Yankee is the whereabouts of Frankie Crosetti, signed and contented utility infielder now long overdue. "The wires must be down because I've had no word from him," said Manager Joe McCarthy.

Canadian Breds Took Big Money In 1941 Racing

WINNIPEG, March 6.—(CP)—The "Canadian Thoroughbreds," annual statistical history of the King of Sports in the Dominion published by the Prairie Thoroughbred Breeders and Racing Association, shows rapid progress for native breds during the last 17 years.

The 12th issue shows that Canadian breds won $572,730 in 1941 on Dominion and $47,960 on United States tracks with a record number of 794 horses going to the post and winning 1,008 races. They captured 53.3 per cent of Canadian purses compared to 17 per cent in 1925 and took 47.3 of races in Canada compared to 15.5 per cent 17 years ago.

Leading breeder in 1941 was Col. R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, Ont., with R. James Speers of Winnipeg, second. Their positions are reversed for the 10-year-history in which Speers' thoroughbreds from the Whittier Park Stock Farm won $337,315 and Col. McLaughlin's horses $336,990 from 1932 to 1942.

Big Winners

During that period Speers had 100 horses that won 669 races and Col. McLaughlin 64 in 457 races. But in 1941 Col. McLaughlin took 75 races for a collection of $57,022 against 96 wins and $48,330 for Speers.

Third in the 10-year review comes H. C. Hatch of Toronto who had 40 horses winning 396 races and whose earnings totalled $329,050. Hatch, however, captured top honors for a single monney winning in 1941 with his Budpath, winner of the King's Plate at Toronto and the first Canadian Derby at Winnipeg. Budpath returned $15,840 in six starts, finishing first three times, second twice and third once.

Harry Giddings of Oakville, Ont., came up with the top two-year-old, the fleet Ten-to-Ace, which lost only one race in seven starts. Ten-to-Ace, one of the fastest horses developed in the dominion, returned $10,370 to its owner during the year.

Leading Sire

E. R. Bradley's United States stallion Brother Joe, who died during 1941 after seeing many years of service in Quebec, was the leading sire for the season, supplanting Cudgel. Progeny of Brother Joe won $41,550 in 1941.

Leading dam was Luress. Budpath was her only progeny on the track returned $15,840 to top Mr. Giddings Royalite whose progeny won $13,015.

The records show that Beau of the West, bred by Seagram Stables, Waterloo, Ont., in 1929, remains the leading Canadian money winner massing a total fo $49,370 in 29 races during the 10-year period 1925-1934. Gay Parisian, bred by the same stable in 1924, ranks second money-winner, $37,010.

Snead Nabs LeadBen Hogan Is Disqualified

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Samuel Jackson Snead, the grand slammer of golf, ignored the elements yesterday to fire a three-under-par 69 and take the lead at the halfway point in the 72-hole $5,000 St. Petersburg Open, from which Ben Hogan and two others were disqualified at the height of a rain storm.

A hard rain enveloped the Lakewood Country Club in the midst of the second 18-hole round and threw everybody into confusion except the long-driving star from Hot Springs, Va., who is the Canadian Open champion.

Rain Helped Putter

Somehow the rain lent magic to his putter and he put together six birdies for one of his finest rounds of the winter, and he breezed home with a smile to overtake Byron Nelson and others who had set the pace Wednesday.

The torrent of rain which fell shortly after noon disrupted the tournament and caused many players who already had high scores to withdraw.

Hogan, twice winner of the Garden Trophy and currently the leading money winner of golf, was playing with Henry Picard of Oklahoma City, former P.G.A. champion, and Tom Mehan of Beverly, Mass., when the rain began and they made the turn at the clubhouse and played the tenth hole.

Then Hogan suggested that they return to the clubhouse and complain that the course was unplayable. Fred Corcoran, tournament manager for the Professional Golfers' Association, inspected several holes and found that other contestants were continuing play and instructed the trio to return.

The threesome did set out again, but not until they had consumed some coffee and waited out part of the storm inside. Corcoran notified them they were disqualified for unnecessary delay.

At the end of a dozen holes Hogan was one over par, which with his par 72 of Wednesday would have put him near the top for to-day's gruelling 36-hole final round. Both Hogan and Mehan, by coincidence, are members of the P.G.A. tournament committee and in effect had to disqualify themselves, the first time any of the threesome ever had been ruled out of a tournament.

Snead started out in the high wind that preceded the rain and took bogies on the fifth and sixth holes during the height of the storm and another on the tenth, but slammed right ahead for a 72-69—141.

Nelson, who had blazed a 68 Wednesday, was almost finished before the rain struck and had nothing to blame but himself for a 76 and a 144 total.

Cobourg Unable To Overcome 1st Game Lead

COBOURG, Mar. 6 — (ENS). — Fortified with a nine-point margin from the former game, Port Hope Rascals won the Quinte District Intermediate B basketball playdowns when they defeated Cobourg Grads 36-28 on the round here.

Cobourg took the last game by the score of 28-27 but lost out on the round. In the first game, Port Hope won by the score of 31-22.

Port Hope now moves up in the next bracket of finals and will play at Port Hope High School gymnasium on Saturday evening.

In the Quinte district playoff here Mason was the standout performer for Cobourg, gathering in a total of ten points. Collfort was the high scorer for Port Hope, accounting for 14 points. The first two quarters were marked by excellent combination and every shot was closely contested, with a mixture of long shots which had the fans on edge. With scores 16-13 for Cobourg at the opening of the third quarter, Mason chalked the Cobourg count up to 23 and Port Hope added 8 points to bring their tally up to 21. In the final quarter, Port Hope cut down Cobourg's score to a point lead which meant nothing at all against Port Hope's original nine-point margin.

Black went down twice under a flurry of blows in the third round. Dr. Ralph C. Lanciano said death was caused by a cerebral concussion.

Manitoba Aces Watson Rink Curling Champs

QUEBEC, March 6.—(CP).—Tall Ken Watson of Manitoba, who teaches in a Winnipeg high school, returned to the west to-day with his second Canadian curling championship, and in his wake he left a trail of curling lessons with those who saw him succeed Alberta's Howard Palmer to the Macdonald Brier Tankard.

Winner of the trophy in 1936, along with another member of his rink, a younger brother Grant, Watson brought to Manitoba its 10th Dominion title since the competition was started in 1927.

Oldtimers around these parts couldn't remember when they had seen a better exponent of the draw game than Ken Watson.

The foursome, which included newcomers to the big time in lead Jim Grant and "Scrym" Scrymgeour, second, were all smiles as they finished the bonspiel by beating Prince Edward Island, 14-3, and as they milled through a crowd of cheering spectators on their way to the dressing room, the amiable Ken received handshakes and said laughingly "call me champ."

While the victory, against the Maritime rink was conceded with an end to play it completed nine rounds of stirring rock artistry, in which Watson lost but one when British Columbia bowled him over on the third day of the event along with Ontario, which, up to that stage, had aso enjoyed an unmarred record.

This double giant-killing performance of Donald A. Campbell's Vancouver rink threw the draw into a wide-open affair going into yesterday's last stage of play. Ontario lost its top spot when it fell to Manitoba in its morning game, to join British Columbia, Alberta and New Brunswick in second place.

In one of the most stirring battles of the entire competition, Manitoba came through with four shots on the last end of its afternoon game to beat Alberta 11-10 and it was generally conceded then that the Winnipeggers would win the crown.

Rated in the pre-tourney books as the team to beat, Manitoba gave the tip-off early in the event that it was on its game, as it came through repeatedly when the pressure was on.

For 11 ends yesterday afternoon John Slavik's strong Viking rink had Watson working from behind and when Alberta got in three rocks while Manitoba lost its first three, it looked as though Watson would lose. Grant Watson however, managed to draw deftly to displace Alberta on the button and when Third Vic Slavik missed his raise shot, Grant laid another stone alongside his first.

Skip Slavik was narrow with a raise and wicked in a third Manitoba rock and Ken Watson had the satisfaction of drawing beautifully for the fourth and payoff shot, which stood as Slavik missed by a hair on his last bid for victory.

Donald A. Campbell and Gordon Campbell, brothers who guided the destinies of British Columbia and Ontario, respectively and members of the Ontario rink which won the crown in 1935, tied for second place honors with seven wins and two losses apiece.

The veteran Daniel P. Connolly showed plenty of class in guiding New Brunswick to fourth place with six wins and three losses, while Alberta's double loss yesterday shifted it into fifth spot with a five and four count for the series.

Saskatchewan's John Franklin rink, somewhat disappointing in the eyes of other Western curlers here, had to pull out its last game against Northern Ontario to share sixth place with the Sudbury rink, while Prince Edward Island's W. R. Cruikshank foursome wound up an unsteady performance with three wins and six losses.

John I. Hebb's Nova Scotia rink and Quebec J. A. Ross Jr. entry of Huntington were in the last two places, with the Maritimes holding the higher position as the result of its only win of the event at the expense of the Quebec four who were winless.

Canadiens Make A Save As They Battle Amerks To 1-1 Tie

Goalie Paul Biberault of the Montreal Canadiens falls on the puck to make a save after Billy Benson (No. 9) of the Brooklyn Americans had made a shot. Ray Getliffe skates around the net while his teammate, Ken Reardon (No. 4), bends over to aid the goalie. The game, Brooklyn Americans versus Montreal Canadiens, ended in a 1-1 tie here at Madison Square Garden.

Rangers Topple To Wings 5-2; Amerks Victors

By The Canadian Press

The slogan being bandied about by the top clubs in the National Hockey League right now is "Remember 1938." That was the year the Chicago Black Hawks barely squeezed into the playoffs, pushed aside Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings to reach the Stanley Cup final and then surprised everybody, including themselves, by trouncing Toronto Maple Leafs in four games to take the trophy.

The Hawks proved in '38 that records, reputations and standings don't mean a thing when the playoffs roll around. And that's why last night's games are being regarded with something like misgivings by the ranking N.H.L. teams.

The clubs bringing up the final three positions last night met up with outfits long ago assured of playoff berths and the underdogs emerged on top in every instance.

Detroit's fifth-place Wings hammered the league-leading New York Rangers down to a 5-2 defeat to set the keynote of the evening. At Toronto, the second-place Maple Leafs ran up against the rejuvenated Montreal Canadiens and cowed by the same 5-2 score, and at New York the Brooklyn Americans, tied with Canadiens for the final playoff berth and just three points back of the Wings, closed strongly to outlast the injury-riddled Chicago Black Hawks, 2-1.

Toronto's Chance Gone

The Leafs lost a golden opportunity to slice Rangers' three-point margin as Canadiens closed fast with three goals in as many minutes late in the third frame to break a 2-2 draw. Joe Benoit and Terry Reardon were the Canadien heroes, each having a pair of goals, with Benoit also picking up a couple of assists. The other Canadien counter, the tally that won the game, was scored by Ray Getliffe.

Syl Apps got Toronto's first goal and Gordie Drillion tied it up at 2-2 early in the third frame.

At Detroit, the Rangers were never in the picture after the start of the second period. The Wings ended the first on top by 2-1, added three more in the second and then coasted home, allowing a goal by young Hub Macey to reduce the margin in the third. The other Ranger tally also went to a rookie —Grant Warwick in the first.

Carl Liscombe led the Wings with two goals and the others were spread among Eddie Wares, Jerry Brown and Joe Carveth.

The action was a little tighter at New York, where Americans met the Black Hawks. It was 0-0 until early in the third, when Pat Egan was awarded a major penalty shot after being held on a breakaway by Max Bentley. Egan made it good for the game's first goal, but Johnny Mariccui kept the Hawks in the struggle with a goal exactly a minute later.

With six minutes left, Egan again came into the picture by feeding Norm Larson the pass for the winning counter.

Hildebrand Sold To Indianapolis

TORONTO, March 6.—(CP)—Sale of Oral Hildebrand, veteran pitcher to Indianapolis of the American Association, was announced today by Lee McPhail, general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs baseball team in the International League.

Hildebrand, who was turned over to Toronto by Pittsburg, had asked a salary far higher than the Toronto club figured he was worth. So with the permission of the Pittsburg team a deal was made with Indianapolis.

McPhail announced yesterday seven players had signed contracts with Leafs since Tuesday. That leaves 18 players who have not yet signed their contracts.

Silver Sheet Screen Installed At Regent

An amazing change has been made in the Regent Theatre with the installation of a new screen, the most up to date type available, and the same kind as was just installed in the Imperial Theatre at Toronto, the largest theatre in all Canada.

This new screen clarifies the images to a remarkable degree, and brightens the tones in black, white and technicolors. It is a Walker silver sheet screen, fashioned from a plastic moulded material. Formerly screens for theatres were made of a treated fabric, but the new one which has been in use now in the Regent for the past two weeks has delighted the regular patrons, and is a topnotch to one of Eastern Ontario's most modern theatres.

Capitals Upset Lions By 2 to 1 In American Loop

By The Canadian Press

Although Cleveland Barons and Indianapolis Capitols have clinched an American Hockey League playoff berth and Hershey Bears need just one win to do it, the three teams are still in a hot battle for top honors in the western division of the league.

Before last night's games, Barons were considered quite safe in first place with a four-point advantage over the other teams. But that's all changed as a result of Capitols 2-1 win over Washington Lions. The victory left Capitols in sole possession of second place with one game in hand over Cleveland.

It took the Capitols more than two periods to get going against Lions, but goals by Pete Fisher and Jud McAtee near the middle of the final frame gave them the win. Conny Tudin scored the Washington tally with less than three minutes of play remaining in the session.

Meanwhile, New Haven Eagles, holders of second place in the Eastern division, suffered a 7-4 trouncing at the hands of Buffalo Bisons, who are in fourth spot in the Western section.

Pep Kelly gave the Bisons a one-goal lead near the half-way mark of the first stanza, a lead which they never lost. Bisons outscored Eagles 3-2 in the first period, added another goal in the middle frame and then counted three times while Eagles only tallied twice in the last session.

Post War Work Features House Debate

(By FRANK FLAHERTY.)

OTTAWA, March 6—(CP).—Between two major debates the House of Commons today was to continue consideration of one phase of the post-war rehabilitation problem, the reinstatement of enlisted men in their former jobs after their discharge from the forces.

Yesterday the House gave second reading to Labor Minister Mitchell's bill which will compel employers to take back in their former jobs employees who go to war, and today the measure was to be dealt with further in committee of the whole. The provisions of the bill are already law under an order-in-council and the passing of a bill is sought in order to give them greater permanency.

Members on all sides of the house found the measure satisfactory as far as it went, but many urged upon Government early and extensive planning of large-scale post-war rehabilitation measures.

Discussion of the bill took place as the Senate gave final reading to the Plebiscite Bill, a subject of lengthy debate in the lower House, and Chief Justice Lyman Duff, deputy of the Governor-General, came to give royal assent to that measure.

That action gives to Go-ahead signal to governmental officials charged with organization of the vote by which the Government seeks release from pledges against conscription for overseas service. The balloting may take place early in May.

The first part of a double-barreled wheat policy for 1942 was disclosed to the House of Commons yesterday when Agriculture Minister Gardiner introduced his wheat acreage reduction bill. The measure provides for continuance with some modifications of the acreage bonuses paid last year to farmers who turn former wheat lands to summer fallow, coarse grains or grass.

Wheat To 90 Cents

Today Trade Minister MacKinnon was to introduce the other part of the wheat legislation, an amendment to the wheat board act which is expected to provide an increase—perhaps to 90 cents—in the present guaranteed minimum price of 70 cents a bushel for No. 1 Northern at Fort William or Vancouver.

When the two measures come up for debate on Monday it is expected the House will be launched into the second major debate of the session, one in which the wheat problem in all its aspects will be reviewed and in which western members will do most of the talking.

During debate yesterday on the rehabilitation bill Arthur Roebuck (Lib., Toronto-Trinity) said that Canada should plan for peace "with the meticulous care as to detail and with the energy and foresight with which Hitler prepared for war."

"We can do it," he said, "but if we are to win the victories of peace we must not approach the problem in the lackadaisical way in which we approached the problems of war."

He said he was "appalled" at the situation when possibly 500,000 men are discharged from the services and 700,000 men and women dismissed from war work and "enlisted in the army of the unemployed."

The bill was merely a "gesture" but a gesture in the right direction, Mr. Roebuck said, and he called upon the government for a huge plan for re-establishment with removal of trade barriers, improvement in communication and transportation facilities and development of national resources for the use of the people instead of for private gain.

A planning committee of House of Commons members to prepare for post-war problems was urged by Rev. T. C. Douglas, C.C.F.-Weyburn, who said the bill was full of loopholes and that the government, so far, had done "absolutely nothing" for veterans of the present war.

Not Far Enough

Capt. G. S. White, Conservative-Hastings-Peterborough, like Mr. Douglas and Mr. Roebuck, said the bill was commendable so far as it went but was little more than a start on the tremendous task that post-war days would present.

Mr. Roebuck said that while the first Great War was a "terrible disaster" with its great destruction of human and material resources, "the moral degradation and destruction of human fibre" in the years of depression was greater than it was in the actual fighting period.

Those circumstances should not be allowed to repeat themselves after the present war, he said.

"It is the duty of this parliament diligently to study that problem and see to it, if it is within our power to do so, that no such post-war catastrophe as that shall occur in this country," he said.

"That study should commence right here and now. It is a high task to which we are called....these thoughts are stirring everywhere...

"I see boiling up around me on every side these wells of thinking and of discouragement and discontent and the desire to meet in some way the problems which, latently at least, everyone feels are coming upon us."

One of Mr. Roebuck's suggestions was that the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence River basin power and navigation project be proceeded with as part of his program for improving communication and transportation systems.

The bill was defective, he said, in that it made no provision for those who had no employment before enlistment, and it did not propose to restore the men to jobs better than they had before or better paid.

Urges 6 Months' Pay.

Capt. White urged that provision be made to give every man who is discharged at least six months' pay. It would not be the wish of any Canadian that ex-serivce men become objects of charity, he suggested.

George McIlraith, Liberal-Ottawa West, spoke briefly. He said the old ideas of protection and trade barriers had disappeared in recent years "and the young people will see that they do not make their appearance again."

F. D. Shaw, New Democracy-Red Deer, said in the night sitting that lack of money cannot be advanced as an argument to justify failure of the Government to provide work after the war.

Mr. Shaw said the men in the forces, many of whom were unemployed before enlistment, would remember that the Government was able to find money for the destruction of war.

They would not be satisfied if told there was no money for construction work in peacetime.

Arthur Slaght, Liberal-Parry Sound, said he had been sorry to hear the Bill described as a "mere gesture" by Arthur Roebuck during the afternoon.

Mr. Slaght said the effective provisions of the bill were not gestures. To so describe them was no reassurance to the soldiers and to the country. It was not the way to promote recruiting.

The bill had been approved by the Canadian Legion and by organized labor. The question whether Rev. Mr. Douglas who spoke earlier, was competent to dispute the judgment of organized labor and the legion.

Move Right Way

Lt.-Col. J. A. Ross, Conservative-Souris, said the Bill was "a gesture but a gesture in the right direction." The way some men discharged in the present war were treated was "nothing short of disgraceful."

Rev. Dan McIvor, Liberal-Fort William, said he was glad to see Hon. Humphrey Mitchell as Minister of Labor. The minister's work on the Youth Training Program before the war demonstrated his ability to deal with problems of the type dealt with in the bill before the House.

"This legislation is a forerunner of what we may expect from the Minister of Labor," he said.

He suggested the Labor Department should have men skilled in industry and labor problems of its staff, "not merely academic experts" but also men who acquired their knowledge in the school of hard knocks.

Mr. McIvor also suggested the Department could well employ "a couple of good clergymen."

north where an airdrome had been occupied, and at Purwakarta, the same distance to the north-northwest of Bandung.

Four hundred miles east of Batavia, two-thirds the length of the narrow, 622-mile-long island, a third Japanese force was closing toward Surabaya, and, apparently, attempting to slice Java in two with a drive to its south shore.

Seventy miles inland from their landing place in the Rembang area, the Japanese had occupied Surakarta and cut Java's last remaining railroad. The first of the two east-west rail lines was broken by another column which has pushed to Bodjanegara, 50 miles west of Surabaya.

These inroads deep and grave as they were, however, evidently did not dismay the Netherlands who were told by their leaders that the northern shore was virtually indefensible against such might as the Japanese could bring to bear.

The inference, therefore, was that the defenders were taking as heavy a toll as possible while working back to lines where they intend to make a bitter-end stand.

The Indies, whose resistance is reported to be unflagging despite the adverse odds, were given a rallying hope yesterday in the hint of Lieutenant governor-General Dr. Hubertus J. Van Mook that "at any moment the attack on the enemy will be launched from another side."

Except for the plain on which Batavia lies, most of Java is mountainous and it was believed here that the Netherlands, finding themselves overpowered, might be falling back into the hills.

MORE ABOUT—

Aussies Call

Few informed persons here held any hope the defence of Java could long endure under the heavy pounding of Japanese land and air forces. The most expected was that the Netherlands, British and American defenders might be able to withdraw to some defensible corner of the island where they could form a sturdy pocket of resistence and hold out for some time.

While such a manoeuvre would pin down a portion of the Japanese invasion army, the great bulk of Nippon's forces would be released for the anticipated attack on Australia.

Strategists said the Japanese will have to attack Australia for two reasons: (1) to prevent the harassing of their Netherlands East Indies supply lines by light naval forces and planes operating out of Darwin and (2) to set up bases from which to oppose any Allied offensive moving up from Southern Australia and New Zealand.

Dressed Poultry Market Quiet

TORONTO, March 6 — (CP). — The Dominion Department of Agriculture reports the dressed poultry market very quiet. Receipts are exceptionally light and demand is taken care of from frozen stock. There is a good demand for fowl, both fresh and frozen, but there is a reported scarcity of storage holdings of this kind of poultry in Toronto. Consequently quotations are somewhat higher.

One car of Western fowl has been bought for arrival next week of Grade A birds at 23 cents a lb. over 5 lbs., with ½ cent lb. down quotations on the ½-lb. average.

There is a good movement of frozen chicken locally and out-of-town.

A small supply of broilers is arriving from specialized producers.

The demand for turkeys is practically nil.

With the exception of fowl, quotations are unchanged, but are only nominal.

Dealers are quoting producers and country dealers (nominal):—

YOUNG MEN FINED

Two young men, one of them from Lindsay, who were arrested on Murray street last night pleaded guilty to charges of drunkenness before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning and were fined $10 and $1 costs.

29 VARIETIES.

There is a fine collection of cacti in Kent Throop's barber shop window on Simcoe street, in fact there are 29 varieties in the display. Mr. Throop has been trading and buying different types of cactus until he has now secured the 29, and he intends to keep on with the hobby to see how many different kinds he can obtain.

SKI MEET IS CANCELLED.

The beaming warm sun of the past few days has put the kibosh on the Peterborough Ski Club junior meet, which was scheduled for the week-end at Bethany. This means that the ski train has been cancelled also, and the report from the Bethany slopes indicate snow conditions are poor, and wholly unsuitable for either pleasure skiing or competitive skiing.

WHAT—NO SQUAWKS.

An examination of the suggestion book in the city clerk's office at the City Hall reveals that to date, the only people who have entered any suggestions in the book are the aldermen themselves and the City Engineer. Seven suggestions have been made altogether, and so far not one of the taxpayers has a word to say. Canadians are showing just as much apathy in city affairs, as some of them are showing in the war effort.

NEEDS NEW WARDROBE.

Archie Campbell, local George St. barber who had a disastrous fire in his shop on Thursday afternoon, had $7.00 in bills in his coat pocket. The coat was hanging with his vest, hat, and overcoats in a cloak room at the back of the shop, and the whole outfit was burned.

FIRE VICTIMS IMPROVE.

Three men injured by fire as a result of a dust explosion in the Quaker Oats plant yesterday afternoon will be released from hospital this afternoon, Lew Ingram said. "There was nothing serious about any of their injuries—all burns were superficial. One man was slightly burned about the neck and all three received burned hands."

FOR A WORTHY CAUSE

The proceeds of the double-header basketball card at the Y.W.C.A. tonight will be turned over to the Mrs. Winston Churchill fund for British women, a most worthy cause. Two games are on the bill, commencing at 7.30 o'clock and in view of the excellence of the program and the fact that the financial returns are to be used in helping a worthwhile cause there should be a real crowd in attendance.

A HARD WORKER

Mrs. C. E. Moore of Young's Point one of the Victory Loan canvassers in the northern townships, announced today new subscriptions which push the objective in her section over the objective of $15,000. This hard-working woman signed up more subscribers a year ago, than any other rural canvasser on the drive, despite the fact that her territory is one of the most difficult to cover of any in the county.

2 Canadians Die After Hong Kong

OTTAWA, March 6.—(CP)—The Defense Department announced last night it had received word from Tokyo, through the International Red Cross at Geneva, of the death of two Canadian prisoners of war.

The men, reported as "officially died while prisoners of war," were members of the Manitoba Regiment and were taken prisoner by the Japanese after the fall of Hong Kong.

Their deaths brought to 597 the number of army dead and missing reported officially since the war started.

The two casualties with next-of-kin:

Lieutenant Orville Watson McKillop, Mrs. Jessie McKillop (mother), Portage la Prairie, and Private Jihn James Gunn, H6884, Mrs. Muril Audrey Gunn (wife), 353 Beverley street, Winnipeg.

Hockey Fans Given Warning

In view of the fact that the Collingwood - Peterborough hockey match at Oshawa tonight is expected to cause unusually heavy traffic on Highways 28 and 2, provincial traffic officers announce that there will be a special highway patrol over that section tonight and any drivers who feel inclined to take chances with the highway regulations are warned that they had better watch their driving technique.

"This is a measure designed to make conditions safer for hockey fans," one of the provincial officers stated today. "There will be a lot of traffic to and from Oshawa and we intend to see that the driving is safe and sane. Careless and reckless motorists had better watch their step."

Westclox Group Tops Objective

Westclox employees, the majority of the girls topped their Victory Loan objective early this week pushing the quota of $10,000 up to $26,-500 or 255 per cent of the original amount.

This effort is surprising in view of the fact that Westclox employees, subscribed heavily for War Savings Stamps, putting them with the leaders in the industrial plants of the city, and in this new War Loan drive, not one reduced his pledge on the stamps, and a few increased the purchases because they could not finance a bond. Sixty-five per cent of the entire staff sobscribed for bonds, and a few more have come in since the Shop Chairman, H. T. Cranford turned in the total earlier in the week.

Forty workers in the plant and offices undertook the canvass and completed all the work, after instructions had been issued by Mr. Cranford. The chairman voiced complete satisfaction with the effort of the workers, stating in most cases where no bonds had been purchased, payroll deductions indicated those employers were pulling their weight in financing the war.

War To See End Of Tin Cans Expert Thinks

NEW YORK, March 6—(AP). — Take a good look at the "tin" cans on the grocer's shelves—there isn't as much tin there as might appear at first glance. There will be less as time goes on.

But don't throw away your can opener.

Although the tin coating may disappear from many cans, there will be close to as many cans, and more later.

Civilians may get fewer articles from the manufacturers who have clapped a can around everything from asparagus to tennis balls.

Soldiers and sailors will get more. Some units will even get their drinking water in cans.

The Japanese have cut off around 70 per cent of normal tin sources. The 110,000 to 140,000-odd tons left must be spread more thinly—literally and figuratively—in military and essential civilian uses.

While the can factories are working faster than ever before, one executive said:

"I'll bet a nickel to a dollar that by the time this war is over, there just won't be any 'tin' cans."

"Tin can," he explained, "is a misnomer, for less than one-twelfth of the metal in the average can is tin; the rest is iron or steel. The tin coating is about .0008 of an inch thick—about 1.40th the thickness of a hair."

Now a variety of processes help spread tin further. Lacquer coatings have become more general since the War Production Board February 11 restricted tin's use.

Honor Graduate

Sgt. Observer Gerrard J. Delaney son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Delaney of Douro Township, received his wings at Mountain View Training School a few days ago. He topped the class of 25, being awarded silver wings by the commanding officer and he was also given a certificate of honor.

MOUNT PLEASANT

Sgt. Gordon Fee Guest Of Honor

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mar. 6 — (ENS).— A jolly surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Fee on Monday evening when close to one hundred and fifty of their neighbors and friends gathered to bid farewell to their eldest son. Sergt. Gordon I. Fee, R.C.A.F., who was home on leave during the past two weeks.

Gordon obtained his wings on February 16 at No. 9 Bombing and Gunnery School at Mont Joli, Quebec.

During the evening, which was spent in cards and dancing to the music of the Monaghan Mountaineers, Gordon was asked to take the seat of honor when Miss Marie Dick read the following address:

March 2, 1942.

Dear Gordon,—It is no easy matter to put into words our feelings as we gather to share this pleasant evening with you. Our thoughts are as many-hued as the rainbows you have often seen rise in glorious arcs over these familiar hills of South Emily. As you see other rainbows dip both vivid ends from the highest heavens to hills in some distant, even foreign land, remember our thoughts are winged and will fly to you continually beyond clear dawns or golden sunsets.

In peace, there's nothing so becomes a man as modest stillness and humility, but when the blast of war sounds in our ears, then imitate the action of the tiger.

You have heard that ominous blast, not of the old war trumpets but of bombs falling on the cities of England. We your neighbors, are proud of your earnest resolve to avenge those wrongs and to prevent such outrages from being perpetrated elsewhere. You are going out from among us to meet the winged dragons of a power so wicked that our most imaginative conceptions of the evil one himself pale by comparison.

SGT. GORDON FEE

"Then imitate the action of the tiger." Let all the world know that Canada is a worthy daughter of our grand old Mother Country, England. Let our good friends, the United States and the South American republics see we are no weakling children of John Bull. You young men can do it. You are "copy now to men of grosser blood, and teach them how to war."

Your example will teach us to make our full contribution, even in so small a matter as a sugar or gasoline ration. When we see you break up the pattern of your pleasant life here to protect our homes, shall we be guilty of shameful whining and petty deception? We compare our work with yours and we walk very humbly. You teach us "how to war."

When the blast of war is heard no more and the glad song of thanksgiving arises to hail your victory you will know you played the part of a man, and helped to lift that heavy burden which now oppresses the civilized world. You and your comrades will be the liberators of our generation.

Meanwhile, the clouds still hang dark and threatening over all of us. We hope you will leave us with the assurance that you carry our best wishes with you. We shall be here waiting for news of you wherever you may go. We want you to take this gift with you as a tangible symbol of our deepest interest in your welfare. We are very very proud of you. We shall owe you so much, you young warriors, "more than all can pay." The best of luck and happy landings.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors.

Boyd Windrem, Harold Dick, and Reggie Fee.

Harold Dick and Boyd Windrem made the presentation of a beautiful gold ring bearing the insignia of the R.C.A.F., also a leather writing portfolio.

Gordon feelingly replied, thanking his many friends for their good wishes and beautiful gifts, and also wished to thank those who contributed and were unable to be present.

Refreshments were served and dancing resumed until the small hours of the morning.

Stag Party.

A very enjoyable stag party was held on Friday evening at Bingo Hall, when about thirty boy friends of Sergt. Fee gathered and spent the evening in cards and social converse, during which time Gordon was presented with a Ronson lighter bearing his initials and the Air Force insignia.

Vagrant Suspect Held In Custody

"I think I should have some evidence in this case," said Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning after he had read the record presented to him by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., in connection with John Jasper, who had pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy.

Jasper was arrested last week after police had noticed that he seemed to be taking an unusual interest in the movements of bank messengers.

When the accused entered his plea of guilty this morning Crown Attorney McElderry handed the magistrate, the prisoner's record as supplied by the fingerprint branch of the R.C.M.P. and His Worship shook his head as he glanced down the sheet.

The court's request for evidence could not be complied with, however, because Constable C. J. McGillen was a witness in another court and accordingly Jasper was remanded until Monday for sentence.

Penny Box Total Now $842 For War Victims

Of the many and varied means by which money has been raised to help the people of Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, none has been more continuous, and in the aggregate more successful than the penny boxes which are displayed in theatres and stores throughout the city and district. At no time has there been more than forty of these in circulation due to a desire not to dominate this field of endeavor, and to give other worthy causes the same opportunity without confliction with consequent injury to all concerned. Ranging in sums from well below the dollar mark to a very few collections above $10, all of which have come from the Empress Hotel, the average collection per box is below the two dollar mark, but slowly and unpretentiously this has all added up to the very handsome sum of $842.14 to date, and shows just what can be accomplished by even the smallest of donations with the co-operation of all those who are interested in its objectives.

Two box collections are listed today, both of them steady producers in this field of endeavor for the fund, the one at Loblaw's yielding $5, and the other at Grafton's, $1.15.

One personal donation is listed, and more of this type would certainly add to the personal interest that the citizens could take in the welfare of those needing help through the burdens that war has placed upon the people in the British Isles.

Under the War Charities Act, all funds operating under its jurisdiction must have their registration renewed in order to continue operations, and such renewal has been given the fund for another twelve months.

Bingo To-night

On two former occasions, the Red Patch Club has come forward with contributions to help the fund along, and tonight they are sponsoring an effort to add to their previous help, with a Bingo game in the Canadian Legion Hall at 8 p.m. sharp, from which all net proceeds will come to the fund. The Red Patch Club is a small group of veterans from the First Canadian Division of the last Great War, who meet regularly to keep alive that spirit of comradeship brought about by their association with each other at that time, and once again they are to be found helping along the cause just as they did twenty-five years ago. Art Nokes is president of this group, and Bob Hendry the secretary.

Department Names Director Women's Voluntary Services

TORONTO, March 6.—News of the appointment of Mrs. W. E. West of Toronto as director of the Women's Voluntary Services Division of the Department of National War Services, as announced by Hon. J. T. Thorson, War Services Minister, Thursday, was received with considerable enthusiasm by women's organizations.

As Nell Wark, Mrs. West was well known in social service and organization work, and held many executive positions in several Canadian cities. She was Assistant Deputy Minister of Welfare for the Province from 1934 to 1937. She was superintendent of Social Service Commission, Windsor, 1926-1930; Director of Relief St. Catharines, 1931-1933; Chief Supervisor and Director of Family Case Work, Department of Public Welfare, Hamilton, 1933. She was an active member of the Business and Professional Women's Club wherever she was located. She became a member of the Zonta Club when in St. Catharines.

Mrs. West was born in Minto, Man., daughter of Harry Wark and Margaret Caroline Lyster. She was educated at the Minto Public School and Wesley College, Winnipeg. She graduated from the University of Chicago with the degree of Ph.B., and studied one year at the London (England) School of Economics. She taught school at Moose Valley, Sask., from 1916, prior to taking up welfare work in Winnipeg in 1924. While in the West she gathered an intimate knowledge of the psychology of foreign populations and took a great deal of pleasure out of her work among New Canadians.

As director of the Women's Voluntary Services Division, Mrs. West will head an organization formed to promote the co-ordination of the voluntary efforts of Canadian women and to encourage the organization of women's voluntary services on a community basis with a view to their best utilization for the needs of their communities.

The appointment of Miss Frieda Held of Toronto, as assistant to Mrs. West, was also announced.

$8,000 Damage Caused To Two Stores

In the biggest fire of this year, $8,000 damage was caused Thursday afternoon shortly after five o'clock when a blaze broke out in the rear of the barber shop occupied by Archie Campbell and spread next door to the firm of Miller-Powell Company. Billows of smoke rolled over George street. Chief Gimblett said an inspector from the Fire Marshall's department in Toronto will be in town today to investigate the blaze, cause of which had been undetermined.

Miss Edna Miller, proprietor of the electrical store told the Examiner that a rear storage room is leased from Archie Campbell immediately adjoining and behind the barber shop. It was here the fire entered that section of the building. "We had a large quantity of friction and rubber tape stored against the wall. The fire caught on this and caused a furious blaze.

Those in the store including Miss Miller were Ted Armison and Leola Roseborough. All three were forced to flee leaving everything behind them. Their coats were found after the blaze was squelched in a badly damaged condition.

"When we arrived," said Fire Chief George Gimblett, "the rear of the barber shop was a mass of flames. We spread a hose line in the front door and by this time flames were spreading to the front of Miller-Powell's. A second line was used on the Miller store. "I never saw a fire spread so fast," he declared.

Walls Charred Black

The blaze presented a freak effect with the walls of both shops charred black throughout but apparently little damage was caused to the building aside from the charring. This would indicate the spread of flames was so fast that all sections in the burned area received a nearly equal scorching except a rear ante room of the barber shop where the fire is believed to have originated.

The buildings are owned by the Birdsall estate and are believed covered by insurance. Chief Gimblett estimated damage to the building to be about $1,200 and $6,800 or more to stock and equipment. The stock in Miller Powell was damaged extensively and to the barber shop, fire almost rendered most of the equipment useless.

Two families over the shops fled from their rooms but fire did not reach their quarters. Dwellers five or six apartments away said some smoke reached their rooms. No firemen nor members of families upstairs were any the worse for the blaze," the Chief said.

"From what I saw," said the Chief, "the blaze must have been going some time, possibly fifteen minutes before we reached the fire."

KINGS ROW

By HENRY BELLAMANN

CURLEY ABSCONDS
CHAPTER XXI

Drake walked across the lawn and stopped to straighten a row of sea shells that bordered a rectangular flower bed near the drive. It had been his Aunt Mamie's favorite spot. All of her pet plants flourished here. It was looking a little withered just now, but of course it was late September. He'd get the place fixed up—have the house painted and the low picket fence taken down. There were really many repairs to be made. No wonder the house didn't rent. He had never looked at it closely before. It was dilapidated, that's what it was — downright dilapidated.

The lawn was as pretty as any on Union street. Needed reseeding, though.

He heard the telephone ringing. He went slowly and indifferently toward the house. It was Mr. Wakefield calling.

"Could you come down here to the bank for a few minutes?"

"Why, certainly."

"Nothing important. Just want to see you for a second."

"Be right down, sir."

Half an hour later he faced Mr. Wakefield at the cashier's window.

Mr. Wakefield came back and unlocked the heavy oak door.

"You're overdrawn a little, you know."

"Overdrawn?"

"Yes. Let me see, I think about eighty dollars, or so, nothing to speak of."

"But it ought not to be overdrawn."

Mr. Wakefield smiled. "Do you keep your checkbook in order?"

Drake grinned. "Sometimes I forget."

"Well, I guess that's it."

"But—could I speak to Mr. Curley?"

"Mr. Curley's in Texas. Went down on business. I expect him back next week."

"But I thought I had more'n a thousand dollars in my account!"

Mr. Wakefield stared a little.

"How could you be that far off?"

"I'm sure I'm not."

Mr. Wakefield smiled again. "Now, Drake—"

"No. Sure enough, Mr. Wakefield. I haven't been spending any money —not much. And on the first of July there must have been about a thousand dollars put in."

"Well, well. I see. Drake, I guess Mr. Curley just overlooked it. But he's usually very punctilious, indeed."

"What about my account?"

"Well, we'll fix that up. It's just a matter of a few days. I can arrange that myself. You won't require the whole amount, of course?"

"No, certainly not."

"Mr. Curley ought to be back on Tuesday. I'll call you."

On the way back to his own window, Mr. Wakefield stopped to speak to Percy Davis. They chatted for a moment.

"Um." Mr. Wakefield grunted noncommittally, but there was a slightly troubled look in his eye. Mr. Curley was a reticent man, but he usually discussed such matters with someone. Mr. Wakefield tried to recall the terms of Rhodes Livingstone's will, but he was pretty sure that Curley had an absolute freedom in managing the estate.

All through the morning Mr. Wakefield was somewhat distrait. He always walked home to mid-day dinner, leaving the bank exactly at half-past twelve. Today he left fifteen minutes earlier.

When he returned, Mr. Wakefield waited on several customers. Then he called Percy Davis. Davis was a round-faced elderly man who had been in the Farmers Exchange for many years.

"Yes, sir, Mr. Wakefield."

"Come on back to the vault with me, Percy."

"Yes, sir."

They entered the vault.

"Which is Mr. Curley's box?"

"Right up there, Mr. Wakefield, that brown one."

"Has he another?"

"No, sir. He keeps all of his personal papers in there, and the three —no, four estates he's executor and trustee for."

"I see, Hand it down here to me a minute."

"Here you are, Mr. Wakefield—why—why—"

"What, man? What's the matter?"

"Why, it seems very light!"

* * *

Mr. Wakefield took the box and hefted it.

"It's empty."

Davis stared, his little button mouth making a perfect O.

Mr. Wakefield spoke casually.

"Percy."

"Yes, sir. Yes, sir."

"There's no use you and me trying to fool each other. We've got to face this in a few hours, anyhow. Might as well be now."

Percy sat down on the low ladder.

"Yes, sir. I guess so."

"Well. Unless I'm mightily mistaken the president of the Farmers Exchange has skipped out — probably with everything he could lay his hands on!"

The Farmers Exchange scandal was the prevailing sensation for a month. There were all sorts of stories and rumors. The bald fact remained: James Cuthbert Curley, president of the Farmers Exchange Bank, had stolen money and run away. Presumably he had gone to Central or South America. Efforts were being made to find him but no one was particularly hopeful of success. Certain bank funds were missing. Stockholders would not lose anything, but the trust funds were gone. Drake McHugh was penniless. The house on Union street was his, and Mr. Wakefield arranged a mortgage so that Drake would have some funds to live on for a while.

No one guessed how bewildered Drake was by this ill fortune. He had simply never thought about money at all. He sold his horse and buggy, and began to look for a job. No one wanted him.

Behind his back the talk went on. There were those who were not displeased to see Drake McHugh humbled a little. He had been altogether too carefree and happy to suit those who felt that life should not rest too easily on one. Maybe he'd stop flying around at night.

Even the Monaghan girl would be showing him the front gate.

Kings Row watched. Like any pack of the wild they waited for the victim to falter. But they were at least temporarily disappointed. Drake looked as usual. He whistled as he walked. He was persistent in his search for work. He was offered a job at the livery stable, but he hadn't come to that yet. He stayed on at the house on Union street. Only when he was inside of it with the doors closed did he show his deep disquiet.

He made Randy promise not to let Parris know. No use troubling Parris. It never occurred to him that Parris had money and he didn't. It was simply that he didn't want Parris bothered about this. Then, of course, he'd get it all fixed up someway pretty soon.

But Drake did not "fix things up." The winter passed, and he had no job. He tried for anything he thought he might be able to do. Everywhere the men he talked to were good-humored and jocular — sometimes a shade contemptuous. By spring he was becoming sensitive. He avoided mention of a job unless he was actually making application. He was casual on the outside but watchful and attentive inside. He immediately followed any suggestion he heard of a possible job.

Then he began to pretend he wasn't looking for work.

He left the boardinghouse and cooked his own meals. At first he made a frightful mess of it, but later he improved. When Randy found out about it she came sometimes late in the evening and helped him. She put the rooms in order and taught him something about helping himself. By the end of the summer his cash was running alarmingly low. He supposed he'd have to give a second mortgage on the house. But he wouldn't be able to raise much.

Now he did his own washing, and dried the clothes in the kitchen so no one would know.

People said Drake McHugh was drinking.

"Yes, sir, I saw him staggering out of Fritz Bachman's lunchroom just last Saturday. Drunk as a fool."

Fritz Bachman's lunchroom, which was patronized by railroad men, was also a convenient "blind tiger."

Somehow Drake found himself going rather often to Fritz Bachman's place. Sleep came with increasing difficulty. He had made it a habit to stop by the smelly little lunchroom when he left Randy's house at night. It was directly on the way home. He exchanged a few rough jokes with Fritz, gulped a glass of whiskey, and went home. Randy knew nothing of this.

Canada's Largest Distillers Serve the United Nations

IN TIMES OF PEACE, few of us realize that we daily use and cherish countless things, the fabrication of which depends upon Industrial alcohol. In times of war, many of us are likewise unaware that Industrial alcohol is an indispensable ingredient in the production of everything from munitions to medicine, plastics to fabrikoid . . . helping to make the powder and shells, guns, tanks, 'planes, destroyers and battleships needed by our armed forces.

Outside City Examiner Carriers Going Strong On War Stamps

Examiner carriers in Lakefield, Apsley, Keene and Millbrook are getting behind the War Savings effort in this district by carrying stamps on their respective routes in these towns, and have sold already in the month of February about $100.00. This result is particularly gratifying to the district committee and the carriers concerned are extended the sincere congratulations of Gordon Matthews and R. E. Layfield. Subscribers to The Examiner and others who were interested to take advantage of this service voluntarily offered by these boys and girls are also conveyed the appreciation of the local committee. Paul Butcher of Lakefield was the top salesman for February with sales of $20 in some two to three weeks of the campaign, followed by Billie Hudson of Lakefield with $15 and Jim Tully of the same town with $14. At latest reports, Roy Dawson of Millbrook has sold the fine total of $18 within two weeks. Apsley, represented by Mae Everett, with approximately $10; and Joan Fletcher with around the same for the village of Keene. The results of these carriers' efforts are just as much appreciated as the grand totals compiled by the city carrier force, though the smaller towns are necessarily restricted by the size of the routes there.

Italy Fed Up

CAIRO, March 6—(AP).—A traveller who arrived from Rome today said United States participation in the war has had a bad effect on Italian morale and has brought about an increase in anti-Fascist activity. He said Count C. Sforza's 'free Italy' movement is gaining headway through underground channels.

Despite the Ovra (Italian secret police), the traveller declared, the secret anti-Fascist newspaper 'Mateotti' has a wide distribution. King Victor Emmanuel, Crown Prince Umberto and Premier Mussolini seldom were seen in public now, and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, who appeared frequently, always was accompanied by half a dozen detectives. The people crowded churches and movie theatres trying to forget the war.

Carrier Pigeon Saves 4 Fliers

LONDON, March 6 (CP)—Winkie, a tough little carrier pigeon, oil-soaked and doused in the icy North Sea, flew 100 miles to her home loft and thereby saved the lives of four crew members of a Royal Air Force Beaufort bomber which crashed on the way back from an offensive patrol off Norway. The Air Ministry told her story last night.

Just before the plane went down the wireless operator managed to send a weak SOS which was caught at the plane's base. The craft sank a minute after it hit the water and Winkie's cage was broken open. As the crew climbed into a rubber dinghy Winkie struggled out of the oily water and took off for home.

Pigeon Fancier James Ross of Dundee reported to authorities that she had returned. Her code number showed what plane she had been in. A check of her known flying speed helped in computing where she had left the plane and a Royal Netherlands Air Force reconnaissance plane which was sent out located the dinghy.

Winkie, treated to a special feed, strutted in her cage at a party in her honor while fliers made speeches and gave Ross — for Winkie — a bronze plaque with the figure of a tiny pigeon flying over the sea. Inscribed on the plaque was the squadron's thanks to a gallant bird.

Higher U.S. Price Looming For Gas

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP)—Sinkings and war diversion of tankers brough proposals to-day for higher gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil prices in the East and for night and Sunday closing of filling stations throughout the United States.

The Petroleum Industry War Council, an advisory group of oil company executive, requested the price boost, understood to be 8-10 of a cent a gallon for gasoline, as an offset to higher transportation costs resulting from large emergency movement of petroleum by rail tank cars.

A committee of the council, appealing last night to Leon Henderson, the Price Administrator, told him the use of rail cars in the eastward haul replacing the lost and diverted tankers, would add about $115,000,000 this year to transportation costs.

The industry executives broadened a previous proposal for the gasoline station curfew and Sunday closing in the East, suggesting that such a program be instituted throughout the country.

The price increase of gasoline and other petroleum products, if granted, would be effective in the 17 Eastern states and the District of Columbia, the same area covered by the gasoline curtailment program last summer.

No Extra For Oliva

OTTAWA, March 6 (CP)—Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets, is going to get just the same amount of gasoline as any other drive-for-pleasure motorist when rationing becomes effective April 1, it was learned today.

Mr. Dionne has applied to Attorney General Conant for inclusion in category "C" under rationing regulations on the ground that, as quints' guardian, he should be classed as a government official.

But, it was learned, he is regarded as being in class "A" — entitled to from 300 to 380 gallons of gasoline a year.

Clever Little Music Student

Little Mary McBride, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlton McBride, Manning Avenue, and one of the youngest music pupils taking examination work in Peterborough, has passed her Grade 2 piano examination with first class honors. Her mark, 83, was achieved by one other pupil, but none passed it. Mrs. McBride has received a letter from the Toronto Conservatory of Music saying that it was most unusual to find so young a pupil doing so well in music examinations. Mary has been taking music lessons for 16 months and has enjoyed her lessons very much, which is perhaps the secret of her success.

Gay Cape and Dress Ensembe
PATTERN 9999.

Gay as our Easter bunny is this adorable dress and cape ensemble. Mother used Pattern 9999 by Marian Martin for the panelled frock, the trim little cape. She made the little frock in pink eyelet batiste, the cape in blue wool, for Easter-Parade vivacity. The dress has front and back yokes and a squared neckline and the side-front-and-back panels are cut on the bias. The cape, has a cunning Peter Pan collar and practical arm openings. To wear beneath it, make one "dress-up" frock with the neck line and puff sleeves trimmed with lace; one play frock with contrast front and back yokes and sleeves.

Pattern 9999 may be ordered only in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, cape, requires 1⅜ yards 54 inch fabric; dress, 2 yards 35 inch fabric and 1¾ yards lace edging.

Chapter Wants Jig-Saw Puzzles

The regular meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I. O. D. E. was held Wednesday evening in the Green Room of the Y. W. C. A. with Mrs. F. E. Hooper, regent, presiding.

Mrs. D. Loucks and Mrs. A. Sollitt were appointed to the board of the National Institute for the blind. Mrs. T. Carley gave her usual interesting talk on current events.

Mrs. C. L. Upper, war work convener, had on dispay a number of articles for shipment overseas, including two complete layettes and two baby quilts from Lily Lake W. A. four quilts from Gilmour Memorial Church, one afghan from All Saints Auxiliary, two babies comforters from the Home Arts Guild of the Women's Art Association, and other articles sent by friends.

Things made by members who meet at Mrs. Upper's home every Wednesday to sew were also shown. There was a beautifully made suit for a little boy which was made of a man's discarded suit and shirt. Mrs. Upper would be glad to receive any suit or shirt which could be used for this purpose.

Mrs. J. K. Hughes, hospitality convener would like some jig-saw puzzles to take to soldiers in hospital. Mrs. W. Belleghem has sent hundreds of magazines and books and games to Halifax and to the local training Centre. Magazines for this purpose should be sent to Belleghem's funiture store, 190 Hunter street. They are greatly needed.

M.W.C.F. Helps British Y.W.C.A.

The Ladies Basket Ball League of the Y. W. C. A. tonight will devote the proceeds of the game to the M. W. C. F. Do you know what that means Do you know what it will mean to the British Y. W. C. A.

At a very "Hush, Hush" experimental station in a black and exposed area in England, a detachment of the W. A. A. F. (Women's Auxiliary Air Force) is stationed. Because of the necessity for secrecy, visitors are few. The nearest place is a tiny village reached through miles of long country lanes; the bus fare to the nearest town is one shilling return and neither time nor the pay of a W. A. A. F. permit them to avail themselves very often of this service. There are over 100 girls there now, and soon there will be many more, coming to take over jobs now done by men.

The girls' quarters are quite a distance from where they work; they have only two tiny sitting rooms, already quite inadequate for the number of girls. "I don't know how to face taking a large detachment of women to this lonely place unless the Y. W. C. A. has a hut there ready when we arrive," said one officer.

There is no question of building an annex here. It must be a new hut fully equipped and costing about $8,500. That would be a tall order for the Y. W. C. A. at any time. In War-time, with so many demands crowding each other for attention, it would be impossible without help and support of the Associations in the Dominions.

This Week's Wartime Recipe

(By Our Readers.)

THREE-WAY BEEF ROAST.

(By Mrs. Sam Olson.)

"When I buy a 1 lb. Beef roast I cut it in three pieces as follows: 3 lbs. for roasting, 2 lbs. for boiling (this piece sometimes contains a bone), and 1 lb. for Irish Stew or Army Stew.

The 3-Pound Piece Roasted.

"The three-pound piece of beef I roast in the ordinary way; a small can of condensed tomato soup may be added to the gravy to give a different flavor. If any meat remains it can be made into a Shepherd's Pie with mashed potatoes and the remaining gravy the next day. Or it can be sliced cold.

To the 2-Pound Piece of meat,

"I add water, 2 medium onions, 2 carrots, a little chopped celery, salt and pepper, and 2 cups or more of tomatoes. Boil till tender. A little rice oatmeal or pearl barley may be added to thicken soup if desired.

"Or, instead of Vegetable Soup, season the soup stock lightly with small onion, pepper and salt, and make dumplings with this recipe: 1 beaten egg, 1 cup sweet milk, 2 teaspoons baking powder and 1 level teaspoon salt sifted with 2½ cups bread flour. Drop by spoonful in hot boiling liquid. Do not put too many dumplings in the liquid at one time — about half the quantity made. Cover kettle tightly.

To the 1-Pound Piece of Beef.

"Cut it in small pieces and put on to boil with water enough to cover. Add one onion, 3 carrots, pepper and salt. When nearly done add diced potatoes and boil until done, having liquid enough to cover.

"With this I serve Hot Baking Powder Biscuits.

"This roast is for a small family. If one does not care for beef every day, other meat or fish may be used (every other day)."

Thank you, Mrs. Olson, for this fine set of ideas.

POTATO SOUP.

(From Mrs. R. M. Peterkin.)

One quart milk, 1 small onion, 2 cups hot mashed potatoes, 3 tablespoons butter, 1½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons flour, pepper and celery salt to taste, chopped parsley. Scald milk with the onion and add gradually to the mashed potatoes. Melt butter, add flour and seasonings, blend thoroughly and combine with milk mixture. When piping hot and well blended serve with chopped parsley.

Thank you, Mrs. Peterkin for reminding us of this good old standby.

Annual Play Is Presented By Collegiate

Until R. L. Hale came to teach English at the Collegiate interest in dramatics seemed to be dead as far as Peterborough was concerned. Now, the annual school play put on by the pupils of the Collegiate, under Mr. Hale's patient and skilful direction, has become an important event in Peterborough and not without reason. Good plays, well produced, have provided fine entertainment.

This year's play, "Fanny and the Servant Problem," is perhaps not quite as well-known as the plays of previous years, but it has proved a remarkably good choice on the part of Mr. Hale and Miss White.

"Fanny and the Servant Problem" is the story of a pretty music hall artist, "Fanny" who marries Lord Bantock, of Bantock Hall, Rutlandshire, believing him to be plain Mr. Vernon Wetherell, an artist.

On arriving at Bantock Hall she discovers her error, and also discovers, to her dismay, that the house is staffed entirely by a pious, sanctimonious family by the name of Bennett, every last one of whom is related to her.

The servants, far from being delighted at Fanny's good fortune, consider her an entirely unsuitable person for her distinguished position and do their best to make her over into an English. Their attempts to do so, and the high-spirited Fanny's struggles with them, for the basis of the story.

The lovely and bewitching Fanny is played by Barbara Bothwell. She is stubborn, high-spirited and pretty as becomes the part, and she played with grace and vicacity, especially in scenes requiring her to lose her temper.

Alan Johnson, as Vernon Wetherell, was handsome and romantic at his best in the more active scenes but surprisingly good in the rather difficult reconciliation scene at the end of the play.

The Misses Wetherell, Vernon's sweet, sheltered maiden aunts, were played by Ruth Sage and Catherine Hall. Their well-bred but fearful reaction to the idea of "Dear Vernon" marrying an actress were gently funny and their complete surrender to the captivating Fanny was charming.

Dr. Fremantle, physician, and adviser in chief to the Misses Wetherell, was played with gusto and enjoyment by Alden Gourlay; who quoted Marcus Aurelius and ogled Fanny's chorus girl friends with equal skill and enthusiasm.

Alan Boate, as Fanny's manager, George P. Newte, convulsed the audience on his first appearance, in vivid check suit. In makeup and costume he looked the part to perfection, and he played remarkably well. Mr. Boate is to be congratulated on not over-doing the part. He showed rare judgment in that.

The Bennett family, religious and sanctimonious, and supremely snobbish, in their idolatory of the aristocracy, were all very well played. Alan Eadie, as Martin Bennett, butler and head of the family, was almost sinister in his determination to see that Fanny did not disgrace his master's family.

Susannah Bennett, the housekeeper, was played by Shirley Curtis. She was mean, as only a well-meaning, but misguided person can be. Jane Bennett, Fanny's maid was played by Velma Staples, who was smug and self-satisfied that the audience wanted to smack her. Honoria Bennett, a pretty maid whom Fanny aptly described as "the cat" was played well by Jean Bullied. Ernest Bennett, the only member of the family who had any sympathy for Fanny, was played by Bill Crowe who was amusingly soft-headed all the time.

Six chorus girls, members of Fanny's old show, who come to visit her at her new home, were played by Arleigh Connel, Dorothy Frost, Anna Hubel, Joan Brown, Phyllis Dummitt, Joan Bell. All these girls did very well with their small parts, especially Arleigh Connel, whose cockney accent, if not perfect, was recognizable as such. The scene in which all these girls, as well as the servants, and most of the leading characters, appeared on the stage together, was extremely well-handled.

There were no badly played parts in the play. All parts were played conscientiously, if not brilliantly. It was a little difficult, at first, to hear one or two of the characters, but that righted itself as the play went on. The dialogue did not always move quite quickly enough and the prompter was a little too much in evidence but on the whole the pupils gave a fine performance and are a credit to themselves and their director.

Among those who helped the success of the play were Miss H. Gerard and the Household Arts girls, who made some of the costumes, and Miss Betty Mantell, wardrobe mistress and her committee; Mr. F. E. Johnston and the industrial arts boys, who looked after the scenery and Miss Betty Hughes, in charge of properties; Miss M. Hicks, who was responsible for the very fine make-up; the prompter, Miss Betty Giffen; the directors, Mr. R. L. Hale and Miss D. M. White; and the business manager, Mr. C. S. Browne.

SPRING REDINGOTE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THRIFTY buy, at whatever price tag, is the redingote costume for spring. As popular with all women as the ubiquitous shirtmaker frock, the redingote with its often giddy dress wedded to a sober, tailored long coat, is wearable in snappy spring weather or mid-summer heat; is at home on the busy shopper or at the party luncheon table.

The 1942 redingote costume sketched here combines soft blue wool with printed crepe of white, green, and blue like the coat. Note the bracelet length, open sleeves, and the pleated jabot and hem flounce of the frock which foam out over the slick coat so frivolously.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, March 7.

According to the lunar transits this should be a most propitious day for attaining lofty objectives, with promotion favors, honors and preferment from employers, superiors, and those in high places. But this aim should be pursued by open and above board tactics rather than by indulging a proclivity to be clever, crafty or resorting to expediency while overlooking the sound element of principle.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for favors, preferment, promotion and honors, with many tokens of appreciation from employers, superiors and those in high standing; but by strict regard for integrity and honor and not indulging a proclivity to be sharp, cunning and expedient. With high principle and purpose there should be much accomplished, in both social and business relations. Be careful with writings and alert to sharp practice.

A child born on this day should have much ambition to attain the good graces of those in high places, and will be eminently successful if it will refrain from unethical and too clever methods or trickiness.

Navy Blues for Springtime

By ..UNELLA WOOD

NEVER a spring without navy blue, the most popular bluebird of the fashion season. This year the girls will build navy up with the most feminine accessories, skipping the starker, uniform possibilities of this solid color. Flowers, veiling, lingerie, jewelry will adorn it.

Left, navy crepe short-sleeved simple frock gets a jacket applique with navy faille.

Navy rayon sheer is used, right with appliques of matching taffeta in bow-knot motif, ending in skirt panels. Back button closing.

This Is Everybody's War

It's good to hear of the large numbers turning out to the A.R.P. meetings on Sunday afternoons. Apparently some people in this city realize there is a war on. Some of our busiest warworkers give a definite impression that they haven't realized it yet....The rubber situation is really serious. This is no time to make flower-beds of those old retreads off your older jallopple; or let junior float around the lake in an old inner tube. Let junior learn to swim under his own power; he'll have to some day.... The Ladies' Basketball League of the Y.W.C.A. has offered to donate all the proceeds of next Friday's game to the Mrs. Winston Churchil Fund for British Women in Service ....Dr. J. D. Smart, minister of St. Paul's Church, touched a vital subject when he spoke on "Keeping Our Health in War Time." We won't this war until each one of us is pulling his weight at his appointed task, and you can't do that if you aren't fit, physically, mentally and spiritually. We have no right to be ill....On the table in the board room of the city buildings is an ash-tray made of a minature rubber tire fitter round a glass plate. There it sits, half a pound of pure rubber used as an ash-tray by the city fathers. And there must be thousands more scattered round the country....So the use of cans is to be restricted. It looks as if some of us will have to learn to cook after all these years. And there will probably be a slump in the can-opener business, too....The almost lost and forgotten art of walking is about to come into its own again. Oh! well, it's a healthy, wholesome and inexpensive sport and your feet can take you a lot of place a car can't. And there's another thing about it; if you don't drive the car, you don't have to park it....Help is still needed at the Salvage Deport and will be needed even more in the Spring. Phone Mrs. Kearns, 3024, and offer your services....Peterborough and District Women's Auxiliary, R.C.N.V.R. will meet in the Green Room on Friday evening....You who persist in that wasteful and meaningless habit of leaving sugar in the bottom of your cup should read the injunction given to guests in a Toronto restaurant: "Stir your coffee till it hurts—we don't mind the noise." ....Mrs. Kearns suggests that you label the salvage when you put it out. Seems the collectors carried off somebody's groceries the other day....The Collegiate play opens on Thursday evening. Proceeds for the mobile kitchen. Barbara Bothwell, pretty leading lady of "She Stoops to Conquer," has the feminine lead in this year's play, "Fanny and the Servant Problem."

STRAWS IN THE WIND

By [illegible] WOOD

STRAWS in the wind are plenty, for milliners proclaim that tons of this dream stuff for hats is on hand. But fashion gossip concerns priorities, and the designers love its challenge. Result is that the designers are not drawing on straw reserves entirely, but running up models from strange and unexpected materials with great success.

Cellophane; wood fibres: hemp strands; patent and suede leather; crocheted ribbon, yarn and string go to the head.

Top, a peasant bonnet for a sophisticate; it is crocketed from gold color ribbon and banded with black belting ribbon. The gloves to match are made with black kid. Lower left, Mr. Churchill's famous bowler inspires a cellophane braid trotteur trimmed with belting streamers. Above, another priority "straw" model whose trim is a navy band and corded pin from which hang a tangle of scarlet silk tassles.

MODERN GIRL LOOKS UPON MARRIAGE AS A BUSINESS

Financial Independence Has Given Most Young Women Different Ideas About Dependency.

WHY are girls so anxious to marry, considering that statistics show that one wedding out of every five ends in total bankruptcy, and that the great majority of wives don't seem to think that they have much to cheer about? Try working out that crossword puzzle some day when you have an idle hour. Of course, it is easy enough to see why in Grandma's time every girl was bound and determined to get a man, by fair means or foul, if it could possibly be done, for in those benighted days matrimony was almost the only gainful avocation open to women. A husband was a necessity. He was a meal ticket and a card of admission to society; and not to have one branded a woman as a failure. But the modern girl is driven to marrige by no such compulsion. She does not have to marry for a support. She can earn her own bread and butter and cake and often make more of it than the man she marries can. Sometimes a Fairy Prince does come riding down a store aisle and yank Cincerella from behind her counter and bear her off to a palace on the avenue, but that miracle does not often occur and, as a rule, the single girl with a job has more money and better clothes and a newer permanent than the girl with a husband. Nor does the modern girl have to marry to gain any measure of freedom. The chaperon is extinct now as the Dodo. When women invaded the business offices, Mrs. Grundy turned her back and quit watching what they did, so now a girl is as free to set up her own bachelor apartment and have her own latch key and come and go as she pleases as her brother is.

New Viewpoint of Girls

Now, seeing that the young woman of today is financially and socially independent and that she is sitting pretty on the top of the world, so to speak, why is she so anxious to exchange the safety and comfort of her position for the uncertainties of marriage, unless the prospect of some great reward made it seem worth the risk, or unless she was so crazily in love that she was unable to judge the nature and character of her acts?

No such reasons, however, motivate the average girl. Just as few of them have the grand passion as have any other rare disease, and while every girl who marries thinks she is in love with her Tom, Dick or Harry she doesn't kid herself into believing that she would die of a broken heart if she didn't marry him. He is just her pick of the bunch instead of being the ONLY one.

Neither does the sophisticated little wise femme, who has worked side by side with her boy friend and who knows to a nickel what he earns, befool herself into thinking that he is a disguised millionaire who will give her mink coats and diamonds if she marries him. She knows well enough that she will let herself in for wearing basement bargains and buy her jewels in the ten-cent store.

Why, then, does she do it? My guess is that for all her worldly knowledge the modern girl is still bound by all the ancient superstitions and traditions about marriage and that, although she knows better, she still believes in them. She still thinks that to be an old maid is a disgrace and that it brands her publicly as a woman who lacked beauty and charm and sex appeal. Even highly intelligent women feel this way about spinsterhood, and that is why so many brilliant, cultivated, successful women will marry uncouth, ignorant yokels when they get around the anxious age.

Another reason why girls are so anxious to marry is because they fear loneliness more than anything in the world and they have an almost fanatical faith in marriage being a sure protection against this. Yet the most casual observation among their married friends would show that the number of husbands and wives who are companionable and who spend pleasant evenings at home entertaining and amusing each other is negligible. Probably there are no more lonesome women than the wives whose husbands are just about as chummy as a frozen fish and who only grunt when they are spoken to, except when they find fault with something.

And finally, girls are anxious to marry because they still believe that a wedding ring has magic properties, and that they would only have to turn it on their fingers to change the commonplace boys they married into Clark Gables, to make ne'er-do-wells, go-getters, philanderers faithful, selfish egotists into tender and considerable altruists, and to take the sting out of poverty and the labor out of cooking and washing and scrubbing, and to change this hard old world into an earthly Paradise.

Of course, it doesn't happen, but with deathless optimism girls still believe in it, and that is why they are anxious to marry.

Possessive Mothers

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — For some time I have been engaged to a girl with whom I am in love and we are anxious to get married. I am 29, a college graduate, of good character, have a good job and fine prospects for the future and am amply able to care for a family. The girl is 21, but working in the business world has made her quite mature and responsible. My fiancee's parents did not oppose our engagement, but only stipulated that we should wait six months. However, now that the time is nearly up they refuse to sanction the marriage for no reason except that the girl is an only child and her mother is fanatically and abnormally attached to her and unwilling to give her up. Don't you think that under these circumstances, since we love each other so deeply, that we should be justifed in marrying with, or without, their consent?

YOUNG MAN.

ANSWER—I do. I don't think that the happiness of two worthy young people should be sacrificed to the selfishness of a possessive mother. I have known of more than one case in which a mother, who could not bear to be parted from her darling, forced her daughter by her tears and entreaties and even her threats of suicide to give up the fine young man to whom she was engaged, although the mother knew that she was breaking the girl's heart and dooming her to old maidenhood and a life of poverty and hard work.

I believe in children showing their parents every duty and consideration but there is neither sense nor merit in children sacrifcing themselves to parents who show themselves nothing but selfish tyrants.

Sports Spice

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR., Associated Press Sport Writer

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., March 6.—(AP)—This is probably the only town where college boxing carries a real tradition, and the folks are finding the Eastern tournament, which starts today, a poor substitute for the old-time Southern conference gathering. That always was old home week for everyone who ever wore a mitt in Southern College fights... Still you can hear some good yarns, such as Bobby Goldstein, the Maryland coach, telling how he became the "highest paid amateur" by collecting $1,400 for a three-round scrap against Norman Quarles in Richmond... Then there's the one about the Virginia scrapper whose eyes became crossed when he was belted one. The referee stopped the fight, turned and discovered the other guy had been knocked cold by the final punch...

Today's Guest Star

Springer Gibson, Chattanooga Evening Times: "Syracuse has signed a couple of Cuban ball players. Looks as if they'll plant a fifth column in the Washington Senator offices."

One-Minute Sports Page

Lt.-Col. Bob Beyland, who used to teach a fair brand of football at Tennessee, claims that when the war is over he probably will have to learn the game all over again... Cy Young, who spent 22 of his best years pitching major league baseball, will celebrate his 75th birthday anniversary March 29... That 1,941-point basketball record Ken Griffin set for his four years ended in 1941 may be beaten any year now. Stutz Modzelewski of Rhode Island State has 1,714 points, out in Oregon Ernie Rostock hit 1,601 and Bob Kilbourne of Emory and Henry wound up last week with 1,657... Colorado U, which finished winter football practice only a couple of weeks ago, will start spring practice late this month.

Terry Fox, former Philadelphia Eagle, has enlisted in the Marines. He wanted to make the air corps, but found it too tough when they gave him just 30 days to reduce from his normal 216 pounds to 200.

Failure of the New York Ranger line of Bryan Hextall, Lynn Patrick and Phil Watson, to obtain any scoring points last night permitted the bottom four of the Big Seven to gain on the trio in the individual scoring list.

Hextall still holds first place with 51 points, while Patrick and Watson are in second spot with 48 points, but Detroit's Don Grosso moved to within three points of second place as he gained an assist last night. Syd Abel, Detroit, and Chicago's Bill Thoms remained tied in fifth place with 43 points as each obtained an assist. Toronto's Gordie Drillon aided in one Maple Leaf goal to retain his hold on seventh spot with 39 points.

Percy Township Women Make Quilts

HASTINGS, March 6 (ENS)—The Cobourg Road Red Cross Society met at the home of Mrs. Frank Coveney, Tuesday afternoon. Two quilts were completed by the members with the assistance of several visitors.

Mrs. Frank Coveney was appointed secretary of the society to fill the position left vacant by the recent death of Mrs. Roy King. Members expressed deep regret at the loss of Mrs. King who had been secretary since the branch's organization.

Although lack of supplies retarded the month's quota the work conveners submitted ten pairs pyjamas, 2 turtleneck sweaters, 1 navy scarf, and 3 pairs seamen's stockings.

Material for a quilt was donated by Mrs. Joseph Pickens. Quilt tops were also donated by Mrs. James Dickey and the pupils of the Cobourg Road School.

It was decided to hold a euchre party in the town hall on March 20. Miss C. Williamson invited the members to her home for the regular April meeting.

RIOM, March 6.—(AP)—Former Premier Edouard Daladier, defending himself against an accusation of being partly responsible for France's war defeat, charged today that French industrialists sabotaged war factories to slow down arms production.

He named specifically the Schneider-Creusot Steel Trust which he declared refused to form a joint Government-private industry combine to manufacture arms in North Africa.

A Scientific Way to Slim Quickly

When Diet Needs Alterations!

Every year a size larger! It's positively frightening!

But you can easily start LOSING—two pounds a week.

For fat is a simple matter of too many calories. To reduce, simply cut calories.

Just have your turkey (only 150 calories a serving) without the stuffing (312 a half-cup). At dessert time have gingerbread (100) without chocolate sauce (200).

By just cutting high-calory extras like this you do a lot toward cutting to 1,200 calories a day—your reducing allowance.

A calory chart keeps you safe—telling you lots of tasty low-calory foods, even extras, that you CAN have! Beef loaf (100) instead of beef hash (400); boiled salad dressing (25 a tablespoon) instead of mayonnaise (100).

Start now to be slim! Our 32-page booklet gives 42 low-calory menus, a calory chart for all every-day foods.

For your copy of "The New Way to a Youthful Figure" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

LOOK FOR THE BEST WAY

THERE ARE several degrees of laziness, when it comes to playing a hand. One player begins to put cards on tricks without doing any planning at all. Another begins to play as soon as he figures out any way which probably will make his contract. But the thorough planner exhausts first his study of all the alternative ways he can think about, then selects the one which he decides is best. His reward in the long run is not only a larger percentage of successful contracts, but a larger number of extra tricks, too

North: ♠ Q 2 ♥ A K J 8 7 2 ♦ 9 ♣ K Q 6 3

West: ♠ 8 4 ♥ Q 4 3 ♦ A J 6 2 ♣ 10 8 5 2

East: ♠ 9 5 3 ♥ 10 9 6 5 ♦ K Q 10 7 ♣ 7 4

South: ♠ A K J 10 7 6 ♥ None ♦ 8 5 4 3 ♣ A J 9

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	6 ♠

Somewhat different bidding occurred at other tables of the tournament where this deal was produced, but most Souths wound up in 6-Spades. Where West led his diamond A, there was not much to the play. South had several ways to make his contract. But some of the Wests disliked laying down that top card, as it might set up a winning secondary honor for the declarer and thus enable him to make an otherwise unmakable contract. In those cases the lead was the club 2.

In the case of one lazy declarer, after taking this with the club K in dummy, he decided to give up a diamond, ruff a diamond in dummy and throw two diamonds on the heart tops. So to the second trick he led the dummy's diamond 9 and West won, returning a trump. Consequently that declarer made exactly his 6-Spades.

At another table, South saw a way to go after all 13 tricks, and used it. He took the club opener with the A, so as to leave the K and Q in dummy as entries. Then he dropped trumps in three rounds, led the club 9 to the Q, cashed two top hearts for two diamond discards, ruffed the heart 2, went to dummy again with the club J to K, dropped the heart 10 with the J, discarding his third diamond, and the heart 8 accounted for the fourth one. Two trumps were left for the last two tricks, so that an extra trick was scored, the diamond A being shut out altogether.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ Q 3 ♥ Q J 8 2 ♦ 7 4 2 ♣ A K 7 4

West: ♠ 9 ♥ A K 9 7 4 ♦ K J 10 8 5 ♣ J 5

East: ♠ A 10 5 ♥ 10 6 5 2 ♦ 3 ♣ Q 9 6 3 2

South: ♠ K J 8 7 6 4 2 ♥ None ♦ A Q 9 6 ♣ 10 8

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

If West and East are players who, not interrupted, would bid this deal merely 1-Heart, 2-Hearts, 3-Hearts, 4-Hearts, at what point should North or South cut in with a bid which would influence the ultimate result?

Empire Air Plan To Be Hooked With US Scheme

OTTAWA, March 6.—(CP)—Air officials representing the United Kingdom, United States and Canada are working out plans to coordinate air training on the North American continent, it was reported here yesterday.

To accomplish this it was estimated five or six weeks of work will be necessary.

The immediate problem is to make maximum use of the Canadian and United States air training fields, sending United States student flyers to Canada when facilities are available and Canadians to United States training bases.

The feeling here is that the entire British commonwealth air training scheme will be joined with the United States training program so that maximum equipment and training facilities will be kept in full operation.

Already the British commonwealth air training plan has sent thousands of men into active service. Exact figures are not released. But many hundreds of them have been Americans who came to Canada to join the Royal Canadian Air Force and trained in the Dominion.

It has been estimated that up to the United States entry into the war the United States was supplying roughly ten per cent of the personnel trained in the British commonwealth air training plan.

In addition to 93 air training schools, 130 air establisments have been developed under the plan. It has about 100 airdromes and 1,860 buildings. Paved runways of the airdromes are equivalent to 800 miles of 21-foot road.

Organization of the plan was started in December, 1939.

Armored Cars Meet Jap Invaders

Presbyterial Program Near Completion

CAMPBELLFORD, March 6.—(ENS).—Final details for the annual Presbyterial scheduled to begin here on March 24 were made by members of St. John's W.M.S. at their regular meeting held Tuesday afternoon. The program for the afternoon was in charge of the president, Mrs. E. C. Roberts' group, and she also presided for the business period when it was decided the ladies from the East side, under Mrs. A. G Watson, wold provide the dinner for the Presbyterial, and those from the West side headed by Mrs. C. K. Stephen would provide the supper. Members were advised that as guest speaker for the occasion they would have Miss Winnifred Thomas of the Toronto W.M.S. office, while the evening program would be turned over to the Brighton Evening Auxiliary which would present a play for the entertainment of the gathering.

For the remainder of the meeting Mrs. A. D. Bennett presided and the theme, "The Lord's Supper" was emphasized in various ways throughout the program. Mrs. H. Donald gave the scripture reading, after which Mrs. C. E. Turner and Mrs. J. Mitchell offered comments which took the form of word pictures of the Last Supper showing particularly the graciousness and love of the Christ. Mrs. Ed. Bates rendered a vocal solo followed by Edgar Guest's poem, "Let's Be Brave," recited by Mrs. A. E. Wragg. Miss Grace Payne and Mrs. Roberts collaborated in emphasizing the importance of missionary work in China, with the former telling of the struggle put forth by the Chinese to overcome obstacles standing in the way of education and of the vital need for assistance in this work. Mrs. Roberts told of the additional difficulties foisted on the Chinese by the ruthless bombing attacks made by the Japanese. She said that although their universities had in many cases been destroyed, the will for learning lived on, and the students merely carried their text books and went with instructors to a safer position further inland. She emphasized the wonderful example of morale displayed by these people, and pointed out that so long as this (morale) existed there could be no defeat. Mrs. Roberts also paid tribute to the splendid leadership provided to their people by Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-Shek.

Japs' Freighter Losses May Beat Them

(By DEWITT MACKENZIE.)

The news from the Orient to-day is bad and, barring the snatching of a rabbit from the hat, there is little to encourage hope of salvaging the key island of Java from the wreckage which the Japanese are making of Allied holdings in the southwest Pacific.

However, this trend has been fully expected and should cause no despair. The Allies' turn will come as soon as they get their war machines running in top gear.

The Japs have landed more troops to increase their superiority over the Allied forces. Fighting is raging throughout the island with the result that the defence must be encountering grave difficulty in conducting military operations because of the density of the population which is one of the most closely packed in the world.

If this last remaining barrier to the Indian Ocean succumbs, where will the Japs strike next? For one thing they may be expected to pursue vigorously their effort to conquer Burma, where they continue to forge ahead. This is a strategic territory which at once controls the gateway to China's serpentine Burma Road and affords a base for an attack on India.

Should Burma fall, it's likely that the Japanese will try to take over the vast Indian Empire which they have coveted so long. Much must depend, of course, on how quickly the Allies can muster sufficient strength for an offensive in the Western Pacific. An early attack on the Japs might deter them from an attempt on Hindustan.

With the collapse of Java, the Allies would fall back on Australia as a base—and one which must be held at all cost. There lies great future danger for the Mikado's ambitions, and for th-t reacon it's quite in the cards that the Nipponese will try to seize at least the naval and air base of Darwin which lies near Indonesia on the north coast or Australia.

Possession of rich Indonesia would give Japan a large measure of the self-sufficient which she so eagerly seeks — provided she could hold this treasure and at the same time protect her attenuated sea route to home ports. Here are the oil and other essentials, for many of which she has been dependent on the United States and without which she couldn't wage war.

The fly in the ointment for Japan is that her new lands of milk and honey won't be very useful to her unless she can (1) defend the some 3,300 miles of sea lane to the mother country, and (2) provide ships to transport the supplies. Moreover, it will be months before she can repair the damage done by the ruthless scorched-earth policy of the Indies.

The Japs are running hog-wild now, but the gravest possible danger lurks along that extended sea route to their homeland. That will be the hunting ground of the Allies.

Already the Japanese shipping losses have been terribly heavy—so much so that Washington experts tell us Nippon couldn't stand a year of such drain. Her new-found self-sufficiency will go to the bottom of the ocean with her cargo boats—and after that her downfall.

Allies Raid Isle Scaring Tokyo

TOKYO (From Japanese Broadcasts), March 5 —(AP)—Imperial headquarters announced today that 30 Allied planes had attacked Minamitoria Shima, a Japanese island about 1,200 miles southeast of Tokyo, killing eight persons and setting a building afire.

A communique claimed that Japanese fighters engaged the raiders, shot down seven of them and drove the remainder off. The announcement did not give their nationality.

Tokyo, meanwhile, had its first air alarm of the war when planes—at first unidentified—were sighted off the east coast of Japan early today. The planes subsequently were identified as Japanese, an announcement said.

Domei broadcast the statement that "metropolitan police said residents behaved themselves perfectly without being the least excited."

"They said that in each household members calmly turned off gas jets and attended to preparations for sheltering babies and the sick, after which they joined their respective neighborhood associations of fire-fighting squads."

Minamitori Shima is about 900 miles northwest of Japanese-occupied Wake Island. It is about 3,000 miles from Honolulu.

There was no indication from Washington that United States planes had carried out such a raid. It was recalled, however, that on Tuesday a Washington announcement said a naval task force, including airmen, had shot down 16 Japanese planes "west of the Gilbert islands."

The Gilbert group is some 2,000 miles southeast of Minamitori Shima. Both the Gilbert and Marshall Islands were attacked by U.S. naval forces a little more than a month ago in an offensive sweep.

Little information on Minamitori Shima is available. An old British Admiralty pilot book described the island—once known as Marcus, or Weeks Islands, as about 1½ miles long and 2-3 of a mile wide.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness of painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money —(Advt.)

Victory Concert Pleases Large Audience

HASTINGS, March 6.—ENS)—More than 200 students from three district schools took part in a monster Victory Loan concert at the town hall Wednesday night. Besides aiding the Victory Loan, the large audience contributed a silver collection amounting to more than $18, which will be sent to the Peterborough City and District War Victims' Fund.

The program, largely made up of mass choruses and pageants, was under the direction of the teachers of the schools taking part, Hastings Public, Brickley and Trent River, and was under the personal supervision of Albert Hazel, of Campbellford, music teacher of the schools.

Three mass choruses by the Brickley school, entitled 'Let's Get Together,' 'Green hills of England' and 'There's a Long Long Time,' opened the evening's entertainment.

A colorful pageant, 'Builders of Canada,' was enacted by the pupils of Trent River school. The Dutch Line school section was represented by Eunice Thompson, whose short recitation was well delivered.

The Hastings public school pupils closed the program with a colorful and historic pageant, 'Cavalcade of Canada.' This depicted Canada's growth by immigration from the time of the tribal Indian till to-day.

Reeve T. E. Kelley acted as chairman and during the evening an address on the Victory Loan was delivered by Walter Fowlds. In his remarks Mr. Fowlds congratulated the people of Hastings on their being first over the top in Northumberland county.

Aid Needed, Now

Wellington, March 6 (AP)

AUSTRALIAN Minister Robert G. Casey declared in a radio broadcast last night that "we need all the help that we can secure, and we need it now."

He said the war has reached Australia's shores and added:

"It is no use pretending that the struggle in the Pacific is going well. It is not....by ourselves we cannot carry the fight to Japan. The utmost we, a nation of 7,000,000 people, can do alone will not stop Japan. The utmost aid that we can give our sturdy neighbors, the Netherlands East Indies, will not stop Japan."

His broadcast was one of a series by signatories of the United Nations agreement.

Fish Dept. To Run Boat Gas Forms

TORONTO, March 6.—(CP)—At the request of the Oil Controller the Department of Game and Fisheries of Ontario has agreed to undertake the work of issuing forms to be filled in for gasoline for commercial users for motorboats.

This includes those boats used for commercial fishing, for carrying passengers ond for guides in the hunting and fishing districts of Ontario. It does not, however, include motorboats used for private pleasure. In the later case owners will have to fill in their own forms and obtain them from the Oil Controller.

After April 1, no commercial users of gasoline for boats will be able to obtain gasoline unless the Department of Game and Fisheries has received the filled-in forms, and only "marked gasoline" can be obtained.

In order to expedite the return of forms for commercial boats these forms can be obtained from supervisors of the Department throughout the province.

The Danger of Coughs Among the Children

In young children a cold or cough is not a thing to be disregarded, as it is often of a grave matter, and unless attended to immediately may, eventually, cause serious trouble.

On the first sign of a cough or cold the mother will find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup a remedy to help get rid of the trouble.

Its promptness and effectiveness in loosening the phlegm, and stimulating the bronchial organs is such that the cough may be checked before anything of a serious nature sets in.

5 Known Dead As Munition Truck Blows

Hotel, Tavern Levelled 100 Hurt As Blast Follows Crash, Fire

SMITHFIELD, N.C., Marcr 7. —(AP).—At least five persons were killed and more than 100 were reported injured near here early today in the delayed explosion of a fire-ridden ammunition-laden truck, the detonation of which was heard over a radius of 50 miles in Eastern North Carolina.

A hotel, a filling station and a tavern were levelled and windows in Selma, a town about two miles away, were shattered. The cement highway under the truck was ripped wide and deep for a distance of 30 feet.

Dr. E. N. Booker, Johnston county coroner, said that at least five persons were injured fatally, two of them in an automobile which he said did not observe highway patrol warnings. The others were killed in the levelling of the Talton hotel.

Dr. Booker said that George Stroup of Gastonia and Cecil Propst of Lawndale, in the automobile, were told they would proceed around the truck, earlier involved in a collision with an automobile at the roadside community, at their own risk.

They Took the Chance.

"They decided to take the chance of proceeding on their way," the coroner said, "and just as they got almost even with the truck it exploded with a terrible noise which folks in Rocky Mount, 50 miles away, reported they heard."

The three victims in the hotel were not immediately identified.

The injured were taken to hospitals in Smithfield, Goldsboro and Raleigh.

Dr. Booker said all buildings within some 300 yards of the explosion were badly damaged or levelled and that half the store win dows in Selma were blown out.

Most of the casualties were bystanders who had watched the truck burn for almost two hours before exploding.

Let's Make It $3,000,000

With one day to go and the Second Victory Loan objective of $2,750,000 already oversubscribed by $17,450, Miss Helen Morrow, this Victory Loan Lady, displays the total subscribed and urged citizens of Peterborough and county to make it $3,000,000.

Victory Loan Is Oversubscribed By $17,450 With Day To Go

Subscription returns from all parts of the county sent the Second Victory Loan into a steep climb on Friday and before noon the total of $2,750,000 had been subscribed. Returns are still pouring in and total for the county up to Friday evening according to figures released at Victory Loan headquarters have reached the admirable sum of $2,777,450, or $17,450 over the original amount sought.

Latest section of the rural areas to hit the high spots is the township of Dummer, where David Miller, a war veteran, ably assisted by his wife, who served as a nurse in World War 1, has secured enough subscriptions to boost the total over the $20,000 quota. Chris Hughes, a close friend of Mr. Miller's, has been boosting his friend in the city all week, claiming that Mr. Miller would top his objective before the loan closed. His confidence has been amply justified by the fine report from the sparsely settled Dummer area, and Warsaw village.

Industrial returns coupled with private subscriptions have brought about a substantial change in the amount subscribed for Peterborough City alone. In this bracket the objective was $1,350,000, and today the total stood at $1,406,150, or 104 per cent of the total.

Canvassers in all sections of the city and county were bearing down, hoping that enough new orders and repeat orders would come along to boost the county total well over the $3,000,000 mark. Straggling returns will continue to seep into the city

Loan Reached $885 Millions

OTTAWA, Mar. 7 — (CP). — Subscriptions to Canada's Second Victory Loan yesterday swelled the total to $885,960,800, with more than 1,000,000 subscribers since opening of the three-weeks campaign which ends to-day, the Loan Committee announced.

Yesterday's business in cash subscriptions was $57,306,000. To this was added $38,090,000 in conversions of Dominion of Canada bonds.

There was no doubt but what the close of business to-night and the ending of the campaign would see the total at least at $900,000,000, the amount which the Loan Committee has hoped for since the original minimum objective of $600,000,000 was passed early this week.

A record number of subscribers—109,611—for a single day, took part in the Loan yesterday. This brought the total number of subscribers to 1,070,903.

Employee Total Climbs

Subscriptions of the employees of stores, factories and offices under the special employee canvass yesterday rose to a new high, 65,785 persons subscribing $6,362,300. Subscriptions in this category now total in number 389,360 for a cumulative total of $35,855,850, with many plant-canvasses incomplete.

All Word Ceases From Java; Tanks Holding Surabaya

Allied Troops Under Heavy Air Battering As Defenders Struggle To Hold Arsenal

BANDUNG, Java, March 7—(AP).—Japanese troops have broken through Bandung's northern defences, it became known this morning.

The situation of the western section of Java was admittedly critical, said Aneta, the Indies news agency.

Aneta said the breach occurred yesterday in defence lines on the northern slope of the famous volcano of Tangkuban Prahu.

This was the first line of northern defence of the Bandung area of resistance.

(This dispatch was timed at 10 a.m., Java time, or 9.30 p.m., Friday, EDT. It was about 13 hours between the filing and receipts at New York.

(C.B.S. was advised today by R.C.A. and American telephone and telegraph companies that all communications from Java had ceased).

The break-through was said to have been made in the face of fierce resistance on the part of Netherlands Indies forces which were described as "numerically far inferior."

The defenders were harassed continually by Japanese planes against which, it was said, "the Indies can no longer put up sufficient resistence."

Tanks Jolt the Invaders.

LONDON, March 7.—(CP).—Japanese troops seeking to capture Surabaya have run up against a heavy United Nations' tank concentraton in the immediate vicinity of the important naval base, a Tokyo report broadcast by the German radio said to-day.

"According to reports from the Java front," the Japanese dispatch said, "the retreat of East Indies forces from Batavia to Bandung was cut off after Japanese troops coming from the west reached Buitenzorg.

"Simultaneously with operations in Western Java, the Japanese army formation operating in the centre of the island penetrated to Surabaya where heavy enemy tank forces are concentrated."

Official circles said the Allied effectives in Java are outnumbered 5 to 1, with the Japanese holding a virtual monopoly in the air.

A Bandung dispatch to the London Daily Mail said the "bold attempt" of the Netherlands commander leading the Allied forces, Lt.-Gen. Hein Ter Poorten, "to smash the invasion in its earliest stages has failed and it must be admitted he is experiencing some difficulty in extracting and re-organizing his tired troops for defence.

"Realizing this, the Japanese invaders are pressing their attacks with the utmost fury. Men and materials are being switched from other areas and concentrated for a direct assault against Bandung. Everywhere there are signs of preparaton for the worst."

Canada Hunting An Expert Mobilize Men and Women

OTTAWA, Mar. 7 — (CP). — Selection in the near future of a Director of National Services was anticipated to-day as plans developed here for mobilization of Canadian manpower and woman power to meet the growing requirements for workers in war industry and agriculture and volunteers for the armed forces.

Search is under way for a suitable man for the director's post, a Government official said late yesterday. He will be responsible to a special board comprised of representatives of the departments most closely affected by the war effort, National Defence (Army Navy aid Air), Munitions and Supply, Labor, Agriculture and Services.

Final approval of the entire scheme by the Cabinet is expected soon. Then, this official said, the plan will be explained to Parliament by the Prime Minister.

Increasing the number of women in industrial jobs is expected to form a big part of the expanded selective service program.

Primarily the scheme will be on a voluntary basis although there will be a measure of compulsion—in the closing down of portions of non-

CHUNGKING, March 7—(AP).—The Chinese press declared today that Naotake Sato, newly appointed Japanese Ambassador to Soviet Russia, would go to Kuibyshev actually as another Saburu Kuruso whom Tokyo sent to Washington in the guise of a peace envoy to mask her last-minute preparations for the Pearl Harbor attack.

The newspapers said Sato's appointment further served to screen the real purposes behind the recall to Tokyo of his predecessor, Yoshitsugu Tatekawa, "a highly placed spy" of the Axis for the past 1½ years.

New Tank Units Holding Line At Pegu

LONDON, March 7 (CP—Camouflaged tanks which recently rumbled upon the Burmese battlefield are fighting to smash a Japanese attempt to push westward over a highway and railroad north of Pegu, a military commentator indicated today.

He said the Japanese were attempting their westward shove in the area 40 miles north of Rangoon but that the British tanks were trying to clear them up.

"Don't imagine we have masses of armored forces in Burma," he said, and added that there was no definite information yet that the Japanese had tanks in Burma.

Fresh Scottish troops and other riflemen participated in latest operations.

Official reports said the British attack cost the Japanese considerable casualties.

The communique announcing the tanks were in action permitted the disclosure they had arrived in Rangoon only recently, and the appearance of the mechanized forces at the front is said to have heartened the fighters in Burma considerably.

The Japanese have not yet produced any armored vehicles to match what British headquarters have thrown into the battle. The level farming country west of the Sittang River is ideal for tanks and it is said they might prove a decisive factor if they could continue to receive some protection against enemy dive bombers.

The communique also said low-level bombing attacks had been carried out by British bombers against enemy communications, particularly staff cars.

"Battles Without Parallel" Shaping Across Pacific As Great Convoys Proceed

Japs Counter With Naval And Air Feelers Sent 6,000 Miles To Contact Fleet Bearing Reinforcements In Steady Stream

LONDON, March 7—(CP).—The United Nations' striking power in the southwest Pacific is being strengthened rapidly by a steady stream of United States troops and equipment flowing westward to Australia, the London Daily Mail reported today.

The Mail printed a dispatch from Walter Farr, a correspondent it said was accredited to the United States Pacific fleet, describing the movement of "great convoys" loaded with American troops, pilots, planes, tanks and guns. The dispatch was datelined "at sea Friday."

Farr spoke guardedly of "naval and air battles without parallel" which he said already were developing in the southwest Pacific, but declared that details could not yet be divulged.

(The dispatch, subject to the usual censorship governing such communications, evoked no immediate official comment in Washington).

Farr declared that "every ship in every convoy is a load of concentrated hitting power."

"These massive forces," he wrote, "will not only help to defend Australia. They are taking with them large quantities of materials to be used to build the foundations for a great offensive against the Japanese.

Best of Everything

"They are carrying hundreds of the finest pilots America can produce, powerful units trained in landing operations, hardy infantry from the American plains . . .

"As the convoys move westward along the closely guarded lifeline to Australia, the Japanese are shooting out great tentacles of naval and air power five, six and seven thousand miles into the Pacific toward Australia and the United States.

"In some areas they are made up of aircraft carriers loaded with powerful bombing and torpedo planes . . . Naval and air battles without parellel in history are developing. These battles are taking place at widely separated points over 70,000,000 square miles of ocean. You wan't hear immediately details about some of these engagements because to announce them would help the enemy.

"It is a strange, eerie kind of war in which the superiority of American cruisers, destroyers, aircraft carriers and personnel is beginning to tell."

OTTAWA (CP)—Amount of gasoline to be allowed for each coupon under the rationing system which becomes effective April 1 will be set at a conference to be held probably next week and is expected to be less than the five gallons originally announced, it was learned from official sources today.

The definite decision on the amount to be allowed will not be known until the proposed conference is held, but four gallons for each coupon is considered a likely figure. This would allow drivers of passenger cars not eligible for a preferred rating 240 to 300 gallons in place of the 300 to 380 gallons anticipated when details of the plan were announced.

Vast Offensive Shaping Fast To Crimp Japs

MELBOURNE, March 7—(AP)—A United Nations offensive against Japan from Australian and Indian bases is being planned in Washington and London, information reaching the Australian government at Canberra said today.

The Commonwealth Government has been informed, these reports said, that the United Nations high command is planning to assemble its maximum strength in the southwest Pacific at the earliest possible moment for such an offensive.

(Heavy striking forces of American troops and materials are already en route to Australia, Walter Farr, correspondent of the London Daily Mail, reported in a dispatch to his newspaper from somewhere at sea.)

Meanwhile, Japanese planes again bombed Port Moresby and Lae, on the southern and northeastern coasts of New Guinea about 300 miles from Australia's Cape York. Their attacks followed Australian bombing raids yesterday at Japanese air bases at Kupang, capital of Netherlands Timor, and Gasmata, New Britain.

Speaking at Sydney, Supply Minister John Beasley said "within the past week complete organization for Allied strategy in the Pacific has been worked out."

Death Or Victory For MacArthur

WASHINGTON, March 7—(AP).—Military quarters here today are talking about the Battle of Bataan as a "death or victory" struggle for Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his valiant soldiers, the odds for death or possibly capture being heavily against those for ultimate victory.

Yet the fact there was even a slight chance for triumphant survival of the Philippines force, as the fourth month of Pacific war opened, was regarded as little short of a military miracle in view of what has happened to the defenders of Hong Kong, Singapore and the Netherlands East Indies.

Actually, officers who have known MacArthur for years ex-

Nazis Copy Tallyrand—Out to Split Allies

(By J. F. SANDERSON.)

WASHINGTON, March 7 (CP)—It was Talleyrand who said "Give me Allies to Fight" and the Germans are working overtime to prove the potency of the French statesman's words.

By word and by deed, the Goebbels propaganda agency in Berlin is trying to divide the Allies, particularly to split the United States and Britain, to arouse jealousies, create distrust and magnify petty differences.

It is psychological warfare, as skilful as it is unscrupulous, carried on largely by the radio and by people who, consciously or unconsciously, seek to poison public minds by fostering ill-will between allied countries. Unfortunately, Berlin gets too much assistance in this style of warfare by people who never realize they are playing the Axis game.

The trend of this psychological warfare can be traced back to the time when the United States was neutral before the lend-lease act was passed. At that time, Berlin was telling the United States the Axis had no designs upon the North American continent and, at the same time, advising the British people to place no faith in the American people, that the United States would sell munitions as long as dollars lasted, then nothing more.

Passage of the lease-lend act forced Berlin to change its tune. It started to tell Britain that little or nothing would cross the Atlantic, everything was too late and, anyway, the Americans would exact their pound of flesh.

These conflicting stories did not have the desired effect of driving a lasting wedge between the British and American nations but there were people in both countries who were not sufficiently wide awake to realizing the source of the insidious tales and, for one reason or another, repeated them, leaving a trail of doubt and indecision in their wake. The campaign was at least so successful, from Berlin's viewpoint, that it was worth continuing.

Then came the United States entry into the war and Berlin changed its tactics, not its strategy. Psychological warfare continued.

On Jan. 6, the Berlin short-wave radio told the American people: "It is the old game; the British are willing to fight to the last American battleship."

Eleven days later, on Jan. 17, the Berlin radio beamed this message to Britain: "For the first time in history, British men-of-war received orders from an American admiral. This latest encroachment on the part of the United States of America on British prestige and power is the saddest yet."

Another favorite theme of the Berlin propaganda office is economic rivalry. On Jan. 4, the United States was told: "The British are waging a ruthless economic warfare against the United States of America" and on Jan. 19, Britain was warned: "The ultimate aim of the United States is to take over all British markets and to acquire command over all international shipping as well as all British economic bases."

Some Lively Examples

Here is another example of Berlin propaganda: 'By the fatal Churchill - Roosevelt relationship, Britain has lost all control of Canada and now the intention to land American troops in Australia marks

Times Fears Russia Uneasy Over Anglo-U.S. Stand

LONDON, March 7 (CP) — Immediate British action to bring about an agreement with Russia and the United States which would allay all possible Soviet anxiety concerning post-war plans as well as prosecution of the war itself was urged today by the Times.

It observed editorially that commentators had seen in Soviet premier Joseph Stalin's recent order of the day commemorating the 24th anniversary of the Red Army a hint of dissatisfaction over elations with the Allies.

"Whether or not Stalin intended to express impatience," the editorial declared, "there is beyond doubt a growing inclination among Soviet leaders to feel that Russia has been called upon, with indirect and insufficient help from her allies, to bear the main brunt of Hitler's assault.

Declaring that political collaboration between Britain and Russia had "scarcely taken a step forward" since Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden visited Stalin in December, the editorial warned:

"The delays of the past two months have been only too likely to sow the seeds of mistrust in Moscow."

Surprise Nazis In Area South Of Tripoli

CAIRO, Mar. 7 — (AP). — The Free French, striking into Libya from the east and south, have captured two Axis positions and penetrated the Fezzan section of the Libyan Desert which lies south of Tripoli, a British communique announced to-day.

Referring apparently to the Eastern Libyan Front, the war bulletin said: "'Activity was again confined to patrolling. The garrison of an enemy post was captured by a Free French column."

(This might have been the Free French column which British Headquarters had said earlier was operating at the southern flank of the Tmimi-El Mechili front in Cirenaica.)

"Other Free French forces," the communique said, "have captured an enemy position in Fezzan after violent fighting."

(The Fezzan Desert area some 500 miles south of Tripoli borders upon French Western and French Equatorial Africa, where Free French forces are established.)

WESTERN END OF JAVA IS NOW OCCUPIED BY JAPANESE FORCES

Battered Java Cut In Two; Troops Tiring

Bandung Holds Out, Surabaya Defenders Isolated

LONDON, March 7—(CP).—With battered Java reported cut in two, defenders of the last Allied stronghold in the southwest Pacific clung stubbornly today to bristling mountain positions and fought the fury of the Japanese attack with all their tiring might.

The troops defending the once-important naval base of Surabaya, where demolitions have been reported carried out, and other positions of Eastern Java, appear to have been isolated from the main defence force which is regrouping for a desperate stand around Bandung.

Virtually all the western end of the 62-mile-long island has fallen to the Japanese except Bandung and its immediate vicinity.

Netherlands sources indicated the defenders are counting heavily on three inland defence positions in the mountains—Bandung, Magelang and Malang. The great Java plain running 600 miles along the north coast has been almost entirely evacuated or over-run by the Japanese.

Hope for substantial reinforcements reaching the island was said to be gone. Dispatches reported the last usable port—Tjilatyap on the south coast—had been blasted and destroyed by the Japanese. It appeared impossible to send ships into Surabaya.

"SOOTHES AT A TOUCH"

Northumberland Victory Loan 78.81 Per Cent

COBOURG, March 7—(ENS). — Northumberland County, on the 16th day of the Victory Loan campaign, was considerably short of its $1,125,000 objective. Two districts, Hastings and Brighton, both villages, went over their quotas, but Campbellford and Cobourg, the two largest towns in the county did not do as well as the villages. Canvassers are working very hard to attempt to have the county reach its quota by the end of the canvass period. The figures on the 16th day of the campaign showed that 78.81 per cent or $866,650 had been subscribed. The cumulative percentage required for that period is 88.89 per cent. The totals for the districts, with the percentages reached on March 5, are as follows:

Cobourg, $260,350, 83.89 per cent; Hamilton Township, $91,750, 79.78; South Monaghan Township, $8,700, 34.80; Haldimand Township, $49,900, 83.7; Alnwick Township, $17,650, 88.25; Percy Township, $65,700, 73.06; Cramahe Township, $29,050, 58.10; Hastings, $27,850, 111.4; Colborne, $32,350, 80.88; Brighton Township, $27,650, 50.55; Brighton, $80,200, 102.83; Murray Township, $36,350, 60.58; Campbellford, $93,000, 74.40; and Seymour Township, $66,100, 91.80.

Salvage Drive Is Pushed By Lions Club

PORT HOPE, March 7—(ENS).—At the regular meeting on Thursday night of the Lions' Club, W. H. Carlton, public school inspector for the district, was guest speaker.

Mr. Carlton centred his address on the place of the new public school curriculum in the life of today, tracing education from an early date. He told that in the earliest days all the education was received in the home, and how today in the new curriculum the pupil is fitted for his place in the social and business life of the community and stressed the point that we cannot live unto ourselves alone and so neither can any nation. He took a carrot as an example, the farmer grows it, and it takes a scientist to prepare the fertilizer for it and then the transportation of this one product to our tables implies so many products such as gas, vehicles and eventually we trail as far as Java from where our rubber is secured for the tires for transportation vehicles.

Mr. Carlton's address was enjoyed by all and a hearty vote of thanks given him by the members.

Mr. Howard Jordon, principal of public schools in Port Hope, along with Mr. Dowler and Mr. Roberts, were guests of the club for the evening.

An important feature of this meeting was the presenting of a convention dress to Deputy District Governor Abbott Lent. Lion E. B. Hyne made the presentation with a most elaborate address. This convention dress includes a gold bolero, with purple trimmings, the Lion's crest, a large maple leaf on the back and Canada written in large purple letters across the back, a purple cap with gold trim and a purple tie; this is worn with white flannels and white shirt and was modelled at the meeting.

Every Saturday the salvage committee of the club makes a collection, and in the last four weeks over $100 has been collected on waste paper alone.

Rev. Dr. Smart Addresses Cobourg Rotary

COBOURG, March 7.—(ENS)—Physical, mental and spiritual aspects of life must be put in proper condition if the people were to make the utmost contribution to the war effort and to lay the foundation for the solution of the problems confronting Canada as a nation, advised Rev. Dr. James D. Smart, St. Paul's Presbytrian Church, Peterborough, in addressing Cobourg Rotary Club Friday. Dr. Smart spoke on the subject of "Health in Wartime."

The speaker declared that physical and mental health are closely related, being interdependent on each other. Diet and exercise, in proper combination work for the betterment of the people here, and it had been shown that in the British Isles, the reduced diet had brought better health. At the same time there had been a decrease in nervous disorders, because of the fact that people forgot about themselves when they were busy with something that demanded their attention more. However, some peculiar problems had arisen from overwork, constant strain and the upset of religious faith which war brings.

Excuse Needed

Dr. Smart said that the people of today usually do not have ten per cent of the physical fitness that could be theirs if they would devote a short time a short time each day to exercise. It was quite likely that gasoline rationing and rubber shortage would oblige people to get more exercise, but there should be in addition that that, the custom of discipline along physical lines to be really fit. In connection with mental relaxation the same two rules, diet and exercise applied, stated Dr. Smart. A diet of dime novels and war news broadcasts did not work for a good mental attitude. Too many people were inclined to accept as facts, the remarks of radio news commentators without first considering whether these commentators could qualify as experts.

Dr. Smart, drawing on his personal observations while in Germany, said that the situation which had arisen there, was due in a large measure to the lack of proper spiritual convictions. The people of Germany were fatalistic and readily accepted Hitler's theories because thye gave them something to live by. Dr. Smart urged that there be a spiritual purpose in every life as opposed to the vague outlook and indefinite action which was creeping into the lives of the people.

The speaker was introduced by Ford Lindsay and the vote of thanks was expressed by A. R. Wilmott.

another stage in the liquidation of the British Empire."

Perhaps the best combination was this one: On January 7, Berlin told Britain: 'England under Churchill's leadership is rapidly becoming an insignificant off-shoot of the United States of America" and the very same night the American people were told: 'Whether you like it or not it looks as if the gradual domination of the United States Government by the British has become an established fact."

The crudeness of the propaganda is only spotted when the conflicting statements are placed side by side, something that Berlin knows will not happen often. Meanwhile, Berlin hopes that sufficient poison has seeped into the public minds to fester and pollute relationships between the Allied nations.

Exactly the same thing is true German propaganda with relation to Russia—its object is to pfomote the latent distrust of Communism in both Britain and the United States in the hope that demands will go up to "keep supplies at home" and "Why help the Russians?" We may have to fight the Communists when they attempt to spread their economic doctrines throughout the world after the war" and "What can we do at a peace table while those dreadful Russians are sitting there?"

It's all done very carefully and very deliberately by experts in phychological warfare, men who realize that Allies can be defeated easier if first they can be set to squabbling among themselves.

Australian officials proceeded with plans for calling all men up to the age of 60 for war duty, either as combatants or in labor corps. Particular need for labor units was emphasized at Canberra where it was disclosed that there were a number of war work areas in which manual laborers were not available.

The war cabinet scheduled meetings to discuss rates of pay and working conditions with the Australian Council of Trades Unions and the Australian Workers' Union.

Government sources at Canberra disclosed a measure is under consideration for establishment of a single commonwealth tax authority to eliminate state income tax collection offices. It was estimated such a plan would release between 2,000 and 2,400 persons for war work. It would become effective July 1.

The Australian radio reported that place names, direction and mileage signs within 100 miles of the coast are to be removed or painted out as a security measure against a possible invasion force.

All British subjects from 16 years up must register with labor authorities for identification cards, the Labor ministry announced.

plained the "miracle' in terms of thorough preliminary planning for the defence of Bataan long before the war began. Of equal importance, they said, is the fact that MacArthur has outgeneralled and his troops have outfought the Japanese in every engagement to date.

Eventually, perhaps, MacArthur may have to withdraw his forces to Corregidor and the other forts guarding Manila Bay. There they should be able to continue the fight for some time longer in the last-ditch hope that reinforcements will be sent.

"There is no doubt," said one of MacArthur's friends, "that he is determined to see the Philippines fight through to the finish. If he has any choice he will never leave—until death or victory. Only an order which, as a soldier, he would have to obey would get him out."

Post-War Social Security Demand Seen

(By FRANK FLAHERTY.)

OTTAWA, Mar. 7 — (CP). — Pensions Minister Mackenzie has expressed the personal belief that Canadians will insist after the war that finances for social security be forthcoming on the same scale as finances for war purposes.

He spoke in the House of Commons yesterday in reply to New Democracy Leader Blackmore who said he doubted whether money would be available after peace is attained to carry out rehabilitation measures for ex-servicemen.

"e can only express my personal opinion," said Mr. Mackenzie. "I am not speaking for the Government at all; but I believe that after this conflict has been concluded, the people of the Dominion of Canada will insist on obtaining the necessary finances for social security as are now obtained for war purposes."

The exchange took place as members turned discussion of a Government Bill to compel employers to reinstate men discharged from the forces, in their former jobs into a general debate on post-war economic, social and financial problems.

Opposition members contended the measure was inadequate to deal with the whole problem. Governmental spokesmen said it was never intended to deal with the whole. They pointed to other Bills yet to be introduced, one embodying the

Hastings Sets Proud Record

HASTINGS, March 7 (ENS) — It took the village fathers exactly one hour to dispose of the month's municipal business at the regular council meeting Friday night. In contrast to recent stormy sessions, the meeting was marked with peace and quiet.

Correspondence was read from the Inter-Departmental offices of the Canadian National Railway regarding the company's crossing at Clyde street. At a recent meeting of council, Miss C. Parker, who owns lots adjacent to this property, told the council that she was paying taxes on this land and it was being used as a street across the railway tracks.

As the railway has no record of an agreement regarding the crossing in dispute, the clerk was ordered to apply to the Board of Transport Commission for an extension of Clyde street so as to give access to the waterfront in order to avoid the difficulty.

A letter from the Bell Telephone Company was read requesting the council to pass a by-law authorizing the company to repair or replace damaged telephone poles. "As far as I am concerned we aren't formulating any special by-law for the Bell Telephone Company," said Reeve L. E. Kelly. Instead a motion was passed authorizing the company to repair or replace poles as the need arose.

J. C. Wilson requested the position of secretary of the Board of Health but the council decided the Health Board could appoint its own secretary.

A belated letter from S. Miller, County Engineer and Road Superintendent, quoting prices and arrangement for snow plowing facilities for the winter, was read by the clerk.

In a letter from the Department of National War Services, the council was thanked for its decision to hand over the local War Memorial guns to be used as war salvage.

The public liability and property damage insurance covering the streets was renewed with J. L. Doherty, insurance agent.

The request from Fire Chief Fred Dodd that a partially dead tree, which constituted a hazard to a Breithaupt Leather Co. shed be cut was left in the hands of the property committee.

Although it had been tentatively decided at a previous meeting to install an extra metre in the town hall the matter was dropped for the present.

"He has asked for no raise in salary and I don't think the caretaker should be subjected to increased hydro bills," commented Reeve Kelley. The collector's time was extended to the next regular meeting.

During the session, word was received from the Northumberand Victory Loan headquarters in Cobourg that Hastings had not only led the county over the top but was still leading. With one day of the loan still to go the village has now exceeded its quota of $25,000 by 11 per cent and is only $2,500 short of its honorary objective.

"I think that Hastings has established a record to be proud of," Reeve Kelley told council.

Canadian Tanks Favored By The Russians

TORONTO, Mar. 7 — (CP). — In the opinion of Hon. C. D. Howe Canadian Munitions and Supply Minister, the best protection of Canada's shores is to help strengthen the fortress of Britain and "to support the wars in other areas that must be won by the enemy before they can attack our shores."

He told the Institute of Chartered Accountants here last night that that was the best way for the Dominion to protect her own citizens and her own coasts.

In a resume of Canadian war production Mr. Howe declared only a small proportion of that production went to "our own troops either in Canada or abroad."

The greater proportion went to England, he added, explaining that defence of that fortress was what Canada was concentrating on now.

"Canadian weapons are fighting on every battleground of this war," the Munitions and Supply Minister said. The largest proportion went to England. But "great quantities of material" also had been shipped into the Mediterranean areas, into Libya and the Middle East. Large quantities went to Greece when the Battle of Greece was being fought.

Reds Like Caunck Tanks

Tanks had been shipped to Russia "and we're told by the Russians that and tank is the favorite in the battlefront at this time."

Guns and ammunition had been shipped to China. Munitions had been shipped "in considerable quantities' to Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India. Quantities also had gone to the Netherlands East Indies, to Singapore and Burma, and to the Philippines and Honolulu.

Mr. Howe warned that bombs might fall on Canadian cities and that coastal centres might be shelled. But, he added, "we have protection for our coasts and fairly substantial protection....We are not disturbed about raids or shelling, although some damage may result."

The war news "will get worse before it gets better," he told the meeting, but he asked Canadians not to be "unduly depressed" by day-to-day news.

50 Net 5,248

London, March 7 (CP).

A BRITISH officer just returned from Libya said today 50 British artillerymen had captured 5,248 Italians in the North African desert with the aid of 21 dummy soldiers armed with wooden guns.

The dummies were placed in positions to draw the Italian fire while the artillerymen advanced from another direction, declared Capt. P. G. Birkin.

The Italians, thinking they were being outflanked by a superior force, he said, retreated 10 miles and laid down their arms when the British pursued.

Blindness Only One Of Many Underprivileges

"It is not so much the fact that the blind are underprivileged but that others who can see may be overprivileged." So declared D. B. Lawley, blind supervisor of field services for the Canadian National Institute of the Blind, in an address before the Kiwanis Club Friday noon at the Empress Hotel. He was accompanied by H. W. Henry, blind field supervisor for this area. Rev. H. L. Roberts, in introducing the speaker, said Mr. Lawley was blinded about 28 years ago.

Speaking on the subject, "What Is Underprivilege," Mr. Lawley told the meeting this was a topic of interest to Kiwanis because Kiwanis has always sought to aid the underprivileged.

"A normal person is one who is able to keep up with the times. There are always those who cannot do so as a result of physical, mental difficulties or those of environment and many other reasons," he said.

Drawing a comparison between under and overprivileged persons, the speaker pointed out the difference between two ages, that of our parents' childhood and our own. The large comparison in this regard is the two periods of development. "We often think of those living in a past age as being handicapped or underprivileged because they did not have the facilities of science and many other privileges we today enjoy. The only perfect man was Jesus of Nazareth. This being so it leaves us in the position of being imperfect or handicapped.

"I have a bald-headed brother who feels very handicapped socially. Oliver Cromwell had a wart on the side of his nose which caused him to feel slightly handicapped. Red-headed people occasionally feel handicapped.

"Blindness, as bad as it is, is only one of the many handicaps of life. We have five physical senses. When one becomes blind, he must make the other four senses do the work of five—he must use the four senses to reach out and to compensate to some extent for lack of eyesight," he told the meeting.

Mr. Lawley said there are about 12,000 blind persons in Canada, or the equivalent of one person in every thousand. Of this number, 3,700 are in Ontario and there are 54 blind persons within Peterborough county. The Canadian National Institute of the Blind is a national organization which helps the blind by helping them to help themselves.

The first thing the Institute does for a blind person is to send a bright young lady teacher to the home who has been well trained in teaching the blind. She sits down with that person and transforms the home into a more cheerful place by transmitting to the mind of the blind person the secret of making four senses do the work of five.

That is the whole secret of the training. This includes teaching to read and write by braille, knitting, sewing, weaving and many other occupations.

The blind are not all alike. Some lose their sight while quite young, while others have their sight taken from them in later years. One-tenth of blind persons are caused as a result of accidents. The most tragic part of this is that one-third of that number result from children's play accidents. Bows and arrows, air rifles, sling shots, stone-throwing, sharp toys and many other causes are often the means of a child remaining blind for life.

The speaker said that it would not take much effort for a blind person to beg his living from the 1,000 who have sight. "I could get my living from my thousand. But the new point of view is reaching the people through churches, service clubs and other social organizations to make them sympathetic toward the blind.

"This year we will have $450,000 in goods made by the blind for sale. That represents a large earning power. More are employed now than ever before and still more will be employed.

"We have 20,000 volumes of embossed books—every day a quarter-ton of these books are in the mail. The blind are using the library even though they read through their fingers"

As a closing word, Mr. Lawley said that while there was a war on, people should be able to say after it is over that they did not neglect those on the home front who are not so able to care for themselves.

John McKone, Peterborough secretary for the Institute, extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Lawley and this was conveyed by President Gordon Miller.

There are 54 registered blind persons in the city of Peterborough and county of Peterborough, of which five are less than 21 years of age, eight between the ages of 21 and 40, and 41 over the age of 40. Twenty of this number are females, while the balance of 34 are males. Their means of support is as follows: Blind pension 19, municipal relief 2, mothers' allowance 3, workmen's compensation 1, military allowances 3, Institute supplimentary assistance 3, while 28 are supported by private means.

These are benefitting from Institute services as follows: Library service 7, saleroom service 7, concessions 31, employment 1, relief 3.

New Revelation of God Seen In Still Small Voice

By REV. E. R. JAMES

A sound of gentle stillness.
R. V. 1. King 19; 12.

God's purpose in sending a prophet, "a man of God", to His people is that He might through that man reveal something more of His character.

The hour of Elijah's triumph was on Mount Carmel, when the people cried: "The Lord He is God; The Lord He is God". Then followed his hour of failure when Elijah fled into the wilderness from the wrath of Queen Jezebel. Then came God's opportunity to teach Elijah anew truth. He sent him to Mount Horeb. There he faces the storm, the earthquake and the fire. They are the great powers of nature before which man finds himself helpless. But Elijah is a man of the desert. From his youth up he had faced such storms. They had not terrified him. In that sense the Lord was not in the storm, the earthquake or the fire.

Then came "the still small Voice." "A sound of gentle stillness" according to the Revised Version. This is a new revelation of God to the prophet. Elijah does not foretell the future, which some believe is the chief duty of the prophet. But Elijah tells forth the mind of God to his generation and to us, which is a far higher office and privilege. To the prophet this is a new side of God's character. "The Lord of Hosts, before Whom I stand" is his favourite and fascinating claim. That God can be still and quiet and to be heard in the sound of gentle stillness is a striking contrast to the din and whirlwind of battle. Do you desire to hear that still small Voice? Then you also must make the effort and pay the price. "Seek and ye shall find" is a profound spiritual truth.

You must take the time to be quiet. "Be still and know that I am God" is an ancient precept. In the early morning your room is separate and quiet. In a sense it is a wilderness, a separated place. There you can be still and quiet before God. In time it will become "holy ground." Place yourself consciously in His Presence. Let your earliest exclamation be: "Thou God seest me." It is a wonderful truth. Slowly, gradually there will come upon you the "awareness of God" as a great master of the subject tells us.

Then in that "sound of gentle stillness" offer your morning sacrifice of prayer and praise and thanksgiving. You are preparing yourself to withstand the storm, the earthquake and the fire which seems to be near at hand for our generation.

Above all you must take time to mediate upon some short portion of God's word. "Take this Book and eat it" was the Divine command to the prophet. "And I did eat it and it was in my mouth as honey for sweetness." Which, being interpreted, means sympathy with the thought of God. This will be your experience also.

The writer is taking the liberty of telling you his own experience in a day of crisis many years ago. In his reading that night were these words: "The hireling fleeth because he is a hireling." That was the Master's challenge to His servant. Though clouds and darkness were around him he obeyed and continued in that place. As he looks back over the years he feels convinced that this was "the still small Voice" of the Head of the Church.

God's purpose in this dark day of horror is that the ordinary man or woman shall have such a personal touch with God that in the day of storm he may stand calm and full of spiritual courage because he has been strengthened in the inner man. "He will not be afraid of any evil tidings because his heart standeth fast and believeth in the Lord. In quietness and confidence shall be your strength."

The Lord God revealeth his secrets unto his servants.

The Golden Text

"Wine is a mocker . . . And whosoever erreth thereby is not wise." —Proverbs 20:1.

Christianity and Democracy Must Go Together in World

A phrase which has become quite common during the war is "the arsenal of democracy". We speak of Canada or the United States as the arsenal of democracy. We generally mean that these countries will provide the munitions of war by which democracy can be defended and retained as the type of society in those countries.

This indeed is a great honor that has come to Canadians and they should appreciate the heroic efforts of the men and women that work in their war industries. They have long hours and heavy work and most of them are stimulated by the highest motives.

The phrase however is capable of another interpretation. Is there not a close connection between Christianity and democracy? Our method of government is after all a cumbersome, slow method compared to that of the dictators. Why do we cling to it? The answer is that we have a leven of Christianity in our souls which makes no other method possible. The Christian view of God, and man, and of their mutual relations, ties us with this system and indeed make dictatorship impossible to us. Is there a sense then in which our religion is the arsenal of democracy? What kind of democracy does the Christian religion stand for? Have we got that kind of democracy at present? These are vital questions for us in these stirring days.

They will be dealt with at the evening service in St. Andrew's Church on next Sunday night.

Havelock Students Present Tennyson Program

HAVELOCK, March 7—(ENS). — The High School literary meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon. The financial statement showed the receipts of the commencement to be $59.50, and the expenses of the skating party were $9.00, leaving a bank balance of $100.45.

A committee made up of a representative from each room was named to decide on how to spend the money. Entrance Class were guests for the program. The poet chosen for this meeting was Lord Alfred Tennyson, and his life history was told by Miss Ruth Peters. Some of his best poems were read by Misses Laura Menzie Ruth Wilkinson, Faye Spooner, Betty Holdcroft, and Dora Ketchen. A vocal solo, "Swing Low, Swing High," was sung by Miss Margaret Anderson, accompanied by Miss Dora Ketchen.

Principal R. W. Goheen conducted a science quiz with one student on each team from Forms 3, 4 and 5, namely Captain Helen McMullen, Eva Dafoe, and Betty Clarke, against Captain Doris Dafoe, Laura Menzie, and Allan Goheen, with the latter team winning.

Trail Rangers Earn Degrees.

The Trail Rangers held their meeting in the United Church on Wednesday evening with an attendance of 19 members. The meeting opened with the Ranger ceremony, and the devotional period was taken by Gordon Southward using the theme "Good Samaritan."

The mentor, James Watson, explained to the Pathfinders what was necessary to receive a Pioneer Degree. Allan Goheen and Clarence Price qualified for their handicraft badges and Carleton Longmuir and Douglas Grayling for their electrician's badges. The canceled hockey game (bad weather) to be played at Keene is scheduled to be played as soon as the ice becomes fit again.

Afternoon Tea.

The Centre Group of the Women's Association of the United Church held a delightful afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. Tom Page on Thursday afternoon which was well attended. The ladies were asked to bring their knitting or fancy work in place of a program. The refreshments were dainty and delicious, and were served by Mrs. C. Roberts, Mrs. R. Campney, Mrs. R. Brown, and Mrs. Page

The East-end Group of the W.A. met at the home of Mrs. Clifford Scott and the West-end Group at the home of Mrs. Harry Hubble on Wednesday, and each group completed a quilt.

Discovering Why People Drink Beverage Alcohol

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 8 is Genesis 43:34; Psalm 104:14, 15, Proverbs 31: 4-7; Ecclesiastes 2: 1-3, 10, 11; Isaiah 56:12; I Cor. 10:6, 7, the Golden Text being Proverbs 20:1, "Wine is a mocker . . . And whosoever erreth thereby is not wise.")

THE FIRST reference in today's lesson is Genesis. Joseph, whose brothers had sold him into slavery, had risen to be the most important man in all Egypt under the Pharaoh. He had interpreted the Pharaoh's dream of the seven prosperous years for Egypt, followed by years of famine, and been given charge of storing the grain during the time of plenty, and of wisely distributing it when famine came.

Famine had come, too, to Israel, and Jacob, Joseph's father, had sent his sons to Egypt to buy grain that they might not perish. Joseph recognized his brothers who had wrong him, but they did not suspect who he was. He asked them questions about his father and younger brother, Benjamin, and told them to go home and bring Benjamin with them, and he held one brother, Simeon, as hostage so that they would surely return with Benjamin.

Joseph Makes Himself Known

Then, when Benjamin had come with his older brothers, Joseph made himself known to them, and invited them to a feast. He gave them food, but to Benjamin he gave five times as much as he gave the others. Perhaps, one commentator suggests Joseph wanted to see if the brothers still were envious and would be jealous of Benjamin. They evidently were not, had conquered this weakness which had caused them to be so cruel to Joseph, and they ate and "drank and were merry with him."

There was no drinking to excess in this feast which Joseph made for his repentant brothers. They ate and drank and were happy, but, self-controlled.

Do we ever think enough and give adequate thanks for the goodness of our Maker? As the psalmist says, "He causeth the grass to grow for the cattle, and herbs for the service of man: that he may bring forth food out of the earth. And wine that maketh glad the heart of man, and oil to make his face to shine, and bread which strengtheneth man's heart.".

We talk of "our" crops, our prosperity, etc., when if it were not for the fertility of the soil and the sunshine and showers, all our labors would be in vain. We are fed by God's bounty, even given wine, which "maketh glad the heart of man" if used as it was intended, not in fermented liquors that, when drunk freely, make people mad—as they surely do. We should daily bless the Lord for His goodness to the children of men.

A queen whose name we do not know had a son named Lemuel. To him this unknown queen wrote. "It is not for kings, O Lemuel, it is not for kings to drink wine; nor for prince strong drink: Lest they drink and forget the law, and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted."

Strong drink is bad for any man or woman, high or low, but to him who has charge of the affairs of a nation it is fatal. His judgment is distorted. Things that should be important seem trivial to him; and things that really are of little moment seem vital. Especially in these chaotic days, no one who has a position of trust should drink. The world needs calm, considered thought and deeds, not muddled ones. Drinking may make men in high places forget the law, and "pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted," as the queen mother wrote.

In the second chapter of Ecclesiastes, King Solomon tells about his search for happiness. He tried merriment, feasting, great works such as building, planting of vineyards, gardens and orchards. He even tried drinking and other follies, but "retained his wisdom," so that he soon found that all these things that he had tried were vanity. Men drink to be gay, to drown their sorrows; they spend the money that should feed their families on intoxicating beverages. And after all, they find it is not real gaiety they have discovered; that their sorrows have not vanished, but are more troubling than ever, and, like King Solomon, they feel that "all is vanity" worth less than nothing.

Our Golden Text sums up all that we could say about the evil of strong drink. King Solomon, noted for his wisdom, found it to be the truth, that "Wine is a mocker . . . and whosoever erreth thereby is not wise."

W.M.S. Hears Mrs. Herbert

WESTWOOD, March 1—(ENS)—Mrs. A. C. Herbert of Hastings was the guest speaker at the March meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S., held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. W. Sargent. The speaker held the rapt attention of the large group of ladies as she told of her experiences, and those of her husband, Rev. A. C. Herbert, of Hastings Anglican church, while they were missionaries for six years in the far Arctic lands. While she described the primitive customs, the hunger for the Christian religion, and the living problems of the Esquimaux, she disclosed a great love for these people and expressed the hope that some day they would return to the far north to carry on this noble work. Rare specimens of deft handiwork of these northern women and girls were exhibited to a very interested group.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Herbert for her excellent address.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. James Clysdale. Prayer was offered by Miss Jessie Davidson, and Mrs. Aubrey Wood rendered a lovely solo.

After singing the hymn "My Faith locks up to Thee," the quarterly tea was served by members of the group of which Mrs. W. Morris is convener.

Diminishing Tea Planned

MILLBROOK, Mar. 7—(ENS).—A warm welcome was accorded Mrs. P. I. Bentley, president of the W. A. of St. Andrew's Church, when she was able to take over the duties of her office at the regular meeting on Wednesday afternoon, after a serious illness requiring an operation and some time spent in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough.

"Our High Calling" was the devotional theme, Mrs. Franklin Bannister giving the talk, Mrs. F. J. Smith reading the lesson, and Mrs. Edmund Ball offering prayer.

A donation of $8.00 from the Fallis Line pot-luck supper was reported, over $30.00 having come in from these events, with several more yet to be held. Under new business, it was also decided to begin the diminishing teas in the near future, the first hostess to invite four guests who will carry on, with as many others from other communions as may be desirable.

Following the meeting, the hostess Mrs. J. McKnight, served afternoon tea with her mother, Mrs. George Locke, pouring tea at a lace-covered table centred with a silver basket of roses. Assisting were Mrs. Freda Erskine, Mrs. F. Bannister, Miss Sutton, and Mrs. P. Perrin, sister of the hostess. A number of other guests outside the W.A. membership came in to enjoy the social occasion. One new member, Mrs. A. R. Payne, was enrolled and welcomed at Wednesday's meeting.

NORWOOD, March 7—(ENS). — The Young People's Union of Norwood United Church, acted as 'host' to the Young People's Societies of Knox Presbyterian, Christ Church (Anglican) and the Baptist Church, Norwood, at their meeting held in the Sunday School room on Monday evening. There was a good representation from all the societies.

This was followed by a number of contests, and games, and a musical program. At the conclusion all adjourned to the basement where a number of more strenuous games were indulged in.

After the close refreshments were much enjoyed. A vote of thanks was extended to the United Church young people, by a representative from each of the visiting societies, and a very happy evening brought to a close.

Why People Drink Beverage Alcohol — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Genesis 43:34; Psalm 104:14, 15; Proverbs 31:4-7; Eccles. 2:1-3, 10, 11; Isaiah 56:12; I Cor. 10:6, 7.

The Lord causeth the grass to grow for cattle and herb for the service of man: that he may bring forth food out of the earth.

The Lord maketh the wine "that maketh glad the heart of man, and oil to make his face to shine, and bread which strengtheneth man's heart."

It is not for kings to drink wine; nor for princes strong drink: lest they drink, and forget the law, and pervert the judgment of the afflicted

King Solomon tried wine and folly, but found all that was vanity and vexation of spirit and there was no profit in it. (GOLDEN TEXT—Proverbs 20:1)

A Normal Tax Rate

The general effect of the municipal budget adopted by the council this week is a decrease of 2.7 mills from the tax levy of 1941 without any trenching upon the accustomed public and community services. Approval and applause of the ratepayers for this accomplishment is not all directed to the city council, not when it is realized that the Board of Education is entitled to credit for a substantial part of that margin of reduction, as a matter of final fact 1.66 mills of the 2.7 mills.

Analysis of the new 30-mill rate divides it into three sections, one for general purposes such as upkeep of streets, parks, fire and police departments, and so on; another section is described in the accounting as special rates including education and other social services; and the third is compact of the city's debt.

General purposes in last year's rate amounted to 12.82 mills as compared with 12.23 mills for 1942. Most of that represents the council sphere of control, and a glance at the fractional difference downward indicates that the council in its own field was not able to accomplish much in lightening the current tax obligations. The reduction was actually .59 mills, and against that was the small increase in the garbage rate, from .7 mills last year to .83 this year. So, the council in this third year of the war actually presents a reduction in the municipal tax rate of less than half a mill, that is as a fruit of its own endeavors.

On the other hand, municipal housekeeping will not miss so much as one swish of the broom, nor a rub of the polishing cloth. Pavements will be flushed, macadam roads will be oiled, rock will be crushed at the quarry for mending the roads, parks will be planted and mown, and so on down the line; everything will go on as usual. Not one little sign of disarrangement appears along the pleasant and familiar horizon so near to us that some of our houses on the hills seem to be part of it. Ratepayers surely realize by this time that there has been scant slack for the council to take up in its direct financial control of things; nothing much more could be done without stepping on toes, shutting down operations here and there; briefly without spending as much money as usual. Any little move in that direction encounters wages and salaries, and the council's only recourse since last July has been to pay the cost of living bonus to all its employees. Relief has disappeared almost to a shadow, but the municipal pay envelopes, with so many others in the land, have taken on a bit of weight.

So, if the council itself has not done a great deal in the way of pruning, its restraint has been caused more by lack of opportunity than by weakness of will. It has kept things intact and content.

The Board of Education's requisition this year was down from 12.60 mills last year to 10.94, a margin of 1.68 mills, quite a slice of that 2.7 mills. Presumably, the Board, maintaining its salary standards, finds less need of expenditure in the maintenance of its property. Again, the requirement of the City Trust Commission for municipal debt purposes shows a slight reduction from 5.2 mills last year to an even 5 mills, and then the Utilities Commission came through with a cheque for $12,000 to the city treasurer.

The composition of the new tax rate is, then: General purposes, 12.23 mills; garbage, .83 mills; special rates, 11.94 mills, and City Trust, 5 mills. The new rate for Separate School supporters is 31.73 mills, as compared with 33.34 mills last year. Incidentally, the relief rate of .86 mills last year is now only .47 mills in the 1942 tax bill. And, as the garbage area has been extended for the first time to all boundaries of the city, the levy is no longer set apart, but is incorporated in the general tax rate.

The citizen who contemplates offering his services to the community as a member of the council should know that his supervision is circumscribed to something less than 12 mills at present; and not all of that part of the taxes, because those mere twelve mills include such items as the estimates of the Police Commission, the Public Library, the Suburban Area Commission and some others.

The 1942 budget is snugly adjusted in all directions to that increasing luxury we call our pattern of living, even to the flowers in the parks, the normal aspects of our civilization, the decencies of life. Perhaps we shall all esteem them more keenly this year in the shadow of encroaching challenge.

What Britons Are Enduring

"Misery likes company"—an old saw, of course, and yet it expresses a truism which is right up to date, though perhaps the word "misery" is a little strong. The reference is to the tightening up, cutting down, putting on price ceilings and all the rest that is making people in this country get along without many things they have had in abundance, ordinarily, before the war. First one notice comes out and then another from government authorities saying something or other "has to go" or be strictly limited and so on.

These facts affect us; they make us realize to some extent that there's a bitter conflict going on over in Europe, Africa, Asia and the Orient, but all of those places are a long, long distance away. What are the living conditions of the every-day man and woman in those battle theatres? It's easier to reconcile one's self to getting along on a "shoe string" if everybody else has to do the same. Well, here is some information gleaned from press dispatches and special articles from overseas correspondents:

The stores of London, Eng., no longer have cups, tea and coffee pots, knives, spoons, forks, kettles, sauce pans and frying pans for sale, except a few every now and then.

Gadgets, like meat-grinders and coffee mills, are impossible to get and no one can buy mechanical refrigerators.

Trivial little articles like hair pins, so common in Canada, are not obtainable and beauty parlors have now taken to collecting dropped hair pins with a magnet, sterilizing them and then using them over again. Some people are resorting to bent wire which they twist and file smooth at the ends.

Tobaccos have become almost prohibitive, cigarettes being sold one by one in many parts of the Islands because that saves wrapping paper. Fresh fruit is a great luxury. Occasionally, Canadian apples reach the markets but they disappear a few hours after displayed. Oranges may only be purchased for very sick people or children under six years of age.

In order to get a good example in a campaign for conservation of fuel, the Government in London a short time ago ordered all hot water in its 18,000 buildings to be cut off and the offices must never exceed 60 degrees of heat. People in the cities of Canada want 70 degrees of heat in their homes and apartments and often have 75 to 80 degrees.

The clothes-ration law requires that before garments can be bought every man, woman or child must present coupons as well as money before a purchase can be made and the maximum coupon allowance for adults is 66 per year.

These are only a few of the sacrifices the people in the British Isles have to undergo and thousands of arrests have been made of violators of the law, rich and poor alike being brought to court. So life isn't so bad in this prosperous, free Dominion of ours after all!

The Premier's Assurance

It is reassuring to members of Parliament, who have been complaining that their mail has been censored, to be informed by Prime Minister King that there has been no political purpose whatever involved. Rather, what has been done has been in the interests of military safety. He has wisely suggested that the Leaders of the Conservative, C.C.F. and Social Credit groups meet and confer with him that he may impart to them what should not be given out publicly lest enemy agents in this country might use it to advantage.

Parliament in theory is supreme. It makes the laws and therefore members of Parliament, because of their office, are supposed to be a few notches higher than the people for whom the laws are made, but experience has shown that they are also quite human at times. They may make mistakes like non-members. They might, unintentionally, write to some person outside the House what would convey a suggestion, or fact, which might get into the hands of traitors; or, people might put information in letters addressed to members what would be much better kept secret because of the same danger.

Now that the Premier makes it clear that there was no attempt whatever to pry into members' mail for any other intent than to avoid leakage of important matters which might be used to the advantage of enemies, both members and the public at large will be ready, undoubtedly, to co-operate in maintaining strict secrecy. The feeling was that there was political "scouting" going on.

Revolutionary Discovery

It takes 1,000 pounds of aluminum to make a fighter plane, but a new alloy has been evolved which is much stronger than that metal and of which only 640 pounds are needed to do the same work. Only a scientist or an engineer can grasp the full implications of this discovery, but it is sufficiently startling to cause wide enthusiasm and interest among laymen

Enthusiasm will be particularly high in Canada, for the discovery of this alloy is the work of one of our scientists on the National Research Council. He is Dr. Lloyd M. Pidgeon of Montreal, a graduate student of McGill University. His discovery has already been made available to the U.S. government and scientists on both sides of the border have testified to its immense value and importance. What it will mean to war industry generally it is impossible at the moment to say, but its effect will undoubtedly be revolutionary.

Those of us who have no expert knowledge are apt to forget the work done by scientists in modern war. The day has passed when bravery and fortitude alone could be counted upon to turn the tide of battle. They may still do so in certain striking and isolated instances, but in the long run brains are the weapons which count. The trend of civilization since the Industrial Revolution has been to bridge the gap which is thought to exist between the man of action and the man of thought, and to share the burden more equally between them. We have heard many times that several men are needed in the factory to supply one man in the field with what he needs, but there must be scientists and thinkers behind those workers in the factory.

This is a cheering reflection, for we know that in a contest of brains we shall win in the long run. Nazi science and Nazi thought are extraordinarily efficient as far as they go, but they do not go so far as the free science and the free thought of democracy. We know enough to let our thinkers alone, for it is in an atmosphere of complete freedom that they work best.

NOTE AND COMMENT

March is traditionally supposed to come in like a lion and go out like a lamb. At present the two beasts seem to be chasing each other in small circles.

A Chinese citizen explains that he has been buying Victory Bonds "because they are so pretty." They will look even prettier in a few years.

Britain is reported to be building planes for Russia in disused mine workings, safe from air raids. On the principle, perhaps, of "What's mine is U.S.S.R.'s."

When planes fly over ships to protect them they are referred to as an "umbrella." Somehow that word has associations which we do not like. But perhaps, after all, it is to keep off a rain of fire.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Kitchener Record, says: "Hundreds of new war songs have been offered to Tin Pan Alley. What we need is bullets, not ballads." The trouble is, so many of the ballads are duds.

A sailor in the British merchant marine went to school with Hitler, and describes the youthful Fuehrer as sickly and discontented. Maybe it was the ideological conflict involved in attending a little Red schoolhouse.

Several of our contemporaries are complaining that Canada is wasting its time with a plebiscite while the war is going against us in the East. But as it is certain that we are going to have a plebiscite, and as several weeks must elapse before it is taken, would it not be wiser to get on with the war of production in the interim, instead of wasting time in criticism which must be fruitless?

FOR CHILDREN IN THE WAR

Lord, here our children run and shout and play,
Live like small kings throughout their fearless day,
And lift their eager gaze to where on high,
Along the shining highways of the sky,
Man's brightest eagle wheels his gleaming wings;
While there—amid the piles of broken things—
The small ones run, and hide, and go in fear,
Each time they see the shining wings draw near.

Lord! Of this conflict this the dreadest part!
Take these small frightened ones into Thy heart!

A Mighty Novel Of Today And Yesterday

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

MOST of us who are interested in books take good care to study the opinions of Mr. Clifton Fadiman, who is undoubtedly the most popular reviewer writing on this continent today. You notice that I say 'the most popular' rather than 'the best.' Mr. Fadiman is an eminently able and discerning critic, but in his profession great popularity is not compatible with the highest sort of work. The conditions under which it must be done are too hard, and his time too short, to enable him to be more than a brilliant will-o'-the-wisp, rushing lightly before that horde of panting enthusiasts who must always be reading 'the latest.' How many of them, I wonder, were rudely shocked a few weeks ago when Mr. Fadiman wrote his weekly article, not upon the latest wonder to fall from the press, but on "War And Peace," written by Count Leo Nikolaevich Tolstoy, which first astonished the world in 1872?

"It occurred to me," says Mr. Fadiman, "that it might be interesting for once to review a book we all know to be good and which, though composed many years ago, preserves an appeal far fresher and more powerful than almost any of the books I have been writing about and you have been reading about in these columns for the last few seasons." He might have gone the whole hog and left out that 'almost.' "War and Peace" is admitted by most critics to be the greatest novel ever written, and the last few years have not been especially rich in rivals for that position.

One of the world's greatest books, it is also one of the longest. To set about the task of reading it requires no small amount of curiosity and courage. But hundreds of thousands of readers have made the attempt, and I have never heard of one who was disappointed. "War and Peace" is one of those books which are hard work to read, but when it is once finished the reader becomes conscious of an enrichment of his personal experience which increases with the passing years. It is the greatest work of a man of genius, and to read it is to enter a new world, a world which the reader will never completely forget. The scope of the novel is tremendous. It tells of Russia during the Napoleonic Wars, and particularly of the French emperor's attempt to invade and subjugate that vast country. It is this theme which gives the book such remarkable timeliness at this moment.

"War and Peace" is no dull novelist's reconstruction of a military campaign. To the layman few things are as dull as these dreary rehearsals of victories and failures long past. The disastrous rush to Moscow which proved so costly to the Corsican tyrant is used chiefly as a background for an astounding variety of characters. Old Russia had a carefully stratified society, with a nobility, a small middle class, and a class of peasants and serfs; such a society is a gift to a novelist, as it presents contrasts of wealth and poverty, cultivation and ignorance, sensitivity and stolidity which give variety to his scene. There are literally hundreds of characters in "War and Peace" and not one of them is stuffed with sawdust; every one is a living man or woman, and every one of them has a bearing on the story. The war is the central theme, of course, but it is seen through so many eyes that its great complexity is, as it were, painlessly conveyed to the reader; and there are passages, as for instance that describing the appalling retreat from Moscow, which are breath-taking in their sustained high emotion.

Critics who like to search for the mainspring of a writer's genius have made their usual post mortem investigation on Tolstoy, but he has defeated them. But two of his most striking characteristics are plain to anyone who reads "War and Peace." They are his extraordinary inclusiveness and his lack of conventional morality. Perhaps they are parts of the same thing. Holstoy found nothing too small, too base, too sentimental or too hackneyed to be used in his book. He does not seem to have known that certain sentiments and situations are very old stuff to novel-readers, and as he handles them they seem new and fresh. Similarly, he seems not to have been repelled by anything; no baseness of the body or of the spirit was outside his sympathy. And he was as happy to lavish his descriptive skill upon a trifling domestic scene as upon the reverses of the great Napoleon. Like a giant in a fairy-tale, Tolstoy could make himself large or small at will. In his extraordinary inclusiveness he is reminiscent of Shakespeare, of whom, by the bye, he had a very poor opinion.

And why does Mr. Fadiman recommend this book as particularly suitable reading at present? Because, although the rigid distinctions of class have been swept away, the Russians who are fighting Hitler are very much the same as those who fought Napoleon, and it seems that they will prevail now as they did then. Furthermore, the reading, or re-reading of such a work as "War and Peace" gives us a better perspective upon the history of our own time; there has been trouble before this, and there will be trouble in centuries to come. We must cease to waste time in our modern trouble merely in admiring its magnitude and in staring in fascinated horror at its effects, and see that we play our parts in it as nobly as we may. It is from such a situation that "War and Peace" was born, and we may provide matter for such another book.

• Hitler Still Main Threat

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Although it is disaster in the Southern Pacific zone that has fanned the outcry in some quarters in Britain against Prime Minister Churchill's war leadership, there is no reason to believe that any fundamental change in Allied strategy would result if Churchill fell.

The war concept evolved by the Roosevelt-Churchill conferences in Washington has never been in doubt. It rests on the conclusion, often stated by both men, that the Atlantic, not the Pacific, is the main war front; that Germany, not Japan, is the enemy the anti-Axis Allies must concentrate against.

If Sir Stafford Cripps is to become Britain's Prime Minister, as some London despatches suggest on undisclosed authority, there would be no changes in that concept. Sir Stafford stands no less for centring the Allied attack in Europe and the Atlantic than does Churchill. He sees Hitler's eastern line, his Russian front, as his vulnerable flank. He is for all-out Anglo-American aid to Russia for that reason.

MUST RECKON WITH U.S.

Nor is there doubt that Roosevelt shares that view, which is important, whoever heads Britain's war effort. The means of victory in ships, in men, in planes and tanks and all the rest must come from the United States. It follows, therefore, that British political circles, writhing under the string of repeated and costly defeats in the Pacific—and most of all over the fall of Singapore—must reckon with American reaction to proposals for a change in British leadership.

British war leadership is no longer an exclusively British affair. To many observers on this side of the Atlantic the new hue and cry for Churchill's scalp looks much like an effort to sound out American public opinion.

It savors of an effort by Churchill's political enemies at home to capitalize on American public restlessness under the tide of defeat in the Pacific; the natural popular urge for offensive action against Japan. London politicians are fully aware of that undercurrent in the United States.

NO DIVERSION FROM HITLER

There is nothing to indicate Washington official reaction to the talk of substituting Sir Stafford for Churchill at the British war helm. No direct disclosure is to be expected, whatever is going on behind the scenes.

There is every evidence, however, that Washington still is bent on striking hardest at Hitler and not being diverted from that purpose by unhappy developments in the Pacific. In proof of that can be cited heavy reinforcement of the American Expeditionary Force in Northern Ireland. It was carried out despite urgent need to bolster Dutch defense of Java and to stiffen the Australian front against a possible Japanese surge southeastward.

The exact role that American force in North Ireland is expected to play in the war has never been disclosed. A variety of reasons, both military and psychological, for its creation and expansion can be surmised. Nor does the fact that the most recent contingent landed was ferried through seas teeming with Axis submarines tend to lessen the conclusion that it has a highly important element in United Nation strategy. The risks were very great.

SIGNIFICANT MOVES

The ultimate place of Ireland, all Ireland, in the war picture might be affected by a shifting from British to American shoulders of the burden of its defense against possible Nazi invasion. That is an intangible aspect of the move.

Beyond that, it is obvious that British Army or air forces relieved by American troops in Ireland or the British Isles immediately become available for combat use elsewhere. With arrival of substantial American units on the home front, it is logical to expect a shifting of Imperial forces to augment the defense of North Africa, the vitally essential Near Eastern oil resources, and India, or to aid Russia against a new Nazi drive toward the Caucasus and its oil treasures . The British troops have been longer under arms and may be presumed to be more advanced in training, better prepared for combat than the Americans relieving them in the British Isles.

Churchill spokesmen have assured Parliament that the Royal Air Force, strengthened by new American battle planes of the latest type, will batter at the German foe increasingly to aid Russia. The bombing of French factories in the Paris area, working on Nazi war material, was a token of that purpose. And if American pilots as well as planes are to share in that stepped-up air attack on Germany in spring, American-manned bases in North Ireland will be useful.

"That's right, sir, and I have," was the prompt reply. "Watching the Home Guards' rotten drilling outside has put years on me!"

A Bible Message For Today . . .

Now this is the copy of the letter that the king Artaxerxes gave unto Ezra the priest, the scribe, even a scribe of the words of the commandments of the Lord, and of his statutes to Israel.

I make a decree, that all they of the people of Israel, and of his priests and Levites, in my realm, which are minded of their own free will to go up to Jerusalem, go with thee. Forasmuch as thou art sent of the king, and of his seven counsellors, to enquire concerning Judah and Jerusalem, according to the law of thy God which is in thine hand.

And thou, Ezra, after the wisdom of thy God, that is in thine hand, set magistrates and judges, which may judge all the people that are beyond the river, all such as know the laws of thy God; and teach ye them that know them not.—Ezra vii, 11, 13, 14, 25.

And now, O ye priests, this commandment is for you....And ye shall know that I have sent this commandment unto you, that my covenant might be with Levi, saith the Lord of hosts.

The law of truth was in his mouth, and iniquity was not found in his lips: he walked with me in peace and equity, and did turn many away from iniquity. For the priest's lips should keep knowledge, and they should seek the law at his mouth: for he is the messenger of the Lord of hosts.—Mal. ii, 1, 4, 6, 7.

Women's Art Association Sees Exhibit By Noted Canadian Artist

Manly Macdonald, distinguished Canadian artist, gave a lecture in paint to the Women's Art Association of Canada on Friday evening. That is to say, Mr. Macdonald, rather than attempt to explain in words his method of working, demonstrated it by painting a picture before the fascinated eyes of his audience. To the ignorant layman it looked as if he simply waved his brush and summon life and color to the canvas.

The picture was a copy of a larger canvas hanging on the wall. A scene of drifted snow edging the cold blue-black waters of a creek, with the strong curve of a hill in the background and a red barn at its foot. It did not seem possible that such a picture could be painted under conditions and in so short a time; but what Mr. Macdonald produced, although not such a finished product as the original, was still a living, breathing picture.

He explained that, while some men like to paint their pictures in the studio, working from a number of sketches; he preferred to finish the job on the spot, making several trips back to the same scene. This method necessitates speed, especially when light is an important factor in the picture.

It is difficult to choose for individual mention any one of the large collection brought by Mr. Macdonald for the exhibit; all were very beautiful and nearly all were faithful representatives of familiar Ontario scenes. He seems to be partial to horses, one of the most attractive pictures was one of horses drinking in a shady stream in summer, the cool gray walls of an old stone mill in the background and the spreading branches of an ancient tree shading the stream.

His treatment of the teeming, incredible color of our Ontario scenes is amazing. He brings it all to the canvas, from the bold, strong clarion colors of fall to the subtle, muted suggestion of color which clothes our hardwoods in the winter; and the bewildering variety of summer green. And how he captures the fickle blue of our changing skies. It does not seem possible that a man could put on canvas that constantly varying blue of sky and water that nevertheless, seems always the same in quality. The snow in his pictures is so natural it almost melts; the soft curve of a drift, the fluffy softness of freshly broken snow, the blue shadows and the white gleam of sunlight are all there.

Mrs. C. S. Thompson, president, was in the chair, and announced that the association would hold a tea on April 10 to raise funds for war work. Agnes Logan Green's recital has been changed from April 10 to April 17. At the next meeting Miss Elizabeth Wynwood will give an exhibit of soap sculpture.

IMPRESSION OF QUIET RESTFULNESS IS RADIATED IN NEW ANNEX TO HOSPITAL

Hundreds of women who visited the new addition to Nicholls Hospital were agreeably surprised and impressed with the unique decorative scheme that was carried out in the building. It consists of painting the walls and ceilings to harmonize with the floor coverings and furnishings, and the results are to say the least, most striking.

An impression of quiet restfulness and comfort is radiated by the lovely tones in the building, and the first glimpse of the long corridor with a green floor covering is refreshing because the walls done in two tones of grey green please the eye.

The colors might best be described as elusive, two of the rooms are in an ashes of roses shade and the other rooms in a warm, creamy mushroom tone that would delight the heart of any woman who loves a home that is decorated in cosy, harmonizing tones.

Jack Smith, of Smith Bros., well-known painting and decorating firm of this city says the materials used in the hospital came on the market about two years ago, and is a favorite with him, because of the unlimited combinations that can be worked out. "Any shade a woman wants can be obtained, matching drapes, furniture, and floor coverings, thus a pleasing arrangement can be had at little cost without purchasing new articles for the room."

"The paint used is fine for new homes where the walls are getting a little dirty and yet the plaster is not dry enough for ordinary paint or wall paper. The paint is what is known as a water paint and it has made a great hit with customers and contractors alike."

Another worthwhile feature to this type of paint is that it can be washed without damage should it become soiled, and either wallpaper or any other paint may be put on over top of it.

Any further information on this new scheme of decorating may be obtained from any member of Smith Bros. firm or by calling Jack W. Smith, 546 Waterford street. (Advt.)

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, March 8.

Sunday's horoscope may be favorable for all manner of spiritual, cultural, community, group and public affairs, which should rise to heights of activity and promise. Nevertheless there may be signs of delay, disruptions and surprising turns of events, which may be hopelessly nullified and bungled by indulgence in arguments, quarrels, rash and impetuous conduct. With caution in this respect there should be much harmony and gratification.

Those whose birthday it is may have a successful and prosperous year if they will shun all reckless, violent wayward and impetuous behavior carrying it to excess and regret. A diplomatic, tactful, courteous and carefully planned strategy, especially in public and group affairs, may avert dangerous, disintegrating and disappointing circumstances and defeat. Make no hasty or rash decisions. Guard aagainst accidents, when travelling against accidents when travelling

A child born on this day may be disposed to be reckless, headstrong, passionate and violent, erratic and ungovernable, thus inviting self-defeat.

For Monday, March 9.

Monday's astrological forecast is not a propitious one, showing prospect of danger and self-undoing through indulgent, extravagant, excessive and unwarranted practices which are bound to run at cross purposes with the best interests and to arouse the antagonism of those in high places and authority.

An overweaning pursuit of pleasure may lead to loss of credit, standing and also influential friends and well wishers. Safeguard these rigidly.

Those whose birthday it is may be the creators of their own defeat and downfall by indulgence or an exaggerated pursuit of pleasure, with extravagance. unwarranted outlay of funds and other excesses arousing the opposition of friends and those in place and power. Safeguard these, and the financial credit, as well as personal reputation and happiness, will remain steadfast.

A child born on this day should have early training and discipline in economy, thrift and honor with a moderation of its aims toward indulgence. It should be personally popular and attractive.

Trent River News

Mrs. John Stone and family of Burleigh Falls are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Tedford this week.

Group No. 2 of the United Church Ladies' Aid held a quilting and 10c tea at the home of Mrs. Wm. Thain on Thursday afternoon with a large attendance on hand. Mrs. Gordon Shearer, leader of the group is ill at her home and all wish for a speedy recovery.

Mr. Albert McGowan who has resided near the village for some years has sold his farm to Mr. J. L. Hay and moved to Havelock this week. His many local friends will wish him well in his new home.

Following the mild weather of the past few days the highway workers on No. 30 lost no time in getting out and grading the road surface and as a consequence the stretch from Havelock to Campbellford is in very fine shape. The sideroads however are very rutty and not too good and before driving too far on them one should make inquiries about their passability.

The river has opened up considerably this week and much ice has gone out. Local trappers are looking to their outfits and drawing trapping roots to convenient spots along their trap lines in preparation for the muskrat season which has not yet been announced by the Department in Toronto. Mr. Henry Pollock, Trent River, grand old man is busily engaged with the assistance of Mr. Geo. Johnson in constructing and repairing canoes for local trappers. Mr. Pollock is in his 84th year, still hale and hearty and capable of building a canoe as well as ever.

Word has reached Trent River of the death in Toronto this week of Mr. Harry Smeaton of that city. The late Mr. Smeaton was well known to a great many in this section having been the superintendent at Healey's Falls when that big power plant and dam was constructed about 30 years ago and many of his former employees and friends reside in the village. He was highly respected by all who knew him and his passing is regretted.

YOU CANNOT DEPEND ON "LOVE LIGHT" IN MEN'S EYES

He's Only Serious When He Pops The Question or Starts Making a Home.

Dear Miss Dix: How can a girl tell whether a boy loves her or not? What are the signs of love than a man displays?

—GEORGETTE.

ANSWER: There are only two signs of love that a girl is justified in taking seriously. One is when a man pops the question and offers to undertake her shopping ticket and board bill for life. The other is when he rolls up his sleeves and goes to work to try to make a home for her. All the balance is just guess work. Put no dependence on what a man says to you. He may swear by all that you are the one and only woman in the world for him, that he has never loved before and that he will commit suicide if you do not return his affection. But there is no possible way of your knowing whether he is speaking the truth, or merely trying to entertain you with soothing conversation. Virtually all men have a line that they hand out to every girl and you may be the 57th one whom he has asked where has she been all this time that he has never met her, and told that he had been looking for her all his life. So until a man backs up his sweet talk with a bona fide proposal and mentions the wedding day just lend him your ears. Don't give him your heart. You have no touchstone by which you can tell whether he is telling the truth or just passing the time.

Lies In Men's Eyes

Thousands of girls write to me that they have been going "steady" with boys for years, who take them about and give them a good time, but who never mention the state of their affections. These girls say that they KNOW the boys love them because they see it in their eyes. Stuff and nonsense! A girl sees in a boy's eyes just what she wants to see. They are the mirror of her own wishful thinking and the light that lies in them just lies and lies and lies.

Nor is any girl psychic enough to interpret the expression of a boy's face. What she thinks is a yearning look likely as not is just indigestion, and that tender touch with which he helps her off with her coat may not indicate his secret love for her. It may be just part of the technique of his being a cloak salesman.

Most girls think that for a man to keep "steady" company with them for years and years is almost the same as a wedding certificate. Quite the contrary. It shows that he never intends to lead them to the altar. The man who never makes love to a girl or mentions marriage doesn't evade these topics because he is shy. It is because he never means to make good on them and he is wise to gumshoe around them.

Why Men Are Attracted

A man may go with a girl because she is good company, or because he is a dog in the manger who likes to take an attractive girl away from other boys, or because her mother is a good cook, or because she has a car and will ride him around without price, but it is no indication that he loves her or has any serious intentions. So Sally is a smart gal if she gives the air to any lad who doesn't come across with a proposal within three months.

Still, of course, any girl with an ounce of gumption can form some idea of how much a boy thinks of her by the way he treats her. If he puts her pleasure before his own, if he treats her with respect, if he tries to protect her, if he shows he is happy with her, it means that she is at least tops with him.

This Wife Needs Spanking

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am secretary to the general manager of a large corporation, with a salary that is much larger than the usual man of my age is able to make. I give my wife a liberal allowance for herself and for the housekeeping and she has every comfort and most of the luxuries. We have gotten on very well until the present when she has left me for no reason except that I have to be away from her on business part of the time. Last month I had to be away for two weeks and about the middle of the second week my wife phoned me and said that if I did not come home that night (I was 1,500 miles away) that she would go back to her mother. I told her it was impossible for me to come, so she did go back to her mother, and refuses to return to me. Says I must quit the position that I have had for ten years and get some other work because she will not live with me unless I stay at home all the time. I absolutely refuse to quit my job and she refuses to come back. We have no children. What should I do?

—HUSBAND.

ANSWER: I think that any man is very foolish when he gives up his career for his wife's whim, because he ruins his life for nothing. His wife is never satisfied with the wreck she makes of him and reproaches him for the failure she makes him.

If a woman really loves her husband, if she wants to be a helpmate to him, if she has any intelligence and knows what is even best for herself, she doesn't try to break him up. She doesn't want to be a handicap to him. She is willing to go wherever he goes, or help him do anything that advances his fortune. She co-operates with him.

I have known many men whose wives refused to leave the little towns in which they were reared, because they didn't want to leave Mother and the girls or their bridge foursome, when their husbands had fine opportunities for advancement in other places. And in every case where the wife prevailed and kept her husband tied down to the little job, he developed into a bitter, frustrated man and the wife into a peevish, fretful shrew who was always whining because she couldn't have the things she wanted, and throwing up to her husband his failure to get along.

Foregoing Formalities

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband is a doctor who has difficulty in getting his friends to call him by his title. Most people have the rude habit of calling him by his first name and not by his professional title. We have tried in vain to ignore this and have finally had to tell them that this wasn't the proper thing to do and showed very little consideration for his dignity. However, they still persist in doing so. What can we do?

DOCTOR'S WIFE.

ANSWER—If you want your husband to have any practice, be glad that his friends and acquaintances like him well enough to call him Jim or Bill, or even Doc. Nowadays everybody calls everybody they like by their first names. Formality has gone with the wind.

Saving of Sugar When Baking

By MRS. H. M. AITKEN
Well-known Household Economist

Mrs. Aitken

Canada has established voluntary sugar rationing.

For each household in Canada we are allowed ¾ lb per person per week and this allowance includes white, brown and icing sugar. Mrs. Robert Jones has three children in her family. Mary 14 years old, John, 11, and Bill, just 8. Her husband, who works in a munition plant, takes his noon-day lunch. But Mrs. Jones is determined that she will do her part, and will use not one grain more than her 3¾ lbs. sugar a week.

She bakes her apples with honey in the centre and the children say they are grand. Also (and this is important) she knows that sugar is of much greater value when used in baking than when sprinkled on. So every week she puts away half of her sugar ration for cooking.

She's a grand girl, is Mrs. Jones.

She's you — the average Canadian woman!

And here is one of her favorite save-sugar recipes:

BRAN MUFFINS

Temperature: 375 deg. F.
Time: 20 minutes
½ cup corn syrup
1 tsp. salt
1 tablespoon shortening
1 cup date filling
1 egg
1½ cups bran
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 tsp. baking soda
1 cup sour milk

Method: Measure the sugar, salt, shortening and date filling into a bowl. Break in the egg; beat vigorously until smooth; add bran and mix. Add the sifted flour and baking soda. Add the sour milk; mix lightly and without beating. Spoon batter 3 minutes before placing in oven. Bake in moderate oven. Yield: 12 muffins.

Needlecraft Pattern

Knit In Cotton

Knit this heirloom bedspread in squares or strips. You just need two needles and a double strand of cotton to make it—when done you'll have an heirloom piece. Pattern 262 has directions for making square; illustrations of it and stitches; materials required; photograph of pattern stitch.

Send twenty cents in coins or stamps for this pattern to the Examiner, Needlecraft Dept., Peterborough. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

That knitting is not a lost art is obvious to anyone attending a meeting—be it a church, secular or social gathering the click of the knitting needles is heard and fascinated one watches the growth of a sock, sweater or scarf.

The source of a great deal of this activity is the wool room of the Red Cross on the second floor of the Public Library. This room is open for the distribution of wool every Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock, during which time a constant stream of people is passing in and out.

Wool is a very precious commodity at present, and those asking for it must be well qualified to use it to the best advantage. Our fighting men must be provided with perfectly made garments.

The committee of ladies in charge of the wool room are all expert knitters and every finished article is carefully examined for the least imperfection, and if not absolutely up to the standard it must be unravelled and re-knitted.

All Red Cross work is on the quota system, and knitters must be willing to make the type of article required according to Red Cross directions.

The following is a list of knitted good shipped out during the months of January and February:

For the Navy.—100 pairs of mitts, 100 aero caps, 100 pairs of plain socks, 100 pairs of seamen's socks, 60 turtle-neck sweaters.

For the Army.—30 scarves, 30 caps, 30 pairs of gloves, 80 pairs of socks, 30 turtle-neck sweaters.

From those who like to knit for civilian use in England, warm garments are gladly accepted.

The girls of the Collegiate have done a marvelous job and have turned in quantities of lovely sweaters. From the lower grades have come afghans made of squares knitted by both boys and girls.

For everyone there is work to do. Keep the needles going and the work flowing.

"Y" GYM GIRLS NOSE OUT ST. JOHNS IN LAST MINUTES OF GAME

MajorsLambaste Saints 6-2 For Game Edge

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton Majors took a one-game lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" finals last night by defeating St. Catharines Saints 6-2. The Majors now lead 2-1 in the best-of-five series.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior finals Hollinger Green Shirts outscored Buffalo Ankerite Bisons 4-3 to cut down the two-game edge the Ankerites had seized in the first two games of their best-of-five playdowns. The Ankerites now lead two games to one.

The game at Hamilton was hard fought and cleanly played throughout. Barlow started the Majors on the scoring trail shortly after the opening of the first period. Allen made it two for the homesters before Forgie split the twine for St. Catharines. Hamilton took a commanding lead as the second period progressed, outscoring the Saints three to one. Barlow scored his second goal and passed to Miccinivich for another. Massey counted for the Saints, but Robertson made it 5-2. Robertson got the lone tally of the final period ending the scoring.

In the game at Timmins,, Wilson, who was the big scoring gun in the Hollinger playoff drive, was held scoreless for two periods but made up for it by scoring the winning goal for his team in the final period of play.

The game was a see-saw affair. Hollinger led 1-0 at the end of the first period. Ankerites tied it up in the second but Hollinger broke away again before the end of the session to take the lead. Shortly after the start of the final period the score was tied again but it proved to be only a setting for Roy Wilson to display his scoring ability.

Haflidson, Stewart and Schwab were the other scorers for the winners, while Clouthier, Young and Carnegie were the marksmen for the Ankerites.

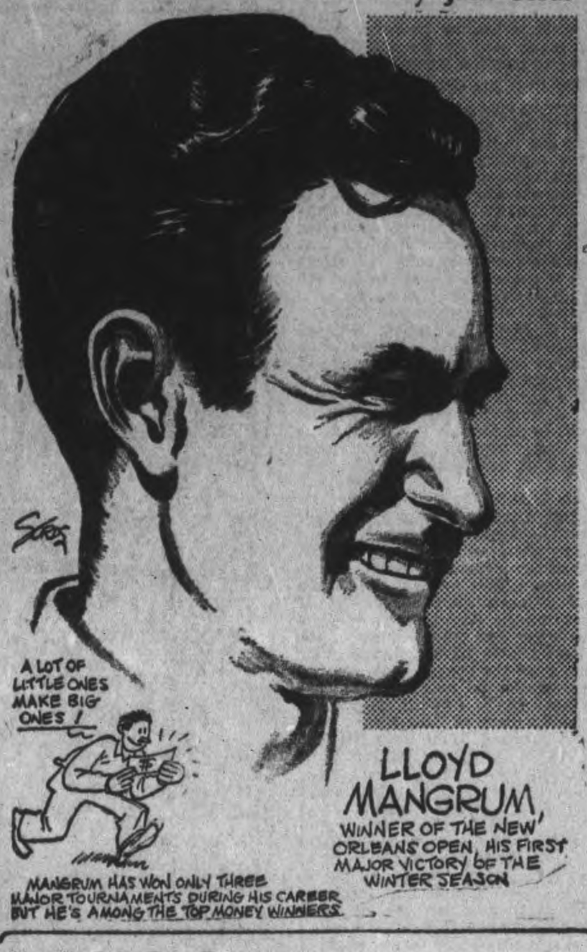
Warsaw W.M.S. Meets

WARSAW, Mar. 7 — (ENS). — The February meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the manse on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. George Taylor presided. Plans were discussed to have Mrs. Harris, president of the Presbyterial, to speak at Easter special service.

Mrs. Harold Payne, leader of C Group. had charge of the program, and followed the theme "The Lord's Supper," as outlined in the Missionary Monthly.

FIRST BLOOD - - - By Jack Sords



P.C.V.S. Presents - - -

Special The Examiner By a P.C.V.S. Student

Several records were broken this week but probably the most important was the total War Savings Stamp and Certificate sales. The highest sale in the history of the campaign at P.C.I. was recorded—$1,603—$415 in stamps and $1,188 in certificates. The previous record was $1,540 and was set a year ago. This is exemplary of the spirit at the Collegiate in wartime. Good work students!

The Servant Problem Solved

Fifteen hundred fascinated students and parents saw Barbara Bothwell as Fanny solve the Servant Problem on Thursday and Friday nights. The four hilarious acts of "Fanny and the Servant Problem" were enacted on a stage miraculously transformed through the ingenuity of F. E. Johnston and a host of helpers into a fashionable boudoir decorated and furnished in the style of Louis XIV period. Couple this setting with the superb acting of the cast of 17 and you have the formula for the success of the P.C.V.S. Dramatic Club's 1932 hit.

Barb Bothwell and Alan Johnston were perfect in the leading roles and Ruth Sage and Catherine Hall as the "Two Old Ladies" stole the show with their Victorian manners. Alan Eadie dominated the action as the overbearing uncle and the perfect servant. Shirley Curtis' portrayal of Fanny's aunt and housekeeper had the audience laughing throughout the play. Velma Staples and Jean Bullied as the haughty maids and relatives were typical of the superior attitude of the servants in Bantock Hall. Bill Crowe was a fellow conspirator with Fanny and brings about the meeting between Fanny and her former business manager—the boisterous, good hearted George Newte (Alan Boate). Alan was a star in his own right and with Alden Gourley as the booming, jovial medico, contributed much of the humor in the play. Will we ever forget Alden's unconsciously funny remark—"shall be glad of a shave, that's all!" Everybody roared at that point. The crowning blow to the Bennets came with the arrival of a van of chorus girls—"Our Empire." The loud, effervescent antics of this troop brought about the climax. Anna Hubel, Joan Brown, Arlie Connell, Joan Bell, Phyllis Dummitt, and Dorothy Frost added much to the fast action in the third act.

The play was a supreme example of the perfection attained by the fine co-operation between the cast and Miss White and R. L. Hale. The Club has soared to unprecedented heights this season so congratulations!

The Last Hundred

The mobile kitchen went tearing by the thousand dollar mark this week and the total now stands at $1,064.60. Eighty-five dollars and forty cents more and the goal will be reached. The thermometer is capable of registering up to 1200 dollars so don't be afraid to put the red column past the boiling point. Two forms gave their second donation this week while others are still endeavouring to raise the first.

The honours go to Grade IX C Academic. This form presented the highest total from any Grade Nine form and the fifth highest in the whole school. Don Earle gave a tin bank crammed with $27.00 to Ed Geraghty of the Students' Council. Good work IX C.

Beryl Dobbin donated $50 on behalf of the G.A.A. and this money was raised through the proceeds from the girls' basketball tournament. Beryl read a little speech of thanks to all those who helped to make the tourney a success.

Helen Lyon of Grade IX E Academic added $6.80 to this form's former donation of $3.72 making a total of $10.52 received from Grade IX E. In the same category is Commerical XI. John Franks presented $5.95 to Mary Hanlon for a total of $17.50 from this form. Congratulations!

You may have noticed that Bob Honour's name did not appear in this report. The reason is simple—Bob, like Treasurer Fred Mason before him, has left school to work in a war industry. The other members of the Council will take over the office of Treasurer during the remaining months. The best of luck to you Bob.

Next week should see the fund nearly completed, if not fully collected. Grade XI A Academic sold candy and peanuts at the play and ran out of everything eatable. Here's hoping that our headline next week will be, "THE THERMOMETER BLEW UP!" Get your form's donation in and watch for our column next week.

Teasettes

Some time ago the C.G.E. donated $25 to be used in a public speaking contest among the pupils of the Fifth forms and Special Commercial. The preliminaries were held last Tuesday and there were five trail blazing students—one girl and four boys. Connie Nicholson, Rod Reed, John Frank, Bob Crocker, and Alden Gourley spoke, and from these students the last three were chosen to compete for the prize in the finals next Thursday by the judges Miss Burgess, Miss Bailey, and L. J. Pettit. Next week we'll bring you the sequel to the public speaking contest.

A highly successful Play Party was held in the gym last night. All those who helped in any way towards the success of the play and the "Night of Plays" were admitted.

Next week a super paper collection is hoped for and to emphasize the need John Lewis gave a rousing pep talk in the Junior and Senior Assemblies this week. Don't forget to do your bit for the war effort by bringing all scrap paper in the house to the girls' entrance next week. Let's go students!

John Wolfe had an interesting "self portrait" in the Camera Club showcase this week. More Scott's Mill pictures were on display by the commander-in-chief of the Camera Club.

If you see the girls of P.C.I. walking around in odd stockings—i.e. one red and one blue, etc.—don't doubt their sanity; its just the trademark of a secret (?) club. Are you satisfied now?

The Easter exams are but a few short weeks away. As a mater of fact, some papers have already been turned in so the threat is very real. Don't forget to patronise the Fashion Show on the 26th of this month even with exams in the offing.

Basketball was a closed book this week but look for more action from the Seniors in the games to come. The Oshawa play-offs are improbable at the time of writing but anything can happen yet. More attendance at the games would be appreciated.

Redbirds Again To Witness Shuffling Game

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Mar. 7—(AP). — Billy Southworth is a fellow who likes to give his cards a good shuffle before starting to deal, but when the National League riffle begins next month he'll have his aces on top.

The mighty mite who runs the St. Louis Redbirds said as much to-day.

Recalling that everyone became royally confused last spring when he pulled all sorts of infield combinations out of a hat for the grapefruit games, Southworth suggested that no one should take his shuffling too seriously this year.

"I knew all along what my infield was going to be last year and except for first base I know about what it will be this season," he said. "But I'm going to give every boy a chance and I want to get as much of a look at these youngsters as possible.

"As a result you may see me doing some strange things in our exhibition games.

"For instance I want to give this boy, Bob Blattner, as much work as I can even though I am figuring on Frank Crespi for my regular second baseman and Marty Marion for short. So I may play Blattner half a game at second and half a game at short. He'll get nine innings of work. I'll get to watch him at two positions, and both Crespi and Marion will get in half a game at their own positions."

Southworth must decide between Johnny Hopp and Rookie Ray Sanders at the initial sack and between Hopp and Rookie Stan Musial in leftfield.

Hopp would fit in handily at either place. but where he finally lands will depend upon the development of the two freshmen.

Theatre Highlights In Manhattan

NEW YORK, Mar. 7 — (CP). — The theatre's nastiest character in some seasons has arrived on Broadway and is nightly ruining lives and upsetting the calm of Connecticut household at the Plymouth Theatre. Boris Karloff, as an unhappy mankiller in "Arsenic and Old Lace," pales beside the unmitigated mental cruelty created by a Hollywood starlet in Manhattan's newest play, "Guest in the House."

The guest in question is Evelyn Heath, played by a former contender for role of Scarlett O'Hara who bears the famous name of Mary Anderson. As a venomous 20-year-old she disrupts the lives of no less than seven persons before she is stopped and calm returns.

The play, by Hagar Wilde and Dale Eunson, has invited comparison with Lillian Hellman's "The Children's Hour" of some seasons back in which Florence McGee of Toronto scored a great triumph as a child that malevolently ruined three lives. Some critics have even suggested that Miss Heath is the Helman brat grown up.

For Mary Anderson almost causes a divorce, almost blasts the reputation of a charming couple, almost marries a charming young man whose life she would have blighted. Fortunately one of her phobias and a conveniently weak heart combine to exterminate her at curtain time much to the relief of the audience.

Innocent on the Surface.

This veritable monster is outwardly an innocent and attractive young woman who is taken into genteel household as an act of kindness. But a frustrated mind and an inhibited childhood have so warped her that she promptly, through falsehood and deceit, creates mistrust among her benefactors who do not suspect that the innocent of the simpering and plaintive girl hides a neurotic and dangerous character. Just why they don't suspect sooner is one of the weaknesses of the play. For the audience suspects her right from the start.

Despite its faulty motivation the play possesses a baleful atmosphere and considerable intensity. The spectacle of an unbridled evil-doer always has audience appeal since everyone waits with baited breath for virtue to triumph. Miss Anderson has neither the skill nor the ingenuity in her creation of the grown-up brat that Miss McGee revealed in playing the childish one. She looks the part and plays it with sufficient conviction to indicate that her career is well-chosen and that as an actress she is capable of considerable development.

Miss Ilka Chase is the latest comedienne to turn to literature. Like Miss Peggy Wood she has written her memoirs and entitled them "Past Imperfect." That an actress under 40 should be in the memoir-writing stage is due, in Miss Chase's case, to the fact that she has packed in some 18 years as an actress, journalist. and radio entertainer in London and New York and consequently has a story to tell.

The book is due shortly and will probably constitute a friendly and witty record of plays. players and the radio world. The book was written in trains, airplanes, and dressing-rooms—for Miss Chase has become a lecture-personality as well as a stage and radio star. She now is reading proof in her spacious and quiet East Side apartment, not a little surprised that it got itself done.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Petes took another step toward the Senior B championship at Oshawa last night when they overwhelmed the Collingwood Shipbuilders to win the second game of their semi-final series 10 to goals to 2 and take the round in two straight. Merritton, winners of the Niagara-Hamilton group and conquerors of Windsor Spitfires are now the only barrier between the Soldiers and the Ontario title. Following up their Wednesday night win in Collingwood, the Petes came back with a sustained attack on the big Oshawa ice last night that was entirely too much for the hard-hitting lads from the North. They had too much foot and drive for the Shipbuilders and might easily have won by an even more convincing score. Beatty in the Collingwood net had to be decidedly lucky to keep the tally from rising like the Victory Loan figures. For two periods, in spite of being outplayed by a wide margin the Shipbuilders managed to keep the score down. Indeed with but fifteen minutes to go the losers had cut their deficit to one goal. And then the Petes' attack got rolling in earnest and they rattled the puck behind Beatty seven times in the last quarter of an hour.

* * * * * *

Every man in a Peterborough unie contributed his bit to the victory and it was a fine all-around performance, indicated by the fact that only Burton and Jopling failed to get a scoring point. Eddie Starr, a surprise selection, who was the extra forward picked up a goal and an assist as his donation to the cause and strangely enough Bun Kingdon, leading scorer all season was the only Peterborough forward who did not get a goal. Perce Nichols who started a scoring rampage in the last Whitby game by scoring three times and added a pair more in Collingwood gave a repeat performance last night by nicking two again, giving him a total of seven goals in his last three games. The Petes played unselfish hockey, and their passing was decidedly effective. As for Collingwood they were a badly beaten outfit but they kept battling until the final whistle.

* * * * * *

Although the vagaries of the weather man forced the Petes to play away from home they did not lack support for hundreds of loyal fans trekked to Oshawa to see the downfall of the Collingwood crowd. And they really rooted. Some of them were so enthusiastic that every time trouble threatened they wanted to climb over the boards and take a hand. Some of them did get on to the ice and had to be led off. It was all good clean fun. There were a number of supporters down from Collingwood but they got very little for their long ride. Their favorites were always behind and never looked much like winning. However both the Collingwood fans and the players came around afterward to wish the Petes luck in their quest for the championship. There had been a lot of battling out there on the ice but once it was over the Northerners were sporting enough to visit the Petes' dressing-room and expressed the hope that the Soldiers would go through and take it all. Some of the Shipbuilders are rough, tough and nasty on the ice but evidently they are sportsmen enough to wish their conquerors luck and for that gesture our hats are off to them.

A Big Cage Game

The Kingston Combines who meet the Outboard Marines at the Y.M.C.A. tonight in the first game of the O.A.B.A. intermediate A playdowns have had a good record this season and have been playing a lot of classy basketball against strong opposition. They will undoubtedly prove a hard knot for the Peterborough entry to solve but the Marines, too, have been playing a lot of games this season and holding their own against senior teams, and they should show enough scoring punch to take tonight's fixture by a good margin. The return game is scheduled for Kingston a week from tonight and points on the round settle the argument so both teams will be turning on the heat all the way. There will be no letup from the first to the final whistle with two powerful high-scoring outfits throwing the throttle open. The game is called for 8 o'clock sharp and the biggest cage crowd of the season is expected. The O.A.B.A. game will be heralded by a curtain-raiser between two girls' teams, the Generals and the Electrics, who have battled several times this season and always staged an exciting argument. That is not to be wondered at because there are four pairs of sisters in the lineups, with each pair divided.

* * * * * *

The decision of the Trenton R.C.A.F. team to play its O.A.B.A. games in Toronto draws the following comment from Ken Colling in the Belleville sheet: "Alas, the few basketball addicts around Belleville who were counting heavily upon seeing their first senior O.A.B.A. tussle, can forget about the whole thing. The Trenton R.C.A.F. hoopsters elected to playoff in the senior provincial series along with St. Catharines, Toronto and Windsor respective loop winners. Skipper Muirhead's district Airmen were drawn against the Toronto winners, presumably Tip Tops, while St. Kitts and the Border City quintette battle it out. Local cage fans were elated with the announcement that the Flyers had been awarded the first home game with the Toronto winners, but their good fortune will never be realized, as we understand the Trenton hoopsters are playing both of the senior semi-finals in Toronto, the first game to be played at No. 6 I.T.S. Saturday night. With the finest basketball floor in Canada available at No. 5 I.T.S. here, it was first announced the series would open in Belleville. However, if the Trenton hoopsters vault over the Toronto champions it is hoped Brian Casey and company will endeavour to entertain the Airmen and civilians of the district with at least one game of the provincial senior basketball finals."

Juveniles Play Tonight

Peterborough's future greats will be on view at Brock St. Rink tonight when the Churchills, the local representatives in the Ontario juvenile series will battle with the Stirling kids in the provincial playdowns. Churchills have a classy team of young players, some of whom had experience in the Ontario series last season and they have been playing good hockey. They have speed and a fair amount of weight and are counted upon to make a good showing in the Ontario competition. Wednesday night they travelled down to Stirling and on a cushion that was more like a slushy sidewalk than a hockey ice managed to hand the Easterners a beating. But they are not over-confident as a result of that win, realizing that under the conditions anything was liable to happen. They look for a tough battle from the Eastern representatives. The game is called for 8.30 o'clock tonight and rates a good crowd. The players in this series are reinforcements for the senior teams of the future and if they are not encouraged the harvest is not likely to be a very heavy one.

Snead Rolls Up St. Petersburg Cup—3 in 4 Years

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 7—(AP).—Sam Snead, the Hot Springs, Va., slugger with a reputation for repeating over favorite courses, blazed a two-under-par 70 over the Lakewood Country Club course late Friday to capture his third St. Petersburg Open golf title in four years.

Snead, Canadian open champion, had shot a mediocre 75 during the morning to give him a three-day card of 141-75-70—286, three strokes better than any of his nearest rivals in the field of approximately fifty golfers who finished the grind.

Although Snead's sizzling final round assured him the first prize of $1,000 out of the $5,000 purse put up for the pros, it was overshadowed by a record-breaking 66, 6 under par, turned in by young Chick Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich., as he swooped into three-way tie for second place and a $585.33 award.

Harbert had encountered trouble Thursday after shooting a 73 Wednesday and came up to the last day apparently out of the running with a 149, eight strokes back of Snead.

However, he collected a 74 in the morning round and then played what he called the finest round of golf in his life in the afternoon—bagging a total of seven birdies. He had a bogey six on the long second hole when his tee shot went out of bounds, but made up for the lapse the rest of the way.

It was the first 66 made over the tough Lakewood layout since the course was lengthened to a par 72.

Tied with Harbert were Sam Byrd of Ardmore, Pa., the former Yankee baseballer, and Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, each of whom finished with 70's for 289.

Al Brosch, young red-headed pro at Bethpage State Park, Farmingdale, N.Y., who was tied with Snead for the lead with 216 at the three-quarter post at noon, finished with a 74 to take fifth money of $375.

Scores up to 300 finished in the money, due partly, perhaps, to the disqualification of Ben Hogan and Henry Picard Thursday. Paul Runyan was just out with 301 and National Open champion Lawson Little blew to 306 and 305, respectively.

First Half Lead Of St. John's Is Wiped Out

Coming from behind to win out in the dying moments, 'Y' Gym kept their play-off hopes bright by nosing out St. John's 22-19 in an important Ladies' Basketball League game, at the Y.W.C.A., Friday night. St. John's held an 11-7 lead at half time and the 'Y' team coming back strongly were forced to battle all the way before finally nosing out in front in the dying minutes. St. John's carried an edge through the first half to hold a four point lead in that period.

The winners came back strong after half time and slowly cut down the St. John lead but the losers battled them off until about three minutes from the end of the game.

At that point it was 19-18 for St. John's but R. Hewitt and I. Stewart threw in baskets as the game drew to a close to give Y Gym the verdict. St. John's missed a lot of scoring chances in the final half that would have more than duplicated their first half edge if they had taken advantage. The winners, on the other hand cashed in nicely, particularly on the chances they had late in the game. The Y team made two of their four free throws and St. John's cashed in on only one of 12 tries. R. Hewitt was the winner's big scorer with 15 points with R. Sullivan also standing out. A. Bowler, E. Foster and T. Laws played well for St. John's.

The teams:

St. John's 19—A. Bowler 7, D. Groombridge 4, E. Hewitt 2, E. Clark, M. Mason, T. Laws 4, E. Foster 2, F. Gynane.

Y Gym 22—I. Young 1, R. Hewitt 5, R. Sullivan 2, D. Ackford, I. Stewart 2, N. Smith 2.

PETES ELIMINATE COLLINGWOOD BY WINNING FIRST TWO GAMES

Soldiers Score Ten Goals In Second Game

By FRED CRAIG

Unleasing a scoring surge that saw them score seven times in the last fifteen minutes, Peterborough Soldiers cleaned up the Senior B semi-final round with Collingwood Shipbuilders at Oshawa last night, beating the Northerners 10 goals to 2 and taking the series in two straight games. They meet Merritton next in the final round for the Ontario championship.

There never was any doubt as to which was the better team. The Petes led all the way, outplayed the Shipbuilders by a city block in the first two periods, although the score sheet does not show it, and then opened the throttle wide in the final twenty minutes to bury Collingwood under an avalanche of goals.

Hundreds of Peterborough fans cheered their favorites as they outplayed the boys from Bert McLeod's old town. There were nearly 300 on the special C.N.R. train and more than that number motored to Oshawa to see the battle. They were well rewarded for the Petes put on a convincing show of superiority as they outskated the belting Shipbuilders and tricked them with clever stickhandling and smart passing. It was 2 to 0 for Peterborough at the end of the opening period, 3 to 1 when the second was over and after Collingwood had scored the first goal in the final session the Soldiers opened wide with a devastating attack that overwhelmed the lads from the Georgian Bay country.

Collingwood only had a brief moment of hopefulness and that was when they registered their second goal shortly after the 5-minute mark in the third period and were behind only 3 to 2. But Art Heal shattered their dream less than two minutes afterward when he stickhandled around a couple of forwards in mid-ice, split the defence and went right in to blaze a shot past Beatty to make the score 4 to 2. That sparkling goal opened the floodgates and from then on there was only one team out there. Collingwood, two goals down, tried to gang up but the Petes were hitting on all eight and were not to be stopped. They broke loose from the Shipbuiders' attacks to tear in at top speed for goal after goal and it was only a question of how many.

Strangely enough, although they were only a goal in front after 45 minutes play, the Petes had outplayed Collingwood just as badly during the first two periods as they did in that final scoring splurge. For minutes at a time, in the first and second stanzas they had the Shipbuilders backed in behind their own blue line but goals came slowly. Beatty, Collingwood goalie, who has no style at all and who flops around in the net like a trained seal, stopped a flock of close-in shots and on other occasions the Petes attackers missed by inches. However hockey experts predicted that under the constant pressure the Soldiers were putting on the break would have to come sooner or later—and it came with a bang in the final period.

Hand Out Plenty

The game was not as rough as the battle in Collingwood, but the Shipbuilders' defence handed out plenty and the path to the nets was no bed of roses. Big Portland and Butters carried their sticks high and got away with a lot of slashing but their crude tactics failed to stop the Petes who kept whirling in all night. Referee Houston was back on the job and his work was no improvement over the exhibition he gave in Collingwood. He missed plenty and several times the game threatened to get out of hand.

The whole Peterborough cast earned brackets for a fine performance. As in Collingwood where each got a pair of markers, Honey Tompkins and Perce Nichols led the scoring parade, the former performing the hat trick by firing a goal each period while "Nick" pumped two behind Beatty. Single tallies by Art Heal, Johnny Godfrey, Joe Blewett, Bruce Bennett and Eddie Starr made up the ten.

Both forward lines were good going both ways. They not only showed speed and cleverness on the attack but when they lost the puck, they whirled and roared back to help out the defence and that persistent backchecking had a lot to do with the final victory.

As for the defence they earned brackets by a grand display back of the blue line with Johnny Godfrey doing more rushing than he has shown in a game all season. The Petes' captain scored one goal and had assists on two others for a four-star effort. And his defence mates were not far behind in effectiveness. Harding had nothing like the work to do that fell to the lot of his opposite number in the Collingwood net. He had little chance on the two that beat him but he moved smartly to save scores on several other occasions when the Collingwood attackers managed to get on the loose.

For Collingwood the Scott-Kirby-Kelly line, although not as good as in the first game was still the best attacking combination. They gave all they had and contributed most of the Collingwood punch. Beatty may have been lucky—he did not act like a first grade goalie—but he stopped plenty of rubber, while in front of him Portland, Butters and Young did their best to make it tough for the Peterborough attackers.

Score Two in First

The Petes had a wide edge on the play in the first period in spite of the fact that they could not get more than a two-goal margin. It was a hard-hitting session with Referee Houston handing out seven penalties and he could have doubled that list. The Soldiers stormed in early and had plenty of chances but they could not connect. Crowe drew a penalty but Collingwood could not get an attack organized while he was off and the Petes did not have much better luck, although they had more chances, when Sandell was chased. Burton was in for a close-range shot but Beatty was in the way and he also blocked drives from Tompkins, Heal and Kingdon.

Collingwood threatened only occasionally but they missed one great chance on a breakaway when Harding made a fine stop on Brophy's close-in drive. Finally after more than 15 minutes of play the Petes broke into the score column. Portland was given the gate for slashing Art Heal and while he was off the Soldiers staged a ganging attack that was rewarded when Johnny Godfrey set up a scoring play for Nichols who took the captain's neat forward pass just out side the crease and back-handed the puck past Beatty. Just before the period ended Petes made it 2 to 0. Crowe and Burns were off together at the time and with the teams playing five a side Tompkins stick-handled in and slipped a pass to Bun Kingdon. Beatty stopped the latter's shot but Tompkins closed in fast to net the rebound, ten seconds before the rest period.

For nearly five minutes of the second period the Petes ganged up and did everything but put the puck in the net. Beatty was the busiest man in the rink but he held the attackers out and at last it was the Collingwood team who scored on their first dangerous move of the period. Burns got a breakaway and carried over the Petes blueline. He was checked there and lost the rubber but G. Butters who was trailing picked up the loose puck and had a clear run into the net where he gave Harding no chance.

A Charmed Life

The Petes stormed in after that setback but Beatty seemed to have a charmed life. It was not until Portland drew a penalty that they finally succeeded in getting that goal back. It came on an odd play. Heal was battling in the corner with a Collingwood player and the latter tried to pass behind his own net. Honey Tompkins intercepted the pass, came out in front and had the disc into the net before Beatty could move. Young was chased and Collingwood were two short but the Petes failed to cash in. Soon after Beatty slashed Joe Blewett when the latter came close and the Petes' winger grappled with the net guardian and the two went down together. There was no penalty.

Petes Turn It On

The third period opened at a little slower tempo than the two previous sessions. The Petes missed a number of chances to increase their lead, and then at the 5.03 mark Kelly put Collingwood back into the ball game by scoring from close in on a passing play with Scott and Kirby. That made it 4 to 2.

Then came Art Heal's brilliant solo goal to start the parade. The left-winger picked up the puck in mid-ice, missed a couple of checks outside the Shipbuilders' blue line, then split the defence and sailed in to pick a corner and make the score 4 to 2.

The Petes were on their way. Less than four minutes after Johnny Godfrey tore down mid-ice, slipped a pass to Nichols to beat the defence, took the right winger's return pass close-in and drill one past Beatty to give the Petes a three-goal margin.

In 22 seconds Joe Blewett scored at close range, with Nichols and Starr getting assists on the play and 44 seconds after that Nichols added to the rout by going in alone and blazing a shot into the lower corner of the net. That was three goals in 66 seconds.

Collingwood were well beaten by that stage although they tried to get an attack organized. It was no use however and their ganging backfired when Bennett got a breakaway to pull the goalie out and slip the rubber into the cage.

That made it 8 to 2 and looked like the final score but the Petes polished off the thing by scoring twice in the final minute of play. Crowe carried the rubber down for the first one, handing Tompkins a pass that enabled the right-winger to perform the hat trick by getting his third goal and 15 seconds later after Godfrey had carried the rubber out of the Petes defence zone and slipped a forward to Blewett the latter put Starr in the clear with a long forward pass and Eddie raced in on top of Beatty before firing, to send the Petes' total into double figures.

Angott Wallops Montgomery No. 1 Challenger

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 7—(AP). — Sammy Angott, a windmill in boxing gloves, battered Philadelphia Bob Montgomery around the Madison Square Garden ring last night as if somebody had forgotten to tell him his lightweight title wasn't at stake.

The Washington, Pa., battler scored a lop-sided decision in the 12-round overweight brawl, eliminating Montgomery as No. 1 challenger for the 135-pound crown he lifted from Lew Jenkins.

Montgomery was a 2-to-1 favorite although he weighed 135¼ pounds to Angott's 139, but Sammy tossed his usual caution out the window and landed on the Philadelphia Negro with everything in the books.

It was Angott's second decision over Montgomery in two years, and he described this tussle as easier than the first, although he fought most of the way with a swollen left thumb.

By this fight, Angott readied himself for defence of his title against Newark's Allie Stolz in May, but Stolz isn't necessarily the man Sammy wants next.

"I'd like to take on Ray Robinson," said Angott in his dressing room, referring to the undefeated Harlem welterweight who has won 28 fights since becoming a pro.

Montgomery, sitting disconsolately on the rubbing table in his dressing room, had little to say about his surprising lack of ammunition against the man he was figured to beat.

Angott took eight of the 12 rounds and was no worse than even in at least two of the others. He dropped Montgomery with a right to the jaw in the ninth round for the only knockdown, although Bob bounced up after the count of one.

Both scrappers went unmarked through 11 rounds, but blood trickled in the final chapter when a sharp left caught Angott in the mouth and a long right gashed Montgomery's left ear.

A crowd of 11,522 customers contributed a gross gate of $24,284.

Landis Decides Secret Ball Deals Worthless

CHICAGO, March 7 — (AP). — Secret baseball contracts—the kind in which a college baseball player usually gets financial assistance for promising to join the paying club upon his graduation, are legally worthless, says Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Landis, baseball czar, made the ruling in a case involving Anthony Ravich and New York Yankees of the American League.

In his statement accompanying the ruling, Landis said all club officials knew such pacts have no standing in court, but wondered if the college players know it.

"However, there is and can be no question whatsoever, that these legally worthless documents do serve a purpose—first, of deluding many of the players signing them into an erroneous belief that they are obligated and, second, of establishing a moral obligation to go through with the agreement," Landis' statement read.

The commissioner quoted George Weiss, vice president of the New York club and general manager of its farm system, as saying that the secret contract with Ravich was not certified to the commissioner's office within 20 days as prescribed by baseball law because of the "effect it would have on his college athletic career."

Norwood Girls Split Games

NORWOOD, March 7—(ENS).—Girls' Junior and Senior basketball teams of Norwood High School, in charge of Miss Anne Borisuk, B.A., played Campbellford High School, winning one and losing one game.

During the first half of their game the Norwood Senior girls showed signs of nervousness, the period ending 20 to 8 in favor of Campbellford. In the second half the girls had recovered and each side made 12 points, which ended the game 32 to 20 in Campbellford's favor. Ellen Elmhirst was credited with six baskets and Isabell Birdsall four baskets.

The Senior team included: Norma Shearer, r. forward; Ellen Elmhirst (captain), l. forward; Isabel Birdshall, centre forward; Doreen Graham, r. guard; Barbara Coughlin, l. guard; Mary Elmhirst, centre guard. Substitutes were Marion Starke, Doreen Nevins, Yvonne Johnson, Lois Rogers.

Juniors Win

The Junior team played a very good game, doubling their opponents' scores in the first half which ended 16 to 8, Norwood got eight more in the second period and Campbellford 6, which ended the game 24 to 14 in Norwood's favor. Week-end Leaf Ranger Tilts May Decide NHL

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs started this season depending on the performances of a defenceman who won all-star rating last year and another two rated as among the most valuable in the National Hockey League, but if they are to overhaul New York Rangers and finish the season in first place a couple of rookie blueliners will provide much of the impetus.

A series of injuries has made Wally Stanowski, all-star last year, a disappointment this season. Bingo Kampman was injured at a crucial point in the season, a few weeks back, and is still out of action. Big Bucko McDonald carries on, with the in-and-out help of Stanowski and sterling displays by Rookies Ernie Dickens and Bob Goldham.

Dickens and Goldham has been the big show in the last couple of Toronto games. Goldham is a vigorous 20-year-old from Georgetown, Ont., and has more color than his freshman colleague. But Dickens, also a 20-year-old, is the more workmanlike in his defence duties. He has a terrific shot and rushes well, but his best efforts are shown back where defencemen used to operate exclusively—on defence. He is a Winnipegger. Both are graduates of Toronto Junior Marlboros, and both spent most of this season in the American Hockey League.

Stanowski returned to action Thursday night against Canadiens, and Leafs, who operated for a couple of games with only Bucko and the two rookies on defence, will go into an important week-end series with Rangers with no shortage of manpower. They meet Rangers tonight in Toronto and tomorrow night in New York. Outcome of the series will decide the final holder of first place, now occupied by Rangers with a three-point margin on Leafs.

The battle for undisputed possession of sixth place continues to hold much of the league's interest. Canadiens and Americans, tied in sixth, play once each during the week-end. Canadiens will be at home tonight to Boston, and Americans travel to Chicago for a Sunday night game. The other week-end contest is scheduled for Sunday, Boston at Detroit.

Baseball Briefs From Training Camps

HAVANA, Mar. 7 — (AP).—Even though Dolph Camilli is captain of Brooklyn Dodgers, the duty of delivering the lineup to the umpire-in-chief before the start of each game will remain in the hands of Coach Chuck Dressen. Camilli wants the arrangement so he can be the only captain of a major league team with an assistant.

TAMPA, Fla.— Manager Bill McKechnie has ended speculation as to whether Bert Haas or Chuck Aleno would succeed Bill Werber as the Reds' third baseman. Said the Deacon: "Haas will play third base until he shows me he can't."

PASADENA, Calif. — The White Sox will be definite flag contenders, says Coach Muddy Ruel, if— Joe Kuhel and Mike Tresh bat in 120 runs between them, the pitching holds up, and the outfield is reinforced.

AVALON, Calif.— Special jackets with an electric heating device in one sleeve are helping condition the Cubs' pitchers. After a workout a pitcher dons the jacket and absorbs the heat 10 to 20 minutes. Veteran Bill Lee said it was the first time his arm and side haven't been stiff after his first actual work in a ball game.

MIAMI, Fla. — The Giants have added an exhibition game to their schedule. March 12 they will travel to the Opal-Locka Naval Station to play a team of sailors. One of the tars is Emerson Dickman, former Red Sox pitcher.

Sutton Floors Midland 3 to 1

MIDLAND, Mar. 7.— Scoring two goals in the last half of the third period, Sutton racked up a 3-1 triumph over Midland here last night in the final game of the three-team round-robin series, in which only Gravenhurst was eliminated. Sutton and Midland now open the group finals, with Sutton having choice of ice.

A crowd of 1,500, the largest to witness a game here this season, turned out last night and saw Midland held scoreless after Tolle converted Stewart's pass after 16 seconds of play. It took Sutton nearly half way through the second before Gibney tied the score. Culverwell and McComb decided it late in the third.

The teams:

Sutton — Goal, Hall; defence, Burkholder and Pringle; centre, McComb; wings, Culverwell and Roberts; subs., Gilbey, Diplock, and Gibney.

Midland — Goal, White; defence, Sagar and Scott; centre, O'Hearn; wings, Antonio and Brodeur; subs., Stewart, Toole, Deschamp Wilcox. Referee—Ken Holmshaw.

Seadogs Go Back For Underwear

CAPE MAY, N.J., March 7.—(AP).—They were a very orderly bunch, those sailors of the Jacob Jones.

Their destroyer's bow was demolished by the first torpedo from an Axis submarine; the stern was blown to bits by depth bombs set off by the second; but the men midship prepared for the ordeal of the cold Atlantic by donning three suits of heavy underwear and downing hot coffee from soup ladles before abandoning the United States warship Saturday morning off Cape May.

There were 11 survivors of the ship which may have had as many as 145 officers and men.

The water was 38 degrees and plenty cold. Richard Dors, 25, of Brockton, Mass., recalled as he and other survivors related the story of the sinking under supervision of naval officers at the naval air base yesterday.

Dors said they were four hours at sea before picked up. John Merget, 26, Norfolk, told how he was at the throttle in the main engine room when a heavy explosion was followed shortly by another.

"The lights went out and then I shut the throttle. The ladder was right by me. I scouted up topside, discovered I didn't have my life jacket and ran back after it.

"I jumped in the water and swam as hard as I could. I was about 75 feet away when the ship sank and another big explosion took place. Eventually I got on the same raft with Tidwell. I could see two other rafts from where I was at the time I got on."

Another survivor, Thomas Moody, 22, of Franklin, Ky., related how he tried to launch a lifeboat but found part of the equipment had been blown away.

"So we went back into the boat to get some coffee," he added.

A door was blown off a locker room and there Moody found heavy underwear and donned three suits. Other fellows followed suit.

Several members brought in samples of water as used in their homes to be sent away for tests. Material for the making of sixteen pairs of slippers was handed out as well as quilt blocks. Dr. H. Crawford gave a talk and demonstration on First Aid, speaking on shock, open wounds and fractures and how to deal with each. Lunch was then served by the special committee and the meeting broke up with the singing of the National Anthem.

PEYTON WON'T HELP.
CHAPTER XXII.

One day in a kind of desperation he went to see Peyton Graves. Peyton had a new office, better fitted up than any office in town.

Peyton leaned back in his chair. He did not rise or offer to shake hands.

Drake smiled at the surroundings. "Well, well! You look like a bank president in here, Peyton."

"Rather better than that, don't you think?"

"Well, maybe."

"What can I do for you, Drake?"

"Just dropped in to see how you're getting along, Peyte. Are you busy?"

"Pretty busy, Drake, just now."

"Well, I'll come again."

"You've had a lot of bad luck, haven't you?"

"Yeh. Pretty bad. I'll get things straightened out, though. How's your big proposition coming on?"

"You mean the West End Crescent?"

"Is that what you call it?"

"Yes. Well, pretty fine, Drake. I finally got Macmillan St. George Thurston into it. They are going to let me put it through. Takes money, though."

"Yeh, I guess so."

"Thurston St. George thinks I ought to build out there myself and make one bang-up place just to show how it would look."

"I see. Sounds right smart, Peyte."

Peyton sighed and moved some papers suggestively. "Too bad you lost your money, Drake. That would have been a fine proposition for you and me."

"Well, I was just going to ask you," Peyton, if you don't need some help."

Peyton flushed. "Gosh, Drake. I haven't got a thing for you to do. You know, of course, this thing's just getting going. I'm working altogether with other people's money—for the time being. Later maybe."

"Well I just thought—"

"I'm awfully sorry, Drake. Wish I did have something."

"So long, Peyte. Good luck."

Young Peyton Graves' new house was the subject of much discussion. Of course, everybody knew that the St. Georges were back of Graves, but it did show what an enterprising young man could do in Kings Row. There was a boy now came up from the river-bottom country.

The new house, now being built on the knoll just above the public school, was a new kind of house to Kings Row. Peyton Graves was going "whole hog" on it. Mrs. Graves used such unfamiliar terms as master bedrooms, dressing rooms, sun parlor, and breakfast room. Kings Row didn't quite know what to make of it, though most of the women read the same magazines Mrs. Graves read.

Each year in this part of the country the January weather repeated a familiar cycle. Hard, bright cold after New Year. Then, in mid-month a few days—sometimes a week— of warm, spring-like airs. Immediately afterward roaring winds came from the northwest whirling sleet and snow, and freezing the ground until it was hard as iron. Dark weather.

Drake walked west on a narrow street that dodged in a zigzag way across town. He was walking straight into the wind. Better to face it going than coming.

He had had a letter from Parris that morning—a longish letter this time. Parris said he was terribly busy, working harder than ever, but now that his stay was certainly more than half over he had began to think about his return. He couldn't hope now to start back to America before September of 1902. He had been in correspondence with Dr. Nolan, the medical head of the state asylum, the situation looked encouraging. Why didn't Drake write? What was he doing? Had he really ever started that real-estate venture? And how about Lousie? Had Kings Row heard about Vera? Vera had come to Vienna, and played with the Royal Philharmonic. She'd made a real success. Vera had developed amazingly in every way. Musically, of course, but did Drake remember what a funny-looking little washed-out thing she had always been? Well, she was positively glowing. But she hadn't had much news of Kings Row either. Vera thought of staying in Europe permanently. But, of course, any kind of life must seem wonderful to her after all the years sh: had lived cooped up in those narrow rooms above the Lichinsky jewelry store.

....Almost two more years before Parris would return. Almost as long as the time he had been absent. And that had seemed an eternity. He had never told anyone how much he missed Parris, not even Randy. He couldn't explain that to anyone. It was hard for him to understand it himself. He had never felt that way about anyone. He remembered how Parris used to seem so much younger, and how he listened to advice. Advice— and from him! Now Parris seemed to him to be wise, and steady, and older. If only Parris were here a lot of things would surely straighten themselves out right away. He wouldn't drink if Parris were here: he wouldn't want to. He'd have somebody to talk to—somebody who understood everything—everything.

It was colder. The wind was leveling out into a steady cutting blast. He'd have to get in somewhere. Darned if he wasn't half frozen. . . . .

Drake made a wide arc about the lower end of town. He came presently to the railroad and followed it to Fritz Bachman's place. He fumbled the doorknob with numb fingers.

"Give me a drink, Fritz."

"Hey, there, Drake. You go out and rub a piece of ice on your face— you got two frozen spots on your cheeks— end of your nose, too."

Drake stumbled out and returned presently with his face fiery red.

"All right now, Fritz?"

"Yes— the white spots are gone. But I wouldn't sit too close to that fire for a while."

"Where's my drink?"

"Better step into the back room, Drake. I bring it."

Drake dropped into a chair at a small table in Fritz's back room. He couldn't think, and he couldn't even shape his feelings into any kind of order.

"Pour me a glass, Fritz; my fingers are stiff as pokers. Here—fill it full. I need it."

SHERRIFF SAM WINTERS finished up a cup of coffee, and stood up. He walked over to the stove and toasted his fingers before putting on his leather-and-wool gloves. He glanced toward the back room.

"Who you got in there, Fritz?"

Fritz looked up from his account book. "Back room? Oh, it's that McHugh feller."

"Drunk?"

"Yeh. Dead to the world for the last two hours. Don't know what to do with him, neither. I ain't a-going to take him home, not to-night."

"Well, you can't turn him out. He'll freeze, sure as hell."

Fritz grumbled a little. "What I do, then? I want to close up and go home now pretty soon."

"Well, you sold him the likker, didn't you?"

"Sure. Good stuff, too."

Sam looked straight at Fritz. "You'd turn that boy out, wouldn't you?"

"I got to go home."

"Well, I tell you what I'll do. I can't git him home no way when he's as drunk as that. You help me and I'll take him to the calaboose for the night so's he won't git froze somewhere. He'll be safe till mornin'."

"All right, I help you."

The town lockup was only a block or two away, but it was hard to support Drake that distance.

Fritz slipped and puffed. "Hell, what are we botherin' for?"

"Shut your mouth, and hold him up there."

"All right. An' the next time he comes in my place, I throw him out."

"You do, and I'll kick you from here to McGown's Crossing. Hold him up, I told you!"

* * *

RANDY MONAGHAN'S father opened the door of the kitchen stove and laid several sticks of wood on the coals. It was Sunday morning, and he had had breakfast two hours earlier. But he didn't really know what to do with himself on Sunday.

There was a slow, undecided knock on the door. Mr. Monaghan opened it, first kicking out of the way a piece of rug carpet laid to keep the cold air from coming in the wide crack at the threshold.

"Good morning, Mr. Monaghan."

"Why, good morning, Drake. Come in, come in."

Mr. Monaghan stared hard at Drake. The boy looked like a tramp. He wasn't shaved, his hair was tousled, and his shirt was unfastened at the throat.

"What's up, Drake?"

"I want to talk to you a little while, Mr. Monaghan. Is Randy here?"

"She's upstairs."

"I don't want her to see me this morning, looking like this. I just want to talk to you."

"How about a cup of coffee?"

"No, thank you. Sam Winters gave me some coffee."

"Sam Winters?"

"Yes. I was locked up in the calaboose last night, Mr. Monaghan."

Mr. Monaghan set the coffeepot down with a clatter. "What for?"

"I got drunk at Fritz Bachman's, and Sam Winters happened to come along about the time Fritz wanted to close up. Sam took me to the calaboose so I wouldn't freeze somewhere."

Mr. Monaghan grunted.

"I want a job, Mr. Monaghan!"

"Well?"

"Could you get me a job on the railroad?"

The weather-beaten old man looked keenly at Drake. You're not strong enough to do the work, son."

"I'd get strong doing it, maybe."

"Tell you what I think I can do."

"Yes?"

"I'll talk to Mr. Turner tomorrow. I believe he'd give you a job in the yards, switchman, or flagman, or something. Sure you'd be willing to take that kind of a job, Drake?"

Roundup Widens

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 7—(AP)—Scores of Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and regular police made a series of simultaneous dawn raids to-day over Northern California in quest of members of two Japanese secret societies and of a Japanese association.

It was the most widespread action since the coastwise raids on February 21.

One of the secret societies against which the raids were conducted was said to commit its members to military service for Japan. The other has been collecting money for the Japanese army and navy.

Near The Desert

San Francisco, March 7 (AP)

THE United States Army, preparing to evacuate 200,000 Japanese and others from Pacific coast military areas, disclosed plans for establishing two main reception centres in sparsely-settled portions of southeastern California.

One centre will be in the Owens River Valley, east of the Sierra Nevada, and some 270 miles northeast of Los Angeles. The other will be on the eastern fringe of the California Desert, in the Parker Dam-Blythe district alongside the Colorado River.

"Nameless" Flier Beats American Skiing Ace

Ola, a student pilot at the Royal Norwegian Air Force training centre in Toronto, gets the cheers of his comrades on his return to Camp Little Norway after winning the American ski-jumping championship, beating the American Ace Torger Tokle. Known only as "Ola," to prevent identification by enemy agents in his homeland, the jumping star turned over his prize money for purchase of new planes for the R.N.A.F. The plane, "Spirit of Little Norway," shown in this composite picture, was christened by Princess Martha of Norway during a recent visit to Toronto. Ola more recently shattered an eight-year-old record at Huntsville by jumping 146 feet.

WAR-TIME SMOKES!

The chimney of Pugsley's pork factory indicated by the volume and persistence of its stream of smoke from day to day that Reeve Pugsley had obtained a sizeable war order. Meeting him on Main Street, Mr. Picobac congratulated him.

"Keep that chimney smoking, Mr. Pugsley. It's all to beat Hitler."

"As long as the hogs keep coming", assented the Reeve.

"Canada's doing her bit, one way and another", continued Mr. Picobac. "And sunny, southern Ontario, too."

"That reminds me," interrupted the Reeve. "Have you got any good tobacco?"

"Best in the world," replied his friend, proudly producing his handy Picobac pouch. "Pick of Canada's Burley crop."

"Peace or war, it's a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke," declared the Reeve. "It's not often I'm caught without it."

"It DOES taste good in a pipe!"

VOL. LXXXV, No. 56 PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MARCH 7, 1942

MAIN STREET TOPICS

TO ADDRESS ROTARY.

D. B. Lawley, supervisor of field services of the Canadian Institute for the Blind, will address the Peterborough Rotary Club Monday on the subject "The Changing Social Order."

GOVERNOR COMING.

Charles Hulse, district governor of Kiwanis and possibly other officials from out of town, will be present at next Friday's noonday luncheon, President Gordon Miller announced yesterday.

THREE MEN ACCEPTED.

Three men were accepted for active service at the recruiting depot, Peterborough armory, yesterday. H. M. Jenkins of Bancroft, joined the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps while two Campbellford men, Robin Johnston and Roy Hay went with the First Midland Regiment.

MAN-SIZE TRAPS

Two steel bear traps are on display in the Examiner window and they are frightful looking contraptions. The largest of the two, big enough to hold a grizzly by its appearance has sharp teeth on the trap jaws, and the tie chain is a first cousin to the common logging chain. The traps were found by the game warden in the Peterborough County Crown Game Preserve, and were confiscated. They were put on display by Charley Kingan, president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association.

OUT OF STEP.

A young fellow about 19 years of age came into a local restaurant on Friday and purchased a quart of coffee. While the waiter was preparing the coffee, the boy helped himself to a box of sube sugar on the counter. First one big fistful disappeared into the boy's pocket. In a few seconds, he tilted the box and took another fistful, watching all the time to see if he was being observed. To top it off, he put a double quantity of sugar cubes into the quart of coffee when it was brought to him, and so it goes. Just another Canadian who looks at sugar rationing as if it was a joke.

STILL GOING STRONG

W. H. Giffen, canvasser at Norwood, reports the loan should at least reach $30,000 of the $35,000 objective for the village. Already the total subscriptions are well over the half-way mark and substantial additions are expected.

SHIPBUILDING MEN NEEDED

For immediate employment at His Majesty's shipyards, a call has been sent out for the following: ship machinists, ship electricians, ship boiler makers and ship machinist fitters. For information see William Mellis, Unemployment Insurance Commission, Barrie Building, Peterborough.

FLOWERS SHOOTING OUT.

Mrs. Gordon Miller, 161 Douro street, was surprised on Friday morning to notice that two crocuses planted out last summer have sprouted almost two inches on the sunny eastern side of the Miller home. The plants show signs that they will be in bloom within a few days if the warm weather continues.

THE SHOVEL CAME BACK.

Fraser Watson, Sophia street, mentioned to a reporter some days ago that a motorist had bogged his car in a snowdrift on the street late one night, and when he was unable to get the car free, had come up on Watson's verandah and taken a snow shovel. When the car was free, the motorist absent-mindedly tossed the shovel into his car, instead of putting it back. A few nights ago the motorist returned the shovel with his apologies, stating that he had forgotten all about borrowing the shovel until he read the news item.

Sanction Food Ship

WASHINGTON, March 7—(AP). —The United States and Britain have authorized the Greek War Relief Association of New York to charter a ship to carry flour to Greece.

The State Department said today 2,300 tons of flour would be shipped to the country where, recent reports say, it is impossible in some districts to buy bread at any price.

The authorization is contingent on the arrangement of adequate guarantees of safe conduct from Axis governments, and on the completion of satisfactory arrangements for distribution of the food to those who need it.

A program of aid to Greece through shipments from Turkey already is going forward, but is limited to the extent that food can be obtained in Turkey.

Trinity Church W.A. Gives $35 To War Victims

A short while ago, the Women's Association of Trinity United Church, of which Mrs. W. Stocker is president, and Miss Evelyn Morrow the treasurer, held a Victory Tea, all of the proceeds from which were for various war charity objects, and in this the City and District British War Victims' Fund has shared to the extent of $35, which is credited in this day's receipts for the fund as coming from them, giving ample proof of a very successful financial result from an effort of this type when one considers that this amount is only part of the sum they raised.

One personal donation is listed from one who has several times contributed to the fund, and one penny box collection was made from Elliott's Drug Store.

Neighbors Hold Euchre

Less than a month ago an effort by two neighbors, Mrs. W. Townsley and Mrs. P. Kitchen of 58 and 60 Ware street, which netted the fund the nice sum of $59. Then they promised to give further aid to the fund, and this has been made good with a $12 contribution listed today as a result of two euchre parties they held with this object in view, which now brings their total up to $71, with a promise of more to follow. Their co-operation and success might well serve as an incentive for other neighborly efforts of a similar nature.

Try To Figure It Out

Did you ever see a woman vanish from sight in mid-air? That seems almost incredible even in these days of marvellous inventions, yet that is just what happened when Joseph Dean, master magician, who has played with the finest shows of their kind on this continent, enacted this for the benefit of the men in training at Morrow Park, a short few weeks ago. For the benefit of this fund, Mr. Dean will entertain with this and other startling and bewildering acts at the Collegiate Auditorium next Wednesday and Thursday nights, March 11 and 12, in conjunction with a presentation by Marion Perry Laird of Young Canadians on Parade, with a series of dancing and singing acts. All artists are giving their services for the cause, and tickets at 35 cents are going well, and since ticket holders must naturally have the preference in the matter of admission, we would advise securing these early. They can be obtained from interested workers in the industrial plants, at the Capitol Grill, Loblaw's, Grafton's, Zeller's, Dick Raine's Stores, Peterborough Pet Stock store, and pupils of the Marion Perry Laird Dancing School.

Bombers On Subs

CHICAGO, March 7 — (AP). — Rudolf Hasbrook, a member of the London Auxiliary Fire Force, says the Germans now have submarines equipped with two bombing planes each which would make possible air raids as far inland as Chicago. Addressing civilian defence leaders last night, Hasbrook said the Nazis could bring the subs to the surface at night, assemble their bombers, fly out to bomb their objective and return to their submarine bases. The bombers are stored in the submarine's hold, he said.

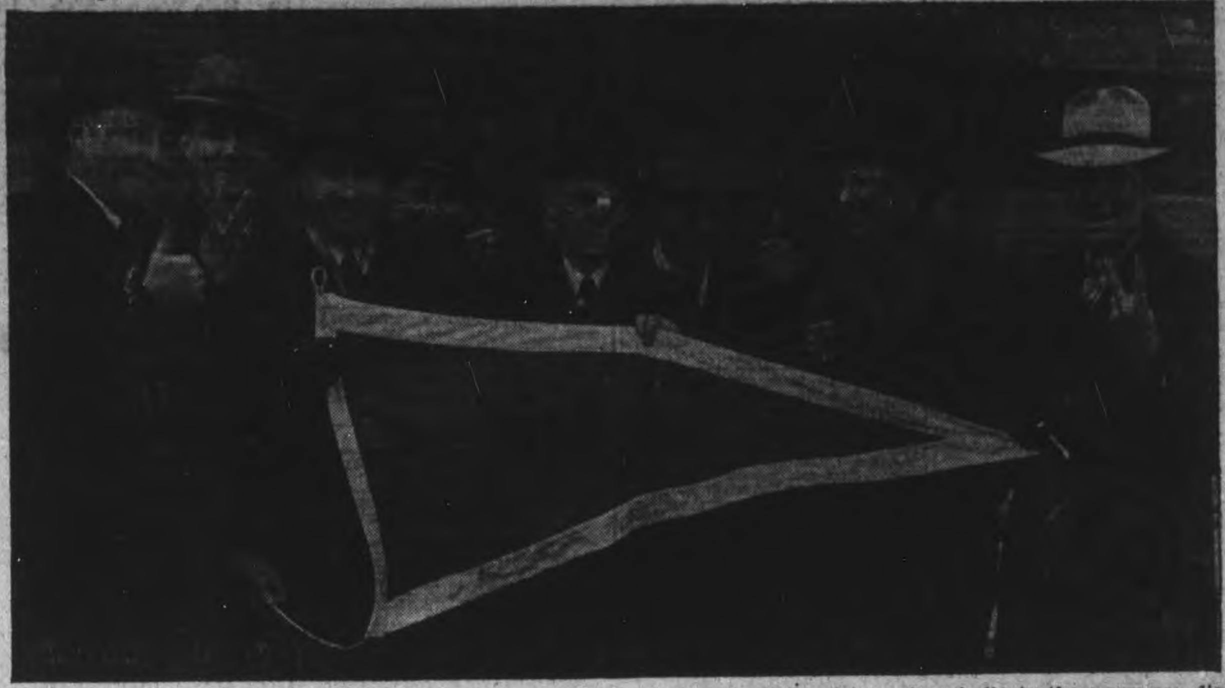
Victory Loan Heads Jubilant As Objective Is Oversubscribed



Pledge flags such as the one in the picture were hoisted in Peterborough Friday as a wave of subscriptions sent the Victory Loan total zooming over the top, and Vincent Eastwood, Peterborough county chairman, pushed the Lift Lock indicator on the Customs building to the top also. In the group of organisers and canvassers shown ABOVE, thumbs up and the V for victory signs indicate the never-say-die spirit needed so badly in Canada today. The men are, from LEFT to RIGHT: George M. Brown, organizer; Dennis Fitzgerald, W. Reid, organizer; Gordon Shier, Vincent Eastwood, county chairman; Herb Jamison, C. W. McBride, organizer, and W. C. Hughes, chairman of the city canvassers.

Rambling Reporter

COULD IT BE TRUE?

A noted fisherman whose wife is equally enthusiastic about fishing has been taking considerable interest in the weight of his better half for the past month. She is a slightly built lady, and according to the buddies of the fishermen, the latter has convinced her that she should go on a milk diet. She did this and has gained ten pounds already. Still the fishermen urges more milk. The strange part of the whole story is that the man didn't take any interest in his wife's weight until he heard there would be no gasoline for outboard motors this year, and it is a recognized fact that this woman can row a boat very handily.—McG.

Woman Suffers Broken Leg

As she was crossing Highway 7 just outside of Lakefield this morning to get a ride in an automobile that had stopped to pick her up, Mrs. Joseph Young, Apsley was caught between the car and a Wonder Bakeries truck driven by Harold Frost and sustained a fractured leg and other injuries. She is in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Samuel T. Cullen, R.R. 4, Lakefield, driving toward Peterborough had stopped his car outside the village limits of Lakefield and invited Mrs. Young who was walking on the highway to have a ride. She was crossing the road and apparently did not notice the on-coming bread truck. Frost tried to avoid hitting the woman and swerved his machine but in spite of his efforts Mrs. Young was caught between the front bumper of his truck and the Cullen car.

Friday Night Club Hears Talk On Blitz

W. Barnacal of the Genelco Co. last night described for the Friday Night Club a plane trip he took to England about a year ago when air raids over London were going full blast. The trip was made across the Atlantic to Lisbon, Portugal, and on the hop from there to England, the plane in which he rode was machine gunned by a German pilot. As the plane was being brought down at a landing field, cannon fire from another enemy plane removed the tail of the plane and caused a very rough landing. The pilot was apologetic for such a landing, but it was not his fault, Mr. Barnacal said.

An observation made by the speaker in England was that in a munitions plant, where possibly 6,000 persons were employed more than 5,500 of them would be women. He described many of the bombing raids during one of which he was forced out of his hotel because it was on fire. Another time, he saw a tea wagon blown over the top of two ambulances and against a wall, but the girls in the machine were uninjured.

Danube Rampages

London, March 7 (CP)

THOUSANDS have been made homeless in the worst floods in many years along the Danube River, which still was rising today after recent thaws, reports from continental Europe said.

At Vidin, Bulgaria, 10,000 persons were reported to be marooned, while Vichy broadcasts recorded here said 2,000 were made homeless at Szabdka, Hungary.

An enormous mass of ice partly destroyed the quays at the port of Vidin, where heavy casualties were feared.

Pleads Guilty Forging Cheque

Gordon Stewart, arrested twenty miles north of Belleville Friday by Provincial Constable Price Morris, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a charge of uttering a forged document and was remanded by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to March 12 for sentence.

It is alleged that Stewart forged the name of his sister, Mrs. Evie Shannon to a military cheque for $70.

When Magistrate Langley asked for evidence in the case this morning Crown Attorney McElderry suggested the remand to give the authorities a chance to look into the accused's record and the court agreed.

Merritton Play Here Monday

Fresh from their triumph over Collingwood, Peterborough Soldiers will play Merritton in the first game of a best three-of-five series for the Senior B championship at Brock Street Rink on Monday night.

Word to that effect came from the O.H.A. this morning and the weatherman promises enough cold weather to furnish good ice for the opening battle.

It should be a great series. The Merritton team came through a tough group in fine style to get into the O.H.A. playdowns and then triumphed over the powerful Windsor Spitfires by a sensational comeback in the second game of a home-and-home series. Windsor won the first fixture by five goals but Merritton had enough punch to drive through to a 11 to 4 triumph in the second battle and take the round by two goals. Any club that has oomph enough to pull over a surprise like that is tough opposition.

The Petes came through the rough-and-tumble Collingwood series in good shape with the exception of Bun Kingdon who picked up a "charlie horse" and they are confident that they can give the strong Merritton outfit a mery ride for the title.

The biggest crowd of the season will undoubtedly pack Brock St. Rink for Monday night's opener. The whole community is in behind the Petes now and the fans will jampack the rink to see what should be the feature game of the season.

Men Wash The Dishes Gents' Night Euchre

TRENT RIVER, March 7—(ENS) —The Ladies War Workers' room were the scene of a second Gents' Night Tuesday evening, as men of the community again took over the sponsoring of a progressive euchre, lunch preparation and dish washing. Eight tables of cards were played and prizes given for the high members at each table. During the presentation of prizes a number of well wrapped items were dispersed as special prizes by Mr. William McQuigge, who acted as master of ceremonies and the recipients unwrapped them by degrees to the amusement of all present. Corp. F. Pollock of Havelock was present, and addressed the gathering, congratulating the War Workers on their efforts and the community in general. His remarks were well received. Proceeds of over $5 were presented to the ladies. During the day a quilting and pot luck dinner was also held by the ladies, with an attendance of 14.

Huns Add Defences

LONDON, March 7 — (AP). — Reuters quoted the Rome radio today as saying that German fortifications along the northern coast of occupied France had been strengthened by the completion of a new line of defences 140 miles long.

The defences are designed to meet attacks by parachutists as well as assaults from the sea, the radio said.

(Only last week British parachutists carried out a raid on the French coast in conjunction with naval forces, destroying a radio airplane detection post.)

Lock Workers Exceed $10,000 Quota

Employees of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company stand right up with the leaders in the industrial picture of the local Victory Loan, and their effort is all the more commendable in view of the fact that they are purchasing in excess of $12,000 worth of War Savings Stamps every year.

The Victory Loan quota was set at $10,000, and when the final check-up had been made the loan was richer by $11,050 with the fair possibility of at least another $300.00 or 110.5 per cent of the total. Close to 75 per cent of the workers subscribed to the loan, with a total number of 127 subscriptions.

The shop committee was headed by Allan Heiderman, and serving on the committee were the following employees, Miss Nellie Brady, T. Bagnall, Harry Black, J. R. Jobe, Joe Primeau, William Whaley and R. C. Heiderman.

Utilities Do Well

The 65 permanent employees of the Peterborough Utilities Commission who are usually a few jumps ahead of other industries in the matter of war charities and bond campaigns, retained their reputation in this Second Victory Loan effort.

The emploees committee was headed by Les. Dyer with Howard Clegg, E. F. Reid, Harry Beatty and Norman Welch on the committee, and when the five had completed their work, the workers had topped the $7,500 tally by $350.00 for a grand total of $7,850 and 104.7 per cent of the objective.

The canvassers worked on a war financing objective throughout, and in every case where an employee could not afford to buy a bond, he was urged, and successfully too, to step up his purchases of War Savings stamps.

EVERY DIME BUYS A QUART OF MILK

Every dime you drop in the "Milk for Britain Bottles" is sent, in the form of Powdered Milk, to the needly children of Britain. Every dime provides a quart of milk and every quart provides added nourishment and health to those small "bombed-out" victims. The objective of the Kinsmen clubs across Canada, is to send enough powdered milk, each month, to make 150,000 liquid quarts. This effort is definitely a worthy one and we ask, on behalf of those needy British children, that you give it your full support.

On A Hot Stove

PORTLAND, Me., March 7 (AP).—A 90-day jail sentence was imposed today on William J. Powers, 30, after he admitted in municipal court that he had placed his six-year-old son Anthony's hands on a hot stove because the child took some sugar from the pantry shelf.

"I never heard of such a barbarous thing," commented Judge Robert W. De Wolfe.

Powers, a welder, told the court: "I lost my head. I took care of him after it happened. I was afraid he would get sugar diabetes. He had eaten 10 pounds of sugar within three weeks. I did place his hands on the stove but I didn't hold them there."

At the hospital, the boy's condition was described as good.

Be Popular in Crowd—Know Card Games

"Slapjack" Is Rough, But Fun!

Friends are grateful today for casual, informal fun. Be ready to entertain one, two or more with such popular card games as "Michigan," "Russian Bank" and "Slapjack."

"Slapjack" is a simple card game but full of wild suspense. Two players, with a pack face down between them, take turns flipping up cards and laying them on the table—fast!

A Jack turns up? SLAP! BANG! You both try to be first to slap it—you both miss—the game goes crazy!

For a group, stunt games are especially fun. Here's one—"Uh Uh Woof Woof"!

In time to a hot, fast radio tune, you all count "One, two, three four, five six, uh eight, nine woof, eleven, etc.," in unison. All sevens and multiples of seven are "uh," and all multiples of 10 are "woof." When a player makes a mistake he must drop out!

In our 32-page booklet are 47 games and stunts—for two, three or more—to make you a welcome guest, an appreciated hostess. Includes card games, pencil-and-paper and nonsense games, puzzlers, and games of skill.

For your copy of "Games and Stunts for Two or More" send 15 cents in coins or stamps to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO EXTREME METHODS

METHODS of doing anything may vary from the extreme of aggressiveness, positiveness and activeness to the other extremes of defensiveness, negativeness and passiveness. This is illustrated in bridge more during the bidding than in the play. One type of bidder likes to take some kind of specific action at his very first opportunity, and at every other opportunity, too. The other seems to seek reasons for early passes, not getting into the auction definitely unless he has to, or unless opportunity is kicking on his door. Which way is better? Sometimes one, sometimes the other, sometimes the middle path.

North: ♠ Q 3; ♥ Q J 8 2; ♦ 7 4 2; ♣ A K 7 4

West: ♠ 9; ♥ A K 9 7 4; ♦ K J 10 8 5; ♣ J 5

East: ♠ A 10 5; ♥ 10 6 5 3; ♦ 3; ♣ Q 9 6 3 2

South: ♠ K J 8 7 6 4 2; ♥ None; ♦ A Q 9 6; ♣ 10 8

(Dealer, West. Both sides vulnerable.)

	West	North	East	South
1	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	4 ♠
	Pass	Pass	5 ♥	Pass
	Pass	Dbl
2.	1 ♥	Dbl	Pass	1 ♠
	2 ♦	Pass	3 ♥	3 ♠
	4 ♥	4 ♠	Dbl	Rdbl

There you have both extremes on exhibit, at two tables of a duplicate game. At the first table, both North and South passed on their first turns, although both had cards enough to justify some kind of definite action. At the second table, notice how both North and South seemed anxious to press their cards, as if they couldn't show what they held unless they hurried about it.

In the first case, North and South created an illusion of great weakness by their early passes, so that they lured their vulnerable opponents over their depths. Against West, North took his top two clubs, led his diamond 7 to the A and later got two tricks in hearts, setting the contract three tricks for a score of 800.

At table 2, however, South scored 980 points by making his redoubled contract. He lost only one trick in spades and two in diamonds. The heart K was ruffed, club A taken, heart Q led for a diamond discard, West winning with the A and leading a trump. South won, led to the club A and discarded another diamond on the heart J.

Your Week-End Problem

Suppose a player gets known as one who favors opening almost any kind of fair hand with a bid of 1-Club, even when he has a short and worthless suit such as a weak doubleton or trebleton. What disadvantage is that reputation, and what advantage?

Two Years Free Tom Mooney Dies In 'Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7—(AP)—Tom Mooney, Labor leader who served two decades in the penitentiary on conviction of participation in the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing, died here Friday.

Mooney had been in poor health since his pardon and release from San Quentin prison two years ago. He recently underwent his fourth operation for stomach ulcers.

The grey-haired champion of Labor was stricken with recurrent stomach ulcers while on a speaking tour of the United States shortly after his release from San Quentin prison. Only yesterday he was believed recovering satisfactorily from his fourth operation.

Mooney and Warren K. Billings were convicted repsectively first and second-degree murder in the 1916 Market street blast which killed 10 persons and injured 40. After intervention by President Wilson, Mooney's death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, the same sentence Billings had received.

Throughout the years Mooney fought for freedom on the contention he was "framed" through perjured testimony because of his activities as a Labor organizer. Labor and other groups clamored for his freedom. Four times his case went before the United States Supreme Court. He was pardoned finally Jan. 7, 1939, by California's new Democratic governor, Culbert L. Olson.

22 Years in Prison.

Mooney was 58 and he had served 22 years in prison. His sister Anna, and his brother John were at his bedside when he died.

Mooney on July 22, 1916, was catapulted into international prominence by the explosion of a home-made bomb which burst behind a line of spectators as the Spanish-American war veterans marched along Market Street in the Preparedness Day parade.

The explosion killed 10 and injured 40.

Within five days Mooney, his wife, Billings, Israel Weinberg, a bus driver, and Edward F. Nolan, labor agitator, were arrested, all on murder charges. They were tried sepaartely except Nolan who was not brought to trial.

Billings, only 22, was convicted, but because of his youth was sentenced to life imprisonment. Mooney was convicted and sentenced to death. His wife and Weinberg were acquitted.

Labor throughout the world took up Mooney's case. Demonstrations bordered on riots in Russia, already in the throes of revolution.

President Wilson appealed for clemency in the interest of international affairs. Finally, when the United States Supreme Court refused to act, Governor W. O. Stephens commuted the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Mooney then began a fight for exoneration and freedom. He appealed to every court within legal reach, to five governors, to the legislature, to congress, repeatedly to the highest court in the United States. Invariably the answer was "no."

He rejected all suggestions that he apply for a parole, and split with Billings when the latter sought a parole as the only means of freedom. Mooney felt that to request a parole would be an admission of guilt.

Court records became so voluminous their weight was counted in tons.

Meantime Mooney had found time while peeling potatoes in the prison to keep alive the fires of his fight fight for freedom. In 1937 he entered the political campaign, urging with letters and pamphlets the election of Olson as governor. Olson's election was a spiritual victory, the only one in Mooney's long fight which paid a definite reward—vindication and freedom.

One of the new governor's first official acts was to summon Mooney and grant him his unconditional pardon. With it, the governor admonished Mooney to uphold peaceful, democratic principles. Mooney promised to support democracy. His first public speeches strove for worker solidarity and the unification of American labor.

Mooney had been mellowed by 22 years in prison. His audiences were different, perhaps a bit more accustomed to the ways of progressivism than those of Mooney's day. He did not command the enthusiasm of the old days.

Billings meantime had decided to insist on the complete vindication of a pardon and won it from Governor Olson in January, 1939. He was released from Folsom Prison in October of that year when the governor commuted his sentence to time served with the comment: "I believe you have served a prison sentence for a crime you did not committ."

He Writes His Own

Toronto, March 7 (CP).

PREPARATION of his speeches have been attributed to many people, Premier Mitchell Hepburn said last night in speaking to the Ontario Government's radio show convention banquet here. But Mr. Hepburn made it clear he writes his own speeches.

Leopold Macaulay, M.P.P., Acting Opposition Leader, who also spoke, chided the premier with having Chester S. Walters, controller of revenue, prepare budget statements for him.

"He may have prepared some statements for me which I read," Mr. Hepburn responded. "But I have yet to find a man who would write a speech for me or be responsible for them."

R.A.F. Picture Of French Auto Plants Bombed To Halt Production For Germany

This photo from London, apparently made by Royal Air Force plane, shows the great Renault automobile plant on the outskirts of Paris where the R.A.F. struck in a night raid blasting plants that were turning out munitions for the Nazi war machine. Death toll is put at over 600 by the French with more than 1,000 wounded. Places marked by letters above were singled out as important targets. They are (A) the export packing department; (B) the 65,000-kilowatt power station; (C) the body press shop; (D) motor vehicle assembly shop; (E) tire plant; (F) diesel engine assembly shop; (G) motor vehicle repair department; (H) aero plant; (I) offices; (J) petrol diesel engine test shop. The British government charges that the French plant has been turning out aero engines for the Nazis. They warn that there will be more bombs on "common foe" plants.

essential industry, thus making it necessary for workers to shift to war production jobs, and in forcing employers to release employees whose services can be of greater value in the war effort in some other place.

The unemployment insurance setup which now covers 2,500,00 persons, the employment offices from coast to coast and the youth training centres will be the main machinery for the mobilization plan. Recent extension of the function of the insurance scheme will soon bring another 1,000,000 under its provisions and every new worker will swell the total still further.

Already the Unemployment Insurance Commission has employment records of the people eligible for its benefits. Each of these persons soon will be asked to answer a questionnaire giving additional information: What other jobs the worker can do, whether he has been rejected for military service and whether he has any physical defects.

17 More Questions

In all, 17 questions will be asked in the questionnaires and they will be sent out almost immediately. The spokesman said that results of the survey may be in within a month or by the middle of April at the latest.

Employment agencies meantime will take action to meet the immediate needs of war industry, with drives to get women to take jobs in munitions plants and other places where there is a labor shortage.

Information about workers not under the unemployment insurance scheme is available in records of national registration taken in August, 1940. There will be no new Dominion-wide registration or the piling up of data which would take months to study, the government official said.

A special announcement will be made later describing what steps the government intends to take to meet the farm labor problem. There is expected to be a shifting back to the farms of experienced farmers now working at other jobs but other action also is expected.

"The basis of our efforts will be voluntary, but some compulsion will be necessary and that phase is likely to increase as the need for workers develops," this informant said.

He added that further restrictions on industries producing non-essential goods will be necessary as the war progresses, but they would be imposed only when absolutely imperative.

"We are not going to push people [illegible] e of pushing them around," he said.

post-discharge rehabilitation plan now effective by Order-in-Council and another to provide a land setelement scheme.

Debate on the Bill started late on Wednesday and continued through the afternoon and evening sittings on Thursday and the afternoon sitting on Friday.

Late yesterday the Government was confronted with a proposal from Conservatives that it withdraw the bill, redraft it and submit it along with other post-war planning measure to a special committee of the House for study.

Mr. Mackenzie reminded the House that in 1940 Prime Minister Mackenzie King had proposed setting up a special committee on post-war problems, but all parties in the House agreed to drop the proposal in view of the gravity of the war situation in the days after Dunkirk. He said he thought the war situation just as serious today, but promised to pass a recommendation on to the Prime Minister if it were the wish of the House.

At yesterday's sitting Trade Minister MacKinnon introduced his bill to raise the guaranteed intial price of wheat from 70 to 90 cents a bushel, basis No. 1 Northern at Fort William. With Agriculture Minister Gardiner's bill for wheat acreage reduction bonuses the measure constitutes the Government's wheat program for 1942.

Outline Plan Monday

Both ministers are expected to outline the 1942 wheat policy when they speak in the House Monday.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced arrangements with the United States for construction of a highway to Alaska. The plan, he said, is based purely on military considerations. The road will start at Fort St. John, B.C., and follow the line of airports already built by Canada to Fairbanks, Alaska.

The United States will pay the cost of building the road and its wartime maintenance, and after the war it will become part of the highway system of Canada.

Mr. Blackmore made the sharpest attack on the Bill providing for re-employment of discharged servicemen terming it "trashy and flimsy." Mr. Mackenzie retorted that the measure followed recommendations twice made to the Governmnt by the Canadian Legion, representing the organized ex-servicemen of Canada.

The suggestion of a special House Committee on post-war planning measures, broached before, was made yesterday by John Diefenbaker (Con. Lake Centre) and supported by Mr. Hanson who urged withdrawal of the Re-employment Bill for reconsideration and redrafting.

In a defence of Governmental measures for rehabilitation of ex-servicemen Mr. Mackenzie said Canada had gone further in this direction than any other Allied country.

Expected More in Britain.

M. J. Coldwell, acting C.C.F. House Leader, said he would not dispute that statement and acknowledged he was a "little disappointed" at what he saw being done in Great Britain in this connection. But no matter what was being done in other countries, he said, he did not want to see Canada fail in preparing to meet post-war conditions.

Mr. Mackenzie said he thought control boards should be established in different industries to start now or very soon preparing for the transition from war to peace. He promised to expand on the suggestion later.

"The estimate of very prominent men in industry is that 40 per cent of those now working in war industries will be displaced when peace comes again," said Mr. Mackenzie.

"Therefore in my judgment it is the primary duty of any Government to lay plans to see that provision is made during that transition period for the care of those men."

The minister said there could be no doubt of what Canada should do for the ex-servicemen. The least that could be done was to mobilize the entire resources of the nation to assure them economic security.

He appealed to member not to concentrate on inevitable flaws in legislation but to be constructive, and urged them to adhere to the non-partisan attitude with which Parliament approached veterans' problems after the First Great War.

"It is my considered judgment," he said, "that once the measures to be introduced in this House have passed we shall have all the legislation necessary to look after the problem of the re-establishment of ex-servicemen.

The Power Is Ready

"The administration may fall down but the power is there. The legislation is there. There will always be things to be corrected but the general purport of our legislation is not today approached in any part of the British Empire.

"I defy any member who knows what has happened in the other Dominions to prove I am wrong in that."

Howard Green (Con., Vancouver South) urged that ex-servicemen be given preference over others when applying for jobs through government employment offices, but Angus MacInnnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East) said he did not agree with that proposal. He feared a tendency to set ex-servicemen against other classes of people applying for work, he said. He approved of a preference to ex-servicemen in civil jobs, although not for jobs in industry.

Labor Minister Mitchell assured Mr. Green there would be the closest co-operation between his department and the Pensions and Health Department in doing the best possible for ex-servicemen.

Mr. Mackenzie declined to promise a preference in treatment at employment offices but agreed to consider a suggestion that representatives of the Pensions and Health Department seek employment for ex-servicemen throught the employment offices.

Mr. Hanson suggested there might be an attack in the courts on the constitutionality of the bill.

Mr. Mackenzie said there was an opinion from the Justice Department that the "peace, order and good government" clause in the British North America Act would establish constitutionality of the measure even though it invaded the provincial field of employment.

Not Necessarily Enough.

Mr. Coldwell said he would not dispute Mr. Mackenzie's statement that Canada is doing more in post-war planning than any other part of the Empire, but that did not mean enough was being done. He said he was "a little disappointed" at what he saw of this phase of activity in Great Britain.

J. A. Marshall, New Democracy-Camrose, said he was not sure whether the bill should be considered that of the Labor Department or the Pensions Minister but he was assuming it was the latter's.

"That is not correct," said Mr. Mackenzie.

"Not disowning the baby, are you", queried John R. MacNicol, (Con.-Toronto-Davenport).

Mr. Marshall said post-war planning should be a means to an end, a means of attaining an objective which has already been decided upon. In presenting this bill, he said, the Minister's attitude reminded him of the phrase:

"We don't know where we're going but we're on our way."

There was a danger in passing this measure, Mr. Marshall said, before the whole picture of the Government's objective could be seen in clear perspective.

International Police

"We may wake up some morning and find we have been gradually eased into state capitalism or cunningly-disguised Socialism," he said. It might be that the Government foresaw establishment of an international police force which would impose the will of the Government upon the people in the post-war period.

"We must drag these planners and their plans out into the open," he said. "We must know, and the minister must tell us what is going on behind the scenes."

Mr. MacNicol joined in advocacy of a Commons committee for planning to meet post-war problems and to deal with post-war problem legislation.

G. H. Castleden, C.C.F.-Yorkton, said the bill placed responsibility for providing work on industry, "and industry will not provide work unless there is profit in it."

"Industry is not interested in humanity," he said. "This bill is just like trying to apply a patch on an old worn-out tire."

Mumps Epidemic Unabated

I have been waiting for our Mumps epidemic to die down so that I could report interesting points concerning it. I prophesied that we would have some 500 cases but we are well past the 600 mark and will probably pass 700. However, this month should see this epidemic peter out. The figures I have given represent civilians only and do not include the large number of soldiers with Mumps from our Training Centre.

Scarlet Fever

Some time ago I warned that we might expect a Scarlet Fever epidemic. So far, fortunately, this has not materialized. However, there have been a number of cases in the city and also several in our military Training Centre, which means that the danger of an epidemic is not passed. Again, fortunately, the type of Scarlet Fever so far has been very mild. There is no telling when we may have cases of the severe type which may bring heartache to many, and I again urge that those who have not had the disease get the five inoculations which promise at least a 90% protection.

German Measles

Because of the lightness of many Scarlet Fever cases, one is apt to confuse some of them with German Measles. There are a few cases of the latter in the city. Let's not take chances on such a confusion. German Measles is a harmless disease. The isolation period for the patient is but six days and there is no quarantine for contacts.

Reporting.

Please remember that both doctor and householder are required to report communicable diseases. Doctors have forgotten to report a number of cases and householders, relying on the doctor to do so, have also failed. Believing that this failure to report was not intentional, no action has been taken to carry out the provision of the Public Health Act. One cannot guarantee a continuance of this beneficent attitude. I hope doctors and householders will take this timely warning to heart. In doubtful cases, throw the responsibility of decision on your Medical Officer of Health.

Other Chatters

It has occurred to me that it would be of interest if others, as well as myself, would write articles for this column. Next week look for a chat from Mr. Ronald MacPherson, our City Sanitary Inspector.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

The department said also that a Japanese army order directing Filipinos in occupied areas to surrender guns and blade weapons of every description was interpreted by MacArthur as indicating that the invaders were afraid of a popular uprising.

CHUNGKING, March 7—(CP).—Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek told American volunteer group fliers with the Chinese air force that "when victory is ours, I hope to celebrate with you in Tokyo the successful issue of the war."

"The blows you have struck at the Japanese have put you in the forefront of Allied forces fighting the aggressor."
